

NEW-YORK TRIBUNE, SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1912.

LONGITUDINAL SECTION OF THE TITANIC, SHOWING THE DISPOSITION OF COMPARTMENTS AND WATERTIGHT BULKHEADS.

The builders of the Titanic provided her with bulkheads and stiffened every portion of her hull so that she would be able to float in the event of a collision with the iceberg. It is believed that the Titanic would have been able to float in the event of a collision with the iceberg.

...to the Virginian. The steamer Cephalus, with several hundred passengers of the Titanic, is now en route to New York.

It is said that all the passengers and crew were transferred to the ship.

"AT 2:20 THE TITANIC FOUNDERED."

Shortly afterward the following was given out as the message on the Titanic:

"At 2:20 a.m., the Titanic foundered. Cephalus proceeding to New York with passengers. H. J. HADDOCK, S. S. Olympic."

The wireless message was handed to Vice-President Franklin said: "It is heartless!"

"As far as we know, it has been named from the Halifax, that three steamers have passengers on board, namely the Virginian, the Cephalus and the Titanic. We have also heard from him that the Titanic had 675 survivors on board."

"It is very difficult to learn if the Virginian and the Parisian have any survivors on board. We have asked Captain Haddock and our agent at Halifax to ascertain if any passengers aboard the two steamships."

"We are much less sure, however, that there has been a great loss of life, but it is impossible for us to give further particulars until we have heard from the Virginian and the Parisian. We have no information that any passengers aboard those two vessels."

"We are very hopeful about the rumors reaching us that the Virginian and the Parisian have survivors aboard are true."

"There was a sufficient number of lifeboats on the Titanic to carry all the passengers and crew."

"It was confirmed to you, when I made the statement that the Titanic was unsinkable, that the steamship was safe and that there would be no loss of life. The first definite news came in the message from Captain Haddock."

Mr. Franklin denied emphatically that the White Star Line had washed the ship, the Olympic, and the world's record of the disaster. The wireless message from Captain Haddock was made public by the company a few minutes after it was received in the office.

"The White Star officials said last night that the Titanic carried 1,323 passengers, of whom 318 were in state, 262 second class and 743 steerage."

"The ship numbered 909, including officers, men and stewards."

After the message was received from Captain Haddock the White Star Line canceled its orders for special trains to proceed to Halifax in New York. The ship was expected to arrive in New York on Saturday.

The disaster is the greatest known to shipping history.

Those nearest approaching it were the loss of the steamer Atlanta in 1872, with 174 lives, and the sinking of La Bourgogne, in 1898, with 571 lives.

It still remains the hope that the passengers of the White Star Line were saved having saved some of the passengers of the crew of the Titanic. It was not until after 7 o'clock last night that it became known that the Titanic had foundered with a terrible loss of life. All day hopes had been buoyed up by messages telling of the rescue of an old board, and it was also reported that the vessel would be towed safely into harbor at Halifax.

THE EARLY MESSAGES HOPEFUL, BUT UNOFFICIAL.

The early messages, however, were of little value, and the only news always the fear of the bad news that came flashing over the wires from Cape Race on April 7 o'clock that the Titanic had sunk south of the Canadian Banks three hours and fifty-five minutes after striking an iceberg.

The first official information, received from Captain Haddock of the Titanic ship, the Olympic, told the world's news of the disaster—that of the more than 2,200 persons on the Titanic only 675 had been saved. The significant line was added that nearly all of those saved were women and children.

There were 720 women and children in the first and second cabins. It is not known how many there were in the steerage, but the dispatch seems to imply the loss of nearly the entire crew as well as the men passengers.

MELP FROM VIRGINIAN AND PARISHAN NOT PROBABLE.

In the confusion gripping at the White Star Office Vice-President Franklin denied the situation as calmly as possible. In spite of his doubts to the contrary, he did not believe the Virginian and the Parisian could have reached the scene of the disaster in time to be of assistance.

When the Virginian reached her harbor of the disaster, the ship was not yet in sight. The ship was not yet in sight. The ship was not yet in sight.

In discussing the line in the dispatch that nearly all of those saved were women and children Mr. Franklin said:

"There is no rule of the ship that requires the men to sacrifice themselves for the women and children, but it is a rule of courtesy."

HAS ICEBERG DETECTOR

Scientist Says Microthermometer Would Have Warned Titanic, TELLS WHEN BERG IS NEAR

Professor Barnes Declares Inventor Gives Motion of Ice Away

Dr. Barnes, who has been working on a microthermometer for some time, has been successful in inventing a device which will detect the presence of an iceberg before it is reached. The device is a microthermometer which is sensitive to the temperature of the water. When the water is near an iceberg, the temperature is lower than the surrounding water. The device will detect this and give a warning.

MARCONI HAS NEW DEVICE

Inventor Says It Will Prevent Collisions at Sea

Mr. Marconi has been working on a new device which will prevent collisions at sea. The device is a radio signal which will be sent out by a ship when it is near another ship. The other ship will receive the signal and know that it is near another ship. This will prevent collisions.

Some Good Fiction and Some Straight Facts

The fiction in our new Sunday Magazine will be by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Campbell MacColl, Sewell Ford, and James H. Hays, Jr., and the facts will be contributed by Charles K. Harris and Dr. Eugene Lyman Pike.

Of course, every one is now reading Conan Doyle's great serial, "The Lost World," so there is no need to say more of that.

The Hard Man By CAMPBELL MACCOLL is a short story to which we wish to call particular attention to. It is a red-headed tale of British army life in Africa, with a startling surprise at the climax.

A Late Score for Vandy By SEWELL FORD is a French story, and that is enough to tell the legends of adventure of the wonderful life of Vandy. His story is a story of a man who has made his name as a writer and a man who has made his name as a writer.

The Investigator By JAMES H. HAYS, JR. is a story of love and intrigue and politics. It is written by one who knows Washington life from behind the scenes.

Making a Nation Whistle

By CHARLES K. HARRIS

"The Science of Song Writing." Mr. Harris might have called this illuminating article. The most successful man of his craft shows how he has reduced things in a science.

Our next Illustrated Song
Drawing by HOWARD CHANLER CRIBBY
"Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes" the classic by Ben Jonson, is illustrated by the reproduction of a beautiful painting by the noted illustrator.

COURT ISSUES WRIT FOR TEST OF THAW'S SANITY

Justice Stanley Orders White's Slayer Brought Before Him on Friday.

LAST HEARING IN 1909

Expert's Petition Quoted May Cause: Says Mr. Mathey, "was Insane in Per-fectly Base"

On the application of Charles E. Blythe, assistant for the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, on Friday, April 12, granted a writ of habeas corpus to the defendant, John D. White, who was committed to the State Prison, to appear before him on Friday, April 13, at 10 o'clock, to be heard on his petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

White's petition was granted on the ground that he was insane at the time of his arrest, and that he was not sane at the time of his trial. The court, in granting the writ, said that it was satisfied that White was insane at the time of his arrest, and that he was not sane at the time of his trial.
