"A SOWER WENT FORTH TO SOW"

Is the soil good?
Will a seed take root in it?
Will it spring up, be nourished, develop, grow, bear fruit and reproduce itself?
These are some of the questions a wise man asks when planting seed.

Friends of China asked them a quarter of a century ago.
Believing that the soil was good, that the seed of the Young Men's Christian Association would take root, spring up, be nourished, develop, grow and reproduce itself, they planted.

To what extent they were right in their judgment and how far their expectations and hopes have been realized is indicated on the following pages.

The Year 1919 in the Growing Process

Frequent use has been made of the words Growth and Progress in reporting on the work of the Young Men's Christian Association in China. This has been done advisedly, based on a careful study of conservative reports from all parts of the field.

There have been some failures and discouragements, but the trend has been steadily upward.

Comparative figures covering vital facts for the years 1918 and 1919 make it possible to accurately use these words again, as the comparisons show encouraging development along nearly every line.

The figures speak for themselves.

(It should be noted that the very large increases are sometimes partly accounted for by the fact that more complete reports are being made each year.)
WHY HAS THE MOVEMENT SUCCEEDED?

HERE ARE SOME OF THE REASONS FOR THIS CONTINUED GROWTH:

The Association is a Christian movement. The purpose of it is to lead men and boys to a knowledge of God. And because it is of God it does not fail.

It was carefully planted, has been well nourished, and extended on a conservative basis. Repeated calls for new organizations have been refused until existing plants were well developed.

It is indigenous. As rapidly as possible, Chinese leaders have been placed in charge and every local Association is self-supporting.

It specializes in work for young men and boys and serves their peculiar needs. By thus concentrating its efforts it produces an effective and successful work.

It meets a real need in conserving the life of the nation's young manhood, by providing a full program for men and boys, touching them on their religious, intellectual, physical and social sides, with a view to a well balanced development.

It adapts itself to meet the needs of its environment, not being bound by tradition or custom, but seeking to reach and help all young men and boys.

It is interdenominational as well as international. It aims to serve all churches and men and boys of all nations.

It stands for an aggressive service to all classes. It teaches young men to not only shun evil but to hate it and help blot it out. It endeavors to inculcate the principles of love, service and self-sacrifice. Its motto is "Not to be ministered unto but to minister."

It is self-motivated. The Association is a group of men who voluntarily band themselves together for service.

The Association invites and receives hearty cooperation from individuals, Churches and other friends.
The demands for the organizing of city Associations in new centers have been many and pressing, but a conservative policy of developing well those already existing before further expansion has limited the number of cities occupied. There are still 241 cities in China, each having a population of 50,000 or more, including five provincial capitals, without city Associations. A steady, healthy growth has been the aim, rather than superficial organizations in many new cities.

(1918 REPORT FIGURES)
Eleven new Student Associations were organized in 1919. In 1917 ten secretaries were giving their time to student work in China. In 1919 this number had increased to thirty.

The watchword of the Student Division is Service, and the ideal is being rapidly realized. The marked tendency in student Associations is toward membership based on service rather than on the payment of money.
A PICTURE OF HISTORIC INTEREST

TIEN TSIN SECRETARIAT STAFF

Twenty-four Chinese and five foreign secretaries now give their entire time to Association work in Tientsin.

Y. M. C. A. IN CHINA
Emphasis is placed on a steady increase in the number of qualified full time Chinese secretaries. Teachers and part time assistants are not counted as secretaries.

PART OF THE NATIONAL STAFF

There are twenty-four Chinese and seventeen foreign secretaries in national work, in addition to stenographers, assistants and clerks.

Since 1912 the membership of City Associations in China has grown steadily until at the close of 1919 the total was five times greater than in 1912. The net increase for 1919 was almost as large as the entire city membership in 1912. Successful annual membership campaigns are conducted by practically every Association. The most prominent men of the cities are enlisted as campaign leaders, while the membership includes men and boys from all walks of life.

With the exception of the budgets of foreign secretaries, all expenses of the local Associations, in China are secured on the field. The total amount received from membership fees, tuition, and other membership receipts, together with subscriptions from friends, has more than doubled since 1915, the figure in 1919 reaching more than half a million dollars.

The thirteen buildings at the close of 1919 are at Canton, Chefoo, Foochow, Hangchow, Hankow, Hongkong, (2), Nanking University, Peking, Shanghai (2), Tientsin and Tokyo (for Chinese students).

There is urgent need for modern buildings in the following cities:

CHANGSHA, where a progressive city Association with over 1000 members operates in a group of dingy, dilapidated Chinese dwellings.

PEKING, where the present building is crowded to its capacity and the whole official and government section of the city is left without facilities.

AMOY, with a growing Association, crowded into the rooms and grounds of a small ancestral temple KIRIN, where land was given by the government seven years ago, with no building yet provided.

MOUKDEN, CHENG'TU, TSIAN NANKING, and KAIPENG, all with building sites secured, waiting and urging that equipment be provided.

TYPES OF CITY ASSOCIATION BUILDINGS IN CHINA
Shanghai has the largest membership in China, a total of 358 at the close of 1919.
YOUNG PHYSICAL DIRECTORS, TRAINED IN THE SCHOOL OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION

During the time it was in operation, from January 15, 1918 to June 30, 1919, twenty-six students were trained for the leadership of physical work in China. The school was temporarily closed in June 1919 on account of necessary furloughs of faculty members.

