THURSDAY, JULY 15, 2010

U.S. SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, DC.

The Committee met, pursuant to notice, at 4 p.m., in room SD–226, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Hon. Richard J. Durbin, Chairman of the Committee, presiding.

Present: Senator Kyl.

OPENING STATEMENT OF HON. RICHARD J. DURBIN, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF ILLINOIS

Senator DURBIN. Good afternoon. I apologize for being a minute late. I was down at the Appropriations Committee.

This is the first nominations hearing we have held since the Elena Kagan hearing, and I hope it will be a little shorter.

We have five outstanding nominees with us today and I commend the President for sending their names. All of today’s nominees have the support of their home State Senators, a testament to the President’s commitment to working with the Senate to identify talented and successful people for the Federal bench.

The first panel will feature Mary Murguia—I hope I am pronouncing that correctly—a U.S. district court judge in Phoenix, who has been nominated to serve on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.
On the second panel, we will hear from four district court nominees: Edmond Chang, from my State of Illinois; Leslie Kobayashi of Hawaii; Denise Casper of Massachusetts; and Carlton Reeves of Mississippi.

At the beginning of the hearing, it is traditional for Senators to introduce nominees to the Committee from their States, and I will begin by introducing Edmond Chang, after my colleagues have had their chance, because I know many of them have pressing schedules.

So at this point, I would like to recognize Senator Kerry, if he would like to speak first before the committee, and please proceed.

Senator Kerry. Well, thank you very much, Mr. Chairman and Senator Kyl. It is a privilege to be able to be here to make an introduction and to be before this committee. I am delighted to be here with my colleague, Senator Wicker, who is also here for the purpose of an introduction.

It is my privilege today, Mr. Chairman, to be able to introduce to you Middlesex Deputy District Attorney Denise Jefferson Casper. And I want to thank Chairman Leahy, the Chairman of the whole committee, for scheduling the hearing so quickly on Denise’s nomination.

It is my privilege, also, Mr. Chairman, to welcome her mother, who is sitting in back of me here; her husband, Marc. And I do not know if her two sons have arrived. I think they were going to arrive and maybe they were not able to get here. But she has twin sons, Harry and Jacob. They are the guys. There they are. So we are delighted to welcome them.

Mr. Chairman Senator Kyl, I can tell you, without reservation, that Denise is going to be just an outstanding judge, and she is a very worthy successor to her predecessor, the late Judge Reginald Lindsay, who passed away last year after a lengthy illness. He really was an inspiration to us all.

He rose from childhood in segregated Alabama to become the second black man ever appointed to the Federal bench in Massachusetts. And he loved the bench so much that, literally, just weeks before he passed away, he told a friend that he dreamed about returning to the bench every day. That is passion and dedication.

I can guarantee you that Denise brings the same kind of commitment to the bench, the same love for public service and for the administration of justice. And it would not surprise anybody that Judge Lindsay was a great mentor to her and to many in our state; and, therefore, no surprise, Denise has become a great mentor herself through her involvement with the Big Sisters program.

I am told by a number of people that anytime the Big Sisters has a gala or some other kind of fund-raiser, you will find her leading the charge, first to fill out one of the tables.

Senator Kirk and I both recommended Denise to President Obama for nomination after a very rigorous examination of her record, and those, I might add, of many other qualified candidates. And it was conducted by a selection Committee of leading members of the legal community of Massachusetts. That was a tradition that our colleague, Senator Kennedy, began. We continued it, many of the same participants.
And their conclusion was the same as mine, that she will prove to be a first-rate jurist, an important addition to the district court. I can tell you that everyone in the legal community raves about her work ethic, her drive, her exceptional management, and her brilliance. Kathy Weinman, former president of the Boston Bar Association, a lawyer on the council now, and a member of the selection committee, praised her respectful leadership qualities.

Chief judge, Judge Mark Wolf, of the district court, under whom she will serve, if confirmed, has nothing but the best to say about her. I will just tell you, very quickly, he said—he wrote us a letter, in fact, and said ‘Denise Casper is a distinguished lawyer with a demonstrated commitment to serving the public interest. My colleagues and I particularly recall her fine service as a Federal prosecutor. Her appointment would greatly contribute to our constant effort to give integrity to our Nation’s promise of equal justice under law.’”

I do not know if this is relevant or not, Mr. Chairman, but in the district attorney’s office, in which I previously served, it is reputed that she has a legendary laugh, is apparently not very subtle. You look at her and think she is very soft-spoken and if something funny were said, she would just kind of giggle at it. But I am told that throughout the office, everybody knows when she is there because of this laugh.

More importantly, she graduated from Harvard Law School. She is currently the second in command of the district attorney’s office of Middlesex County, one of the largest in the country.

She was a prosecutor in the U.S. Attorney’s Office; for a time, was the Deputy Chief of the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force. She was a clerk for the Massachusetts appeals court, and a private attorney in the firm of Bingham McCutchen, and a teacher at Boston University School of Law. That is a remarkable collection of accomplishments in a short span of time.

Middlesex District Attorney, my friend and somebody I have worked with closely, who is here, Gerry Leone, told me right away, when I called him for an opinion, that she will just be a star on the Federal bench.

And I will tell you that I had the privilege of serving in that office in the same job that she has now from 1976 to 1981, and so I have a special affection for her, but also an understanding of the job she has done.

So anyone who looks at her record, as I know you have, will understand her remarkable set of qualifications that she brings to this job, and I recommend that the Senate confirm her as quickly as possible.

Senator DURBIN. Senator Kerry, thank you very much.

I see that Senator Cochran has arrived, the senior Senator from Mississippi, and I know that he is the ranking Republican on the Senate Appropriations Committee, which is currently in session.

Senator Wicker, do you have a recommendation on whom should speak first?

Senator WICKER. Mr. Chairman, I believe we should proceed with the Ranking Member of the Appropriations Committee.

[Laughter.]

Senator DURBIN. Good judgment, Senator Wicker.
Senator Cochran.
Senator Kerry. Before he speaks, would the senior Senator and the Chair forgive me, could I be excused?
Senator Durbin. We thank you very much for attending. We know your busy schedule. Thank you.
Senator Kerry. Thank you very, very much. I just do not want the Appropriations people to think I am running out on them.
Senator Cochran. Thank you, Mr. Vice President.
[Laughter.]
Senator Cochran. Mr. Chairman, thank you for your courtesy.

PRESENTATION OF CARLTON W. REEVES, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF MISSISSIPPI BY HON. THAD COCHRAN, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI

I am pleased to introduce to the Committee Mr. Carlton Reeves, who has been nominated by the President to serve as United States District Court Judge for the Southern District of Mississippi.

Mr. Reeves practices law in Jackson, Mississippi, where I practiced law for several years before being elected to the U.S. Senate.

He received his undergraduate degree from Jackson State University and his law degree from the University of Virginia. He has served as a clerk and staff attorney for the Mississippi Supreme Court and as the chief of the civil division in the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the Southern District of Mississippi.

Mr. Reeves has been actively involved with Mississippi legal services and other community organizations in our state. He is well respected by his fellow lawyers and the general public.

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to recommend this nominee for confirmation by the Senate.

Senator Durbin. Thank you very much, Senator Cochran.
Senator Wicker.

PRESENTATION OF CARLTON W. REEVES, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF MISSISSIPPI BY HON. ROGER F. WICKER, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI

Senator Wicker. Thank you, Mr. Chairman and Mr. Distinguished Ranking Member. I am very pleased to join my senior Senator, Senator Cochran, in wholeheartedly endorsing the nomination of Carlton Reeves for the position of U.S. district court judge.

I might note that we are joined in the room today by Chairman Benny Thompson of Mississippi, who is here not as a witness, but to offer his support, also, and we appreciate the bipartisan nature in which our delegation is supporting this nominee.

Senator Cochran has mentioned the professional and scholastic achievements of Mr. Reeves. I think it is certainly important to the Senate that our nominees be qualified with regard to their scholastic background, their professional attainment, and, also, in their reputation for integrity.

I might note that, in that regard, Mr. Chairman, our nominee today, Mr. Reeves, as a student at the University of Virginia Law School, was honored with the Mary Claiborne and Roy H. Ritter fellowship, which actually recognizes outstanding honor, character, and integrity. He is certainly qualified in state and Federal practice. He has an outstanding reputation. This is a popular nomination with the bar, with the State as a whole, and with this delegation.

I commend the President for working with State leadership in moving this nominee forward, and I am pleased and proud to support the nomination of Carlton Reeves and believe he will be a credit to our State, to the Federal bench, and to this committee.

So thank you so very much. Senator Durbin. Thank you very much, Senator Wicker. And I thank both you and Senator Cochran. And, Congressman Thompson, thank you for coming over and joining us. It is good to see my colleague again.

The Senators from Mississippi can stay, if they wish, but I know they have a busy schedule and if they need to leave, we understand it.

We also have joining us at the table Senator Scott Brown of Massachusetts.

Senator Brown, you may proceed.

PRESENTATION OF DENISE JEFFERSON CASPER, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS BY HON. SCOTT BROWN, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS

Senator Brown. Thank you, Mr. Chairman and Ranking Member Kyl. It is good to be here and I appreciate, obviously, the opportunity to speak to the Judiciary Committee, and thank you for the opportunity to introduce Denise Jefferson Casper of Massachusetts, the nominee for the United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts.

I offer my congratulations to her and her family and all of those who are here to share this special day with her.

My dear friend, District Attorney Gerry Leone is here and it is good to see him.

And I know that Ms. Casper has worked very hard to get to this point in her career. I have met with her. I have done my due diligence. I have spoken with many of my former colleagues and folks that I practiced with when I was a practicing member of the bar and they all spoke very highly of her.

As a matter of fact, one of my dear friends actually tried to hire her on three separate occasions, and he is a tough person to please. And I can also say that in the 2008 article in the Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly, she was described as absolutely tireless. And I quote, the quote is “being a courteous and humble woman, but also a zealous and effective advocate.” And I certainly cannot ask for anything more in a judge than to be somebody who is fair and zealous and tireless.

I, too, want to commend the President for moving this—it will probably be national news, but I do want to commend the President—that was a joke. [Laughter.]

Senator Brown. You have to have a sense of humor around here sometimes. I want to congratulate him for moving her forward.
As you know, she is also very active in her community, volunteering and having served in leadership roles in the Women’s Bar Association, Big Sister Association of Greater Boston, the American Bar, and many other noteworthy organizations.

She has trained the next generation of advocates and judges as an instructor at BU Law School, and a graduate of Wesleyan and Harvard Law School.

Ms. Casper currently serves, as I mentioned, as a deputy district attorney for the Middlesex district attorney’s office and she oversees very important work, working with witness bureau, the cyber protection program, the PACT unit, which investigates public corruption, organized crime and financial crime.

She has a very long and storied career for somebody so young, and I wanted to make a point to come here and, with Senator Kerry, offer our bipartisan support for this nominee, and I am hopeful that we can move on this nomination very, very quickly.

So I thank you both for your courtesy in allowing me to speak, and I am certainly available if you have any questions.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much, Senator Brown. Senator Kerry spoke earlier and we will make sure that your entire statement will be made part of the record. Thank you for joining us today. The best parts will be made part of the record, we promise you that.

[The statement of Senator Kerry appears as a submission for the record.]

I also want to note that Senator Inouye and Senator Akaka had planned on attending. Senator Inouye, I know, is presiding one floor down over the Senate Appropriations Committee, where he chairs. It is an awesome responsibility and he, unfortunately, will not be able to join us. But his statement in support of the nominee from Hawaii will be made a part of the record.

PRESENTATION OF EDMOND E-MIN CHANGE, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS BY HON. RICHARD J. DURBIN, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF ILLINOIS

Senator DURBIN. At this point, I would like to take the prerogative of the chair to introduce one of the nominees who will be before us today.

Ed Chang is an accomplished Federal prosecutor in the State of Illinois, chief of appeals in the criminal division of the U.S. attorney’s office in Chicago. He works closely with our U.S. Attorney, Patrick Fitzgerald, who has written a strong letter of recommendation.

As a Federal prosecutor for over a decade, Ed Chang has seen it all. He has prosecuted crimes involving guns, gangs, drugs, fraud, extortion, and child exploitation; supervised over 300 appeals; and, worked on major cases involving terrorism and public corruption.

Mr. Chang is a native of New York City, but had the good sense to move to Chicago in 1991 to attend Northwestern University Law School, where he graduated Order of the Coif and served on the law review.

He began his legal career as a judicial law clerk, first, for Sixth Circuit Judge James Ryan, nominated by President Reagan, and then for highly regarded Chicago District Court Judge Marvin Aspen, an appointee of President Jimmy Carter.

Before joining the U.S. attorney’s office in 1999, Mr. Chang worked for one of Chicago’s most respected law firms, Sidley Austin, where he specialized in employment and labor law. Throughout his career, he has had a strong commitment to pro bono work and to bar association and mentoring activities.

He has served as an adjunct law professor at Northwestern Law School since 1996, teaching a class on civil rights litigation.

Now, I have a bipartisan merit selection committee, which I set up last year, to consider applications for these vacancies. And I might add that Mr. Chang was chosen in a previous competition for an opening by a Republican nominating committee, and, in this case, was chosen again by a Democratic committee. It is quite a testament to the fact that he is not political and he does bring extraordinary credentials to this aspiration.

It is an historic nomination. When he is confirmed, Mr. Chang will be the first Asian-American U.S. district court judge in Illinois, and only the second in the Nation between the east and west coasts.

I now ask my colleagues—well, I will after I first recognize Senator Kyl, who I believe has a similar introduction.

Senator Kyl.

PRESENTATION OF MARY HELEN MURGUIA, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT BY HON. SENATOR KYL, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF ARIZONA

Senator KYL. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. It is my pleasure to introduce to the Committee Mary Murguia. Judge Murguia is currently a Federal district judge in the State of Arizona. She has served on the bench there since the year 2000, and she has been nominated by the President to serve on the ninth circuit court of appeals.

Senator McCain joins me in urging the committee’s strong support for her nomination, but he could not be here today.

Just a few words to introduce Judge Murguia to the committee, though, of course, her extensive resume is on file with us.

In the 10 years that she has served on the bench in the State of Arizona, she has presided over nearly 4,000 cases to verdict or judgment; has presided over nearly 60 trials, including over 50 jury trials, to verdict.

Mr. Chairman, I talked to her colleagues on the Federal district court bench in Arizona and litigants who appeared before her and asked whether they believed that she gave every litigant a fair chance in court; and, to her person, they all said that her reputation is one of fairness, of equity, of blind justice, of doing the best that she can in each case, and, in all cases, approached the job of judging with exactly that kind of spirit that we would ask for in the judges that we have before us.
Her experience before being on the Federal district court was primarily in the area of service in the Department of Justice and in the office of the U.S. Attorney.

But her most recent experience, from 1999 and 2000, was to serve as the director of the executive officer for United States attorneys. And as everyone here who is familiar with this knows, that is the individual responsible for the oversight and support of the 94 different offices of U.S. attorneys around the United States, about 5,000 people in all, plus another 5,000 support staff and administration and appropriation of about $1 billion.

Prior to that time, as I said, she served in the United States attorney’s office for the district of Arizona, among other things, arguing 15 cases and being involved in over 20 appeals before the ninth circuit. She was deputy chief of the criminal section for 4 years, from 1994 to 1998, and had a variety of other experience in that office.

I would note that her very first experience out of school was in the county attorney’s office in Kansas, where she was, for 5 years, in there as the senior trial attorney in the sex crimes unit and trial attorney in the major crimes division.

Just one other note of personal background, Mr. Chairman. Judge Murguia’s brother, Carlos, is the first Latino to serve as a Federal district judge in the State of Kansas and the two Judge Murguias—Judge Murguia, I should also point out, Judge Mary Murguia, was the first Latina to be appointed to the Federal district court in Arizona, and she and her brother, Carlos, are the only brother and sister sitting as Federal judges in the United States.

I do not think that she will be disqualified from that if she moves on up to the ninth circuit court of appeals. We will see that they retain that distinction.

In any event, it is with great deal of pleasure that I urge her confirmation before this Committee and look forward to her testimony.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much, Senator Kyl.

Now, since we have a nominee for the U.S. District Court, Judge Murguia——

Senator KYL. Circuit Court.

Senator DURBIN. Pardon me. Circuit court—and then district court nominees, we will have two panels.

The first panel will be Judge Murguia, and I ask her, if she would, please, approach the table. And we have a standard oath that is administered.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you. Please be seated. Let the record reflect that the nominee answered in the affirmative.

The floor is yours.

STATEMENT OF HON. MARY HELEN MURGUIA, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT

Judge Murguia. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Thank you, Senator Kyl. I do not have any formal opening statement. There are some acknowledgments that I would like to make, if I can.

First, I would like to thank President Obama for this honor, for his trust and confidence in me in nominating me to this position as judge on the ninth circuit court of appeals.
Also, I would like to thank Senator Kyl for his extremely kind and generous remarks in his introduction of me here today. I would like to thank both Senator Kyl and Senator McCain for their support of me throughout this process. I am very grateful to them both.

There are two people who are not here today that I would like to recognize. Those two people are my parents, Alfredo and Amalia Murguia. They were actually here 10 years ago almost to the day for my confirmation hearing for the district court position.

Unfortunately, my father has passed away and my mother suffers from Alzheimer’s and could not be here. But both my parents came to this country from Mexico to pursue the American dream, and my father worked for over 35 years as a steel construction worker for the Kansas City, Kansas Structural Steel Company. My mom and my father raised seven kids in a very working class neighborhood of Kansas City, Kansas.

And six of their seven children attended college. Four of us went on to graduate from law school. And my presence here today before this distinguished is really an honor to them and a tribute to them.

I do have some family members that are here today, if I could introduce them. First, I guess I will start with the judge, my brother, Carlos Murguia. He is a district court judge in Kansas. His wife, Ann, who is a council member for the unified government in Kansas City could not be here. She is my sister-in-law. They have three children, Wyatt, Thomas and Isabella Grace, who also couldn’t be here.

My brother, Alfred, lives and works in Kansas City. He has three children who are a little bit older. In fact, Senator Durbin, his oldest child—I’ll say his oldest kid—Ryan, who is my nephew, I think, is on his way here. He recently graduated from Northwestern Law School and is studying vigorously for the bar exam, which is in less than 2 weeks, and he will be starting with the DOJ honors program in the fall.

His brother, Nick, lives and works in Kansas City. He graduated from Tulsa University. My niece, Kelly Murguia, just recently graduated from Brown University. She graduated from Brown in May and she is undergoing a very intense program for Teach for America as we speak and will be starting in that program this fall.

I would also like to introduce my brother, Ramon, who is a lawyer in Kansas City. He is on the board of trustees for the Kellogg Foundation, and really the first in our community to graduate from Harvard Law School. His wife, Sally, who is a lawyer, could not be here today. He has two children, my nephew, Miguel, and his sister, my niece, Amalia, also could not be here today. But all the kids are here in spirit, and I appreciate their support.

My sister, Janet, is president and CEO of an Hispanic civil rights organization based here in Washington, D.C., and she is my twin sister and I am glad that she is here supporting me, as well.

And there are two people who couldn’t be here, my sister, Rosemary Murguia, my sister, Martha Hernandez. They care for my mother and, unfortunately, could not be here today.

I have a number of friends here today who’ve traveled here. My friend, Bea Witzleben, who is an assistant U.S. attorney in Philadelphia. We worked at the Department of Justice together. My friend Margaret Epler, who works for the ninth circuit, is a lawyer for the ninth circuit court of appeals.

My cousin, Lloyd Murguia, who is currently working for Congressman Gonzalez out of Texas. And I know that there are very—a number of former associates of mine with the Department of Justice, and a law school friend of mine here today, and there are numerous friends and family who are watching and I appreciate their support.

Thank you for letting me make those acknowledgments. I'm ready to answer any questions that you all might have.

The material below also includes responsive results of the following searches:

Lexis Nexis & Westlaw searches:
- An “all news” search for “Mary pro/2 Murguia.” Any article which referenced responsive material not previously identified was further investigated. The same search was conducted in Westlaw “all news.” Google, YouTube and Lexis Nexis searches on the individual materials and events were performed. If those searches produced new materials not previously identified, that material was added.

YouTube searches:
- A YouTube search for “Mary Murguia” was performed. The single responsive hit was added to this response. An individual YouTube search was conducted for every panel or speech identified on this response for which no transcript or video had been identified.

Google searches:
- A search for “Mary Murguia -ninth -circuit” (to filter out hits related to my nomination) was conducted and produced approximately 394,000 hits. Approximately 30 of these hits were reviewed. An individual Google search was performed on any speech, panel, or article identified in this response for which no video or transcript had been identified.

a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

I may have been listed as an official author of other reports in my capacity as Director of the Executive Office for United States Attorneys during my tenure from 1999-2000, but I have been unable to specifically identify them.

b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

I was a member of the Committee that produced a video entitled “B.J. Learns About Federal and Trial Court,” NCJ 139730, and the accompanying instructor’s guide, NCJ 183473 as a resource for Native American children required to testify... in court (Dec. 1996). The project was sponsored by the United States Attorney’s Office for the District of Arizona. I do not have a copy of the video or the instructor’s guide. A summary of the project is available at http://www.ojp.gov/ove/publications/infores/bjcourtprep/print_text.html (last visited Apr. 15, 2010).

c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

Late February 1990 – I testified before the Kansas State Senate Judiciary Committee regarding amendment of the state sodomy law (SB 687), which later was codified at Laws of Kansas 1990, page 929, ch. 149, enacted May 18, 1990. I have been unable to obtain a transcript of this testimony.

d. Supply four (4) copies, transcripts or recordings of all speeches or talks delivered by you, including commencement speeches, remarks, lectures, panel discussions, conferences, political speeches, and question-and-answer sessions. Include the date and place where they were delivered, and readily available press reports about the speech or talk. If you do not have a copy of the speech or a transcript or recording of your remarks, give the name and address of the group before whom the speech was given, the date of the speech, and a summary of its subject matter. If you did not speak from a prepared text, furnish a copy of any outline or notes from which you spoke.

I have spoken at a number of Continuing Legal Education Seminars for the Arizona State Bar and at a number of community events relating to Hispanic Heritage month or the Hispanic community, where I speak about my background, education, and job experiences. I have supplied the notes that I use for such events. The list below includes all specific speeches I have been able to identify or recall and I have indicated where I offered remarks based on these standard notes. In addition, I often give remarks at the Naturalization Ceremonies over which I preside, for which I have supplied my standard notes.

found reference to this item in searching online databases although I do not independently recall it. No copy of remarks.

November 3, 2001 – Arizona Women Lawyers Association, Annual Conference. Phoenix, Arizona. Speaker. Introductory remarks. I had been recently appointed to the federal district court and I spoke about my background and experience and answered questions from the audience. No copy of remarks.

November 6, 2009 – “Court Works - Kids to Court” program, United States District Court, Phoenix, Arizona. Remarks to General Assembly. Notes supplied.

February 25, 2010 – The Emily Taylor & Marilyn Stokstad Women's Leadership Lecture sponsored by the KU Hall Center For The Humanities at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kansas. Speaker. The program was entitled “An Evening With Janet and Mary Murguia.” A recording is available at http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Hw8WedQndkE (last visited Apr. 15, 2010). My remarks also were broadcast by Kansas Public Radio on March 28, 2010.

During my service as an Assistant United States Attorney in Arizona from 1990 to 1998, I occasionally attended events on behalf of the Office or the United States Attorney, such as local crime task force meetings and community domestic violence meetings.

c. List all interviews you have given to newspapers, magazines or other publications, or radio or television stations, providing the dates of these interviews and four (4) copies of the clips or transcripts of these interviews where they are available to you.

Lawrence Journal-World, Aug. 11, 2001, “Murguia to Give KU’s Public Image a Facelift”

I may have provided other brief quotations to media that I have not been able to identify in my capacities as a state and federal prosecutor with respect to particular cases or during my service as Director of the Executive Office of United States Attorneys with respect to Department of Justice initiatives.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

In 2000, I was appointed to the United States District Court for the District of Arizona, a position I currently hold.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

I have presided over 3,819 cases to verdict or judgment. Of these, 59 went to trial; 52 were jury trials and 7 were bench trials.

i. Of these, approximately what percent were: 11
b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

See attached list of opinions.

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

This case concerned the killing and dismemberment of an elderly woman and her nine year-old granddaughter following a carjacking that occurred on the Navajo Nation Indian Reservation in October 2001. The United States charged the defendant, a Navajo, with first degree murder felony murder, carjacking resulting in death, kidnapping, and several counts of robbery. Before trial, the government filed a notice that it intended to seek the death penalty against the defendant based on the charge of carjacking resulting in death. The jury ultimately convicted the defendant on all counts, and the trial proceeded to the penalty phase. The defendant declined to be present for the penalty phase, but his attorneys presented mitigating evidence and made arguments on his behalf. The jury unanimously found that all statutory aggravating factors were present for each victim, along with one mitigating factor for each victim. After weighing the relevant factors, the jury recommended a sentence of death. I accepted the jury’s recommendation and sentenced the defendant to death. The Court of Appeals affirmed. See United States v. Mitchell, 502 F.3d 931 (9th Cir. 2007). To the best of my knowledge, this was the first direct death penalty sentence (non-habeas) affirmed by the Ninth Circuit since passage of the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996.

