The Capsizing of the Schooner “Ariel.”

When Captain R. B. Forbes bought the Anglona, old Lee—who had designed the Rose for Forbes—wanted to know why the captain had not come to him for a clipper schooner.

Forbes was just about to sail for Europe with his uncle T. H. Perkins, in the Cunarder Columbia, on a business visit to the Barings and Rothschilds. He hurriedly agreed to take a half interest in a schooner designed by Lee, provided she should beat the Anglona in a fair and square trial of sailing. When he returned to America in the summer of 1841 Lee took him to see the new schooner, which had been built by Sprague & James at Medford, and was then lying at the Lewis Wharf, Boston. Forbes saw a long low

Forbes, Peabody, Salem, Boston

On arrival at Gibraltar Forbes found that he was to transfer himself, crew and cargo to a new ship, named the Bashaw, which had just been bought by his uncle for the China trade. After receiving several other shipments of opium, the Bashaw, a full-rigged ship of 390 tons, sailed on July 10.

Forbes arrived in the Straits of Sunda in October. At Anjer he fell in with the brig Leander of Salem, belonging to Joseph Peabody, which he had met leaving Smyrna, when in the Danube.

The Leander had opium on board and it was important that her captain should not suspect that Forbes also carried the drug. However,

Forbes was not a man one could forget, and directly the Leander's captain came aboard he recognised the late skipper of the Danube. Both he and his super-cargo at once tried to find out the truth, but Forbes had given strict orders to his crew to let out nothing.

Forbes' old chief, J. P. Cushing, had embarked for home in the Milo and he found his brother Thomas head of the house of Perkins & Co., Canton, and also American Consul. The Bashaw and the Leander were the only ships bringing Turkey opium, and the total amount from Smyrna was not more than 1000 chests. Forbes, who had seen very little of his elder brother Thomas, was glad of a five months' stay with him, and he little knew that when he sailed from China in April, 1829, that was the last he was to see of this brother.

Russell & Co. in 1830.

With the arrival of Augustine Heard in the Lintin the old American house of Samuel Russell & Co., known in Canton as the Kee-Chang Hong, was reorganised. Founded by Samuel Russell as far back as December, 1818, up till the middle of 1830 the only partners had been Samuel Russell and Philip Ammidon. It was now reorganised, William H. Low, who had arrived out in the ship Sumatra in the previous September, and Augustine Heard becoming partners, whilst young John Forbes joined the staff. At this date Russell & Co. were purely an agency, they owned no ships and they did no trade on their own account, but they were lucky in having much of the business of Baring Bros. and also that of Houqua. Besides this, with two such go-ahead sailors as Augustine Heard and R. B. Forbes interested in the firm, from this date it went ahead by leaps and bounds.

Thomas Dent and a quantity of opium on board. This was probably the first trip made up the coast by an American vessel. Forbes went as far as Amoy but no merchants dared to come off to the stranger, and after waiting about for several days Captain Forbes, in accordance with the orders from his owner, Mr. Cushing, sailed back to Lintin, much against the wishes of Beale, who was confident that only patience was needed to start a trade.

Robert Bennet Forbes was a young captain, barely 23 years of age, the employee of his uncles, the brothers J. & T. H. Perkins. We shall hear a great deal more of him later on, for he was head partner of Russell & Co. for several years and directly responsible for practically all the American clippers in the opium trade.

William Floyd Weld is an American attorney, businessman, author, and politician who served as the 68th Governor of Massachusetts from 1991 to 1997. Wikipedia

Born: William Floyd Weld, July 31, 1945, Smithtown, New York, U.S.

Political party: Republican (before 2016, 2019–present)

Other political affiliations: Libertarian (2016–2019)

FATHER: David Weld (1911-72); ancestor of Edmund Weld, Harvard 1650; distant cousin, Gen. Stephen Minot Weld JR.
MOTHER: Mary Nichols Weld (1913-86); descendent of William Floyd (Declaration of Independence)

White, Weld & Co. is a privately held global financial services firm engaged in asset management, investment advisory, investment banking and other capital market activities. Relaunched in 2012, the business is headquartered in Chicago. Previously, White, Weld & Co. was a Boston-based investment bank, historically managed by Boston Brahmins until its sale to Merrill Lynch in 1978. The Weld family name can be traced back to the founding of Massachusetts in the 1630s.

White, Weld & Co. was founded in Boston in the nineteenth century, originally to finance overseas trade.

One of the firm's most prominent transactions in its final period was the IPO of Walmart in 1970 with Stephens Inc.

Relationship with Credit Suisse[edit]

One of its most successful ventures was an international investment banking partnership founded in 1970 by Robert L. Genillard as a Managing Partner of White, Weld & Co, with Credit Suisse, called Société Anonyme du Credit Suisse et de White Weld – or Credit Suisse White Weld. Sir John Craven, later head of Morgan Grenfell, led Credit Suisse White Weld from 1975 to 1978. Furthermore, Oswald Gruebel, Credit Suisse chief from 2004 to 2007, began his career in 1970 at Credit Suisse White Weld. When White Weld was private banking division of White Weld, founded in 1954 as White Weld & Co. AG, became Clariden Leu.

