Editor. (Sep. 28, 1927). P. WHITWELL WILSON to speak, MAYOR TO ATTEND DINNER, Town's Chief Executive Will be Guest at Annual Y.M.C.A. Fall Banquet, p. 5.
The Monclair Times (New Jersey). Reproduced for educational purposes only. Fair Use relied upon. Source: https://www.newspapers.com/newspage/515355671/}

[Name variants:
P. Whitwell Wilson,
P. W. Wilson,
Philip Whitwell Wilson,
P. W. W.,
Philip W. Wilson, Whitwell Wilson]
For twenty-one years, Mr. Wilson was on the editorial staff of the London Daily News, the newspaper founded by Charles Dickens and John Bright. He was a colleague of A. G. Gardiner, H. W. Massingham, H. W. Nevinson, G. K. Chesterton and other writers. At the age of thirty he entered the House of Commons as member of South St. Pancras and served there under Prime Ministers Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and Lord Oxford and Asquith. For twelve years he was in daily attendance at Parliamentary debates and in 1917 he was asked to represent the New York Times in the United States, where he has since been President of the Association of Foreign Correspondents.

On his deathbed, Theodore Roosevelt sent for Mr. Wilson and thanked him for his services to the cause of international friendship. He has been received by Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge. He is now special contributor to the New York Times and his articles frequently appear in leading journals on both sides of the Atlantic.

Mr. Wilson's three books, "The Christ We Forget," "The Vision We Forget," "The Church We Forget" have had a large sale and the first of them has been translated into Dutch. Mr. Wilson is the editor of the first complete edition of the Greville Diary, published by Doubleday Page & Co., a work which may be regarded as a permanent addition to literature. He is also the biographer of John Wanamaker's partner, Robert C. Ogden, and of the explorer and evangelist, William Edgar Gell.

He has been elected an honorary life member of the American Bible Society. He recently returned from Europe where he was personally received and entertained by David Lloyd George, J. Ramsay MacDonald, Philip Snowden, Arthur Henderson, Lord Oxford and Asquith and other statesmen.
MAYOR TO ATTEND DINNER, Town's Chief Executive Will Be Guest at Annual Y.M.C.A. Fall Banquet [

Mayor Henry A. Lordner has accepted an invitation to be a guest of honor at the annual dinner of the senior department of the local Y. M. C. A. on the evening of October 3. Philip Whitwell Wilson, well-known lecturer and author and a member of the editorial staff of the New York Times, will deliver the principal address.

[ Name variants: P. Whitwell Wilson, P.W. Wilson, Philip Whitwell Wilson, P.W.W., Philip W. Wilson, Whitwell Wilson ]

It was announced yesterday by C. Henry Klauhert, senior social and membership secretary, that already many acceptances have been received for the dinner. The dinner will be limited to 150 persons.

Mr. Wilson was born in Kendal, England in 1875. His mother was Anne Hagster, of the family of Bible publishers. At Clare College, Cambridge, he graduated with mathematical honors. He was president of the Cambridge Union Debating Society and editor of the Grantz, the journal of the University.

For twenty-one years, Mr. Wilson was on the editorial staff of the London Daily News, the newspaper founded by Charles Dickens and John Bright. He was a colleague of A. G. Gardiner. H. W. Massingham, H. W. Nevinson. G. K. Chesterton and other writers. At the age of thirty he entered the House of Commons as, member of South St. Pancras and served there under Prime Ministers Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and Lord Oxford and Asquith. For twelve years he was in daily attendance at Parliamentary debates and in 1917 he was asked to represent the New York Times in the United States, where he has since been President of the Association of Foreign Correspondents.

[ CONTEXT OMITTED BY THIS BIOGRAPHY: Between Apr. 22, 1905 and May 10, 1905, Vladimir Lenin stayed at P. Whitwell Wilson’s home at 16 Percy Circus, St. Pancras. Lenin was attending the 3rd Congress of the Russian Social Democratic Labour Party. ]
Between Jun. 06-28, 1909, P.W. Wilson was a co-organizer of the First Imperial Press Conference, 1909; Lord Burnham, president (Daily Telegraph, owner); Lord Northcliffe (Daily Mail, owner); (Sir) Harry Brittain, honorary secretary), out of which emerged the Empire Press Union (Reuters, AP) and the British intelligence agencies MI-6, MI-5 and GC&CS now GCHQ. (Sir) Harry Wellcome, Burroughs Wellcome (now GlaxoSmithKline), Wellcome Trust (now the largest private pharmaceutical foundation on the planet, bankrolled the entire event.)

In The Negro, P. Whitwell Wilson included a captioned photo of a then 27-year-old actor and Gospel music singer named Paul Robeson (p. 345, b. 1898, d. 1976). In 1915 Robeson had been a two-time consensus all American football player at Rutgers as well as a Columbia Law attorney evidently interlocked with the British Pilgrims Society, the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and William J. Donovan—the future head of the OSS and titular founder of the C.I.A. and “Five Eyes” spy agencies in the U.S. and the British Commonwealth. With support from communist Frederick Vanderbilt Field (great great grandson of Cornelius Vanderbilt, one of founder-funders of Y.M.C.A. New York, 1852), Robeson founded the Council on African Affairs (C.A.A., 1937) which was interlocked with the Institute of Pacific Relations (IPR, founded 1925), the Y.M.C.A. and British Chatham House. IPR principals were the founders of the United Nations in 1946. Robeson was identified as a communist in the McCarran Senate hearings. Robeson toured extensively in the U.S.S.R. including being nationally televised. After Robeson, no other American Gospel group ever performed on national Soviet television again, until the Gospel music group Living Sound performed on Jul. 23, 1981 produced by Evgeny Ginzburg. Living Sound members remember Soviet hosts asking about Robeson, who was the only prominent American Gospel singer they had ever heard of since Gospel music had been previously censored. None of Living Sound’s 20-something musicians had heard of Robeson, and none were aware of his communist politics.

On his deathbed, Theodore Roosevelt sent for Mr. Wilson and thanked him for his services to the cause of international friendship. He has been received by Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge. He is now special contributor to the New York Times and his articles frequently appear in leading journals on both sides of the Atlantic.

Mr. Wilson's three books. "The Christ We Forget," "The Vision We Forget." "The Church We Forget" have had a large sale and the first of them has been translated into Dutch. Mr. Wilson is the editor of the first complete edition of the Greville Diary, published by Doubleday Page & Co., a work which may be regarded as a permanent addition to literature. He is also the biographer of John Wanamaker's partner, Robert C. Ogden, and of the explorer and evangelist, William Edgar Geil.

He has been elected an honorary; life member of the American Bible Society. He recently returned from Europe where he was personally received and entertained by David Lloyd George, J. Ramsay MacDonald, Philip Snowden. Arthur Henderson, Lord Oxford and Asquith and other statesmen.