This case concerned a longstanding dispute over the ownership of a patent for a synthetic vascular graft. For 28 years, the Parties fought for control of the disputed medical device before the United States Patent and Trademark Office ("PTO") and the Federal Circuit. The patent finally issued in the name of the plaintiffs in 2002, and shortly thereafter the plaintiffs sued for patent infringement. To establish the parameters of the patent, I conducted a hearing pursuant to Markman v. Westview Instruments, Inc., 517 U.S. 370 (1996) and issued a claim construction order that defined the meaning of the disputed claims and accepted the report and recommendations of the Special Master. 2006 WL 2802200 (D. Ariz. Sept. 16, 2006). The case then progressed to a 6-week jury trial. The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiffs on all counts, including a finding that the defendant was a “wilful infringer.” The jury assessed damages totaling approximately $185,000,000. After the jury returned its verdict, I held an evidentiary hearing on the issue of inequitable conduct and issued a 90-page order rejecting the defendant’s contention that the plaintiffs failed to meet their duty of candor, good faith, and honesty to the PTO. 573 F. Supp. 2d 1170 (D. Ariz. 2008).

At the post-trial stage, I granted the plaintiffs’ motion for enhanced damages under 35 U.S.C. § 284. In addition, based on the Supreme Court’s recent opinion in eBay, Inc. v. MercExchange, L.L.C., 547 U.S. 38 (2006), I declined to impose a permanent injunction on the defendant from continuing to produce its infringing products. Instead, I determined that the plaintiffs could be adequately compensated by way of a compulsory license. 586 F. Supp. 2d 1083 (D. Ariz. 2008).

This case resolved a century-long dispute regarding the copyrights to a number of sculptures created by Pierre-Auguste Renoir and one of his assistants, Richard Guino. The descendants of both sculptors sued each other, disputing whether the items were copyrighted or in the public domain. Claims for false advertising under the Lanham Act and for state law unfair competition claims relating to a different series of sculptures were also involved. I presided over a jury trial for copyright infringement damages and the other claims. The Court of Appeals affirmed in two opinions. Societe Civile Succession Richard Guino v. Renoir,
Renoir, 549 F.3d 1182 (9th Cir. 2008).

4. In re Lifelock, Inc., Mkts. and Sales Practices Litig., MDL Docket No. 08-1977, 2009 WL 2222311 (D. Ariz July 24, 2009)

This nationwide class action lawsuit concerning consumer fraud claims consists of 14 related federal cases that were transferred to my court by the United States Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1407. To facilitate an efficient resolution of this matter, I issued a Practice and Procedure Order, which, among other things, directed the plaintiffs to provide briefing as to the appointment of an interim lead counsel pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(g). I then presided over an Initial Scheduling Conference where I heard oral arguments on the appointment of interim lead counsel. Following the hearing, I issued an order designating interim lead counsel for the plaintiffs. I then issued an Amended Scheduling Order, which set forth a case management schedule, including deadlines for the filing of a consolidated amended complaint, motions to dismiss, fact and expert discovery, class certification, and summary judgment.
Furthermore, when the case was first transferred to my court, there were several pending motions for remand. I determined that the most appropriate way to resolve the pending remand motions was to have the Parties who wished to participate in seeking remand file a single consolidated motion, rather than filing potentially redundant individual motions. Only two plaintiffs joined the single consolidated motion for remand, which was unopposed by the defendants.
I resolved the remand issue by ruling that federal jurisdiction was lacking because the cases failed to meet the rule announced by the Supreme Court in Franchise

The Government charged the defendant with multiple crimes, including first-degree murder, felony murder, robbery, two counts of aggravated sexual abuse, and five counts of use of a firearm during a crime of violence. After determining that the defendant should be tried as an adult, I declined to hold an additional juvenile-transfer hearing when the Government added additional charges to the indictment. The jury convicted the defendant, and I sentenced him to life imprisonment for felony murder, second degree murder, and two counts of aggravated sexual abuse; 180 months for robbery; and 300 months for using a gun in the felony murder, second degree murder, and robbery, to be served concurrently with each other but consecutively to all other sentences. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit affirmed my decision not to hold an additional juvenile-transfer hearing and affirmed the defendant’s convictions and sentences for the felony murder, aggravated sexual abuse, and related gun charges. United States v. James, 556 F.3d 1062 (9th Cir. 2007). The Ninth Circuit, however, determined that the defendant’s convictions for second-degree murder and robbery violated the double-jeopardy clause because those crimes were lesser included offenses of felony murder, and remanded so that I could reconsider the defendant’s sentence in light of that holding.

The defendant was a member of a Jamaican marijuana trafficking organization. In June 2003, the defendant took part in a triple homicide, where members of his drug trafficking organization murdered three Mexican nationals during a drug transaction “rip-off” in an apartment in Tempe, Arizona. The defendant was charged with conspiracy to commit money laundering, conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute marijuana, and possession or use of a firearm during and in relation to a drug trafficking offense resulting in death. The government initially indicated that it would seek the death penalty, but shortly before trial withdrew its request. The jury convicted the defendant on all counts, and I sentenced him to the maximum allowable term of life imprisonment. The defendant appealed his conviction, arguing that he was incapable of voluntarity, knowingly and intelligently waiving his Miranda rights, that the government engaged in prosecutorial misconduct when it elicited false testimony from a witness, that the sentence was unreasonable, and that I had engaged in improper judicial fact-finding. In a unanimous memorandum opinion, the Court of Appeals affirmed the
The plaintiff brought suit alleging multiple counts of patent infringement and one claim for breach of contract. The case concerned the plaintiff’s patent for a tennis racquet utilizing a specialized method to anchor strings to the racquet frame. At summary judgment, I dismissed a number of claims of the patent, finding they were obvious. I also ruled that the applicable statute of limitations barred the plaintiff’s breach of contract claim. After a bench trial, I invalidated other claims of the patent for indefiniteness. The plaintiff appealed to the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, which affirmed my findings concerning obviousness and breach of contract. The Federal Circuit, however, reversed the indefiniteness ruling, deciding that the patents’ claims were sufficiently precise and, therefore, valid. 174 Fed. Appx. 571 (Fed. Cir. 2006). Following the Supreme Court’s denial of plaintiff’s certiorari request, 549 U.S. 887 (2006), the parties informed me that no further proceedings were necessary, and I directed that the case be closed.

This case involved multiple defendants in a conspiracy to defraud the United States through the use of bogus trusts and was designated a complex case due to the nature of the case, extensive discovery issues, and the numerous defendants charged. Several individuals were charged for founding and being associated with a company that sold sham entities called “Pure Trust Organizations” to purportedly help its customers avoid taxes. These individuals also were charged with 26 counts of failing to file income tax returns. Prior to trial, it was discovered that out-of-state co-counsel for one of the defendants was involved in disciplinary proceedings in Arkansas. I therefore terminated his representation and required the defendant to proceed with in-state co-counsel. The defendant later appealed, arguing that I had violated her right to counsel. The Ninth Circuit affirmed my decision in United States v. Ensign, 491 F.3d 1109 (9th Cir. 2007). The case proceeded; after a 32-day jury trial against the remaining defendants, two were found guilty of the conspiracy charge and failure to file tax returns. I sentenced one defendant to 84 months, to be followed by three years of supervised release, and a $175,000 fine. I sentenced a second defendant to 60 months, to be followed by three years of supervised release. Several other defendants were found guilty of a number of counts of failure to file tax returns and I imposed lesser sentences. The Court of Appeals affirmed these convictions in United States v. Poseley, 267 Fed. Appx. 613 (9th Cir. 2008).

Counsel for Plaintiff: Larry J. Wszalek, United States Department of Justice, Tax Division Criminal Enforcement, PO Box 972, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, DC 20044, 202-616-3866; Mark T. Oduillo, United States Attorney's Office, Tax Division Criminal Enforcement, PO Box 972, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, DC 20044, 202-514-8032. Counsel for Defendants: Stephen Christopher Kunkle, Law Office of Stephen C Kunkle, 7227 North 16th Street, Ste. 224, Phoenix, Arizona 85020, 602-266-6900; Douglas Cameron Erickson, Maynard Cronin Erickson Curran & Sparks, 3200 North Central Avenue, Ste. 1800, Phoenix, Arizona 85012-2443, 602-279-8500.

The defendant was convicted of multiple counts of possession of child pornography and one count of distribution of child pornography based on his sharing of a movie containing child pornography on Limewire software. After trial, I sentenced the defendant to 220 months for distribution of child pornography and 120 months for multiple counts of possession of child pornography, to be served concurrently. This case involved numerous exhibits, special discovery procedures, and the defendant’s choice to represent himself during a portion of trial. The defendant appealed, challenging the misdating of the warrant used to search his property. The Ninth Circuit affirmed, holding that the misdating was inadvertent rather than intentional, in United States v. Butts, 2009 WL 4884356 (9th Cir. 2009).

The plaintiffs challenged the defendants’ denial of the plaintiffs’ petition to define the desert bald eagle population of the Sonoran Desert region of the American Southwest as a distinct population segment and to list the desert bald eagle as “endangered” pursuant to the Endangered Species Act. I held that the defendants’ final delisting rule did not moot the plaintiffs’ challenge, and the defendants acted arbitrarily and capriciously in evaluating the plaintiffs’ petition. I ordered that the defendants issue a 12-month report concerning whether listing the desert eagle population as a distinct population segment is warranted, and, if so, whether listing the desert bald eagle as threatened or endangered under the Endangered Species Act is warranted. I further enjoined the defendants from removing the desert bald eagle from the threatened species list pending the outcome of the 12-month finding.

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

c. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

Pugliese v. Arizona Department of Health and Human Servs., 147 F. Supp. 2d 985 (D. Ariz. 2001), rev’d, Pugliese v. Dillenberg, 346 F.3d 937 (9th Cir. 2003). I held that Arizona’s Eleventh Amendment immunity was not abrogated nor waived in a case involving alleged violations of the Rehabilitation Act. The Court of Appeals held that Arizona validly waived its sovereign immunity under the Eleventh Amendment.

Pristo v. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co., No. CV-98-01484-MHM (D. Ariz. Aug. 13, 2001), rev’d, 354 F.3d 1005 (9th Cir. 2004). I found that plaintiff had waived his entitlement to benefits for the period of August 1996-97 by failing to apply for benefits in accordance with the applicable policy provisions. The Court of Appeals held that waiver was not properly pled and that no waiver occurred.

Isley v. Arizona Dep’t of Corrs., No. CV-01-01567-MHM (D. Ariz. Mar. 31, 2003), rev’d, 383 F.3d 1054 (9th Cir. 2004). I dismissed plaintiff’s petition for writ of habeas corpus as untimely under the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act (“AEDPA”). The Court of Appeals held that the state petition was “pending” and tolled the AEDPA limitations period once Isley filed notice of post-conviction relief under state procedures.

Ferreira v. Ashcroft, No. CV-01-1903-MHM (D. Ariz. Sept. 25, 2002), rev’d, 382 F.3d 1045 (9th Cir. 2004). I found that the petitioner’s conviction constituted an aggravated felony because it was a controlled substance offense punishable by more than one year’s imprisonment under state law. The Court of Appeals ruled that the conviction was not an aggravated felony because it would not be punishable as a felony under federal drug laws and did not contain a trafficking element.
In re Krystal Energy Co., 308 B.R. 48 (D. Ariz. 2002), rev’d, Krystal Energy v. Navajo Nation, 357 F.3d 1055 (9th Cir. 2004). I found that the Bankruptcy Code provision that purported to abrogate sovereign immunity of governmental units did not explicitly waive sovereign immunity of Navajo Nation. Therefore, I found that Navajo Nation could not be named as a defendant in turnover proceeding absent waiver of its immunity. The Court of Appeals held that Congress did abrogate the sovereign immunity of Indian tribes under 11 U.S.C. §§ 106(a) and 101(27).

Schwartz v. Metro. Life Ins. Co., No. CV-01-2075-PHX-MHM (D. Ariz. Sep. 03, 2003), rev’d, 127 Fed. Appx. 279 (9th Cir. 2005). I ruled in favor of the defendant, applying an abuse of discretion standard and deciding that the defendant did not improperly deny the plaintiff long term disability benefits. The Court of Appeals reversed, holding that the decision to deny the plaintiff benefits should have been reviewed de novo.

E.F.O.C. v. Peabody W. Coal Co., 214 F.R.D. 549 (D. Ariz. 2002), rev’d, 400 F.3d 774 (9th Cir. 2005). I granted summary judgment in favor of Peabody Western, holding that (1) it was not feasible to join the Navajo Nation based on sovereign immunity, (2) the Nation was necessary and indispensable party, and (3) that the legality of the Navajo employment preference in the lease was a nonjusticiable political question. The Court of Appeals held that it was feasible to join the tribe as a party and that the EEOC’s claim did not present a nonjusticiable political question.

Gerberry v. Maricopa County, No. CV-00-01342-MHM (D. Ariz. Sept. 18, 2003), rev’d, 172 Fed. Appx. 781 (9th Cir. 2006). I found that plaintiff was wrongfully terminated under the Arizona Employment Act. The Court of Appeals held that plaintiff’s claim should have failed under this statute.

Menken v. Emm, No. CV-04-00598-MHM (D. Ariz. June 29, 2005), rev’d, 503 F.3d 1050 (9th Cir. 2007). I dismissed this action, finding that the Court lacked personal jurisdiction over a judgment creditor. The Court of Appeals held that the exercise of personal jurisdiction over the judgment creditor was reasonable.

Thompson v. Paul, 402 F. Supp. 2d 1110 (D. Ariz. 2005), rev’d, 547 F.3d 1055 (9th Cir. 2008). I dismissed Thompson’s complaint under Section 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 for failing to state a claim upon which relief could be granted. The Court of Appeals held that the complaint stated a claim upon which relief could be granted under Section 10(b).

Hubble v. Soc. Sec. Admin., No. CV-05-1583-PHX-MHM (D. Ariz. Sept. 29, 2006), rev’d, 290 Fed. Appx. 56 (9th Cir. 2008). I remanded Hubble’s claim for disability insurance benefits for further administrative proceedings. The Court of Appeals held that the claim should have been remanded for a calculation and payment of benefits.

United States v. James, No. CR-03-0900-MHM-1 (D. Ariz. Mar. 1, 2007), rev’d, 556 F.3d 1062 (9th Cir. 2009). I presided over a trial in which the defendant was convicted of second degree murder, robbery, and felony murder, along with several other crimes. The Court of Appeals held that punishing the defendant for second degree murder, robbery, and their related gun crimes violated double jeopardy given that the defendant had also been convicted and sentenced for felony murder and a related gun count for the same underlying act.

Siracusano v. Matrixx Initiatives, Inc., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 41102 (D. Ariz. Dec. 15, 2005), rev’d, 585 F.3d 1167 (9th Cir. 2009). I dismissed the plaintiffs’ claim brought under the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (PSLRA), concluding that the plaintiff failed to allege materiality. The Court of Appeals reversed, deciding that my reliance on the statistical significance standard was in error and that the plaintiffs’ allegations were sufficient to meet the PSLRA’s pleading requirement.

Stanley v. Schriro, No. CV-98-00430-PHX-MHM, 2006 WL 2816541 (D. Ariz. Sept. 27, 2006), rev’d, Stanley v. Schriro, ___ F.3d ___, 2010 WL 816940 (9th Cir. Mar. 11, 2010). I denied a 28 U.S.C. § 2254 habeas corpus petition challenging a conviction and capital life sentences for a double murder. The Court of Appeals affirmed the denial of the petition for a writ of habeas corpus for ineffective assistance of counsel during the guilt phase of trial and for Petitioner’s Miranda claim. It reversed as to Petitioner’s claim for ineffective assistance of counsel during the sentencing phase, holding that Petitioner was entitled to an evidentiary hearing on whether his lawyer rendered ineffective assistance of counsel during this phase.

g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

As a general rule, I do not submit my orders for publication in the Federal Supplement. On occasion, however, orders that I have issued are designated for publication by the publishers of the Federal Supplement. Many are available online through Westlaw, Lexis, and other services. My unpublished orders are filed and stored with the Clerk of the Court.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

Stein v. Braun Inv., 244 Fed. Appx. 816 (9th Cir. 2007).

Shane v. Albertson's Inc., 504 F.3d 1166 (9th Cir. 2007).

Chang v. Liberty Life Assurance Co. of Boston, 247 Fed. Appx. 875 (9th Cir. 2007).

I authored the following opinions:

Northern Queen, Inc. v. Kinnear, 298 F.3d 1090 (9th Cir. 2002). This was a maritime case about a crab fishing boat that capsized in the Bering Sea due to an excessive build up of ice and an accumulation of sea water in the lazarette, killing all those on board. Following the accident, the Northern Queen brought suit against the estate of the ship’s captain to limit its liability pursuant to the Limitation of Liability Act, 46 U.S.C. §§ 181 et seq. I authored the majority opinion, which affirmed the district court’s ruling that the estate of the ship’s captain could not recover damages from the ship’s owner because of the primary duty rule.

Manjivani v. Ashcroft, 343 F.3d 1018 (9th Cir. 2003). In this immigration case, we granted Petitioner’s request to supplement the record on appeal and concluded that her evidence was sufficient to reopen proceedings before the Board of Immigration Appeals to consider her evidence, and to determine, in the first instance, whether to grant her petition to reopen her underlying deportation proceedings in light of the complete record.

Shane v. Albertson’s Inc., 504 F.3d 1166 (9th Cir. 2007). In this ERISA case, the panel held (1) that the version of plan in effect at commencement of participant’s total disability controlled, and (2) under the de novo standard of review (given an unauthorized delegation of discretionary fiduciary authority) the denial of benefits was proper.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an “automatic” recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

We do not have an "automatic" recusal system at the District Court. I maintain a standing recusal list of individuals and entities consistent with the Code of Conduct for United States Judges. I review the parties and counsel in each case to ensure I do not have a close friendship or business association with any of them. I have a few attorney friends, who are either current or former Assistant United States Attorneys. If any of them were to represent a party in a case to which I was assigned, I would recuse.

There have been a few cases in which my recusal was requested by a pro se litigant who was dissatisfied with the decision I rendered in his/her case.

There are two cases in which I was requested to recuse myself by a party who was not pro se:

This was a class action lawsuit brought against Maricopa County, the Maricopa County Sheriff’s Office (“MCSO”) and Sheriff Joseph M. Arpaio pursuant to the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution, Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, and Article II, § 8 of the Arizona Constitution alleging racial profiling and unlawful detention of persons of Hispanic appearance and/or descent during the defendants' attempt to enforce federal immigration laws. After I denied the defendants' renewed motion to dismiss, the defendants moved to recuse me from the case under both 28 U.S.C. § 144 and 28 U.S.C. § 455(a)-(b). I rejected as groundless the defendants’ arguments that I was personally biased against them under § 455(b)(1) and that I had an improper “interest” in the litigation under § 445(b)(4) and (b)(5)(ii) based on the position of my identical twin sister, Janet Murguía, as CEO and President of the National Council of La Raza (“NCLR”). However, under § 455(a), I recognized that NCLR had published internet-based articles that were highly disparaging of specific defendants in the case, and that the articles took strong stands on disputed factual matters lying at the heart of the litigation. Accordingly, I concluded in an abundance of caution and to avoid even the slightest doubt in public perception of fair adjudication of this case, I should recuse myself from this case.

Okonkwo v. Glendale Union High School Dist., No. CV-08-0633-PHX-MHM (D. Ariz.)

This civil case was filed by a pro se plaintiff against his former employer alleging discrimination on the basis of age and race. At the conclusion of fact discovery, the plaintiff retained private counsel. Thereafter, the plaintiff’s counsel requested an extension of time to engage in additional fact discovery. The plaintiff’s counsel also filed a motion for a protective order to prevent the plaintiff’s deposition. After these issues were not resolved to the plaintiff’s satisfaction, the plaintiff moved to recuse me under 28 U.S.C. § 144 and 28 U.S.C. § 455. I denied the motion for recusal. Plaintiff then filed a related civil rights lawsuit that named me... as a defendant. See Okonkwo v. Murguia, CV-09-2604-PHX-JWS (D. Ariz.). All claims against me were dismissed with prejudice, and the district court issued an order to show cause why the plaintiff's counsel should not face sanctions under Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

I have not held public office other than judicial office. I have had no unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

I have not held any memberships or offices in, or rendered any services to, any political party or election committee, nor have I held a position or played a role in a political campaign.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

I did not serve as a law clerk to a judge.

ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I did not practice alone.

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I did not serve as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings.

b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

From 1985 to 1990, I was an Assistant District Attorney for Wyandotte County, Kansas. I was responsible for all aspects of felony criminal prosecution with emphasis on sex crimes and child abuse. I was a senior trial attorney in the Sex Crimes Unit for two and one-half years. I was also a trial attorney in the Major Crimes Division for two years. My duties included evaluating the sufficiency of evidence, secondary investigation, interviewing and preparing witnesses for court, jury trials and related courtroom appearances, preparing briefs and arguing appeals before the Kansas Supreme Court and the Kansas Court of Appeals, and daily interaction with the public regarding criminal issues. I tried more than 40 state felony jury trials to verdict.

From 1990 to 2000, I was an Assistant United States Attorney in the United States Attorney’s Office, District of Arizona. From September 1990 to November 1994, I was an attorney in the Criminal Section, Violent Crime Unit. I was responsible for all aspects of federal felony criminal prosecutions and appeals, with an emphasis on violent crime. My duties included evaluating the sufficiency of evidence, presenting cases to the grand jury, directing secondary investigation, interviewing and preparing witnesses for court, jury trials, and related courtroom appearances, writing briefs, and arguing appeals before the Ninth Circuit. I tried approximately 20 federal felony jury trials to verdict.

From 1994 to 1998, I served as Deputy Chief of the Criminal Section. I was responsible for my own caseload, as well as training, directly supervising, and evaluating 10 Assistant United States Attorneys in the Violent Crime Unit. Additionally, I directly supervised seven attorneys in the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force - Major Drug Unit. I was responsible for consultation/staffing of major prosecutions, including areas such as Domestic Terrorism, Capital Murder, Civil Rights, Violence Against Women Act, Child Support Recovery Act, Gang and Juvenile matters. I served as chair of the Hiring Committee for the United States Attorney’s Phoenix Office.

From August 1998 to September 1999, I was Counsel to the Director, and then Principal Deputy Director of the Executive Office for United States Attorneys (EOUSA), United States Department of Justice. I assisted the Director of the Executive Office for United States Attorneys in the overall operations of the 94 United States Attorneys' offices nationwide. I served as a liaison between all components in the Department of Justice and the field.

From September 1999 to November 2000, I was Director of the Executive Office for United States Attorneys. As Director, I supervised the EOUSA which provides oversight of and support to the 94 Offices of the United States Attorneys comprised of 93 Presidentially-appointed United States Attorneys (a single United States Attorney serves Guam and the Northern Mariana Islands), and approximately 5,000 support staff employees. I served as the liaison between the United States Attorneys and the Attorney General, Deputy Attorney General, the Department's legal divisions, and other Department components. As Director, I supervised 22 staffs comprised of approximately 270 people and was responsible for the administration of an appropriation of more than 1 billion dollars.
ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

As a prosecutor, my former clients were the United States and the State of Kansas. My area of specialty was criminal prosecution.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

As a state prosecutor, 100% of my practice involved litigation in state court. Likewise, as a federal prosecutor, 100% of my practice involved litigation in federal court. I appeared in court frequently.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. federal courts: 50%
2. state courts of record: 50%
3. other courts:
4. administrative agencies:

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. civil proceedings: 50%
2. criminal proceedings: 100%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I estimate that I tried at least 60 cases to verdict since I started practicing as a lawyer. I estimate that I tried 40 cases to verdict in state court in Kansas. I estimate that I tried 20 cases to verdict in federal court in Arizona. In most instances, I was sole counsel. In addition, some cases resulted in guilty pleas after the trial commenced, but before verdict.

i. What percentage of these trials were:

1. jury: 98%
2. non-jury: 2%

e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I did not practice before the Supreme Court of the United States.
17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

a. the date of representation;

b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and

c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

I represented the United States in this prosecution under the federal homicide statute. The case was tried October 23 to October 31, 1996 before the Honorable Earl H. Carroll. The charges included first degree murder, aggravated assault, and violations of the federal firearm laws. I was lead counsel in the case and argued the case on behalf of the United States before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

In this case, the defendant went to the home of an individual with whom he had previously had an altercation. The defendant broke down the front door, shot several rounds of ammunition into the front living room, and then fled. The individual the defendant had targeted, however, was not in that house. Instead, there were five children sleeping in the front room. One child was killed and another suffered serious bodily injury. The defendant had been previously convicted of second degree murder and had been out of prison less than six months before committing this offense. His possession of a handgun was thus illegal under the federal “felon in possession” law. The trial involved the presentation of medical and scientific experts and child witnesses.

To avoid undue prejudice to the defendant by disclosure of his prior felony, the District Court ordered that the trial on the felon in possession charge be bifurcated from the murder and assault trial, but in a unique fashion: subsequently, the same jury considered the felon in possession case at the conclusion of the murder and assault trial. The defendant was found guilty of all charges and sentenced to a term of life imprisonment. The Ninth Circuit affirmed the conviction in February 1998. United States v. Yazzie, 139 F.3d 909 (9th Cir. 1998).

I represented the United States in this federal prosecution of fourteen counts of sexual abuse of a minor. This case was tried May 4 to May 13, 1993, before the Honorable Stephen M. McNamee. I was lead counsel and briefed the matter before the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

The defendant was charged with committing a variety of sexually abusive acts against his stepson over an extended period of time. An uncle of the victim, who was an eyewitness to some of the offenses, was mentally handicapped. The mother of the victim originally told law enforcement that she had seen some incidents of abuse, but recanted her statement prior to trial. Closed circuit television was used during trial when the child testified. The defendant was convicted of all counts and sentenced to 365 months’ imprisonment.

