

[ Editor. (Aug. 24, 1913). Californian
[Lillian Scott Troy] On The Trail Of The Laird Of Skibo [Andrew Carnegie]. The Los Angeles Sunday Tribune. Source:
[https://www.newspapers.com/
image/1173034179/](https://www.newspapers.com/image/1173034179/) ]

[ Reproduced for educational purposes only.
Fair Use relied upon. ]

CALIFORNIAN ON THE TRAIL OF THE LAIRD OF SKIBO

Miss Lillian Scott Troy Determined to Smoke Out Andrew Carnegie on Question of His Citizenship in Britain

NATIONAL ALLEGIANCE OF IRONMASTER IN DOUBT

British Home Secretary Intimates That Library Peddler Is Not Unlikely a Loyal Subject of 'His 'Ighness

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Andrew Carnegie's stay at Skibo castle this summer does not promise to be as uneventful as usual.

Miss Lillian Scott Troy, a Californian, who dug up the fact that Mr. Carnegie's name is enrolled on the list of parliamentary voters in Dornock parish, Sutherland county, Scotland, is still on the laird's trail. She wants to know whether Mr. Carnegie is an American citizen, and, as part of her campaign to demonstrate that he is not, she intends to file a protest against the retention of his name on the voting list in Scotland.

The marquis of Tullibardine, the son and heir of the duke of Atholl, also intends to register a protest against Mr. Carnegie's name being kept on the voting list.

Both of these protests must be filed before August 26, and, in due course of time, the revising officer will notify the parties to appear before him and state their cases.

Miss Troy intends to go to Scotland herself. She says frankly that she hopes Mr. Carnegie will be induced to testify, and give her an opportunity to cross-examine him.

When the citizenship question arose Miss Troy got Will Thorne, a Labor member of parliament, to write Home Secretary McKenna in regard to Mr. Carnegie's status. One of Mr. McKenna's answers seems to require some explanation from Mr. Carnegie.

It is dated "Home office," and reads as follows:

"Dear Thorne: You wrote me the other day asking whether Andrew Carnegie is a British subject and suggesting that the appearance of his name in the list of Dornock voters is sufficient evidence of British nationality.

"I am afraid I am not in position to reply definitely. The appearance of a name in the lists of voters is not conclusive as to British nationality, as occasionally persons who are not British subjects get on the lists.

"So far as I know, Mr. Carnegie was born in the United Kingdom, and by virtue of this would be a British subject, and unless he has ever done anything to divest himself of his British nationality (and I have never heard that he has), he remains a British subject."

Mr. Fage, the American ambassador, and his wife, will soon be guests of Mr. Carnegie at Skibo castle and, if possible, Miss Troy would like the question of the laird's citizenship thrashed out during the ambassador's stay there.

Californian [Lillian Scott Troy] On The Trail
Of The Laird Of Skibo [Andrew Carnegie]

Editor. (Aug. 24, 1913). Californian [Lillian Scott Troy] On The Trail Of The Laird Of Skibo [Andrew Carnegie]. The Los Angeles Sunday Tribune.

TRANSCRIPTION

CALIFORNIAN ON THE TRAIL OF THE LAIRD OF SKIBO

Miss Lillian Scott Troy Determined to Smoke Out Andrew Carnegie on Question of His Citizenship in Britain

NATIONAL ALLEGIANCE OF IRONMASTER IN DOUBT

British Home Secretary Intimates That Library Peddler Is Not Unlikely a Loyal Subject of 'Is 'Ighness

LONDON, AUG. 22.—Andrew Carnegie's stay at Skibo castle this summer does not promise to be as uneventful as usual.

Miss Lillian Scott Troy, a Californian who dug up the fact that Mr. Carnegie's name is enrolled on the list of parliamentary voters in Dornock parish, Sutherland county, Scotland, is still on the laird's trail. She wants to know whether Mr. Carnegie is an American citizen, and, as part of her campaign to demonstrate that he is not, she intends to file a protest against the retention of his name on the voting list in Scotland.

The Marquis of Tullibardine, the son and heir of the Duke of Atholl, also intends to register a protest against Mr. Carnegie's name being kept on the voting list.

Both of these protests must be filed before August 20, and, in due course of time, the revising officer will notify the parties to appear before him and state their cases.

Miss Troy intends to go to Scotland herself. She says frankly that she hopes Mr. Carnegie will be induced to testify, and give her an opportunity to cross-examine him.

When the citizenship question arose, Miss Troy got Will Thorne, a Labor member of parliament, to write Home Secretary McKenna in regard to Mr. Carnegie's status. One of Mr. McKenna's answers seems to require some explanation from Mr. Carnegie. It is dated "Home office," and reads as follows:

"Dear Thorne: You wrote me the other day asking whether Andrew Carnegie is a British subject and suggesting that the appearance of his name in the list of Dornock voters is sufficient evidence of British nationality.

"I am afraid I am not in position to reply definitely. The appearance of a name in the lists of voters is not conclusive as to British nationality, as occasionally persons who are not British subjects get on the lists. "So far as I know, Mr. Carnegie was born in the United Kingdom, and by virtue of this would be a British subject, unless he has ever done anything to divest himself of British nationality (and I have never heard that he has). He remains a British subject."

Mr. Page, the American ambassador, and his wife, will soon be guests of Mr. Carnegie at Skibo castle and, if possible, Miss Troy would like the question of the laird's citizenship thrashed out during the ambassador's stay there.