The Secretarial Training Department of the National Committee, organized in January 1916, now promotes training through Training Centers, a Professional Training School, Institutes, Travel Study, Fellowships in America and Reading Courses. An annual national institute and periodic local institutes are a part of the program. The ever increasing number of qualified Chinese secretaries bears testimony to the success of this vital and fruitful department.

THE ALTAR OF HEAVEN, PEKING
Specialized training in Business Administration is given by the Business Department of the National Committee. Nine men were trained for local fields from June 1st to the close of 1919.
SECRETARIAL TRAINING

Local training institutes lasting from five to fourteen days have been held at Canton, Foochow, Nanking Wuhan, Tientsin and Peking.

Several mature Chinese secretaries are each year given further training in America under the Fellowship Plan. This provides for the student receiving special coaching in such representative Associations as Cleveland, Buffalo, Detroit, Cincinnati and Kansas City. Twenty Chinese secretaries have been trained under this plan, returning to China with larger vision, broader experience and increased confidence. Friends in America have made possible this very valuable training process.

THE FIRST TRAVEL STUDY CLASS

Ten young secretaries under mature leadership spent six weeks in a careful study of Association work at Shanghai, Canton and Hongkong, during the latter part of 1919.
Growth along no other line is more gratifying to Association leaders than in the number of men and boys studying the Bible. The enrollment in City Association Bible classes during 1919 was the largest in the history of the movement, an increase of 33% over the previous year.

A Recently Converted Student Teaching the Bible to Students in the Naval School at Nanking
The Educational Departments aim to meet the needs of each field in popular, supplementary and commercial education. Schools are conducted during the day, in the evening, and during vacation periods.
During 1919 the Publication Department produced 3,823,229 pages of constructive literature. Up to 1912, seventy-eight different publications had been issued; to 1918, 211; to the close of 1919, 221. Literature is produced on Bible study, devotional life, personal work, social service, character building, physical work, technical Association subjects, biographies, tracts, hymnals, maps, charts, etc.

In 1919, 81,110 copies of Association Progress were issued, an increase of 7,110 copies over the previous year.
Formerly athletics were considered unfit for a gentleman in China. Now they are immensely popular. No other phase of Association work has shown more encouraging growth in the past few years.

Leaders in the Promotion of Constructive Physical Work in China
The Chinese are ready to be taught to play. "Play for Everybody" is the slogan of the Association in the development of physical work in China.

Basket Ball Team, Shanghai Association

Fast basket ball teams which give keen competition to American college men in China, are being developed by the Physical Departments of the City Associations. The boys are taught to be clean players and good sports.
Athletics are yearly growing in popularity throughout China, promoted largely by Christian leaders.

HONGKONG AND THE HARBOR
Students in Government Schools were enrolled in 312 Bible study classes during 1919. In these groups China's students are not only thinking their way through to a reasonable faith, but are discovering how to effectively express their patriotic impulses to serve and save their country.

The Association movement in China, with the aid of friends in Western lands, provides Christian influences for the Chinese student abroad. Assistance is given before sailing from China, en route, and especially in the early days of settling in a strange land. As a result many devote themselves to lives of service.
LIFE WORK ADDRESS AT SUNSET MEETING, STUDENT CONFERENCE, SOOCHOW

During 1919, 3,270 students in the Student Associations were engaged in Personal Work, 3,570 served on committees, and 19,117 enrolled in Bible study classes.

FOOCHOW STUDENT CONFERENCE LEADERS

Fifteen student conferences are conducted annually for the training of leaders in student work. Attendance has run above 1500 delegates per year.

Leaders of Association work in China are rapidly coming to realize the importance of boys' work and are giving it more prominence, on the theory that "It is better [and also easier] to form than to reform."

FACULTY OF SCHOOL FOR POOR BOYS
Organized and conducted by the Shanghai Association. The development of the spirit of service on the part of the membership has been one of the determining factors in the building up of the present splendid work of the Junior Division of the Shanghai Association.
WAR SERVICE

In addition to the fifty-two Chinese and Foreign secretaries sent to France for work with the Labor Battalions, four workers have served with the Chinese troops in Siberia.

The object was the social, recreational, educational and religious welfare of the men.

The results, as reported by a recently returning secretary, were a better understanding between the men and the officers, curtailment of gambling and vice, reduction in crime and a better moral tone generally, thrift habits, generosity fostered, cleanliness of person, better education, and many conversions to Christianity.

A staff of secretaries has been provided to serve the laborers as they return in thousands from France to Tsingtau, Pukow and Shanghai. The program of work for the Returning Laborers is to be greatly enlarged during 1920.
CALLED FROM THE RANKS

During the year the Association movement in China suffered the loss of three faithful servants through the death of the following secretaries:

Wu Paak Luen, Canton, May 4, 1919.
Herbert E. Dennis, Foochow, July 23, 1919.
Stanley B. Collins, Yunnan, September 5, 1919.

The brotherhood joins in paying respects to these departed colleagues who left behind them a fruitful work and a host of friends.