During an emergency room visit, the victim’s mother wrote a note to the physician concerning her son, and the trial court’s admission of the mother’s statement to the emergency room doctor presented an issue of first impression for the Ninth Circuit. The Ninth Circuit held that in limited circumstances, a statement from someone other than the patient to the doctor—in this case the parent of a child patient—may be introduced in court and admitted under the medical treatment exception to the hearsay rule. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the conviction in December 1995. United States v. Yazzie, 59 F.3d 807 (9th Cir. 1995).

I represented the United States in this prosecution of a defendant who shot and killed two of his brothers-in-law. After an altercation with the victims, the defendant drove 32 miles to obtain a firearm, drove 32 miles back, and shot the victims at their home while 10 children were in the house. I was the sole counsel on the case and also argued the matter before the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

On October 25, 1994, before the Honorable Paul G. Rosenblatt, the defendant pleaded guilty to two counts of second degree murder and one count of using a firearm in a crime of violence. The written plea agreement provided that the defendant receive a sentence of 20 to 25 years’ imprisonment. Despite this agreement, and the recommendation in the presentence report for a sentence of between 19 and 22½ years, the court granted the defendant a two level reduction for acceptance of responsibility, rejected the plea agreement’s provision for an upward departure, and sentenced the defendant to a term of imprisonment of sixteen years and four months. The court denied the government’s motion to withdraw the plea, and its motion for reconsideration of the sentence.

The government appealed. On appeal, we successfully argued that the court should have accepted the terms of the plea agreement or allowed the government to withdraw its agreement to the plea. The case was remanded to the district court, and the defendant was sentenced to twenty years in prison. United States v. Bedonie, 86 F.3d 1163 (9th Cir. 1996).

I was lead prosecutor in this federal interstate stalking case. The defendant, a former employee of the National Park Service, traveled from Utah to Arizona to stalk a former co-worker. The defendant traveled to Page, Arizona, in April 1997 and wrote several vulgar statements about his former co-worker on the door of the Glen Canyon National Recreational Area headquarters building. In May 1997, the defendant again wrote statements about the victim on the door to the headquarters and in several other locations. (The writings described the victim in sexually vulgar terms, urged sexual acts against the victim and also advocated destruction of the Glen Canyon dam.)

During the investigation, we were able to establish the defendant’s identity and captured him on videotape leaving the writings. Although fearful of death or serious bodily injury, the victim did not sustain any physical injury. On August 22, 1997, the defendant pleaded guilty before the Honorable Roslyn Moore Silver and was sentenced to six months in a community-based facility, and a three-year term of supervised release. This was apparently the first interstate stalking case filed in the country.

I was the sole prosecutor in this drug trafficking case involving black tar heroin. I also argued this case on behalf of the United States before the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

The defendants sold black tar heroin to undercover DEA agents, and represented that they acquired the heroin from Mexico and regularly smuggled it into the United States. Both of the defendants spoke only Spanish. At the time of their arrests, the defendants reportedly had been selling as many as 15 ounces of heroin at a time, at a purchase price of approximately $3,000 per ounce. The defendants had $25,000 worth of heroin in their possession at the time of the arrest, and had indicated to the undercover agents that they could provide the agents up to ten ounces every ten days. The defendants used an apartment in Phoenix, Arizona, to cook the heroin and conduct drug related business.

Several pretrial motions were filed by the defendants, including an unsuccessful motion to suppress the drug evidence. An evidentiary hearing was held on the suppression motion, at which one of the defendants, Beltran-Gutierrez (Gutierrez), testified.

On the day his case was set for trial, Beltran-Cardenas (Cardenas) pleaded guilty to all counts in the indictment, without any agreement with the government. Gutierrez’ trial was held on December 2 to 7, 1992, before the Honorable Richard J. Owen (visiting judge from the Southern District of New York). Cardenas testified on behalf of his co-defendant, Gutierrez. In his testimony, Cardenas attempted to falsely exculpate Gutierrez. Gutierrez also testified at the trial, and made several inconsistent statements, including a statement inconsistent with his testimony at the suppression hearing. He was impeached with his prior sworn statement. The jury found Gutierrez guilty of all charges.

At the sentencing hearing, the judge found that Cardenas had an aggravated role in the offense, and that Cardenas had obstructed justice by committing perjury at his co-defendant’s trial. Cardenas was sentenced to a term of 82 months’ imprisonment. Gutierrez was sentenced to a term of 78 months’ imprisonment. Cardenas appealed the length of his sentence, and Gutierrez appealed his conviction on the grounds that the use of his prior testimony violated his Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination.

The Court of Appeals decided in the government’s favor in all respects. The use of suppression hearing testimony for impeachment purposes at trial was apparently an issue of first impression for the Ninth Circuit. United States v. Beltran-Gutierrez, 19 F.3d 1287 (9th Cir. 1994); United States v. and Beltran-Cardenas, 19 F.3d 30 (9th Cir. 1994).

I represented the United States in this prosecution under the federal kidnapping and rape statutes. I also argued this case on behalf of the government before the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

The defendant in this case picked up the female victim and her boyfriend while they were hitchhiking in Arizona. He used a stop with the pretext of allowing the man to relieve himself to kidnap the female, leaving the boyfriend and another passenger behind. The defendant drove his victim to a remote area on the Navajo Indian reservation where he raped her twice. The victim eventually broke away and ran. The defendant gave chase, threatening to kill her and her boyfriend. The victim was picked up by a passing motorist on a nearby highway.
The defendant had been convicted of a nearly identical act of kidnapping and sexual assault three years earlier, but that conviction had been overturned based on the trial court’s failure to give a jury instruction on voluntary intoxication. The case was tried June 4-6, 1991, before the Honorable Roger G. Strand. At trial, we introduced evidence of the prior kidnapping and rape under Federal Rule of Evidence 404(b). The defendant was found guilty of kidnapping and two counts of aggravated sexual abuse. He was sentenced to a term of 250 months imprisonment on each count.

The admission of evidence about the prior rape was one of several issues raised by the defendant on appeal. He also appealed the trial court’s refusal to give an instruction on the defense of voluntary intoxication with respect to the kidnapping charge, and challenged the trial court’s decision not to group the two rape counts together for sentencing. The Ninth Circuit upheld the government’s use of evidence about the defendant’s prior bad acts, and, in an issue of first impression, held that kidnapping under the provision at issue, 18 U.S.C. § 1201(a)(2), was a general, rather than a specific intent crime. Because the defense of voluntary intoxication is not a defense to a general intent crime, the Ninth Circuit held that it was not error for the district court to refuse the defendant’s requested instruction. The Ninth Circuit overturned the district court’s decision to sentence the defendant separately for each count of aggravated sexual abuse based on its interpretation of the Sentencing Guidelines and thus found that the court was required to group the two rapes for sentencing because of their temporal proximity. However, the Ninth Circuit panel recommended to the United States Sentencing Commission that it amend the guidelines “to avoid giving defendants a ‘free rape’ and to avoid forcing judges to go through the repulsive and dispiriting task of making timing distinctions in this area.”

On remand for sentencing the defendant’s original sentence was modified to reflect a grouping of the two rape counts. The Ninth Circuit affirmed the conviction. United States v. Sneekw, 983 F.2d 920 (9th Cir. 1992).

I represented the United States in this prosecution under the federal statute concerning robbery of a postal employee. This case was the culmination of a series of investigative and prosecutorial efforts which resulted in the conviction of three individuals who were responsible for the aggravated robbery of a postal worker two years earlier. I received one of the highest awards given by the U.S. Postal Inspection Service for my work on this matter.

This aggravated robbery occurred at a docking area behind a post office in Mesa, Arizona, in December of 1992. Two masked men approached a postal worker who was loading a postal truck. One held the postal employee at gunpoint while the other went to the rear of the postal truck and removed three mail pouches containing over $15,000. Postal Service investigators suspected that the robbery was an inside job, but the case went unsolved for almost two years. In early 1994, an individual incarcerated in the Kansas State Penitentiary revealed to law enforcement officials that he had information relating to this robbery.

Several obstacles had to be overcome to have the Kansas prisoner transferred to Arizona so he could act as a confidential informant and make key phone calls and meetings with the individuals suspected of being involved in the robbery.

After the first suspect was captured on audio and video tape, he agreed to cooperate against the other robber. Covert audio and video surveillance was again used to record the second robber not only admitting his involvement, but also re-enacting it. He was arrested and also agreed to cooperate against the mastermind of the robbery, a former postal employee named Robert Johnson.

After several phone calls with the cooperating co-defendants, the third defendant, Robert Johnson, ultimately confessed.

All three pleaded guilty. Robert Johnson entered into a plea agreement on October 25, 1994, before the Honorable Robert C. Broomsfield and was sentenced to a term of nine years' imprisonment. The Ninth Circuit affirmed. United States v. Johnson, 69 F.3d 545 (9th Cir. 1995).

I represented the United States in this federal counterfeiting and fraudulent passport possession case. I was the sole counsel on the case, and represented the United States before the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

The defendant was found uttering counterfeit money with another individual at a shopping mall in Phoenix, Arizona. A large amount of counterfeit cash was found hidden in the car the two individuals had been driving. The defendant had an extensive and violent criminal background, including prostitution, resisting a public officer, assault with intent to commit rape, and kidnapping. He was also suspected of being a member of a Russian organized crime ring out of California.

The defendant pleaded guilty on March 4, 1991, before the Honorable Earl H. Carroll and was sentenced to a term of 24 months imprisonment. His sentence was ordered to run consecutive to his term of imprisonment for other state crimes in California. The defendant filed an appeal challenging the consecutive nature of his federal sentence. The Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit upheld the sentence. The Ninth Circuit affirmed

I represented the State of Kansas in this child abuse, neglect and endangerment case involving two young boys (ages nine and twelve) who were physically and sexually abused by their stepmother. I also represented the State of Kansas on appeal before the Kansas Supreme Court.

The defendant stepmother physically beat the twelve-year-old boy regularly with her fists and, on occasion, with a two-by-four. In addition to the physical abuse, the defendant made both boys perform oral sex on her as “reward” for good behavior and as “punishment” for bad behavior. The boys’ natural father was aware of the abuse, and did nothing to stop it.

The state of the home was described by social workers as filthy and deplorable, and the children came to school improperly clothed and unusually hungry. The stepmother and father were aware that the twelve-year-old suffered from a rare and terminal disease (juvenile Huntington’s Chorea), and that the younger boy ran a high risk of contracting the same illness. The stepmother and father denied the children necessary medical treatment and medication for their respective medical problems.

The children’s father was charged with aiding and abetting the stepmother’s crimes, and he pleaded guilty before trial pursuant to a plea bargain. The stepmother was charged with two counts of aggravated criminal sodomy, two counts of endangering a child, and one count of terroristic threats (for her threats against a hospital social worker who had prohibited her from seeing the older boy during the boy’s stay in a hospital psychiatric ward for children). This case was tried July 21 to 27, 1987, before the Honorable Dean J. Smith. The evidence included expert testimony and eyewitness testimony from the younger boy. (The older boy was too ill to testify.) The defendant was found guilty on all counts.

The defendant was sentenced to a term of not less than fifteen years or more than life imprisonment on one count of aggravated criminal sodomy and to a term of not less than 5 years or more than 20 years on the second count of aggravated criminal sodomy. The two sentences were ordered to be served consecutively. The defendant was sentenced to a term of one year on each count of endangering a child – to be served concurrent with each other and concurrent with the other charges. The defendant was sentenced to a term of not less than one nor more than five years for making a terroristic threat. This sentence was ordered to run consecutively to the other charges. The Kansas Supreme Court found in favor of the State on appeal. The Supreme Court of the State of Kansas

10. State of Kansas v. Moppin, No. 87 CR 925 (D. Ct., Wyandotte County, Kan.)

I represented the State of Kansas in this prosecution of child sexual abuse offenses. I also represented the State of Kansas on the appeal of this matter to the Kansas Supreme Court.

This case involved the sexual abuse of a five-year-old girl by her natural father, who was a Kansas City, Kansas, police officer. The trial received significant local media attention.

This case was tried April 4 to 7, 1988, before the Honorable Cordell Meeks, Jr. At trial, the victim testified the defendant’s commission of oral sex on her and the defendant’s sexual fondling of her. He was convicted on both counts. The defendant was facing a term of not less than three years, or more than five years on the indecent liberties count, and to a term of not less than five years, or more than twenty years on the aggravated criminal sodomy count. The defendant was then granted probation. The defendant nonetheless appealed his conviction.

On appeal, the defendant’s conviction for indecent liberties was upheld, but his conviction for aggravated criminal sodomy was overturned. The Kansas Supreme Court determined that the definition of “sodomy” under the relevant criminal code did not include oral contact with the genitals of a female.

Subsequent to the appellate ruling, a subcommittee of the Kansas legislature convened a hearing to address the issues in the sexual abuse provisions of the criminal code that had been highlighted in this case. I testified at that hearing about the relevant statutes. The Supreme Court of the State of Kansas issued its decision affirming the conviction in part, reversing in part, and vacating in part on December 8, 1989. Kansas v. Moppin, 245 Kan. 639, 783 P.2d 878 (1989).

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s).

As a state and federal prosecutor, most of my significant legal activities involved trial litigation in the area of violent crime.

As Director of the Executive Office for United States Attorneys, I provided administrative oversight of and support to the 94 United States Attorneys’ offices, comprised of 93 Presidentially-appointed United States Attorneys (a single United States Attorney serves Guam and the Northern Mariana Islands), approximately 5,000 Assistant United States Attorneys, and approximately 5,000 support staff employees. I served as liaison between the United States Attorneys and the Attorney General, Deputy Attorney General, the Department’s legal divisions and other Department components. I supervised 22 components comprised of approximately 270 people. I was also responsible for the administration of an appropriation of more than 1 billion dollars.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

None.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I have no plans, commitments or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during my service with the court.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

No family members, categories of litigation, or financial arrangements are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest. With respect to persons other than family, if the City of Chandler were to appear as a party in a case to which I was assigned, I would recuse myself because of my long-standing friendship with the Chandler City Attorney. I have a few close personal friends who practice as attorneys before the Court of Appeals; if any of these attorneys appeared before me in a case, I would disclose the relationship and/or recuse.

b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

If confirmed, I will continue to consult and apply the Code of Conduct for United States Judges as well as other relevant canons and statutory provisions.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

In my role as a judicial officer, my ability to participate in pro bono work has been limited. However, in accordance with this limitation, I established a program for disadvantaged youth called “Court Works – Kids to Court,” which is now in its fifth year. Each year, approximately 300 children and their teachers prepare for, and participate in, a mock trial at the District Court. The program is designed to introduce youngsters to the judicial system and create a context for a professional career in law. It also serves to bring the community to the Sandra Day O’Connor Courthouse, which I believe is a vital role of the District Court.

26. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

There is no selection commission in my jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts. On January 15, 2010, I received a telephone call from an attorney in the Office of Legal Policy at the U.S. Department of Justice, who informed me that I was being considered for nomination to serve as a judge on the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. Since that time, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. On February 17, 2010, I interviewed in Washington, D.C., with officials from the White House Counsel’s Office and the Department of Justice. On March 25, 2010, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No one involved in the process of selecting me as a judicial nominee has discussed any case, legal issue or question with me.

LINDA S. SOUTH
Notary Public - State of Kansas
My Appt. Expires 10/1/2020
Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much. And let me just say that the story of your family is an inspiration. It is not just an immigrant story. It is an American story, and the decision of your mother and father to come to this country has made this a better nation, as we can tell from your service and the contributions which all of your family have made, which you have alluded to in your introduction.

So I am touched by it, being first generation American myself and presiding over this Judiciary Committee hearing. It is a reminder of who we are and, at times, we need that reminder.

I would like to, if I could——

Judge MURGUIA. Thank you, Senator. Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. Of course. I would like to just ask a substantive question or two. When you reach the circuit court level, you have to expect some serious questions and I hope you will bear with me.

Judge MURGUIA. Of course.

Senator DURBIN. In the 1980s, Congress passed a law to address the crack cocaine scourge in America. History shows that we may have gone too far.

We established sentencing guidelines for crack cocaine that were 100 times the standard used for powder cocaine. It has resulted in what many consider to be unfortunate outcomes, many even unjust.

Having voted for that legislation, at a time, I can tell you that we were in just mortal fear that this new narcotic would come in dirt cheap, highly addictive, destroying lives and the lives of children who were born by the addicts. And so we reacted with a 100-to-1 sentencing standard.

Now, this committee, in an extraordinary bipartisan effort, has reduced the disparity in a bill that we passed from 100-to-1 to 18-to-1. Some may argue it should be 1-to-1, which is my position, but it is the nature of a compromise that we have tried to come down to a level of 18-to-1, which has passed the Senate.

Can you share your views on the crack/powder disparity and can you tell me what Federal judges can do, if anything, to reduce the disparate impact that criminal laws such as this might have on the poor and minorities?

Judge MURGUIA. Well, Senator, Mr. Chairman, thank you for your question. I think the current sentencing structure post Booker gives the judges a great deal of freedom in fashioning individualized sentences for each defendant based on their history, characteristics, and the facts and circumstances surrounding the case.

And so I have found, in my experience, that the post Booker sentencing structure allows us to take into consideration all the aspects of everyone’s background and their experience—I’m sorry—their background, their criminal history, and the facts and circumstances surrounding the case. And their history, we have to evaluate their personal, social, and criminal history when we sentence.

Obviously, the guidelines, the United States sentencing guidelines are important and they need to be respected. They provide a very important framework and a fair process in evaluating each case and allow—they are an important tool to ensure fairness among similarly situated defendants.
So I think our current sentencing structure, hopefully, takes all of that into account.

Senator Durbin. Have you had any experience, any professional or legal experience with this sentencing disparity?

Judge Murguia. I have not.

Senator Durbin. I will not pursue that any further, but I thank you for your response there.

You did have a Fair Labor Standards Act case, called Stickle v. SCI Western Market Support Center, in which the plaintiffs alleged their employer failed to pay them adequate wages. The employer filed a motion to dismiss under the Twombly standard, but you denied the motion and ruled the case could go forward.

What has been your experience applying the new standard set forth in the Twombly and Iqbal cases? Have you or your colleagues had any cases in which plaintiffs would have prevailed under the old standard, but had to be dismissed under this new Supreme Court standard?

Judge Murguia. I don’t—just based on my experience, Twombly, the effects of Twombly are still being set forth, I think, as time passes. It hasn’t been into effect for a long time, that I know of any studies that have happened.

But in my experience, I think it just allows the courts a good ability to determine whether or not the cases are meritorious, that they rise above a pure speculative level, if there’s a plausible claim.

The Stickle case is currently ongoing and I allowed it to go forward. I thought it was the right decision to do. So I think it also allows for a fair process.

Senator Durbin. When the Supreme Court overturned the 50-year precedent of Conley v. Gibson and raised the bar for filing such complaints in Federal court, many believe that it made it more difficult for some workers, consumers, and victims of discrimination to proceed with their lawsuit.

Your decision in the Stickle case appears to have given that plaintiff another day in court, at least an opportunity to proceed. Do you feel that this new standard makes it more difficult for petitioners or plaintiffs to prevail in these types of cases?

Judge Murguia. I don’t know that it makes it more difficult at this point.

Senator Kyl. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

I have selected four questions in disparate areas to ask you, and so let me just take them one at a time here.

The first has to do with reassignment of a case, the controversial Arizona case of Chamber of Commerce v. Candelaria, the case involving the Arizona statute imposing sanctions on employers who hire illegal immigrants.

According to an Associated Press article December 11, 2007, you had originally been assigned to that case and, according to the article, you reassigned the case back to Judge Wake.

Can you tell us—and this case was controversial, I will tell my colleagues, and has now been taken by the U.S. Supreme Court after the lower court decision was unanimously upheld.

Can you tell us why you reassigned the case, Judge?
Judge MURGUIA. Certainly, Senator Kyl. That—I reassigned that case based on our local rules involving assignment of cases and transfer of cases. That case actually had a history in our court.

Judge Wake had been presiding over the original version of that case for about 6 months. There were issues regarding a deadline. I think the law was going to go into effect in January.

But Judge Wake, in the 6 months that he had the original version, an almost identical version of the case that was later refiled, had a trial on the merits, due to the request for a preliminary injunction; had considered and had several days of hearings regarding the motions to dismiss; and, ultimately, I think with about 20 days left before the law was to go into place, made a ruling.

He had to make a ruling on that case, and found that issues surrounding standing prevented him or you didn’t need to go to the merits, because there was an issue regarding standing in that case. And so he issued his ruling and issued judgment.

The parties, instead of appealing or filing a motion for reconsideration, simply seemed to take guidance from his order and refiled the case within 2 days.

That case, which was almost identical to the original version of that case, was eventually assigned to me. When I saw the nature of the case and what was happening, I consulted the rules, which indicate that if a judge has a prior familiarity with the case and the issues and if it will avoid substantial duplication of proceedings and hearings, it should be reassigned.

And so I simply was following the rules of assignment and transferring of cases.

Senator Kyl. Thank you. The second question has to do with a matter of recusal. In July of 2009, you recused yourself from a case alleging racial profiling by the Maricopa County Sheriff’s Office. That is the county in which Phoenix, Arizona is located.

Immediately after you denied the defendant’s motion to dismiss the case, there were allegations made that your sister’s political beliefs might affect your judgment in the matter. You denied those allegations, but you still recused yourself from the case based on the remote possibility that there might be some appearance of bias.

I think that is correct. Correct me if I am wrong. Would you say that you declined to serve in that case out of concern for the integrity of the judiciary, as a whole?

Judge MURGUIA. Let me separate that out. Yes, I did ultimately recuse myself from that case. Always, when we review cases of recusal, a core concern is the integrity of the judiciary, and I think I referred to that in my order.

I actually found that there was no actual bias, that I could have been fair; there was no conflict of interest; that I could have presided over their case. My reason for recusal was based on a very narrow basis, and that’s whether or not someone could—might reasonably question my impartiality based on the specific and unique circumstances and facts surrounding that case.

That was the only basis. My sister, yes, is a president and CEO of an Hispanic civil rights organization. She has quite a different role than I do as a Federal judge, and I’m very cognizant of that.
I guess I just want to be very clear that her views or opinions do not influence my decisions as a judge. Her views, my sister’s, or any close sibling of mine or anyone else, including my own views, do not enter into my decisionmaking.

I had to make a very careful review of the recusal statutes in that case and my code of conduct as a judge, and after careful review and because of the very unique circumstances and details surrounding that case, I entered a recusal.

Senator Kyl. Thank you very much.

Senator Durbin. I have no further questions. I do not know if you do, Senator Kyl.

Senator Kyl. Let me just ask one more orally and then maybe just submit two for the record. They are both very brief.

The one that I would just ask you orally here. In your questionnaire, you reported that 100 percent of your practice as an attorney was devoted to criminal law matters, both as state and Federal prosecutor, and that about 68 percent of your cases during your time on the district court bench have been criminal cases.

One attorney, as a result of this, expressed concern that your legal ability is much stronger on the criminal side than the civil.

Could you tell us, briefly, how your time on the district court will prepare you to handle appeals in civil matters, if you are confirmed to a seat on the ninth circuit court?

Judge Murguia. Certainly, Senator Kyl. I’ve had a remarkable experience as a district court judge, presiding over a wide variety of civil cases, including tort and contract disputes, cases involving patent infringement, class action cases, and a variety of class action cases, securities fraud, Fair Labor Standards Act, consumer fraud.

I have also been asked to preside over multi-district litigation cases, which, by their nature, are very complex. I think that experience of presiding over those cases gives me a very good understanding of what litigants face, of what trial lawyers at the district court level confront, and what trial judges, the decisions that they have to make and the issues that they have to resolve almost on a daily basis.

And I think that that experience would be extremely beneficial to me as a circuit court judge in the ninth circuit, if I’m fortunate enough to be confirmed.

Senator Kyl. Actually, the majority of cases that are considered by all of the judges in the district court are criminal rather than civil; are they not?

Judge Murguia. That’s correct. We’re the number one district of handling criminal cases in the ninth circuit. I think we’re the third overall in the country.

Senator Kyl. Well, I will submit a couple other questions for the record. I really appreciate your testimony. Welcome, and we look forward to a speedy confirmation of your nomination.

Judge Murguia. Well, I thank you and the Chairman for all of your questions and for your help and support. Thank you very much.

Senator Durbin. Judge Murguia, there may be some written questions sent by Senator Kyl, myself, or other members of the committee, which I am sure you will be attentive to, which we would appreciate very much.

We thank you very much for your joining us.

Judge MURGUIA. Certainly.

Senator DURBIN. And thank your family, as well, for being part of this hearing.

Judge MURGUIA. Thank you very much.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you.

We will now take a minute to reset the table for the next panel, which includes four nominees to the district court: Edmond Chang from Illinois; Leslie Kobayashi of Hawaii; Denise Casper of Massachusetts; and Carlton Reeves of Mississippi.

[Pause.]

Senator DURBIN. I would like to ask the four nominees, if they would, please, to stand, as you are, and raise your right hand.

[Nominees sworn.]

Senator DURBIN. Let the record reflect that the four nominees all answered in the affirmative, which makes the next stage of this much easier.

I would like to give each of you a chance to introduce your family members and say a few words.

I do not know, I guess, if there is an order here that should be followed. I did not want to show favoritism, but Mr. Chang first.

STATEMENT OF EDMOND E-MIN CHANG, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS

Mr. CHANG. Thank you, Senator. First, I want to thank you, Senator Durbin and Senator Kyl, for holding this hearing. I very much appreciate that.

I also want to express gratitude to President Obama for the deep privilege of this nomination.