Colonel Thomas Handasyd Perkins, also known as T. H. Perkins (December 15, 1764 – January 11, 1854), was an American merchant, slave trader, smuggler and philanthropist from a wealthy Boston Brahmin family. Starting with bequests from his grandfather and father-in-law, he amassed a huge fortune. As a young man, he traded slaves in Saint-Domingue, worked as a maritime fur trader trading furs from the American Northwest to China, and then turned to smuggling Turkish opium into China.<sup>[2] [3]</sup> His philanthropic contributions include the Perkins School for the Blind, renamed in his honor; the Boston Museum of Fine Arts; McLean Hospital; along with having a hand in founding the Massachusetts General Hospital.

In 1785, when China opened the port of Canton to foreign businesses, Perkins became one of the first Boston merchants to engage in the China trade. He sailed as supercargo on the Astrea, captain James Magee, owned by Elias Hasket Derby,<sup>[6]</sup> to Canton in 1789 with a cargo including ginseng, cheese, lard, wine, and iron. On the trip back it carried tea and silk cloth.<sup>[7]</sup> In 1815, Perkins and his brother James opened a Mediterranean office to buy Turkish opium for resale in China.<sup>[5]</sup>

He also held significant holdings in the Elliot textile mills in Newton, the mills at Holyoke and Lowell, New England canals and railroads, and lead and iron mines including the Monkton Iron Company in Vergennes, Vermont. In addition, Perkins was politically active in the Federalist Party, serving terms as state senator and representative from 1805–1817. Additionally, he invested in many of the mills on Lowell, MA including Appleton Mills.<sup>[8]</sup>

Forbes arrived in the Straits of Sunda in October. At Anjer he fell in with the brig Leander of Salem, belonging to Joseph Peabody, which he had met leaving Smyrna, when in the Danube.

The Leander had opium on board and it was important that her captain should not suspect that Forbes also carried the drug. However,

Forbes was not a man one could forget, and directly the Leander's captain came aboard he recognised the late skipper of the Danube. Both he and his super-cargo at once tried to find out the truth, but Forbes had given strict orders to his crew to let out nothing.

& Co., Canton, and also American Consul. The Bashaw and the Leander were the only ships bringing Turkey opium, and the total amount from Smyrna was not more than 1000 chests. Forbes, who had seen very little of his elder brother Thomas, was glad of a five months' stay with him, and he little knew that when he sailed from China in April, 1829, that was the last he was to see of this brother.

Forbes' old chief, J. P. Cushing, had embarked for home in the Milo and he found his brother Thomas head of the house of Perkins & Co., Canton, and also American Consul. The Bashaw and the Leander were the only ships bringing Turkey opium, and the total amount from Smyrna was not more than 1000 chests. with the arrival of Augustine Heard in the Lintin the old American house of Samuel Russell & Co., known in Canton as the Kee-Chang Hong, was reorganised. Founded by Samuel Russell as far back as December, 1818, up till the middle of 1830 the only partners had been Samuel Russell and Philip Ammidon. It was now reorganised, William H. Low, who had arrived out in the ship Sumatra in the previous September, and Augustine Heard becoming partners, whilst young John Forbes joined the staff. At this date Russell & Co. were purely an agency, they owned no ships and they did no trade on their own account, but they were lucky in having much of the business of Baring Bros. and also that of Houqua. Besides this, with two such go-ahead sailors as Augustine Heard and R. B. Forbes interested in the firm, from this date it went ahead by leaps and bounds.

Five opium clippers were entered as making two trips in the year between Calcutta and Lintin. These were Jamesina, Falcon, Red Rover, Waterwitch and Sylph.

Amongst the store and receiving ships lying at the outer anchorages were Dent's Jane and Charles Forbes; Jardine Matheson's Hercules, and Russell's Lintin.

Thomas Dent and a quantity of opium on board. This was probably the first trip made up the coast by an American vessel. Forbes went as far as Amoy but no merchants dared to come off to the stranger, and after waiting about for several days Captain Forbes, in accordance with the orders from his owner, Mr. Cushing, sailed back to Lintin, much against the wishes of Beale, who was confident that only patience was needed to start a trade.

Robert Bennet Forbes was a young captain, barely 23 years of age, the employee of his uncles, the brothers J. & T. H. Perkins. We shall hear a great deal more of him later on, for he was head partner of Russell & Co. for several years and directly responsible for practically all the American clippers in the opium trade.

PILGRIMS SOCIETY AND BOSTON BRAHMIN'S RULE AMERICA. PERIOD.

The Pilgrims Society and Boston Brahmins still rule America and have never given up control. All the garbage you read in your American history classes is British propaganda, fake history, just like main stream media is fake news. Michael McKibben and Douglas Gabriel set the record straight and explain why America has never been free of British rule.

The image is a video player thumbnail. At the top left, there is a skull and crossbones icon. The main title 'Pirate Trading' is written in large, bold, black letters on a red background. Below it, the words 'TRUTH HISTORY' are written in bold, black letters inside a yellow rectangular box with a black border. The central part of the thumbnail shows two men in a video call. The man on the left is wearing a black cowboy hat and glasses, and is identified as Michael McKibben. The man on the right has white hair and glasses, and is identified as Douglas Gabriel. The background of the video call shows a room with a bookshelf. The right side of the thumbnail features a stylized, wavy graphic in shades of red and yellow.
