Dear Sydney,

You will, I think, get an invitation to a dinner for 300 people that Evelyn is giving, at which Mrs. Thatcher is going to be made a Honorary Fellow of the Technion, or something like that. I do not know if you would relish such a dinner, but he also made an interesting suggestion in which I feel certain you could help: to have on her and perhaps a few other tables as centerpieces, models (different coloured balls) of DNA, etc. to be borrowed for the evening.

Yours,

Vic