I would also like to thank you specifically, Senator Durbin, for your support and the warm words of introduction. I very much appreciate that.

I’d like to acknowledge and thank my family and friends who were able to attend the hearing in person. And so I have with me—and I hope they will stand and get my thanks—my mother, Esther Chang; my wife, Jeannie Chang; and my lovely daughters, Emily and Claire. Also, a great college friend of mine, Lawrence Wu, is here from Michigan. I have known him for over 20 years.

If I could also take a moment to acknowledge and thank some of my family who were not able to attend in person because of scheduling and other travel conflicts, the first of which is my father, Lawrence Chang, who is overseas in Taiwan. I want to thank him very much. And my older sister, Elizabeth, and her husband, Scott, and my nephews, Matthew and Michael. I know they’re watching the Webcast.

Also, my younger sister, Elaine; her husband, Henry; and, their girls, Chloe and Elise, are watching. And I want to thank my in-laws, as well, Shun-Yu Tiao and Chen-Kun Tiao; and my brother-in-law, Andy Tiao, his wife, Michelle, and their kids, Alex, Katie and Chris.

Thank you for the opportunity to make those remarks.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much, Mr. Chang.
Nominee Kobayashi? Have I pronounced that correctly? [The biographical information follows.]

If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

   None of the listed organizations presently engages or formerly engaged in invidious discrimination of any kind.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

   a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

   b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.
In October 2002, when I served on the Board of Governors of the Chicago Council of Lawyers, the Council issued “Child Support in Cook County, Illinois: A Call for Reform” (copy supplied).

Over the years, I have prepared short (typically, a few paragraphs) reports for various bar associations in connection with evaluating the suitability of individuals for judicial office. Specifically, I prepared reports for the Chicago Council of Lawyers and the Asian-American Bar Association of Chicago in connection with evaluating candidates running for state judicial office or state judges seeking retention in an election. Additionally, I prepared a draft evaluation for the Chicago Council of Lawyers in connection with evaluating a federal district judge, as part of the Council’s periodic evaluation of all sitting federal judges. Also, as a member of the 2009 Federal Magistrate Judge Merit Selection Panel for the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, I prepared a report, for the Panel’s internal use, evaluating one of the applicants for the position. I do not recall the names of many of the individuals whom I helped to evaluate, and I do not have copies of those reports. Most of the reports were for internal use by the particular bar association and not for further public dissemination, and the information in the reports was gathered from interviewees who were promised confidentiality.

c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

None.

d. Supply four (4) copies, transcripts or recordings of all speeches or talks delivered by you, including commencement speeches, remarks, lectures, panel discussions, conferences, political speeches, and question-and-answer sessions. Include the date and place where they were delivered, and readily available press reports about the speech or talk. If you do not have a copy of the speech or a transcript or recording of your remarks, give the name and address of the group before whom the speech was given, the date of the speech, and a summary of its subject matter. If you did not speak from a prepared text, furnish a copy of any outline or notes from which you spoke.

Over the last several years I have spoken frequently on a variety of topics, including criminal law, professional training and opportunities, and issues relating to my experience as an Asian-American lawyer. I have listed below all of the speaking engagements I could identify through a search of my calendar and internet databases, and I have attached all related material that I could locate.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

I have not held judicial office.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment? _____

i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

jury trials? __%; bench trials ___% [total 100%]
civil proceedings? ___%; criminal proceedings? ___% [total 100%]

b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature of the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

14. Reusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

I have not served as a judge.

a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

I have not held public office. I have not had any unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.
b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

I have not held memberships, offices, positions, or roles in any political party, election committee, or political campaign.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

   Honorable James L. Ryan, United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, August 1994 to July 1995
   Honorable Marvin E. Aspen, United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, August 1995 to September 1997

ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

   I have not practiced alone.

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have not served as a mediator or arbitrator.

b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

From 1994 to 1995, I served as a law clerk to Judge James L. Ryan on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. I wrote bench memoranda and drafted opinions in a wide variety of federal cases. From 1995 to 1997, I served as a law clerk to then-Chief Judge Marvin E. Aspin on the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. I assisted the judge in managing his docket, drafted opinions in federal cases in primarily federal civil litigation, and advised the judge on grand jury matters. From 1997 to 1999, I represented primarily corporations and universities as a member of Sidley & Austin’s employment and labor law group.

In December 1999, I began serving as an Assistant United States Attorney in the General Crimes Section of the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the Northern District of Illinois. In late 2001, I joined the Narcotics and Gangs Section. I investigated and prosecuted a wide variety of federal crimes, including drug, gun, child exploitation, fraud, tax, extortion, and other cases. In addition to conducting trials, I was responsible for all aspects of pre-trial litigation, including examining witnesses and presenting arguments at numerous preliminary hearings, detention hearings, hearings on pre-trial motions, and sentencings.

In January 2004, I was promoted to Deputy Chief in the General Crimes Section, where I supervised and trained new prosecutors, and also maintained a personal caseload. Since July 2005, I have served as the Chief of Appeals of the Criminal Division. My duties include supervising our Office’s litigation in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, and I have supervised the briefing and oral argument in more than 300 appeals. I also advise prosecutors throughout the Office on any question that has arisen in an investigation or in the district court, while still maintaining a district court and appellate caseload.

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

At Sidley & Austin, I represented primarily corporations and universities in employment and labor law matters.

At the United States Attorney’s Office, I represent the United States in federal criminal cases.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

At Sidley & Austin, I estimate that 90% of my work was litigation, approximately half of which was in federal court, and the other half in arbitrations to neutral adjudicators. The court and arbitration matters were civil-law proceedings and occasionally appeared in court or at the arbitration proceeding. I did represent, pro bono, a state habeas petitioner in pursuing a habeas petition in federal court; such petitions are technically denominated as a civil matter, but they involve criminal law issues.

At the United States Attorney’s Office, my appearances are 100% in federal court, occur frequently, and are in criminal cases at all stages, including initial prosecution, appeal, and post-conviction litigation. I have prosecuted approximately 150 defendants, tried 10 cases to verdict, personally handled 30 appeals, and supervised the briefing and argument in more than 300 appeals. On occasion, in addition to criminal matters, I am asked to provide legal advice on civil matters, such as civil suits by or against the United States, and civil forfeiture cases.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. federal courts: 100%
   2. state courts of record:
   3. other courts:
   4. administrative agencies:

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. civil proceedings: 3%
   2. criminal proceedings: 97%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.
I have tried 10 cases to verdict, all in federal court. In all trials, a co-counsel and I tried the case together.

i. What percentage of these trials were:
   1. jury: 90%
   2. non-jury: 10%

e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

   I have not appeared as counsel in the Supreme Court of the United States. In my role as Chief of Appeals for the United States Attorney's Office, I have provided substantive input into Supreme Court filings drafted by the Department of Justice Appellate Section and the Office of the Solicitor General in cases from my district. These filings primarily consist of briefs-in-opposition to certiorari petitions in cases where the government has prevailed in the Seventh Circuit.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

   a. the date of representation;
   b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
   c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

Aneicom, Inc. was an international distributor of wire and cable. Senior executives cooked the books in order to meet investor expectations, but eventually the company crashed and declared bankruptcy, wiping out over $80 million in shareholder value. Along with the FBI and another prosecutor, starting in 2002, I investigated the numerous sales and accounting frauds that drove the scheme, and obtained securities fraud and related charges against 7 former executives, including the former CEO, CFO, COO, and Controller. I then briefed and argued responses to the numerous pre-trial motions filed.
by the defendants. Ultimately, we secured the guilty pleas of 6 defendants (the seventh passed away), the last of which was in 2007.

2. United States v. Abdelhaq, 246 F.3d 990 (7th Cir. 2001), USCA No. 00 C 1894, Seventh Circuit Judges Flaum, Posner, and Coffey.

In this appeal, I represented the United States in seeking affirmance of the conviction of a defendant who murdered her infant child in order to reap $200,000 in life insurance benefits. The defendant attempted to disguise the murder as due to sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS). The evidence showed that this was the second infant whose murder she disguised as SIDS. On appeal, I learned the three-week trial record and the scientific evidence in order to author the response brief in 2000 and to present the oral argument in 2001. The Seventh Circuit affirmed the conviction.

The Mafia Insane Vice Lords street gang operated dozens of drug-dealing spots on the west side of Chicago. Along with a multi-agency team of investigators, starting in late 2002, I investigated the gang from the bottom-up, eventually obtaining enough evidence to convict the “King” of the gang, Martin, who had formed the gang many years ago while serving a murder sentence in Illinois state prison. In order to disrupt the gang as much as possible, we gathered evidence for 18 months on over 40 defendants. I was lead counsel throughout the investigation, the securing of guilty pleas, and the pre-trial litigation stage, including responding to numerous pre-trial and suppression motions. I briefed and argued the motions, and put on testimony at the evidentiary hearings on the motions. When I was promoted to Chief of Appeals, the Office assigned two other prosecutors to try the remaining defendants (those prosecutors have since left the Office, and I briefed and argued the remaining sentencings). The case resulted in 43 convictions.

I was assigned as co-prosecutor to bring this nine-defendant cocaine conspiracy and gun case to trial, and we ultimately tried 3 defendants after the other defendants (except one fugitive) pled guilty. The cocaine conspiracy involved well over 100 kilograms of cocaine. During the two-week trial, I presented the testimony of numerous witnesses and delivered the government’s closing argument. On appeal, I presented the oral argument in the Seventh Circuit. The court of appeals affirmed the convictions.

I briefed and argued this appeal in 2007, in which we appealed the district court’s suppression of crack cocaine, firearms (including a machine gun), and an explosive found in the defendant’s house. The appeal presented a Fourth Amendment question of first impression following the Supreme Court’s 2006 decision in Georgia v. Randolph, which held that a co-occupant’s consent to a search is invalid if a physically-present occupant objects to the search. In the Henderson case, the defendant objected to a search but was then removed from the house pursuant to a valid arrest for domestic battery – he had choked his wife and locked her out of the house – and the district court applied Randolph to suppress the evidence despite Mrs. Henderson’s consent to search. In a published decision, a majority of the panel reversed the suppression order, holding that the defendant’s removal from the scene permitted the officers to act on his wife’s consent (and indeed, encouragement) to remove the guns and drugs from her home.

In this child exploitation case, the defendant believed he was chatting over the Internet with a 13-year old girl from the suburbs of Chicago, and he sent her child pornography and arranged to meet her for sex. The defendant traveled from his home state of Maryland to Illinois for the meeting. In fact, the defendant was caught in a sting operation in which an undercover agent was posing as the minor. The defendant had, before the sting investigation, already had sex with two underage minors in other states. I obtained the complaint, indictment, and plea agreement, and also presented the preliminary hearing and the detention hearing. More importantly, I successfully responded to the defendant’s motion to dismiss, in which he argued that the federal law barring the use of computers to entice minors to engage in sex does not apply to sting operations. In a published decision, the district court adopted our position, and the opinion has been cited by several other federal courts. After losing the motion to dismiss, the defendant pled guilty in 2000.

Along with another prosecutor, I brought this multi-scheme fraud case to trial in 2002. The defendants fraudulently obtained Social Security disability benefits and other government funds (such as federally-guaranteed student loans) in the total amount of around $470,000. We presented over 150 exhibits at the trial, and I presented around 15 trial witnesses and delivered the government's closing argument. Both defendants were convicted and sentenced to 6½ years of imprisonment.

I was assigned to prosecute this child pornography case after the indictment was returned. I obtained the plea agreement and presented the sentencing arguments, including advancing the position that the victims of child pornography possession, for purposes of the Sentencing Guidelines, were the children in the images, not just society at large. The district court agreed, and on appeal (which I also briefed and argued), the Seventh Circuit affirmed on that question of first impression in the Circuit.

District Judge John F. Grady, aff'd, 02-2316, 2003 WL 262063 (7th Cir. Feb. 6, 2003) (Seventh Circuit Judges Coffey, Easterbrook, and Kanne) Ceja conspired with two other defendants to import truck-loads of marijuana, over 4 tons worth in total, from Mexico. Ceja owned a Chicago furniture store, and used it as a front for the importation; the marijuana was hidden in furniture shipped from Mexico. I investigated and prosecuted the case from the controlled delivery of a truck-load by Customs agents, through the pleas of two defendants, and ending with the trial, conviction, and sentencing of Ceja. During the trial, I presented the opening statement, witnesses, and the rebuttal argument. Ceja received 15½ years imprisonment. I briefed and argued the appeal, which resulted in affirmance of the conviction and sentence.

This was a government appeal of a district court’s finding that two trial AUSAs committed a Batson violation by exercising peremptory challenges on the basis of race in trial of defendant’s fraud charges. 18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s).

As the Chief of Appeals, I supervise our Office’s work before the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. I have supervised the brief-writing and oral argument of other prosecutors in more than 300 appeals. In addition, I maintain a case load that I handle personally. I advise the front office and other prosecutors on a wide variety of legal issues in the investigative and district-court stages of a case in order to increase the chances of success on appeal. This “consultation” function often involves the most complex and important cases that we bring, including complex fraud, terrorism, public corruption, and gang cases. As the person responsible for keeping prosecutors updated on developments in the law, I also disseminate descriptions of important cases to the entire criminal division. I draft form pleadings on recurring topics of all kinds. Finally, I help formulate Office policy on charging decisions, plea policies, and other Office-wide issues.

I am also responsible for dealing with district-court decisions that are adverse to the government, and that responsibility includes deciding whether to seek the approval of the Department to appeal an adverse decision. If we decide to seek authorization to appeal, I work with the line prosecutor to draft legal memoranda to the Department for review. I also review every sentence imposed that is more lenient than the Sentencing Guidelines range as part of our Office’s efforts to maintain appropriate equality of sentencing treatment.

I have developed an expertise in civil rights litigation in Section 1983 and habeas cases, starting with my experience during the judicial clerkships, and continuing through private practice and my current position. I teach a civil rights litigation course at Northwestern University School of Law.

I have performed no lobbying activities on behalf of any client or organization.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

Since fall 1996, I have taught Civil Rights Litigation at Northwestern University School of Law as an Adjunct Professor of Law. To date, I have taught the class during nine semesters over this period. The class focuses on the law of Section 1983 and habeas corpus – the two primary vehicles by which persons vindicate their constitutional rights against government entities and officials. The class meets for three hours per week, discussing not only the holdings of cases but also what practical impact the governing legal principles have on how to litigate such cases, both from the perspective of the individual and the government. A syllabus from this past semester is supplied.

20. Deferred Income/Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I would hope to continue teaching Civil Rights Litigation at Northwestern University School of Law as an adjunct professor, as described above. I would do so only in compliance with the Code of Conduct for United States Judges.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

Parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest during my initial service, if I am confirmed, would include former clients, former law-firm colleagues, or matters pending at Sidley Austin LLP, a law firm with which I was formerly associated, although the conflicts would likely be rare because I left the firm approximately 10 years ago.
In addition, any criminal or civil matter that was pending in the U.S. Attorney’s Office during my time of service could present a potential conflict of interest.

Additionally, because of my position as an adjunct professor at Northwestern University School of Law, in a case involving Northwestern University, I would disclose that relationship to the parties and act consistently with applicable laws and the Code of Conduct. Finally, I would recuse myself from any case in which a personal holding of corporate stock presents a financial conflict of interest under the Code of Conduct.

b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

As an initial matter, I would follow any court-established automated procedure for screening potential conflicts of interest. In addition, I would personally and carefully examine each assigned case to determine the existence of a potential conflict. Ultimately, I will handle all matters involving actual or potential conflicts-of-interest through the careful and diligent application of the Code of Conduct for United States Judges, as well as other relevant Canons, statutory provisions, and case law.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

From 1997 to 1998, I tutored low-income children from the Cabrini-Green area through a tutoring program called Partners in Education. Partners in Education was established at the Fourth Presbyterian Church on Michigan Avenue, and the students took a short bus ride each week to meet with us there for about an hour. We tried to teach reading, writing, and computer skills through the use of fun activities.

At Sidley & Austin, I represented a habeas petitioner in federal court. The petitioner had pled guilty to murder in the Circuit Court of Cook County, but alleged that the plea was not knowing because he had pled just two days after he tried to hang himself and because he was not alerted to the potential maximum punishment. I devoted at least 100 hours to interviewing the petitioner, reviewing the available records, researching the legal issues, and writing the petition. The district court denied the petition. After I left Sidley & Austin, another lawyer from the firm took over the case, and the Seventh Circuit vacated the denial for an evidentiary hearing. Ultimately, however, the petition was denied again.

Also at Sidley & Austin, I helped a partner draft an employee manual for a not-for-profit organization. The organization’s mission was to provide counseling to individuals who wished to open small businesses in low-income neighborhoods in Chicago, particularly the south side of the city. I estimate that I spent at least 30 hours on the project.
Finally, federal policies place certain limitations on outside legal representation while employed as an Assistant United States Attorney, and in order to avoid conflicts of interest and the appearance of conflicts, I have not represented outside clients while serving as an Assistant United States Attorney. I have continued, however, to donate uncompensated time to bar association, law school, and mentoring activities.

26. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

In April 2009, Senator Richard J. Durbin established a merit Screening Committee to review applications and interview candidates for the three federal court vacancies in the Northern District of Illinois. After submitting an application, in June 2009 I interviewed with a sub-group of the Screening Committee, with Senator Durbin, and with the entire Screening Committee. In August 2009, Senator Durbin forwarded my name, along with others, to the White House for consideration for nomination by the President.

In November 2009, officials at the Department of Justice contacted me to begin the pre-nomination process. On February 16, 2010, I interviewed with officials of the Department of Justice and the White House Counsel’s Office. The President submitted my nomination to the Senate on April 21, 2010.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

NOTARY PUBLIC

STATE OF ILLINOIS

MY COMMISSION EXPIRES 04/13/11
STATEMENT OF LESLIE E. KOBAYASHI, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF HAWAII

Judge Kobayashi. You have, and congratulations on doing that. Senator Durbin. Please proceed.

Judge Kobayashi. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman, Ranking Member Senator Kyl. My deepest appreciation for scheduling this hearing. It's been a long road from Hawaii. So I appreciate it very much that you've scheduled this.

I'd also like to extend my deepest appreciation and gratitude to President Obama for this nomination and for the great privilege of being his first nominee from the district of Hawaii.

My sincere thanks, also, to Senators Inouye and Akaka. Great mahalo nui loa to them for their support and encouragement throughout this process.

If I may have your permission, Mr. Chairman, I'd like to introduce my family members. From Hawaii, my husband, Judge Clarence Pacarro. Our sons, Cody, age 11, and Luke, age 7.

Also, I'd like to recognize some friends that are here in the D.C. area, my good friend from college, Patricia Sulser and her husband, David. Our good family friends, Dr. Freddy Chen, Michelle Chen, and their children, Chelsea and Theodore.

Not with us physically today, but in spirit, back in Hawaii, our parents, my father and mother, Herbert and Ruth Kobayashi; my mother-in-law, Jean Pacarro; my sisters, Anne Miyashiro, her husband, Charlie, their son Travis; my sister, Robin Kobayashi, and her husband, Dr. Kenny Fink, and their children, Ellie and Jack.

Many family and friends that are supporting us through the Nation and in Hawaii, as well as my brothers-in-law, Rudy and Dij Pacarro, Bill and Penny Pacarro, and Randy and Norma Pacarro and their families.

And, of course, my court family, I'd like to very much thank my support staff, Star Quon (ph), Donna Odani (ph), and Warren Nakimora (ph), as well as all of the fellow judges in the district of Hawaii; our court clerk staff and the court clerk, the pretrial, probation, the U.S. Marshals, court security staff, and Federal defenders and U.S. attorneys, whose daily encouragement and support have been most meaningful.

Thank you.

Senator Durbin. Thank you very much, Judge.

Ms. Casper.

b. The American Bar Association's Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

I am a graduate of Wellesley College and currently serve as a class officer for the Class of 1979. Wellesley is a women's college and admits and graduates women only. I am a member of Oahu Country Club which was established over 100 years ago. It had a men-only membership practice until the 1970's when that policy was changed. In the past 35 years, it has admitted women members. Otherwise, I am not, nor have I ever been, a member of any organization that discriminates on the basis of race, sex, religion, or national origin.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

"In Memoriam Note: Gayle Yoshida," HAWAI'I B.J. (Sept. 2001)

b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

d. Supply four (4) copies, transcripts or recordings of all speeches or talks delivered by you, including commencement speeches, remarks, lectures, panel discussions, conferences, political speeches, and question-and-answer sessions. Include the date and place where they were delivered, and readily available press reports about the speech or talk. If you do not have a copy of the speech or a transcript or recording of your remarks, give the name and address of the group before whom the speech was given, the date of the speech, and a summary of its subject matter. If you did not speak from a prepared text, furnish a copy of any outline or notes from which you spoke.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

On August 2, 1999, I was appointed as a United States Magistrate Judge for the District of Hawaii. I was re-appointed to the same position in 2007. My term of appointment expires on August 2, 2015. As a judicial officer of the district court, I exercise jurisdiction over matters assigned by statute as well as those delegated by the district judges including misdemeanor criminal and traffic matters, pretrial felony criminal proceedings, and pretrial motions and matters (such as discovery and settlement conferences), as well as jury and non-jury trials (if the parties consent to jurisdiction) in civil cases.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

I have presided over approximately 25 trials to verdict or judgment (civil jury and non-jury as well as criminal jury and non-jury misdemeanor cases punishable by up to one year of incarceration. In addition, I have presided over approximately 70 non-jury trials in traffic and petty misdemeanor cases.

i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature of the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

1. Flowers v. Sause Bros., Inc., Civ. No. 02-00149 LEK; affirmed on appeal, 167 Fed. Appx. 689 (9th Cir. 2006). Case Description: Plaintiff James Flowers was a seaman who worked for Defendant Sause Brothers, Inc. He was injured while at sea and on a barge operated by Sause Brothers. Mr. Flowers contended that Sause Brothers improperly required him to retrieve the slack from a rope that was used to secure the barge and, as a result, he suffered a personal injury.

I found that Sause Brothers provided Mr. Flowers with a safe work environment and that the barge was seaworthy; specifically that the procedure that Sause Brothers used in retrieving the slack from the rope was a customary and safe procedure to use.

Counsel for Plaintiff was Preston Easley, Jr., Law Firm of Preston Easley, Jr., 2500 Via Cabrillo Marina, Suite 106, San Pedro, CA 90731-7724, Tel 301-832-5315. Counsel for Defendant was Robert Frame, Frame & Nakano, Four Waterfront Plaza, Suite 575, 500 Ala Moana Boulevard, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-545-3043.

2. Carter v. University of Hawaii, Civ. No. 01-00517 LEK. Plaintiff Gregory Lee Carter had applied for a position as an instructor in Hawaiian language with the University of Hawaii. He was not hired for the position and another applicant, who was female and of Hawaiian descent, was hired. Mr. Carter alleged that he was the most qualified candidate, that the university discriminated against him on the basis of his gender and race, and that the university was impermissibly biased on their hiring by giving preference to the candidate who was female and non-Caucasian.

The jury found that the university did not discriminate against Mr. Carter.

Plaintiff was pro se. Counsel for Defendant was Ryan Akamine, University General Counsel's Office, 2444 Dole Street, Bachman Hall 110, Honolulu, HI 96822-2246, Tel 808-956-2211.

3. Jane Mother v. State of Hawaii, Civ. No. 00-00446 LEK; affirmed on appeal, 283 Fed. Appx. 514 (9th Cir. 2008). Plaintiff Jane Mother filed an action on behalf of her son who attended public elementary school and had been determined to qualify for special education needs. She claimed that the school failed to follow their obligations under the Americans with Disabilities Act and the Rehabilitation Act, and failed to provide her son... with an appropriate education plan, and retaliated against her for challenging this plan by reporting her to social services authorities and filing a petition that questioned whether the mother was endangering the child’s welfare.

I granted Defendant State of Hawai‘i’s Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(d) motion and directed judgment in its favor on the grounds that the school established that it had a legitimate, non-retaliatory reason for reporting the mother to social services authorities and filing the petition.

Counsel for Plaintiff was Carl Varady, American Savings Bank Tower, 1001 Bishop Street, Suite 2870, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-523-8447. Counsel for Defendant were Cindy S. Inouye, Holly T. Shikada, & Nancy Alban, Office of the Attorney General, 425 Queen Street, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-546-1255.

4. Toro v. United States, Civ. No. 03-00030 LEK; affirmed on appeal, 284 Fed. Appx. 514 (9th Cir. 2008). This case involved claims by Plaintiff Nidia I. Toro that Army physicians had committed medical malpractice by failing to diagnose traumatic brain injury in a timely manner and failed to obtain her informed consent to surgery. As a result, Plaintiff contended that she was denied proper treatment and care, and developed post-traumatic stress disorder. The Army contended that Ms. Toro’s claims were barred by the Feres doctrine and the statute of limitations.

I rejected the Army’s argument that the Feres doctrine and the statute of limitations barred Ms. Toro’s entire claims. I found that the Feres doctrine did bar her medical negligence claims for organic brain injury during the time that she was injured from activities that were incidental to her military service, both on active duty and in the Army Reserves but did not bar her claims as to injuries that occurred after her discharge from the Army Reserves.

The outcome of the case was that I found that the Army’s physicians did not breach the standard of care and that the surgery was done after first obtaining her informed consent.

Counsel for Plaintiff were Joseph J. Mellon, Shugart Thomson & Kilroy, 1050, 17th Street, Suite 2300, Denver, Colorado 80265, Tel 303-572-9300 and William Copulos, Copulos Fisher & Roylo, American Savings Bank Tower, 1001 Bishop Street, Suite 1510, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-536-0500. Counsel for Defendant was Thomas A. Helper, U.S. Attorney’s Office, 300 Ala Moana Blvd; Suite 6100, Honolulu, HI 96850, Tel 808-541-2850.
5. Leaeno v. Pistor, et al., Civ. No. 05-00781. Plaintiffs are part of an extended family that lives together in a house. Plaintiff Jerry Leaeno is the son of Plaintiffs Suevale Leaeno and Fauuila Leaeno. Jerry Leaeno was arrested in Suevale and Fauuila’s house by police officers. The plaintiffs alleged that their civil rights were violated by the police officers’ entry into and search of the house without first obtaining a search warrant.

Based on the jury’s factual findings in the special jury verdict forms, I granted summary judgment and judgment as a matter of law in favor of the police officers and found that the police officers did not violate Suevale and Fauuila’s civil rights by walking to their entry door without consent, and that Fauuila gave consent to have the police officers enter the house to search for Jerry.

Counsel for Plaintiff were Rory S. Toomey, 1164 Bishop Street, Suite 1501, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-533-7161 and Scott S. Brower, 1088 Bishop Street, Suite 803, Honolulu, HI 96813, 808-522-0053. Counsel for Defendant were Kate S. Matzger, Kyle K. Chang, & Marie Gavigan, Office of Corporation Counsel, 530 S. King Street, Suite 110, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-768-5120.

6. Obrey v. England, Civ. No. 02-00033 LEK. Plaintiff Ronald Obrey is a project superintendent at the Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard and had applied for a promotion at work. Mr. Obrey was not promoted and alleged that the Navy discriminated against him on the basis of his race and national origin when another candidate was promoted. In one of his motions in limine, Mr. Obrey sought to admit statistical evidence of the race and national origins of senior managers hired at Naval Shipyards.

I granted the motion and ruled that statistical data is relevant and the methodology used to interpret the data was subject to cross-examination. The outcome of the case is that the jury found that the Navy had not discriminated against Mr. Obrey.

Counsel for Plaintiff were Clayton C. Ieki & Jerry Chang, Office of Clayton Ieki, 1440 Kapiolani Blvd., Suite 1203, Honolulu, HI 96814, Tel 808-533-3777. Counsel for Defendant were Edric Ching & Thomas A. Helper, U.S. Attorney’s Office, 300 Ala Moana Blvd., Suite 6100, Honolulu, HI 96850, Tel 808-541-2850.

7. Kanae v. Hodson, Civ. No. 02-00399 LEK. Plaintiff and another person had stopped an automobile at gunpoint and forced the elderly couple driving the automobile to take them as passengers. When the automobile was stopped by the police, Plaintiff attempted to exit the automobile and was shot. He sued the police officer for using deadly force in a manner that consciously disregarded existing law on the use of deadly force and violated Plaintiff's civil rights.

The jury found that Plaintiff's civil rights had been violated.

Counsel for Plaintiff were Eric A. Seitz & Lawrence I. Kawasaki, 20 Millilani Street, Suite 714, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-533-7434. Counsel for Defendant were Harry Freitas & Joseph Kamelamela, Office of Corporation Counsel, Hilo Lagoon Centre, 101 Aupuni Street, Suite 325, Hilo, HI 96720, Tel 808-961-8251.

8. Rivers v. City and County of Honolulu, Civ. No. 08-00508 LEK. Plaintiff Alan Rivers is a police officer who sued his employer for retaliating against him because he made a report of sexual harassment by a fellow officer.

The jury found that the police department did not retaliate against Mr. Rivers.

Counsel for Plaintiff was Venetia Carpenter Asui, 820 Millilani St., Suite 812, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-523-6446. Counsel for Defendant was Tracy Fukui, Office of Corporation Counsel, 530 S. King Street, Suite 110, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-768-5120.

9. Alhofen v. Monteith, Civ. No. 01-00660 LEK; affirmed on appeal, 118 Fed. Appx. 170 (9th Cir. 2004). Plaintiff Michael Alhofen was a suspect in a terroristic threatening case. Defendant Gene Monteith was a police officer who arrested Mr. Alhofen. After trial testimony was concluded, I found that Officer Monteith had conducted an objectively reasonable investigation before arresting Mr. Alhofen and therefore was entitled to qualified immunity.

Counsel for Plaintiff was Rory S. Toomey, 1164 Bishop Street, Suite 1501, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-533-7161. Counsel for Defendant were Carolyn Yu & Marie Maunene Gavigan, Office of Corporation Counsel, 530 S. King Street, Suite 110, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-768-5120.

10. Captain Andy's Sailing v. Johns, et al.; Civ. No. 00-00051 LEK. Plaintiff Captain Andy's Sailing operated a commercial sailing business along with Na Pali Coast on the island of Kauai. The State of Hawaii instituted a fee that it instituted to recover the costs of regulating the Na Pali Coast ocean waters. Plaintiff challenged the constitutional permissibility of the fee. I found that the United States Constitution prohibits states from laying a "duty of tonnage" without the consent of Congress, and that this fee assessed against Plaintiff’s vessel was an impermissible tax in violation of the prohibition against tonnage duties.

Counsel for Plaintiff was Dennis Nile, Park Johnson Park & Niles, P.O. Box 870, Wailuku, HI 96793, Tel 808-242-6644. Counsel for Defendants were Edsel M. Yamada, Josephine L. Chang, Lane T. Ishida, Lynne M. Otoguro, & Michael Q. Y. Lau, Office of the Attorney General, State of Hawaii, Kekuanao’a Building, 465 S. King Street, Room 300, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-587-2985.

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

United States v. Leonti, 326 F.3d 1111 (9th Cir. 2003), involved a 28 U.S.C. § 2255 petition, alleging ineffective assistance of counsel. I denied the motion without an evidentiary hearing. The Ninth Circuit reversed my denial and remanded for an evidentiary hearing as to whether the petitioner's attorney rendered ineffective assistance by delaying his guilty plea and failed to effectively assist him during the time he was cooperating with federal agents. This was a case of first impression for the Ninth Circuit as to whether a viable ineffective assistance of counsel claim can arise out of an attorney's failure to assist a defendant while awaiting sentencing in his efforts to provide cooperation to governmental agents.

In MacDonald v. Kahikolu Ltd., 442 F.3d 1199 (9th Cir. 2006), the Ninth Circuit vacated my decision in a non-jury trial in favor of the defendant, and remanded for a new trial with instructions to determine whether the defendant's failure to comply with Coast Guard regulations played any part in producing the plaintiff's injuries. My amended decision, following the remand, can be found at MacDonald v. Kahikolu Ltd., 2007 WL 4547552 (D. Haw. Dec. 26, 2007).

As a magistrate judge, there are hundreds of cases in which I have filed a findings and recommendation to the district judge. Although my findings and recommendations are largely affirmed, there are occasions where the findings and recommendations have been vacated, reversed or modified by the district judge. These rulings are located in the court’s electronic filings for each of the cases. I have conducted a Westlaw search to locate any decisions that vacate, reverse or modify my findings and recommendations or other rulings that have been appealed to a district judge. This search resulted in locating 426 documents and I have provided the descriptions and Westlaw citations for those decisions that have vacated, reversed or modified my findings and recommendations, or other rulings that I have made and that have been appealed to a district judge.

1. In Christian v. Bissen, 2007 WL 461303 (D. Haw. Feb. 6, 2007), the district judge vacated my order granting discovery to a habeas petitioner and remanded the matter for me to determine whether the claims have been exhausted. The district judge vacated my order because it ruled that I should have first made a finding as to whether the petition involved any unexhausted claims before deciding whether discovery should be permitted.

I subsequently issued an order granting the petitioner’s motion for leave to conduct discovery and findings and recommendation regarding petition for habeas corpus which can be found at 2007 WL 1494422 (D. Haw. Feb. 6, 2007). The respondents appealed and the district judge affirmed my decision concerning counts three and seven, vacated the decision regarding count eight, affirmed as to the granting of discovery and confirmed the recommendation that an evidentiary hearing should be held following discovery. This order can be found at 2007 WL 2712923 (D. Haw. Sept. 12, 2007). An evidentiary hearing was held. I issued my findings and recommendation to grant in part and deny in part petition for writ of habeas corpus which is reported at 2008 WL 4055817 (D. Haw. Aug. 29, 2008). The district court adopted the findings and recommendation to allow petitioner to choose between dismissal of the entire petition or amending petition to delete the two unexhausted claims, 2008 WL 4369330 (D. Haw. Sept. 25, 2008), and adopted in part and modified in part my findings and recommendations to grant in part and deny in part the petition for writ of habeas corpus, and to deny the objections to my findings and recommendation and is found at 2008 WL 4483766 (D. Haw. Sept. 30, 2008). The district judge modified my findings and recommendation to deny as to count three to include that the denial was also based on petitioner failure to demonstrate that his counsel’s assistance fell below the objective standard of reasonableness or caused prejudice. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit reversed and this decision can be found at Christian v. Frank, No. 08-17236, B.F.3d B., 2010 WL 572735 (9th Cir. Feb. 19, 2010).
2. In Kitazato v. Black Diamond Hospitality Investments, LLC, 2009 WL 3824851 (D. Haw. Nov. 13, 2009), the district judge adopted in part and modified in part my findings and recommendation to grant Plaintiff's motion to remand to state court, and granted in part and denied in part removing Defendants' Objection to my findings and recommendations. Specifically, the district judge modified my findings and recommendation only with respect to the award of attorneys' fees, which he felt was unwarranted.

3. In Rossetto v. Oaktree Capital Management, LLC, 664 F.Supp. 1122 (D.Haw. 2009), the district judge adopted, as modified, my findings and recommendation, and stated that he reached the same conclusions as I had, but with a different analysis. The district judge agreed that it was true that Defendants had independent knowledge that Plaintiff was a member of a union, or that a collective bargaining agreement existed governing the payment of service charges but that information was not included in the Complaint which the district judge felt was the only relevant question.

4. In re Oliver, 2009 WL 2851830 (D. Haw. Aug. 26 2009), the district judge adopted in part and reject in part my findings and recommendation. Specifically, the district judge rejected my findings and recommendation to the extent that it suggests that Eric Lighter, one of the two petitioners, had joined the other petitioner, Mahealani V. Oliver, in filing the letter that I had construed as a petition for relief, and otherwise adopted my findings and recommendations in all other respects.

5. In Na Pali Haweo Community Ass'n v. Grande, 252 FRD 672 (D. Haw. 2008), the district judge partially vacated a prior order in which I had granted Defendants' motion to set aside default but had awarded Plaintiff fees and costs incurred in defending the motion. The district judge remanded the sanctions to me for a hearing on the sanctions issue. In the subsequent appeal of my ruling following that hearing, he granted the appeal and dismissed the sanctions award as being overly harsh.

6. In United States v. Gaitan-Ayala, 2008 WL 1752678 (D. Haw. April 17, 2008), the district judge granted an appeal of my order finding that the attorney representing Defendant had no actual or potential conflict. The district judge disqualified the defense attorney from representing Defendant and found that, under the clearly erroneous standard, there was a serious potential conflict of interest.
7. In International Longshore & Warehouse Union, Local 142 v. C. Brewer, 2007 WL 2300716 (D. Haw. July 30, 2007), the district judge reversed and remanded my order denying leave to file an amended complaint, and found that my ruling that Plaintiffs failed to satisfy the good cause requirement of Fed. R. Civ. P. 16(b) was clearly erroneous and contrary to law, and remanded for consideration as to whether the amendment as proper under Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a).

8. In Berry v. Hawaii Exp. Service, Inc., 2007 WL 689474 (D. Haw. March 2, 2007), the district judge adopted and modified my findings and recommendation regarding an award of attorney’s fees and costs. The district judge modified my recommendation to the extent that she increased the deduction for block billing, lowered the hourly rate for one of the paralegals from $80 to $70, and replaced my fifteen percent allocation with a twelve percent allocation of fees incurred in connection with Count IV.

10. In Matsuura v. E.I. du Pont De Nemours and Co., 2006 WL 2734291 (D. Haw. Sept. 22, 2006), the district court affirmed in part and reversed in part regarding numerous motions in limine that I had ruled upon. The district judge reversed my ruling that post-1994 settlements were barred by Rule 408 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and that evidence of post-1994 settlements and verdicts was barred by Rule 403 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and found that these rulings were contrary to law. The district judge affirmed most of my rulings as to the testimony of J. Anderson Berly, expert witness, except as to my ruling precluding his opinion based on the post-1994 settlements and verdicts which the district judge reversed. The district judge affirmed most of my rulings as to the testimony of James Venture, expert witness, except as to my ruling precluding his opinion about the settlement value of Plaintiffs’ cases on the date of the settlements which the district judge reversed. The district judge similarly reversed my rulings as to Richard Constand and Thomas Ueno, both economic expert witnesses.

11. In Opuna, LLC v. Sabbagh, 2006 WL 2374750 (Aug. 15, 2006), the district judge vacated my order granting Defendant’s motion to disqualify Jerry A. Ruthruff as counsel for Opuna, LLC without reviewing its merits because she remanded the case to state court. and did not want to foreclose consideration by the state court of this issue.

12. In Examination of Kayak Kauai, 2004 WL 1199170 (D. Haw April 19, 2004), I recommended that the petition to quash the summons should be denied, except as to one paragraph of the summons. The district judge sustained the government’s objections to strike the one paragraph as violating the privacy rights of other entities and reversed as to that finding.

In addition, there are motions or decisions concerning discovery or other matters that I have ruled upon and that a party has appealed to the district judge. I estimate the number of these motions that possibly have been appealed to be 50-70, the majority of which resulted in my decisions being sustained. These decisions are, for the most part, not officially reported but would be maintained in the court’s electronic filing system. An example would be: in United States v. Williams, Cr. No. 06-00079 DAE, I had ruled that certain sections contained in paragraph 8 of a defendant’s plea agreement would be sealed until she took the stand to testify at trial. My order denying reconsideration of the motion to seal can be found at 2007 WL 1294519 (D. Haw. Apr. 30, 2007). The defendant appealed this decision, and the district judge affirmed in part and reversed in part; specifically reversing my decision that certain sections would not be sealed, and ordered that the entire paragraph would be sealed until the defendant completed her testimony, and counsel the court had been consulted. A copy of the district court’s order is supplied.

13. In White v. Sabatino, 526 F.Supp.2d 1134 (D. Haw. 2007), the district judge rejected my findings and recommendation to grant Defendant’s petition for determination of good faith settlement. He found that the settlement was governed by admiralty law and thus a determination of good faith settlement pursuant to state law was not necessary or appropriate.

g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

As a Magistrate Judge in the District of Hawaii, all pretrial matters in civil cases, except for motions that will disposed of the case (such as motions for summary judgment) or involve injunctive relief (such as preliminary injunction motions) are automatically referred to me. In addition, there are civil cases where the parties have consented to my jurisdiction.
For the consent cases, most of the decisions have been published, either in a published reporter or through an electronic publication.

For those matters that have been referred to me, many but not all have been published through an electronic publication. I estimate that I have issued decisions in matters referred to me in the range of 300-400 orders over the past ten years. All of these orders starting from 2006 are available through the electronic court filing system for the District of Hawaii. I have never designated any of my decisions for publication in any reporter system. Our Court does not issue unpublished decisions, although not every opinion is selected for publication in a published report or through electronic publication.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

I have not sat by designation on a federal court of appeals.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;
c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

I was requested to recuse in the case known as Na Pali Haweo Community Association v. Grande, Civ. No. 04-99413. I had conducted several settlement conferences in this matter and the parties had agreed in concept to a settlement. Counsel for defendants took issue with the settlement and apparently came to the conclusion that I could not be impartial regarding the remaining issue, which was the attorney’s fees and costs that his clients would pay to plaintiff. He filed a motion to have me recused or disqualified to serve as the magistrate judge in the case. I chose to recuse myself while the motion was pending before the district judge. I did not agree with his assertion but concluded that, because he believed that I was predisposed against his clients on the issue of the attorney’s fee award, the litigants would be better served by having another magistrate judge handle the remaining issue in this matter.

In Thames v. Miller, Civ. No. 04-0644, the pro se Plaintiff filed a motion to have the district judge remove and disqualify me as the magistrate judge in this case, alleging that I was biased against him. The district judge denied the motion. Plaintiff also alleged that he had sought my recusal and that I had declined to recuse, though I have no recollection of and have found no record of being asked to recuse myself in this case.

In United States v. Williams, Cr. No. 06-00079, there was no motion filed seeking to recuse or disqualify. It is my understanding that some of the attorneys, while in a conference with the district judge, asked to replace me as the magistrate judge. Following that conference, the district judge ordered that another magistrate judge be assigned to the case but did not state any reason.

For all other recusals, the District of Hawaii has a case report system that provides regular reports regarding a search for conflict of interest based on names of persons or entities that I list on my conflicts list. I maintain a standing recusal list of individuals and entities consistent with the Code of Conduct for United States Judges. The entities consist of companies in which I own stock, have any ownership interest, or have obtained a mortgage, and close friends and family who are lawyers. For the first five years that I was a judge, I also included lawyers from my former law firm but I no longer do so. I also review the parties and counsel in each case to make sure that I do not have a close relationship to any of the counsel, parties or identified witnesses that may give rise to the appearance of impropriety.
I recused myself from the following cases because of a personal relationship with a party or attorney:

United States v. Morton, Cr. No. 03-00179 (neighbor was defendant)
Dubin v. Real, Civ. No. 03-00058 (fellow judge was defendant) Focus Entertainment International, Inc. v. Sofos Realty Corp., Civ. No. 99-00626 (lead counsel was associated with my former firm)
Jacob Doe v. Kamehameha Schools, Civ. No. 08-00359 (counsel served with me on parent-teacher-student association)
Knox v. City & County of Honolulu, Civ. No. 04-00260 (friendship with lead counsel) Jobrei Hawaii v. Sekai Kyusei Kyo Itunome, Civ. No. 07-00252 (parties and entities were associated with the church I attend)
Lee v. Chang, Civ. No. 04-00299 (fellow judge was defendant)
Morgan Stanley & Co. v. Choy, Civ. No. 08-00467 (related to key witness) Peabody ex rel United States v. Gillmor, Civ. No. 07-00148 (district judges were defendants)

I recused myself from the following cases because of financial interest in Safeway, Inc.:

Safeway, Inc. v. Ace American Insurance Co., Civ. No. 09-00528
Galanac v. Safeway, Inc., Civ. No. 02-00624
Civ. No. 99-00593

I recused myself from the following cases because all of the judges of our district recused from the case in light of the identity of a party or witness:

Schulze v. Maglasang, Civ. No. 06-00490 (AUSA was a defendant)
Aiu v. Alm, Civ. No. 99-00677 (US Attorney was defendant)
Alibang v. Tesoro Hawaii Corp, Civ. No. 08-00130
Araakaki v. Conseco Life Insurance Co., Civ. No. 05-00026

I recused myself from the following cases because I represented a party to the case (or a related party) when I was in private practice:

Dale Requarth v. Hawaii Health Systems Corp., Civ. No. 02-00392
Lindsey v. Hee, Civ. No. 00-00138
Jarog v. The Harford Insurance Co., Civ. No. 99-00632
Federal Election Commission v. Friends for Fasi, Civ. No. 00-00024
Aarona v. Unity House, Inc., Civ. No. 05-00197
I recused myself from the following cases because an attorney on the case had been appointed to serve on the committee evaluating me for re-appointment as a magistrate judge:

- Silva v. Allstate Ins. Co., Civ. No. 06-00617
- UMG Recordings, Inc. v. Armstrong, Civ. No. 07-00017
- Sony BMG Music Entertainment v. Chenoweth., Civ. No. 07-00051
- Reece v. Island Treasurers Art Gallery, Civ. No. 06-00489
- Reece v. Irvilino, Civ. No. 05-00638
- Patricia N. v. Lemahieu, Civ. No. 00-00252
- Kowalski v. Asiana Management Group, Inc., Civ. No. 04-00080
- Tokashiki v. Freitas, Civ. No. 03-00065
- Aloha Airlines, Inc. v. Mesa Air Group, Inc., Civ. No. 07-00007
- Virgin Records America, Inc. v. Damo, Civ. No. 07-00018

I had particular reasons for recusal in the following cases:

- General Star National Insurance Co. v. Borden, Civ. No. 06-00091. I recused myself because I could be construed as having a financial interest in the outcome of the case.

- In the Matter of the Complaint of the University of Hawaii, etc., Civ. No. 05-00584. I recused myself from this case because one of the party's key expert witness was a person whom I had defended a lawsuit against on behalf of a client and subsequently sued to recover costs.

- Mungua v. Greyn of Maui, Civ. No. 09-00058. I recused from this case because the defendant was represented by an attorney who was a member of the Hawaii Federal Judicial Selection Commission and I had just submitted my application to that commission.

- Reliance Insurance v. The Doctors Co., Civ. No. 02-00159. I recused myself because the defendant was an insurance company for most of the physicians that I represented in private practice and lead counsel was an attorney with whom I had worked on cases representing these clients.

United States v. Curtis Takemoto-Gentile; MC No. 05-00096 DAE-LEK. I recused myself from this case because one of the respondent’s lead counsel was an attorney that I had defended in private practice.

United States v. Trehohan, Civ. No. 05-00131 DAE-LEK. I recused myself from this case because one of the respondent’s lead counsel was an attorney that I had defended in private practice.

I have been unable to recall or identify the reasons for my recusal in the following cases:

Hanaka‘i v. United States, Civ. No. 00-00807
United States v. Brown, Cr. No. 99-00296
Cromack v. Hawaii Management Alliance Association, Civ. No. 99-00893

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

I have had no unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office. I have held no public office.

b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

I have not been a member of or held any office in a political party or election committee. I have not held a paid position or played a role in a political campaign.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

I did not serve as a clerk to a judge after graduating from law school.
ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I have never practiced law alone.

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have served as a volunteer arbitrator for the Court-Annexed Arbitration Program in state court. All personal injury cases were required to be arbitrated in this non-binding program. I do not recall the names of these cases and estimate that I probably served as an arbitrator in about 5-7 cases. In addition, I served as an arbitrator in less than 10 cases involving uninsured motorists and/or under-insured motorists' benefits but I cannot recall the names of these cases. My former law firm was disbanded in approximately 2001, and I am unable to access these records.

As a magistrate judge, I handle settlement conferences in almost every civil case referred to me. Since my appointment in August 1999, I have probably held hundreds of settlement conferences. Below is a short list of some of the cases in which I have served as settlement judge that resulted in settlement in 2009:

1. Mezler Contracting Co. LLC v. Stephens, Civ. No. 07-00261 LEK.
This case involved claims for defamation arising out of the construction of a luxury home. Several settlement conferences were held with parties who were extremely contentious. A settlement was reached on October 23, 2009.

2. Blake, et al. v. City & County of Honolulu, Civ. No. 08-00281 LEK. This case involved a class action alleging that Section 8 housing tenants were overcharged for utilities and the case settled on November 30, 2009.

4. Epifanio Pacquing v. LG Electronics Inc., Civ. No. 08-00261 DAE-LEK. This case involved product liability claims for damages incurred as the result of a fire allegedly caused by an air conditioner manufactured by LG Electronics. Settlement was placed on the record on September 29, 2009 after several settlement conferences had been previously held.

5. Dan v. Albar Precious Metal Refining Inc., et al., Civ. No. 08-00150 JMS-LEK. This case involved trademark infringement claims. Settlement was reached on September 21, 2009 following settlement conferences.

6. Yuting Hu v. University of Hawaii, Civ. No. 07-00410 SPK-LEK. This case involved claims of sexual harassment and abuse, and discrimination in the workplace. It was extremely contentious. Settlement was reached on October 22, 2009 after many settlement conferences.

7. Narvaez v. EMC Mortgage Corp., Civ. No. 07-00621 DAE-KSC. This case involved claims of unfair trade practices and violation of federal truth in lending statutes. The parties reached a settlement on September 9, 2009 after several settlement conferences.

8. AAA Hawaii LLC v. Hawaii Insurance Consultants, Inc., Civ. No. 08-00299 DAE-LEK. This case involved a contract dispute regarding compensation paid to AAA when their members purchased insurance from the defendant. This case settled following a settlement conference held on February 4, 2009.

9. Kamaole Point Development v. County of Maui, Civ. No. 07-00447 DAE-LEK. This case involved a development company that sued the County of Maui over the rights to develop real property that it owned. The County had promulgated an ordinance that required developers to provide residential workforce housing units and the developer alleged that the ordinance was an impermissible taking of its property. Settlement was reached on November 23, 2009 after two settlement conferences.
10. Ritchie v. Wahitawa General Hospital, Civ. No. 08-00133 JMS-LEK. This case involved negligence claims against a hospital for disposing of the remains of the plaintiffs' baby without their permission. Settlement was reached on March 16, 2009 following two settlement conferences.

b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

I have served as a magistrate judge for the District of Hawaii since August 1999. From 1983 to 1984, I was a deputy prosecuting attorney for the City and County of Honolulu in the State of Hawaii. From about August to October 1983, I did research and writing for the appellate division. When I was admitted to the Hawaii state bar in October 1983, I was given a caseload of traffic and misdemeanor cases to prosecute. In March 1984, I was promoted to felony prosecutions. In 1984, I joined the law firm of Fujiyama, Duffy & Fujiyama where my practice focused entirely on litigation. From 1984 to 1986, I primarily defended individuals and entities in personal injury lawsuits. From 1986, my practice largely involved product liability defense, professional liability defense, and commercial and complex litigation.

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

My clients in private practice from 1984 to 1986 typically were persons or entities insured by automobile liability, homeowner liability or commercial liability insurers. From 1986 to 1999, my clients included medical device manufacturers, pharmaceutical companies, physicians, hospitals, lawyers, governmental agencies, and the owner of Ala Moana Center.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

My entire practice has been in litigation. When I was a deputy prosecuting attorney, I appeared in court daily. While in private practice, I appeared in court often and would average several court appearances per month. I was involved in a 6-month trial on the island of Maui in 1990, and in a 6-month trial in Honolulu in 1991 and appeared in court almost daily during the entirety of these trials.
i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. federal courts: 10%
   2. state courts of record: 90%
   3. other courts:
   4. administrative agencies:

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. civil proceedings: 99%
   2. criminal proceedings: 1%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

   I tried to verdict seventeen cases, 13 as sole counsel, 1 as lead counsel, and 3 as associate counsel.

   i. What percentage of these trials were:
      1. jury: 82%
      2. non-jury: 18%

c. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States.
   Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

   I have not practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

   a. the date of representation;

   b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and

   c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

      (Haw. 2001). The Office of Hawaiian Affairs sued the State of Hawaii to recover its share of revenues that the State collected from ceded lands, including land upon which part of the Honolulu International Airport is located. Summary judgment had been granted in favor of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs on October 24, 1996 and was reversed and dismissed by the Hawaii Supreme Court on the basis that the state statute providing for payment of the airport revenues was precluded by federal statute.

I represented the Office of Hawaiian Affairs from approximately 1995 to 1999, when I accepted the appointment as a Magistrate Judge. I headed the team that drafted the motions for summary judgment, and was in charge of conducting discovery. My partner and I argued the motions for summary judgment. On the appeal, I assisted in preparing my partner for oral argument and attended the hearing.

The case was litigated in the First Circuit Court of Hawaii and before Judge Daniel Heely (who granted summary judgment), and on appeal before the Hawaii Supreme Court. At the time of the oral argument, the justices were Chief Justice Ronald Moon, Associate Justice Robert Klein, Associate Justice Stephen Levinson, Associate Justice Paula Nakayama and Associate Justice Mario Ramil.

Counsel for Defendant, Charlene Aina, Dorothy Sellers, Office of the Attorney General, 425 Queen Street, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-546-1255. Co-Counsel were Archie T. Ikehara & Ward F.N. Fujimoto, Matsui & Chung, Pacific Guardian Ctr., Mauka Twr., 737 Bishop Street, Suite 1400, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-536-3711; and James E. Duffy, Supreme Court of Hawaii, Associate Justice, 417 S. King Street, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-539-4715.

2. Oliver Pacific Corp. v. Daiei Hawaii Investment, Inc., Civ. No. 91-0-003488. I represented Daiei Hawaii Investment, Inc. which was, at the time, a joint owner of the Ala Moana Center, the largest shopping center in Honolulu. A former tenant alleged that Daiei and others were liable for misrepresentation and tortious interference with her business.

I was the trial counsel for Daiei in a non-jury trial in 1993. The trial resulted in a verdict in favor of the defendants.

The case was litigated in the First Circuit Court of Hawaii and before Judge Karen Blondin.

Counsel for Plaintiff was David Schutter (deceased) & Gary Leavitt (no known address). Counsel for Co-Defendant were Gary Grimmer, Carlsmit Ball, American Savings Bank Tower, 1001 Bishop Street, Suite 2200, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-523-2500.
3. Dutro v. Sterling Drug, Inc., Civ. No. 85-0-003016. Mrs. Dutro experienced cardiac arrest while giving birth to her son and after she was administered a local anesthetic agent known as Marcaine. Mrs. Dutro sued Sterling Drug and its affiliates for product liability as well as Maui Memorial Hospital and Blair McIver, M.D. for medical negligence.

I represented Sterling Drug, Inc., the manufacturer of Marcaine, from 1986-1988. I conducted the majority of the discovery and preparation of expert witnesses. Discovery was extensive.

This case was litigated in the Second Circuit Court of Hawaii and before Judge Edwin Honda. A settlement was reached and the case was dismissed.

Counsel for Plaintiff was Jan Weinberg, 1164 Bishop Street, Suite 1200, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-523-9477. Counsel for Co-Defendant Dr. McIver was Jeffery Sia, Ayabe Chong Nishimoto Sia & Nakamura, Pauahi Tower, Suite 2500, 1001 Bishop Street, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-537-6119. Counsel for Co-Defendant Maui Memorial Hospital was Phillip Li, Li & Tsukazaki, 753 Bishop St., Suite 1770, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-524-4888.

4. Tosei Shoji Co., Ltd v. Stewart Title Guaranty Co., Civ. 94-00663 HGF-FIY. From 1994-1996, I represented Gary Shigemura, an attorney, who had informally assisted Plaintiff Tosei Shoji Co. in the purchase of real property in Hawaii. After the purchase, Tosei was less than satisfied with the property and problems were discovered regarding information provided by the title company. I drafted a motion for summary judgment, conducted all discovery, reviewed documents for privilege and prepared them for production, and participated in settlement discussions with the parties and the magistrate judge.

This case was litigated in federal court in the District of Hawaii and before District Judge Helen Gillmor. A settlement was reached and the case was dismissed.

Counsel for Plaintiff was Susan Ichinose, P.O. Box 24749, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-377-8800. Counsel for Co-Defendant Stewart Title Company was Neil F. Hubert, Alston Hunt Floyd & Ing, ASB Tower, 1001 Bishop St., Suite 1800, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-524-1800. Counsel for Co-Defendant Island Title Company was James T. Wong, 810 Richards St., Suite 748, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-526-9664. Counsel for Third-Party ESPO Hawaii was Elizabeth Kane, P.O. Box 27145, Honolulu, HI 96827, Tel 808-525-6301.
5. Naftel v. Arthur Anderson Co., Civ. No. 87-0-001075. This case involved claims of negligence and fraud against individuals employed by Arthur Anderson Co. Plaintiff Naftel had consulted with partners in the Honolulu office for Arthur Anderson Co. regarding his plans to start a commercial fishing operation for shrimp in the Northwest Pacific Islands. This venture failed badly.

I was part of the trial team for Arthur Anderson Co., and represented it from 1990-1991. In pretrial, I conducted discovery, including numerous depositions, pretrial motions practice and witness preparation. At trial, I assisted in jury selection, and preparing and examining witnesses, including cross-examination.

This case was litigated in the First Circuit Court of Hawaii and went to trial for six months before Judge Leland Spencer, and resulted in a jury verdict in favor of Arthur Anderson Co.

Counsel for Plaintiff were George W. Ashford, 1050 Auloa Road, Kailua, HI 96734, Tel 808-528-0444 and Jacqueline Earle, Goodwill Anderson
Quinn & Stifel, 1099 Alakea St., Suite 1800, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel
808-547-5600. Co-Counsel were Glenn K. Sato, 888 Mililani St., PH 1, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-537-1625 and Ross N. Taosaka, Hughes &
LaFountain, Pauahi Tower, Suite 2525, 1001 Bishop Street, Honolulu, HI 96813, 808-526-9744.

Defendant Hamilton, a family law attorney, who was sued by a former client for legal malpractice. Plaintiff Taylor had been represented by Mr.
Hamilton in her divorce proceeding and trial. The marital estate included a substantial land holding of undeveloped land on Kauai, as well as significant liquid assets. Property division was highly contested in the divorce trial. A few years after the trial and property division decision, Mrs. Taylor became dissatisfied with the outcome and sued Mr. Hamilton.

The case was initially filed in the First Circuit Court of Hawaii. I believe the judge assigned to the case was Judge Gail Nakatani. Extensive discovery was undertaken. A jury trial was scheduled in this case but the parties agreed to submit the matter to a three-panel arbitration. The arbitrators were Edward King, a part-time Magistrate Judge, Charles Kleintop, a family law attorney in the State of Hawaii, and a third person who, I believe, was an attorney or retired judge from the West Coast and whose name I cannot now recall. The arbitration took place in 1999 and in Honolulu. The proceeding took several days and included extensive testimony by expert witnesses. It resulted in a decision in favor of Mr.
Hamilton. The state court action was subsequently dismissed on October 18, 1999.
7. Otis Elevator Co. v. Furusho, Civ. No. 91-00526 DAE-BMK. From 1992 to 1993, I represented Defendant Furusho and his law firm, Hisaka Furusho & Ayabe, who were sued by their former client, Otis Elevator Co., for legal malpractice. Mr. Furusho had represented Otis Elevator Co. in a state court lawsuit in which a child had been injured while riding an escalator. During the state court action, Otis Elevator Co. was significantly sanctioned for failing to produce discovery. Mr. Furusho was replaced as trial counsel and the lawsuit was settled. Otis Elevator then sued him and his law firm.

This action was filed in the federal court of the District of Hawaii, and the judges assigned to this case were District Judge David A. Ezra and Magistrate Judge Barry M. Kurren.

I handled the discovery, motions practice and settlement negotiations in this case. A settlement was reached and the case was dismissed on February 25, 1993.

Counsel for Plaintiff were Sharon A. Merkle & William S. Hunt, Alston Hunt Floyd & Ing. ASB Tower, 1001 Bishop St., Suite 1800, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-524-1800. Co-Counsel were Ward F.N. Fujimoto, Matsui & Chung, Pacific Guardian Ctr., Mauka Tower, 737 Bishop Street Suite 1400, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-536-3711 and James E. Duffy, Supreme Court of Hawaii, Associate Justice, 417 S. King Street, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-539-4715.

8. State of Hawaii v. De Morales, Cr. No. 88-0-221. From 1988-1989, I defended Francis De Morales and other police officers with the Hawaii County Police Department on gambling charges brought against them allegedly in retaliation by Police Chief Guy Paul. This action was filed in the Third Circuit Court of Hawaii, and the presiding judge was Judge Shunichi Kimura.

I conducted discovery and filed several substantive motions. Ultimately, the parties reached an agreement and the State withdrew the charges nolle prosequi.

Counsel for Plaintiff was Ricky Dammerville, Office of the Prosecuting Attorney, 655 Kilauea Ave., Hilo, HI 96720, Tel 808-934-3403.

Numerous claims were alleged, including civil RICO claims. From 1994 to 1999, I represented Frank F. Fasi, former mayor of the City and County of Honolulu, in this action. The allegations against him generally involved claims that his misuse of public office resulted in zoning changes which caused the purchaser of the agricultural lands in issue to be able to develop the property for commercial use and to evict farmers from property that they had leased for years.

I conducted discovery and very extensive motions practice. Summary judgment was entered in favor of Mr. Fasi and he was dismissed from the case.

Counsel for Plaintiff was Anthony P. Locricchio, 908 Mauanwili Circle, Kailua, HI 96734, Tel 808-261-7733. Counsel for Co-Defendant was Mei Nakamoto, Davies Pacific Center, 841 Bishop Street, Suite 1020, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-695-6254. My co-counsel were Archie T. Ikehara & Ward F.N. Fujimoto, Matsui & Chung, Pacific Guardian Ctr., Mauka Tower, Suite 1400, 737 Bishop Street, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-536-3711.

10. Tom v. Wyeth Laboratories, Civ. No. 1CC86-0-001634. I represented Wyeth Laboratories from 1986-1989 in a lawsuit alleging claims of product liability and medical negligence. Wyeth manufactures vaccines including the Diptheria Pertussis and Tetanus vaccine (commonly referred to as DTP) that is recommended to be given to infants and children. Plaintiff Tom was given the DTP vaccine series when he was an infant by his pediatrician, Dr. Ho. His parents contended that his seizure disorder was caused by this vaccine.

This case was filed in the First Circuit Court of Hawaii, and the presiding judge was Judge Robert Klein.

I conducted discovery and motions practice in this case which ultimately was dismissed without prejudice as to Manchester’s claims which were submitted by stipulation to the national vaccine claims program, and with prejudice as to his parents’ claims.

Counsel for Plaintiffs were David Schutter (deceased) & Priscilla Mills, Northern Arizona University, P.O. Box 4083, Flagstaff, AZ 86011, Tel 928-523-7855. Co-counsel was Archie T. Ikehara, Matsui & Chung, Pacific Guardian Ctr., Mauka Tower, 737 Bishop Street, Suite 1400, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-536-3711. Counsel for Co-Defendants were Brian Aburano, Office of the Attorney General, 425 Queen Street, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-586-0618 and Edmund Burke, Burke McPeeters Bordner & Estes, Pacific Guardian Center, Mauka Tower, 737 Bishop Street, Suite 3100, Honolulu, HI 96813, Tel 808-523-9833.
18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s).

In the latter part of my private practice, I defended lawyers, physicians, nurses and medical personnel in matters involving malpractice claims. These were sensitive cases in that the professionals who had been sued were typically devastated and often outraged by the claims. I was required to develop counseling and evaluation skills in addition to litigating these cases. One particular lawsuit involved a partner in a law firm who was sued by a former associate for sexual harassment. I was ultimately able to resolve the case relatively swiftly and discreetly but only after spending considerable time with the attorney and his partners. Representing people in the medical field was quite interesting and challenging as well. Most physicians were distrustful of lawyers and highly suspicious of the legal system. Any settlement usually required the physician’s consent and most often resulted in the doctor being adversely reported in the national physician reporting system. Getting these clients to work cooperatively in a positive manner often required a lot of communication and detailed medical knowledge about the particular case.

I have not performed lobbying activities on behalf of any client.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I taught Pretrial Litigation in 2001 and 2002 as an adjunct professor at the William S. Richardson School of Law, University of Hawaii. This course covered pretrial matters such as discovery and motions practice. Syllabus supplied.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.
21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

None.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

As a Magistrate Judge, I maintain a conflict of interest system through the district court and address any potential conflicts in this manner. I do not anticipate any special or additional conflicts in the event I am confirmed and appointed as a United States District Judge.

b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

If confirmed, I would continue to use the automatic recusal system of our court. I would examine lists of counsel, parties and potential witnesses in all cases assigned to me to ensure that my involvement would not raise an appearance of impropriety. At all times, I would continue to follow the recusal statutes and the Code of Conduct for United States Judges.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.
When I was in private practice, I accepted pro bono cases involving uncontested divorces from Volunteer Legal Services Hawaii (VLASH) and would work monthly doing consultations on a Saturday at its downtown walk-in clinic as well as follow up. The amount of time involved was approximately 25-30 hours a year. I also served on the VLASH Board of Directors.

Since I have been appointed as a magistrate judge, I can no longer practice law and cannot take pro bono cases. Instead, I taught a pre-trial litigation class at the law school for two years, and I volunteer my time to the Hawaii Bar Association, and to continuing education matters. I also take on college and law students as externs in my chambers, speak to students at the law school, and serve on district court and Ninth Circuit committees. I estimate these matters taking up about 50-60 hours a year.

26. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

On September 2, 2009, I submitted an application to Lawrence Okinaga, Chair of the Hawaii Federal Judicial Selection Commission. I was interviewed in October by the members of this commission in Honolulu, Hawaii. On January 5, 2010, I was interviewed by Senator Daniel K. Inouye and Senator Daniel K. Akaka in Senator Inouye’s office in Honolulu, Hawaii.

On January 15, 2010, I was contacted by staff from the Department of Justice regarding the preparation of nomination paperwork. I have had subsequent conversations with Department of Justice staff regarding that paperwork and the nomination process. On February 25, 2010, I interviewed in Washington, DC, with attorneys from the White House Counsel’s Office and the Department of Justice. The President submitted my nomination to the Senate on April 21, 2010.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

STATEMENT OF DENISE JEFFERSON CASPER, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

Ms. CASPER. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Thank you to you, Senator Kyl, and all the members of the Committee for scheduling this hearing today and allowing me to appear before you. It’s an honor for me, it’s an honor for my family, and I greatly appreciate the opportunity.

I’d also like to thank Senator Kerry for his kind introduction today and for recommending me to the President for this judicial seat. I am deeply grateful for his confidence in me for this position.

I’d also like to thank Senator Brown for his warm introduction, his willingness to speak to me about my interest in becoming a Federal district court judge, and for his support.

I’d also like to acknowledge and thank Paul Kirk, the previous Senator from Massachusetts, who joined in Senator Kerry’s recommendation to the President.

Finally, I would like to thank President Obama for this nomination. I am honored and deeply humbled by it, and I’m very excited and happy to appear before you today.

Mr. Chairman, I’d also like to take the opportunity to introduce my family who are here and my friends and colleagues who have been able to join me, as well.

First and foremost, my husband of 16 years, Marc Casper. Marc’s love, support and encouragement over the years have meant the world to me. We’re very excited that our two sons, Harry and Jacob, are here. I think they’re trying very hard to remain quiet during these proceedings, and I am sure they will continue to do so during all of the nominees’ remarks.

[Laughter.]

Ms. CASPER. They are both 6 years old, and they’re headed to first grade in the fall. They’re very excited about this, their second trip to the Capitol. They didn’t remember that much about their first trip, since they were too young, but I’m hoping this trip will be as memorable for them as I know it will always be for me.

I’d also like to introduce my mother, Marcia Jefferson, who has traveled here from the State of New York, my original home state. There is no doubt that the lessons that my mother has taught me about hard work, humility and respect for others have made this moment possible.

I’m very happy that my brother, Darryl Jefferson, and my sister-in-law, Kristy Kershaw Jefferson, are here. We’re very excited for them, because they’re expecting their first child in the fall, my mother’s first granddaughter. So we’re very excited they’re here.

There are a number of members of my extended family who are here, as well, and I’d like to acknowledge them. My cousin, Louise Dyer, and her husband, Filon, of the capital here in D.C. My uncle, Charles Dyer, of Maryland; my cousin, Hakim Dyer of Maryland, his wife, Marilyn, their son, Faheem.

The Jefferson branch of the family is also well represented. My uncle, Bernie Jefferson, my aunt, Beverly Jefferson, and their grandson, Genis Guzman, are here, as well. And they’re also all from New York.

I’m also pleased to be joined by good friends today; my dear, dear, friend, Julia Frost-Davies, who also happens to be the mother of my goddaughter, Gillian, is here. A good family friend of ours, Meredith Smith, is here. And I’m also happy to say that a number of my sorority sisters and friends of over 20 years from Delta Sigma Theta sorority are here, including Reverend Joy Challenger, Dr. Judith Absalon, and Janice Williams Thomas.

I’m also very happy that a number of my current and former colleagues are here from the U.S. attorney’s office, Jim Farmer, Cynthia Young, and Theo Chuang. My current colleagues from the DA’s office, Marian Ryan and Jeff Shapiro.

I’m particularly pleased that my good friend and current boss, the Middlesex District Attorney, Gerry Leone, is here, despite all the demands on his time back in the commonwealth.

I am part of a rich legacy, I think, of excellence in public service to come out of the Middlesex District Attorney’s office, a legacy that the senior Senator from Massachusetts is very much a part and which Gerry’s leadership exemplifies.

I’d like to say a brief word about some people who could not be here today. I understand that a number of my friends and colleagues back in the DA’s office are watching the Webcast. I want to thank them for their support and goodwill during the selection process and all the best wishes they’ve been sending me for today’s hearing.

Finally, although certainly he’s foremost in my mind today, I’d like to say a word about my late father, Eugene Jefferson. As it is for me, this would have been a huge day for him. He spent part of the early part of his career as a probation officer, and he believed deeply in the importance of the judicial system in our society.

In many ways, his influence on my life has propelled me to this opportunity. He’s very much in my thoughts.

Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much.

Mr. Reeves.

In addition to the organizations above, I have also made charitable contributions to other organizations that may or may not have considered me a member based solely on those contributions, such as the American Cancer Society, the Boys’ and Girls’ Club, and other charitable organizations.

b. The American Bar Association's Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

None of the organizations I have listed above currently discriminates or, to the best of my knowledge, has ever discriminated, on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

   a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

   Thoughts from Juror #13, 50 B.B.J. 31 (May/June 2006).

Moderator, Daubert Motions in the Criminal Context panel, sponsored by the Criminal Law Section of the Boston Bar Association (May 1, 2001).

Faculty member, Taking Depositions Workshop, sponsored by the Massachusetts Continuing Legal Education (January 1999) (no notes).
Earlier in my legal career, in and around 1996-1998, I also participated in several panels or discussion groups organized by the Boston Lawyers' Group (formerly the Boston Law Firm Group), a consortium of law firms and government agencies committed to advancing the diversity of the legal profession in Massachusetts. The audience for these panels were law students or new lawyers and the topic was similar to the “Strategies for Success” panels described above. I do not recall if I had any prepared remarks for these panels and I have been unable to locate any after a diligent search of my files.

c. List all interviews you have given to newspapers, magazines or other publications, or radio or television stations, providing the dates of these interviews and four (4) copies of the clips or transcripts of these interviews where they are available to you.

I have searched my files and electronic databases in an effort to locate all copies of clips or transcripts that are responsive to this question. I have located the materials listed below, but it is possible that there are a few that I have been unable to identify.

Boston Bar Association staff, Member on the Move, Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly (December 2, 2002).

Mark Shanahan, Count Her Out, Boston Globe (March 25, 2008).

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

I have not held judicial office.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment? ______

   i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

      jury trials? ___%; bench trials ___ % [total 100%]

      civil proceedings? ___%; criminal proceedings? ___ % [total 100%]

b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

I have not held judicial office.

a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;
d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

I have not held public office.

I have not had any unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

From May to November 1998, I served as a volunteer on the Finance Committee for Martha Coakley’s first campaign to become Middlesex District Attorney.

In April 2006, I was a volunteer host of a fundraiser for Gerard T. Leone, Jr.’s campaign for Middlesex District Attorney.

I have not held membership or office in any political party.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I never practiced alone.
iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have never served as a mediator or arbitrator.
b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

My law practice has focused on litigation. In 1995, my practice began in the Litigation Department of Bingham McCutchen LLP where the bulk of my practice was civil litigation. During my years at Bingham, I spent one month on a rotation at the Plymouth District Attorney’s Office as a Special Assistant District Attorney prosecuting criminal cases. When I became a federal prosecutor in 1999, my work changed from civil practice to criminal practice. As an Assistant U.S. Attorney and now as the Deputy District Attorney in Middlesex County, the nature of my legal practice has been almost entirely criminal prosecution. During my time teaching at Boston University School of Law, the curriculum and course was focused on civil litigation practice.

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

During my practice at Bingham McCutchen, the bulk of my clients were corporations, directors and officers of corporations and individuals.

During my practice as a prosecutor, I have represented the United States in federal criminal cases and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in criminal matters.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. federal courts: 80%
   2. state courts of record: 20%
   3. other courts:
   4. administrative agencies:

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. civil proceedings: 25%
   2. criminal proceedings: 75%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.
I have tried eleven trials in federal district court or Massachusetts Superior Court. In addition, I also tried three misdemeanor jury trials (and numerous bench trials) in state district court. For all of these trials, I served as sole counsel or co-counsel.

i. What percentage of these trials were:
   1. jury: 90%
   2. non-jury: 10%

c. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

a. the date of representation;

b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and

   c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

This prosecution involved two counts of first degree murder against the defendant for the homicides of his former lover’s husband and a co-worker. I became involved in the case in 2007, after the investigation and indictment. We tried the case to a hung jury in July and August 2008. The retrial in January through February 2009 resulted in a conviction on both counts. I participated in the pretrial preparation and trial of the case. I prepared and argued motions in limine and the opposition to the defendant’s motion to dismiss. I conducted examinations of approximately half of the government’s witnesses including multiple civilians, law enforcement officers and experts (e.g., mother of the victim who had observed the defendant’s interaction with her daughter-in-law, the lead Wakefield detective, the fingerprint expert and a forensic expert in image analysis from the Federal Bureau of Investigation). I also handled the jury charge conference and the numerous legal matters that arose during trial.

Defense counsel was Randy Gioia, Esq., 151 Merrimac Street, 2nd Floor, Boston, Massachusetts 02114, (617) 367-2480.

2. United States v. de la Cruz, No. 01-CR-10118-REK. United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts, Judge Robert E. Keeton.

The defendant was tried for conspiracy to distribute heroin resulting in an overdose death. I became involved in the case in 2004 and participated in the pretrial preparation of the case and tried this case with co-counsel. The trial began on April 25, 2005 and ran for three weeks. In this jury trial, I conducted the examination of half of the government’s witnesses including expert witnesses, cooperating witnesses and law enforcement agents and I gave the closing argument and rebuttal argument. I believe that the defendant’s conviction in this case was the first conviction under the Len Bias law for a drug distribution conspiracy resulting in an overdose death in the U.S. District Court sitting in Boston.

Defense counsel was Paul Yee, Esq., 10 Tremont Street, Suite 200, Boston, Massachusetts 02108, (617) 722-4343.

The charge against this defendant arose out of a long-term wiretap investigation that spanned several states and involved charges against ten other defendants, a number of whom testified against the defendant in this trial. I became involved in this case in 2001 and handled the pretrial motions and arguments and the cooperation agreements, plea hearings and sentencing hearings for the multiple co-defendants. I conducted the pretrial preparation and served as co-counsel for the trial of the lead defendant on a conspiracy to distribute cocaine charge. The trial began on January 27, 2003 and lasted for approximately three weeks. I conducted the examination of witnesses including expert witnesses, law enforcement agents from Massachusetts and Texas and cooperating witnesses and I gave the closing argument and rebuttal argument. The jury convicted the defendant and found that the defendant derived proceeds of $3 million from his participation in the charged drug distribution conspiracy.

Defense counsel was John LaChance, Esq., 463 Worcester Street, Framingham, Massachusetts 01701, (508) 879-5730.

In this prosecution, the defendant was charged for his participation in "straw purchases" of firearms. Specifically, the defendant was charged for false statements in a federal firearms application and illegal possession of a firearm. I became involved in the case in 2001 to participate in the pretrial preparation and try the case with co-counsel. The trial began on June 17, 2002, and lasted approximately two weeks. During the trial, I gave the government's opening statement and conducted the examination of witnesses including several civilians, a firearms expert and law enforcement officers. The jury convicted the defendant on all charges.

Defense counsel was Miriam Conrad, Federal Defender’s Office, Williams Coast Guard Building, 408 Atlantic Avenue, 3rd Floor, Boston, Massachusetts 02210, (617) 223-8061.

I handled the grand jury investigation and presentment as well as the pretrial matters in this arson-for-profit case. I prepared this case for trial twice. The first trial began on September 10, 2001. Our opening statements were interrupted by the news of the attacks on the World Trade Center and the precautionary evacuation of the federal courthouse. In light of the world's state of affairs at the time, the Court declared a mistrial a few days before we had a chance to begin the presentation of evidence. The retrial began on April 29, 2002 and spanned three weeks. I handled the motions in limine, directed the pretrial preparation and handled the examination of half of the government's witnesses including the fire cause and origin expert, forensic auditor and multiple law enforcement officers and civilian witnesses. I also gave the closing argument and rebuttal argument. The jury convicted the defendant on all counts.

My co-counsel was Gregory Moffatt (formerly of the U.S. Attorney's Office), Office of General Counsel, Raytheon Company/Integrated Defense Systems, 50 Apple Hill Drive, M/S T3TQ1, Tewksbury, Massachusetts 01876, (978) 858-9411.

Defense counsel was Ron I. Segal, Esq., Segal Judge & Associates, 23 Central Avenue, Ste. 605, Lynn, Massachusetts 01901. (I believe that Attorney Segal passed away in 2006).

I became involved in this case in 2001 for pretrial preparation and trial and tried this arson-for-profit trial with co-counsel. The trial began on January 22, 2002 and lasted for two weeks. I gave the government’s opening statement and examined a number of the government’s experts including an electrical expert, civilian witnesses including the defendant’s insurance broker, law enforcement agents and fire department personnel. The jury convicted the defendant on all charges, but the conviction was overturned when the court granted the defendant’s post-conviction motion for new trial claiming ineffective assistance of his trial counsel. United States v. Correia, Docket No. 00-10246-RWZ, Memorandum and Order (September 13, 2002), aff’d, Docket No. 02-2313 (1st Cir. October 8, 2003) (unpublished opinion). The case was later retried, but I was not involved in the retrial.

Defense counsel was James Fagan, Fagan & Goldrick, 26 Dean Street, Taunton, Massachusetts 92780, (508) 824-7000 and William Brown, 112 Milk Street, 2nd Floor, Boston, Massachusetts 02109, (617) 482-1001.

The defendant was charged with being a felon in possession of ammunition. The charge arose out of an incident in which the defendant shot at the boyfriend of a young woman whom the defendant was interested in dating. The firearm was never recovered and the victim and the young woman testified for the government reluctantly. The trial began on September 24, 2001, and lasted approximately one week and ended in a not guilty verdict.

8. United States v. Murphy, Docket No. 00-CR-10293-DPW. United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts, Judge Douglas P. Woodlock.

The charges against the defendant, a vice president of the control division at Putnam Investments, arose out of his theft of funds. We tried him for conspiracy to commit wire fraud and two counts of wire fraud. Trial began on March 19, 2001. I gave the opening statement and examined half of the government’s witnesses. After a one-week trial, the jury convicted him on the conspiracy charge.

My co-counsel was Adam Bookbinder, U.S. Attorney’s Office, Moakley Courthouse, 1 Courthouse Way, Ste. 9200, Boston, Massachusetts 02210, (617) 748-3112.

Defense counsel was Stephen Jones, Jones, Mulligan & Gerachty, 80 Washington Square, Bldg. K, Norwell, Massachusetts 02061, (781) 871-7600.

In this case, the defendant, who owned and operated a low-income housing complex in Boston, was charged with criminal contempt. An investigation revealed that he had been misusing federal funds and as a result, the project went into bankruptcy and a receiver was appointed, thereby removing the defendant. As a result of his disruptive actions during the bankruptcy proceedings, the bankruptcy court issued an order limiting his access to the courthouse. I was the prosecutor assigned to the case and handled all of the pretrial matters and trial preparation. The jury waived trial began on February 7, 2000, and lasted several days. I also handled the appeal in this matter. The First Circuit affirmed the defendant’s conviction. United States v. Mourad, 289 F.3d 174 (1st Cir. 2002).

Defense counsel was Martin Richey, Federal Defender’s Office, Williams Coast Guard Building, 408 Atlantic Avenue, 3rd Floor, Boston, Massachusetts 02210, (617) 223-8061.

As part of an exchange program between Bingham McCutchen LLP and the Essex District Attorney’s Office, I served as a Special Assistant District Attorney for this Superior Court trial. I served as the second-seat of this June 1998 trial of the defendant for breaking and entering and arson of a trailer home located in a campground in Salisbury. I examined numerous witnesses in this trial. The defendant chose to plead guilty on June 11, 1998 before the case was submitted to the jury.

Lead counsel was (formerly an Assistant District Attorney and now the Honorable) Dunbar Livingstone, Justice, District Court, Salem Division, 65 Washington Street, Salem, Massachusetts 01970, (978) 744-4681, ext. 3029.

Defense counsel was Andrew Benson, P.O. Box 386, Amesbury, Massachusetts 01913, (978) 373-1123.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s).

While in private practice, I handled complex litigation in various areas including products liability, insurance and labor and employment. These matters most often involved the representation of corporations and/or corporate officers and directors and disputes involving millions of dollars in alleged damages. Most of these matters resolved short of trial, but involved extensive discovery, settlement negotiations, dispositive motions and/or appeals.

As an Assistant U.S. Attorney, I handled pretrial, grand jury, trial, sentencing and appellate matters in the prosecution of numerous cases including but not limited to arson, bank robbery, fraud, firearm offenses and multiple-defendant drug trafficking and importation cases. I also handled the investigation, grand jury presentation and resolution of several large scale matters, a number of which involved multiple Title III wiretaps, multiple search warrants and other investigative means, coordination with law enforcement agents and prosecutors in multiple jurisdictions and resulted in charges against multiple defendants and, in a few cases, several international extraditions. Although I tried some of these cases as discussed above, most of these matters resolved short of trial. In my capacity as Deputy Chief of the Organized Drug Enforcement Task Force, I oversaw other Assistant U.S. Attorneys and reviewed and approved charging documents, initiation of criminal investigations, plea agreements, immunity orders and other matters. During my years at the U.S. Attorney’s office, I also served as one of the attorneys working with middle school students in the annual Citizens’ School Mock Trial program.

In my current role as Deputy District Attorney, I serve as second in command to the District Attorney and aid the District Attorney in running an office of over 240 employees including over 100 Assistant District Attorneys. I set office-wide policy regarding cases and investigations as well as personnel and administrative matters. I oversee the supervisors of Superior Court trial teams, the Appeals and Training Bureau and the office’s PACT Unit (a specialized unit that investigates and prosecutes public corruption, organized crime and financial crimes), the office-wide grand jury coordinator and both the heads of the office’s Victim Witness Bureau and the Cyber Protection Program. I review and approve direct indictment requests, charge breakdowns and other critical case matters and provide legal advice. I also serve as the District Attorney’s legal counsel, advising him on a variety of legal matters. Another one of my responsibilities is acting as the office’s liaison to the Regional Administrative Justice (for criminal matters) for the Middlesex Superior Court. I also handle cases including a double homicide trial and appellate matters including a recent matter before the Supreme Judicial Court, Commonwealth v. Vick, 454 Mass. 418 (2009), which settled the standard for determining whether convictions stemming from a single criminal episode are duplicative.

In the course of my career as a federal and state prosecutor, I have also handled and briefed twelve appellate matters. Most of these briefs were for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit, but some were for matters before the Massachusetts Appeals Court and the Supreme Judicial Court. Of the twelve matters that I briefed, I have done the oral arguments in seven of the cases.

I have not performed any lobbying activities.
19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I served as an Instructor at Boston University School of Law teaching students in the First Year Legal Writing Program from 2005 to 2007.

20. Deferred Income/Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I do not have any plans, commitments or agreements to pursue outside employment if I am confirmed as a district judge.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

   a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.
Potential conflicts of interest may arise in regard to cases that I handled while I was an Assistant United States Attorney or which I supervised, reviewed or expressed an opinion about as the Deputy Chief of the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force in the United States Attorney’s Office. Since, however, I left the United States Attorney’s Office in 2005, I expect that the number of cases that would present this conflict of interest would be small. In addition, there are a number of entities in which I (and/or my husband and children) have a financial interest. Several of these financial interests are in entities to which my husband also has a fiduciary obligation. I would be vigilant about potential conflicts by examining a matter assigned to me to uncover promptly any potential conflicts arising from these relationships.

b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

I would resolve any potential conflict of interest by adhering to 28 U.S.C. section 455, the Code of Conduct for United States Judges and all applicable policies and procedures of the United States courts. I would recuse myself in any matter in which my spouse or I hold a financial interest or have a sufficiently close connection with counsel or the parties (business or social). In the event of uncertainty, I would err on the side of disqualification.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

During my years in private practice at Bingham McCutchen, I worked on a number of pro bono matters. In the course of my years as a prosecutor, my primary contribution to serving the public interest was my day-to-day work representing the people of the federal District of Massachusetts and now the citizens of Middlesex County. However, even during these latter years, I participated as one of the attorneys working with middle school students in the annual Citizens’ School Mock Trial program and served on two boards of organizations that provided pro bono legal services, the Volunteer Lawyers’ Project (1998 to 2004) and the Women’s Bar Foundation (2000 to 2008).

26. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department...
regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

In June 2009, the late U.S. Senator Edward M. Kennedy announced that a twelve-person search committee in Boston would consider applications for the vacancy on the U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts created by the death of the Honorable Reginald Lindsay. I submitted an application on July 9, 2009. I was interviewed by the search committee on August 13, 2009. On October 21, 2009, the search committee informed me that the committee had voted to forward my name to U.S. Senator John Kerry. On November 30, 2009, Senators Kerry and Kirk interviewed me. On January 17, 2010, Senator Kerry informed me that he was recommending me to President Obama for nomination for this judicial seat.

Since January 18, 2010, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. On March 5, 2010, I had an interview with Department of Justice and White House personnel in Washington, D.C. I was nominated by the President on April 28, 2010.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

NOTARY
STATEMENT OF CARLTON W. REEVES, NOMINEE TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF MISSISSIPPI

Mr. REEVES. Thank you, Mr. Chairman and Ranking Member Mr. Kyl.

On behalf of me and my family, I want to thank the President for nominating me for this job. This is his first nomination for the State of Mississippi.

I do thank Senator Cochran and Senator Wicker for their kind words and the bipartisan nature in which they have come together with Congressman Thompson, whom I have known for more than 25 years as a student at Jackson State University, interning in his office, and he, obviously, saw something in me and has stuck with him from that day to this one.

If I may, Senator, I'd like to introduce my family here today.

Mr. REEVES. I have my wife, Lora Reeves, and my daughter, Chanda Reeves. My mother is here today, Wilhelmina Reeves. My sisters are here, Terri Reeves Hansberry and Christy Reeves. And Terri has brought her daughters, DeAnna Parker, Paige Reeves, and Hope Reeves.

And my mother's friend of over 60 years, from Yazoo City, Mississippi, is also here, Ms. Winnie Stanton, who lives in the area now.

I have siblings who, unfortunately, were not able to be here, Carolyn Reeves and her husband, Ernest, Tony Reeves, and Calvin Reeves. They've all supported me.

Now, those who are at home, I know, who are watching the Webcast and for the old ladies who probably are not watching the Webcast, but are hearing about it, my aunt, Hannah, who is approaching her 94th birthday, I believe, great aunt; and, my aunt, Mug, who we call Modest Paige, who was like our grandmother.

I have dozens and dozens of nieces and nephews. I have in-laws who are supporting me, Catherine Singleton, and my law partners. We have a three-man law firm back home; Brad Pigott, former U.S. attorney. His son is here representing his family, Chris Pigott. And Cliff Johnson, who is working hard today.

There are others in my family who could not be here, but they're watching over me. My father, a retired military man of over 30 years, First Sergeant Jesse W. Reeves. My uncle, Pete, who was like my grandfather, he's not here. And I have brothers, Andrew Taylor and Jesse Reeves, Jr.

It's special, because when I got the call on January the 21st that the Department of Justice thought that I might be considered, that was 10 days after Jesse was buried, and tomorrow would be Jesse's 55th birthday. So this is his birthday present.

And I thank the Senate. And there's one other person who I know is watching over me, and that's my mother-in-law, Annie Brown Moseley, who is no longer with us, as well.

As I looked around the room when I walked in and when I came up, I saw several people from Yazoo City, Mississippi who are also here, and I certainly appreciate their support.

Thank you for your time and I appreciate it.

10. Bar and Court Admission:

    a. List the date(s) you were admitted to the bar of any state and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership.
Mississippi, 1989

There have been no lapses in membership.

b. List all courts in which you have been admitted to practice, including dates of admission and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership. Give the same information for administrative bodies that require special admission to practice.

Supreme Court of the United States, 2002
United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, 1989
United States District Court for the Northern District of Mississippi, 1989 United States District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi, 1989
Mississippi State Courts, 1989

There have been no lapses in membership.

11. Memberships:

a. List all professional, business, fraternal, scholarly, civic, charitable, or other organizations, other than those listed in response to Questions 9 or 10 to which you belong, or to which you have belonged, since graduation from law school. Provide dates of membership or participation, and indicate any office you held. Include clubs, working groups, advisory or editorial boards, panels, committees, conferences, or publications.

Capital Campaign Committee (2005-Present)
Springwood Acres Homeowners Association (1999-Present) Board of Directors (2007-2008)
Jackson State University National Alumni Association (1990-Present)
ACLU of Mississippi (1993-2009)
  Affirmative Action Officer (2002-2009)
Cornerstone Society, WJSU 88.5 FM (2006-2007)
Metropolitan Leadership Council (1990-1994)

b. The American Bar Association's Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity is a service and social fraternity which includes undergraduate college chapters and alumni chapters. Its membership is restricted to males. The fraternity's community programs, however, are open to all. I have taken no steps to ensure that the membership be expanded to include women.

To the best of my knowledge, none of the other groups and organizations listed above has ever discriminated against any group. They currently do not discriminate nor did they discriminate during the time I was a member.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

This list represents the published material I have identified through searches of my files and internet databases. I have tried my best to list all of them here, although there may be some that I have not been able to identify or locate.

“Election of Judges,” The Mississippi Lawyer, Fall 2008
“From the President,” Magnolia Bar Association Newsletter, May 2008
“The Use of Legal Assistants/Paralegals in the Practice: Why We Need Them,” Magnolia Bar Association, CLE, (1993)
Operations Manual Update, Mississippi Municipal Association (MMA), Anderson & Reeves, (approximately 1991) “Letter to Editor,” Cavalier Daily, University of Virginia, (October, 1988)

b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

This list represents the reports, memoranda and policy statements I have identified through searches of my files and internet databases. I serve and have served on multiple bar association committees and non-profit boards that may have issued statements with or without my personal involvement. I have tried my best to list all of them here, although there may be some that I have not been able to identify or locate.

c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

This list represents the testimony, official statements and other communications relating to matters of public policy or legal interpretation that I have identified through searches of my files and internet databases. I serve and have served on multiple bar association committees and non-profit boards that may have issued communications with or without my personal involvement. I have tried my best to list all of them here, although there may be some that I have not been able to identify or locate.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

On April 6, 2007, the Senior Chancellor of the Fifth Chancery Court District, appointed me Hinds County Family Master to adjudicate cases brought by the Mississippi Department of Human Services seeking to establish paternity and obtaining child support for children who do not live in the home with both parents. My appointment has been renewed each six months. My current term is set to expire on June 30, 2010.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

My authority is limited. I hear cases without a jury and make recommendations for the adoption by the Hinds County Chancellors pursuant to Miss. Code Ann. § 9-5-255. Because the issues are narrow and focused, I generally hear as many as 30-40 cases on the one day each week I serve.

i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

jury trials: 100%
bench trials: 100%
civil proceedings: 100%
criminal proceedings:

b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

I have not written opinions.

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

As a Hinds County Family Master, I primarily adjudicate establishments of paternity in connection with petitions for child support. The legal disputes in the cases are routine and defendants are typically unrepresented.

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

I have not written opinions.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

None.

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

I am not aware of any cases in which I was reversed by a reviewing court.

g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

I have not issued written decisions.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

I have not issued opinions on federal or state constitutional issues.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

I have not sat by designation on a federal court of appeals.
14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

   a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

   b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

   c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

   Where I have represented or currently represent someone, I automatically enter an order of recusal when that person appears as a party. On those occasions where I have knowledge of or a close relationship with a party who appears in the case before me, I provide an on-the-record announcement of my knowledge of the individual, and my relationship with him or her. After such disclosure, if a party desires my recusal, I will honor the party’s request. These circumstances have only arisen in a very minute number of cases – probably less than ten.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

   a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

   On December 19, 2007, Governor Haley Barbour appointed me to the Board of Directors of the College Savings Plan of Mississippi. My term is set to expire June 2010. I have had no unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

   b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.
I served as Co-Chair of the Kitchens for Supreme Court Campaign for the election held on November 4, 2008. The candidate was Jim Kitchens. My role in the campaign lasted from approximately April 2008 through November 2008. This was an unpaid position. My primary role was to give advice to the candidate and the campaign staff regarding the issues of the campaign and the get-out-the-vote efforts. This is the only campaign in which I have held a formal role.

Since 1979, I have volunteered in state and federal elections on all levels from municipal, county, district and state-wide offices in legislative, executive and judicial arenas. Volunteering has included, among other things, door-to-door canvassing, speaking before audiences and at political rallies, making appearances on radio programs and hosting fundraisers. I have also participated in election protection efforts in various campaigns.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

1989-1990: I served as a law clerk to the Honorable Reuben V. Anderson, Mississippi Supreme Court.

ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I have never practiced alone.

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have served as a mediator on four occasions. Three involved motor vehicle accidents; the fourth was a commercial fraud case. I also have served as an arbitrator in one matter, which involved a motor vehicle accident.

b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

After completing my judicial clerkship, I served as a staff attorney for the Mississippi Supreme Court where I oversaw the motions docket and post-conviction relief matters and advised the justices regarding the proper disposition of said motions. In 1991, I joined the Phelps Dunbar Law Firm as a litigation associate. I litigated various matters before administrative bodies, state and federal trial and appellate courts. I tried a number of cases to verdict. Most of my work involved representing corporations and governmental entities which had been sued; however, I also represented these parties as plaintiffs and on some occasions I represented individual plaintiffs.
As Assistant United States Attorney, Chief of the Civil Division of the United States Attorney’s Office for the Southern District of Mississippi, from 1995 through 2001, I supervised a team of approximately thirty individuals, including nine attorneys. I oversaw the civil, trial and appellate litigation in which the United States, its agencies and employees were involved. These matters included defending the government in various matters: torts, constitutional torts, medical malpractice, employment discrimination, claims filed under the Freedom of Information Act, administrative law and on many occasions criminal defense. I also supervised the affirmative litigation including claims filed under the False Claims Act, bankruptcy, foreclosure, employment discrimination, fair housing and claims prosecuted under the American with Disabilities Act. The third area that I supervised included the civil enforcement unit including the Financial Litigation Unit whose responsibility included collecting fines, civil and criminal penalties, assessments and conducting other post-judgment proceedings.

As Civil Chief, I maintained an active caseload and prepared and tried bench and jury trials in many of the above mentioned areas including employment discrimination, emergency matters, torts, violations of the False Claims Act, FOIA and administrative law. I also prosecuted and defended appeals in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. I was appointed the District Election Officer and was tasked with the responsibility of supervising the investigation and prosecution of election fraud matters and taking steps to protect the voting rights of Mississippi citizens. I offered advice and assistance to government lawyers from other districts and the Department of Justice Division attorneys who practiced within the district. Finally, I served on the Civil Chiefs’ Working Group of the Executive Office of United States Attorneys.

Since establishing our law firm in 2001, I have continued to actively litigate cases representing plaintiffs and defendants including individuals, corporations and governmental bodies in all state and federal trial and appellate courts in Mississippi and on occasion in other states. I have represented plaintiffs and defendants in employment discrimination cases including claims of race, sex, age, disability and national origin discrimination. I also litigated cases involving election law, redistricting, legal malpractice, personal injury, silica mass tort, securities fraud, enforcement of the Fair Labor Standards Act, commercial litigation and personal injury.

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

As Assistant United States Attorney, I represented the United States, its employees and agencies in affirmative and defensive matters.
In the course of my private practice, I represented a broad range of clients including individuals, corporations and public bodies.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

My practice has always been in litigation, including state and federal trial and appellate courts. I have tried cases before administrative bodies, judges, and juries. Maintaining an active civil caseload, even as Chief of the Civil Division of the U.S. Attorneys Office, Southern District of Mississippi, has allowed me to appear in court frequently for hearings on motions and trials.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. federal courts: 70%
   2. state courts of record: 25%
   3. other courts: 2%
   4. administrative agencies: 3%

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
    1. civil proceedings: 95%
    2. criminal proceedings: 5%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I have tried approximately thirty-five to forty cases to verdict. In more than half of these, I was either sole or chief counsel.

i. What percentage of these trials were:
   1. jury: 60%
   2. non-jury: 40%

e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States.
Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

After having tried a case before a three judge panel of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, I was on brief for the appellants/cross appellees in Branch v. Smith, 538 U.S. 254 (2003).
17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

a. the date of representation;

b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and

c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

In this set of cases I served as co-counsel for voters who petitioned the state chancery court to adopt a Congressional redistricting plan following the 2000 decennial census when the state legislature failed to perform its duty. This was the first time in the history of the state that the legislature failed to redistrict its congressional districts. After a bench trial of more than a week, the chancery court granted the relief requested by plaintiffs and adopted a Congressional Redistricting Plan. The intervening defendants then filed an action before a three judge panel of the United States District Court seeking to enjoin the state courts from implementing its plan. After a trial before the three judge panel, that court issued an injunction and adopted its own plan. The decision of the three judge panel was appealed to the United States Supreme Court which affirmed the federal injunction. The appeal from the chancery court was subsequently heard by the Mississippi Supreme Court which reversed the chancery court, and ruled that the state courts lacked authority to redistrict even when the legislature abdicates its responsibility.

Co-Counsel in this case was Rob McDuff, 769 N. Congress Street, Jackson, MS 39201, 601-969-0802. Opposing Counsel were Michael B. Wallace, Wise Carter Child & Carraway, Post Office Box 651, Jackson, MS 39205, 601-968-5500; Grant M. Fox, Fox Law Group, 276 Maxey Drive, Brandon, MS 39042, 601-825-6111; F. Keith Ball, U.S. Magistrate Judge, U.S. District Court, 245 E. Capitol Street, Suite 400, Jackson, MS 39201, 601-965-4292.

Eugene M. Bogen); Shepherd v. CCA, Civil Action No., 5:01-CV-179BRS (S.D. Miss. 2001)(Hon. David Bramlette)

I served as co-counsel in a collective action and two related lawsuits representing hundreds of employees of the owner and operator of private prisons in the state of Mississippi. We alleged that the defendant routinely and willfully violated the Fair Labor Standards Act and committed other illegal acts when it failed to compensate its employees for overtime. These cases settled before trial.

Co-Counsel in this case were Cliff Johnson, Piggot Reeves Johnson, P.A., 775 N. Congress Street, Jackson, MS 39201, 601-354-2121; Doug Minor, Bradley Arant Boult Cummings, 188 E. Capitol Street, Suite 400, Jackson, MS 39201, 601-948-8000. Opposing Counsel were Wayne Drinkwater, Will Manuel, Margaret Cupples, Bradley Arant Boult Cummings, 188 E. Capitol Street, Suite 400, Jackson, MS 39201, 601-948-8000.

3. Johnson v. Waldrup, Civil Action No. 2001-0325-CI (Sunflower County Circuit Court) (Hon. Margaret Carey McCray)

I served as co-counsel in an election contest for the African-American candidate in a case where she alleged that several white poll workers had illegally thrown out the votes of many African Americans thus causing the long-time white incumbent to win the alderman-at-large position. Never before had the City of Drew, Mississippi, which was more than 75% African-American, elected a majority African-American Board of Alderman. At trial we proved that the election was riddled with errors including the illegal rejection of ballots cast by African-American voters. After counting many of the votes which had been cast for Johnson, and that we argued should be counted, the court ordered a new election. Having removed the barriers of harassment and intimidation, the voters elected the candidate of their choice—our client—resulting in Drew’s first African-American majority Board of Alderman.

That election was the catalyst for the voters to elect the city’s first African-American mayor a few years later.

4. In re: Appeal of Michael Cathey, Civil Action No. 2001-0186-C-T (Tate County Circuit Court)(Hon. George Carlson and Hon. Andrew Baker)

I served as co-counsel representing the sole African-American on the Board of Alderman of the City of Senatobia, Mississippi. Cathey had been duly elected to his second term as alderman. Even though he was deemed qualified by his party’s committee and won the general election, after he was sworn into office, a local citizen, with the aid of some of the members of the city council and other government officials, sought to have Cathey removed from office. These persons claimed that Cathey moved from the district because he had purchased a second house outside of the district. Through various appeals and hearings, one of which occurred before the Mayor and Board of Alderman, Cathey was ultimately successful in retaining his seat. Moreover, the circuit court ruled that he could not be removed from his seat because he had not moved from the district. Had Cathey been removed from office the will of the voters in his ward would have been supplanted. Cathey continues to serve as alderman.

Co-Counsel was Doug Minor, Bradley Arntt Boulit Cummings, 188 E. Capitol Street, Suite 400, Jackson, MS 32021, 601-948-8000. Opposing Counsel were Tommie Cardin, Sam Keyes, Butler Snow, 1020 Highland Colony Parkway, Suite 1400, Ridgeland, MS 39157, 601-948-4570.

I represented a former member of the Attala County Board of Supervisors on the appeal of his conviction of fraud by public officer when he purportedly used county money to repair his personal tractor equipment. During the investigation for his appeal, I learned that one of the jurors who served on his jury was a convicted felon. Under Mississippi law, convicted felons are disqualified from serving on juries, and it was clear from the record that the parties and the court inquired of the venire their criminal background. The juror never disclosed his status as a felon. The trial court denied our post-trial motions agreeing with the state that Fleming had not been denied a fair trial because it was likely that a convicted felon was more likely to render a verdict against the state. The Mississippi Supreme Court, however, reversed the trial court and granted Fleming a new trial.

Trial Counsel was Hon. Jannie Lewis, 101 Cedar Street, Lexington, MS 39095, 662-834-1452. Opposing Counsel was Jeffrey A. Klingfuss (on appeal), Special Assistant Attorney General, 450 High Street, 601-359-3692.

In one of the early cases brought by the United States Attorney’s Office under the False Claims Act, the defendant, a podiatrist, argued that she was entitled to summary judgment contending that she did not “knowingly” submit false claims as she did not have actual knowledge of the falsity of the claims as the nursing homes for which she was providing services had given her incorrect Medicaid and Medicare numbers of the patients she had treated. The court adopted the government’s argument that “knowing” under the False Claims Act is defined broadly to include reckless disregard. The court denied Jointer’s request for summary judgment. The parties settled before trial with Jointer agreeing to pay damages to the government.

In a case in which the United States Attorneys Office, in the Northern District of Mississippi was recused, I represented the United States Department of Agriculture and its employees as lead counsel in a lawsuit where plaintiff claimed that she had been discriminated against because of her race, sex, and marital status. Plaintiff also alleged that she had endured retaliation when she allegedly complained of the discriminatory treatment. The court granted summary judgment on all claims except for retaliation. The retaliation claim was tried before a jury in a week long trial. The jury returned a verdict for the agency.

Co-Counsel was Cindy Eldridge, U.S. Department of Justice, 9510 Tirana Place, Dulles, VA 20189-9510, 305-560-4540. Opposing Counsel were Ronald W. Lewis, 2621 W. Oxford Loop, Suite C, Oxford, MS 38655, 662-234-0766; Lisa S. Rohman, 315 A Magazine Street, Tupelo, MS 38801-4865, 662-841-0636.

I represented the United States Postal Service and individual officers and employees of the agency on claims of damages alleging constitutional torts and violations under the Federal Tort Claims Act resulting from an altercation between two employees. The Plaintiff filed a postal worker and the union steward, who also was employed by the postal service. The union steward was allowed to participate in an interview of the employee who allegedly had a gun on the premises of the post office. When the postal inspector sought to obtain the employee’s consent to search his vehicle, the union steward objected and interfered with the investigation, and she was forcibly removed from the interview room. The steward filed assault charges against the inspector. I represented the postal inspector on the criminal charges which were dismissed. Plaintiffs then filed a suit in federal court asserting that they should be able to proceed with the Bivens claims alleging violations of the First, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Amendments against their supervisors and employer. The district court granted our motion to dismiss and ruled that the plaintiffs’ claims were precluded by the Civil Service Reform Act and the Postal Reorganization Act. The trial court, however, denied our motion to dismiss the state tort claims, rejecting our argument that any state tort claims were barred by the Federal Employees’ Compensation Act (FECA). We proceeded to trial on the state tort claims. After finding for one of the plaintiffs and awarding damages in the amount of only $2,500, I convinced the Appellate Division to file a cross-appeal on the trial court’s ruling that the FECA did not bar the state tort claims. The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the district court on the Bivens claims but reversed the trial court on our cross-appeal finding that plaintiff’s exclusive remedy for her on-the-job tort injuries is the FECA.

Co-Counsel on appeal were Edward Himmelfarb, Robert Greenspan, U. S. Department of Justice, Civil Division, Appellate Staff, 601 D Street, NW, Washington, DC 20530-0001. Opposing Counsel were Melanie Bennett (pro se), Anton L. Hajjar, Darrell Anderson, O’Donnell, Schwartz & Anderson, 1300 L Street, N.W., Suite 1200, Washington, D.C. 2005.

In this case the defendant, who was on trial in state court as a co-conspirator in one of Mississippi’s infamous 1960’s civil rights murders, moved to compel the FBI to release information from its files and to provide testimony which would aid in his defense. Defendant sought information on certain informants and others who may have provided any information to the FBI when it was investigating this notorious crime. On behalf of the FBI, I moved to quash the trial subpoena asserting that even though the crime for which this defendant was being tried occurred decades ago, the FBI files contain privileged and confidential information. It included the identities of confidential informants and information furnished by informants with respect to other investigations. And, further the FBI’s decision to not disclose the information in response to the subpoena was appropriate as disclosure of confidential informant information could endanger the informants, if living, or their surviving family members. Moreover, disclosure of informant information could also have a devastating impact on the FBI’s ability to recruit future informants if they feared that their identity would be disclosed and the information they provided released to the general public. The trial court quashed the subpoenas.

I represented the doctor and a health clinic covered by the Public Health Services Act which provides that certain federally funded clinics and employees are entitled to the protection of the Federal Tort Claims Act (FTCA). Although the case had been proceeding in state court for more than a year, once the Public Health Service became aware that one of its clinics and physicians had been sued, the case was removed to federal court. We then filed a motion to dismiss as the plaintiff failed to exhaust her administrative remedies as required by the FTCA. The court concluded that the defendants had not waived their rights to be protected by the procedures set forth under the FTCA even though the case was being litigated in state court for more than a year. Because the plaintiff had not filed an administrative claim with the agency, the court dismissed the action. This was the first of many cases that the courts in this district would address the newly enacted provisions of the Public Health Services Act wherein federally supported health clinics are entitled to the protections set out in the FTCA.
Opposing Counsel was Eric A. Tiebauer, Jr., 4363 Highway 45N, Waynesboro, MS 39367, 601-735-5222.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

During my years of practice, I have been involved in many bar and legal related committees and activities. I have served on a number of committees, commissions and boards of organizations whose primary responsibility is to provide access to legal services for those who cannot afford them and to advocate on their behalf.

Through the Magnolia Bar Association in which I have served in a variety of capacities including President, I have promoted reform in the law, advocated for diversity in all branches of government including the judiciary, called attention to civil rights and voting rights issues and addressed issues that affect the legal profession in general and the African-American community in particular. We expanded the voice of the Magnolia Bar by partnering with groups and organizations that had these similar principles at the core of their agenda. I have also used the Magnolia Bar and other associations and affiliations as vehicles through which to mentor high school and law students, and I have mentored young lawyers.

Through the Magnolia Bar Foundation, Inc., of which I also served on the Board of Directors and as President, I participated in the annual high school mock trial competition co-sponsored by the association and foundation. We raised money to support scholarships for high school and law school students. I, however, take the most pride in planning our annual “law” camps for boys and girls. These “law” camps are unique in the sense that they target primarily African-American children from homes throughout Mississippi headed by single mothers. We make sure that the focus of the camp is far more expansive than merely encouraging the students to become lawyers. We emphasize the importance of being good, productive and responsible citizens. During the camp we teach useful skills such as: table etiquette; interviewing skills; dressing appropriately; the value of earning, saving and investing money; living a healthy life-style; and conflict resolution. We also make sure that the students are exposed to various African-American professionals including doctors, bankers, investment officers, business owners, and persons within law enforcement because the limit of many of the students’ exposure to black professionals does not reach beyond their teachers.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.
I served as an adjunct faculty member at Jackson State University during the 1992 fall semester. I taught a course entitled The Judicial Process, which exposed the students to various principles in the judicial process. Students were taught how to analyze court opinions, theories of recovery, building cases upon precedent, and standard of review. I have no syllabus for this course.

During the 1994 spring semester, I taught a health law course at the Mississippi College School of Law. The primary focus of this case was to teach the theoretical applications of medical malpractice cases from the perspective of plaintiffs and defendants. I have no syllabus for this course.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

Based upon my law firm’s partnership agreement, I would expect to receive compensation from the firm for a period of time after departing the firm. The amount of compensation would be dictated primarily by the timing of the final resolution of cases that are currently being handled. In addition, I expect to receive a certain amount of income under the firm’s profit-sharing agreement.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I do not have any plans, commitments or agreements to pursue outside employment with or without compensation, during my service with the court.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.
24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

Parties, categories of litigation and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest during my initial service as district judge would include family members, relatives, close friends, former clients, business associates/partners including my firm law partners and other attorneys with whom I have an existing financial relationship.

b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

I will handle all matters involving actual or potential conflicts-of-interest through the Code of Judicial Conduct for United States Judges and any other relevant statutory provisions and canons. If any issue of potential conflict were to arise, I would consult the applicable statutes and seek advice from the Code of Conduct Committee of the Judicial Conference.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

Throughout my legal career, I have worked on efforts to increase the availability of legal services to the indigent and underserved. For several years, I was on the Board of Directors of Mississippi Center for Legal Services. I am currently serving on the Board of the Mississippi Center for Justice and just recently ended my tenure on the Board of the Mississippi Workers Center for Human Rights, two public interest non-profit law firms. I was appointed to the Mississippi Access to Justice Commission by the Mississippi Supreme Court. The central focus of this commission is to study and implement plans to expand access to the courts to the public especially those of whom are precluded from access because of the lack of their financial means.

In addition to advocating through commissions, committees and organizations, I routinely accept pro bono cases. In that regard I have represented parties pro bono in divorces in instances where domestic violence was a part of the marriage. In fact, I represented a mother who wanted a divorce from her husband who had fathered a child with his wife’s minor daughter. The mother wanted to make sure that she obtained custody of the child and terminate her marriage with the perpetrator and to terminate any paternal and custodial rights the father normally would have. I have also prepared guardianships for families so that the children could enroll in school.
26. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

There is no official selection commission in my jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nominations to the federal courts.

I was recommended to the President by Honorable Bennie G. Thompson, United States Representative, 2nd Congressional District, Mississippi. Having been aware that there is a long time vacancy within the district, I advised Congressman Thompson that I was interested if the opportunity became available. In September 2009, I was contacted by staff from White House Counsel’s Office and informed that the office had become aware of my interest. I was further advised that Senator Thad Cochran desired to meet me and that I should make an appointment with his office. After scheduling the appointment, I contacted the White House Counsel’s Office to advise that the meeting had been confirmed.

On October 6, 2009, I met with Senator Cochran and two staff members. After our meeting, the staff members informed me that Senator Roger Wicker had learned that I was in town, and at his request I met with him. After returning to Mississippi, I spoke with White House Counsel to advise that the meetings had taken place.

Since January 21, 2010, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the United States Department of Justice. On March 1, 2010, I interviewed in Washington, D.C., with attorneys from the White House Counsel’s Office and the Department of Justice. On April 28, 2010, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

AFFIDAVIT

I, Carlton W. Reeves, do swear that the information provided in this statement is, to the best of my knowledge, true and accurate.

4-26-10

(Carlton W. Reeves)
(NAME)

(State of Mississippi)
MAXINE A. JACKSON
Commission Expires Nov. 12, 2011
(Notary)
Senator DURBIN. Thank you so much, Mr. Reeves.

Now, we would like to go slightly out of order, because I know that Senator Inouye, who is the President Pro Tempore of the U.S. Senate and Chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee was working diligently downstairs in an Appropriations Committee hearing and was unable to be at the beginning of this session, but I'd like to give him a chance now, if he would like to take the opportunity to say a few words on behalf of a nominee.

Senator INOUYE. I thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

I would like to warmly welcome the honorable Magistrate Judge Leslie Kobayashi and her family. Her husband, Clarence Pacarro, and their sons, Cody and Luke.

I am here to express my full support for Judge Kobayashi's nomination to the district court of Hawaii. Judge Kobayashi's maternal great-grandparents emigrated from Fikolka (ph). My grandparents came from there, also, to work in the sugar fields of Hawaii. Her paternal grandparents immigrated from Hiroshima to work as night watchmen and run a small family business.

You will have to excuse my voice. That is what appropriations does to you.

[Laughter.]

Senator INOUYE. Judge Kobayashi's father was the first in his family to attend college and dental school, and, following his graduation, he served in the U.S. Army during the Korean War and was posted at Fort Dix, New Jersey, where Judge Kobayashi was born.

The family returned to Hawaii, where her father started a dental practice and her mother worked as an elementary school teacher in Hawaii's school system.

Judge Kobayashi excelled in her studies, attended Wesleyan College and Boston College School of Law.

Judge Kobayashi is an experienced lawyer, with over 25 years of experience in Hawaii in both civil and criminal law. She has served as a Federal magistrate judge for over 10 years on the court to which she has been nominated.

Judge Kobayashi is admired and respected by her colleagues on the Federal bench. She is well versed in the legal processes as a sitting magistrate and I am confident that she will be able to take the bench in a seamless and swift transition.

Judge Kobayashi is also well respected by both the plaintiff and defense bars. She is known for her fair and evenhanded manner, her knowledge of the law, and her commitment to the principle that every person has their day in court.

Despite her busy schedule, Judge Kobayashi continues to be active in bar association activities and community service. She lectures at the William S. Richardson School of Law at the University of Hawaii, served on the Hawaii State Bar Association board of directors, and served as vice chair for the magistrate judges executive committee for the ninth circuit.

Her community involvement includes being on the board of directors for the Friends of Judicial History Center, and serving on the board of directors for the Volunteer Legal Services of Hawaii.
Judge Kobayashi's application was reviewed by a merit selection panel that Senator Akaka and I established. She was deemed well qualified for the position.

Judge Kobayashi is the American dream and like so many others, hers is the story of hard work, perseverance and success, and I'm proud to support the nomination of Judge Leslie Kobayashi for the United States District Judge, District of Hawaii.

She is well qualified for the position and would bring honor to the court. I urge your swift confirmation.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much, Senator Inouye. We are honored that you would come join us at this committee, and I am certain that Judge Kobayashi is honored by your kind words.

Without objection, I am going to enter into the record a statement from Senator Inouye's colleague, Senator Akaka, strongly in support of your nomination, as well. You could not have two better or stronger friends in the U.S. Senate.

[The statement appears as a submission for the record.]

Senator INOUYE. Mr. Chairman, may I be excused?

Senator DURBIN. You are excused, and I know you have plenty to do. So thank you so much for being here, Senator Inouye.

Senator KYL and I will ask a few questions. Most of you have gone through extensive interviews and reviews of your background. So if the questions do not go on for a great period of time, it is not a reflection on our interest. Many things have already been asked and we have that record, and some questions will be sent later, which we hope that you will attend to in a timely way.

Senator KYL. Besides, it is really hot.

Senator DURBIN. Senator Kyl has some problems with the heat from the lights here. So we are going to try to move this along, if we can.

Mr. Reeves, yours is an historic nomination. You are the first African-American nominated for a Federal judgeship in the State of Mississippi in 25 years, since Judge Henry Wingate was nominated by President Reagan in 1985.

Mississippi, as many know, has the highest percentage of African-Americans of any state in the Nation. So your nomination says a lot.

Can you talk to us about the importance of racial diversity on the Federal bench in Mississippi, given your personal experience growing up in Mississippi and your knowledge of how far your state has come?

Mr. Reeves. Thank you for the question, Senator Durbin. It is extraordinarily important that the judiciary reflects the population in the states. Judges serve several functions, role models to other lawyers, role models to students, role models to the people who come before the court.

People need to see that they have a chance; that they, too, can one day come to the great hall of the Senate and be nominated by a President to be a judge.

As past president of the Magnolia Bar Association, we trumpeted that notion. We spoke about the need for diversity throughout the State of Mississippi and actually throughout the country, because equal justice under the law, people need to believe that a cross-section of the community can serve as judges and that they can administer justice and that they will obey and respect the rule of law.

And those are just some of my thoughts, sir.

Senator Durbin. I thank you for that. I have a question for the other three nominees, because you all share a background as prosecutors. And occasionally, Senator Kyl, I will have a request for visitation in Chicago from a group of criminal defense lawyers and they will say to me, “Durbin, you are a pretty good guy, but it seems like everybody you put on the bench is a former prosecutor. So when are you going to start looking for criminal defense lawyers so we can have a little balance on that bench?”

So I would like to ask you, Ms. Casper, when the criminal defense bar takes a look at your background, are they going to feel like it is an uphill battle when they go into your court?

Ms. Casper. I don’t believe so, Senator. Thank you for the question. Although I’ve spent a significant part of my career as a prosecutor, I think I certainly have a reputation of being a straight shooter who is fair and impartial and can be fair and impartial, if I’m so lucky as to be confirmed.

I would also say that the role of a prosecutor is to do justice and in order to properly discharge my duties as a prosecutor, I necessarily had to look across the—at the other side and the obligations of discovery disclosures and appropriate recommendations for disposition are things that I had to consider in my role as a prosecutor.

I would also say that I’ve spent a fair amount of my time working with criminal defense attorneys in Massachusetts, most recently on a cross-section of bar leaders, both criminal defense attorneys, prosecutors and law enforcement, on a wrongful conviction task force, where we worked cooperatively to look at ways to improve the judicial system so that we can avoid even the possibility of wrongful convictions.

So I think based on all of that, both my experience, as well as my reputation and commitment with working with folks on both sides of the aisle, I think I would be a fair and impartial judge.

Senator Durbin. Ms. Kobayashi, as magistrate, have you dealt with many criminal cases and sentencing questions?

Judge Kobayashi. Thank you for that question. Yes, I have. And we have trials up to full misdemeanors as magistrate judges and handle all of the pretrial matters in felony cases.

So I think that experience serves me well in terms of dealing with both sides, in terms of prosecution and defense. And in the role of a judge, you quickly learn that you are nonpartisan; that you do need to look at both sides equally and with a keen eye to make sure that both sides follow the rules and are heard fairly.

So I don’t believe that will be a problem, but I appreciate the question.

Senator Durbin. Mr. Chang, I do not know if you heard—you may have heard my earlier question to Judge Murguia about the crack/powder sentencing disparity, and this has been an issue which this Committee has addressed and we have considered for some time.

What experience have you had involving that type of sentencing or anything similar to it?
Mr. Chang. Thank you for that question, Senator. I have prosecuted many crack cases, as well as powder cocaine cases. And so I have operated under this sentencing framework.

Senator Durbin. And what is your experience? The notion is that it is particularly punitive, and if it is punitive, Congress wrote the law, the President signed it, and it is a law that, as a prosecutor, you would face.

But we have had, for instance, Federal judges come before the Judiciary Committee and talk about the problem it has created, particularly within the African-American community. They just feel that this disparate sentencing for this particular narcotic raises a serious question about whether there is justice in the system.

Have you felt that in the course of trials or prosecutions you have been involved in?

Mr. Chang. Well, Senator, thank you for that question. In my experience, when the sentencing regime—the sentencing guidelines are mandatory, there was very little wiggle room. And I think as you stated, some Federal judges have expressed concern over that.

Now, of course, the sentencing guidelines are advisory and the Supreme Court ruled in a case, Kimbrough v. United States, that judges may indeed consider individual circumstances and deviate from that crack/powder disparity that you spoke of.

And if I’m fortunate enough to be confirmed, then I would operate under that framework, as well, where the guidelines, while important, are advice and not mandatory.

Senator Durbin. Thank you.

Senator Kyl.

Senator Kyl. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

First, let me just comment generally that I was really moved by each of the nominees’ introduction of members of their family, and it is very clear and I think it says something about the nominees themselves that they feel great inspiration from their families, their friends, those who cannot be here, those who have passed on, but who you remember fondly, and it is meaningful to us here.

I would also echo what Senator Durbin said, the lack of a 3-hour grilling here does not suggest that we do not care about your nominations. We have a lot of information in front of us. I know you want that grilling here until 8 tonight, but I just want to assure the members of the family that the fact that we do not spend as much time as we did on a nomination, for example, like Solicitor General Kagan, who has been nominated to the Supreme Court, certainly does not suggest lack of interest.

I, too, will be relatively brief, perhaps having a question or two for the record.

Senator Durbin raised a matter, and, Mr. Reeves, going back a little bit in time here, you mentioned your chairmanship of the Magnolia Bar Association, and I wanted to ask you a couple questions about a letter that you wrote at that time relative to the Southwick nomination.

Leslie Southwick was nominated to serve on the fifth circuit court of appeals, as you know, was confirmed, sits on that court today, in a bipartisan vote. But you wrote a pretty stern letter in opposition to his nomination, if I could quote just from a couple pieces of that and then ask you some questions about that, and this was in 2007.

First of all, you talked about President Bush, and I will just quote this. You said, “President Bush has demonstrated an absolute disdain for appointing African-Americans to the Federal judiciary, particularly within the states representing the fifth circuit. Leslie Southwick's nomination continues a stark pattern of racial discrimination and racial exclusion in appointments by President Bush to the fifth circuit and to the Federal judiciary from Mississippi.”

Now, do you still stand by that accusation made back in 2007?

Mr. Reeves. I'm sorry, sir. Yes. In 2007, I was the president of the Magnolia Bar Association and we represent—the Magnolia Bar Association was founded in 1955, because the African-American lawyers who were lawyers back then were precluded from being members of the Mississippi Bar Association.

So the Magnolia Bar Association has always been extraordinarily inclusive. It is bi-racial now and at all levels.

In 2007, we were advocating the need for diversity in the Federal judiciary in Mississippi. That was one of the main things that the Magnolia Bar Association itself was advocating, because in the 200 years that the fifth circuit has been in existence, there had only been two African-Americans who had been appointed to the fifth circuit.

In the time that the State of Mississippi had been into the Union, since 1817, there had been only one African-American appointed to the Federal judiciary. And in the last 20 years or so, there have been appointments, nominations to the Federal judiciary in Mississippi. I think the number had exceeded 15 or 17, if you include all the Federal judges there in Mississippi in 2007, and not—and there had only been one African-American appointed and he was appointed in 1985, which was over 20 years ago.

So as an advocate on behalf of the legal system, as an advocate on behalf of the Magnolia Bar Association, that's why those—those represent the comments that were made as my presidency of the Magnolia Bar Association.

Senator Kyl. And I can appreciate that. My question really goes to a matter of judicial temperament, the way in which a person acts as a judge when—in fact, you made the point that a judge can be a role model; that both lawyers and others, litigants, who come before a court want to know they are treated fairly and, in that respect, if they see in the judges a reflection of the community, I think that is a good thing. I totally agree with your comment on that.

But would it not have been more judicious to say—if this was your opinion, and I will ask you whether it was. Judge Southwick is a fine man, a good lawyer, and would make a good judge. However, it is time that an African-American or some other minority member be appointed to the fifth circuit court of appeals.

Would that not have been a better way to approach this than opposing the nomination and, in fact, using pretty harsh language regarding Leslie Southwick himself?

Mr. Reeves. Well, thank you for the question. I know Judge Southwick. We worked together on some things with the American Inns of Court. We just disagreed, as president of the Magnolia Bar Association at the time, we just disagreed with the nature of the appointments that had been made throughout the fifth circuit, throughout the country at the time.

There had been a dearth of black or any minority candidates nominated by the President during the years of 2000 to 2008, and the Magnolia Bar made that one of its critical issues over the last several years.

I think the full context of my letter, I do think that in that context of the letter, I don’t criticize Judge Southwick’s abilities or anything of that nature.

And while the President had the prerogative to nominate a person of his choice, we thought, as the Magnolia Bar Association, that the Senate had an equal duty to make sure that it looked at the scope of the land and tried to encourage some diversity throughout the judiciary.

Senator Kyl. Mr. Chairman, do you mind if I just do a follow-up question or two here, and then that will be it?

And I can understand. That is why I am asking, and, again, I ask this as a question that goes to your judicial temperament, how you will conduct yourself on the bench, and I think it is important.

It would have been one thing to say it is time that an African-American is nominated and confirmed for the fifth circuit court of appeals. But with regard to Leslie Southwick himself, and I will just quote another thing from the letter, you expressed concern that Judge Southwick’s nomination could lead—and this is a quote—“could lead to an improperly narrow interpretation of the Constitution and the civil rights laws,” which suggests to me that it—well, it is not just a suggestion.

You said that his nomination could lead to an improperly narrow interpretation of the Constitution and civil rights laws, meaning that he would interpret the laws in that way.

Was that really your view about him as an individual and do you still view him in that way, as a member of the fifth circuit?

Mr. Reeves. Thank you. I appreciate the question. The full context of that quote, I believe, that you’re quoting from derives from a decision that Judge Southwick endorsed on the Mississippi court of appeals, wherein there was a fact dispute and some evidence that a supervisor at the Department of Human Services in the State of Mississippi referred to an employee, subordinate, as a “good old nigger.” And we thought that the—we thought, as Magnolia Bar Association and others, that the constraints on which Judge Southwick and others placed on that evidence, where the employee appeals board did not recommend the termination of the supervisor, because they believed that the “good old nigger” quote that was used was not bad enough, because “good” and “old” modified the word “nigger.”

And where I’m from, there is very little that can modify that word, and I do note that Judge Leslie Southwick—excuse me—Judge Leslie King, who is the African-American chief of the court of appeals, disagreed and wrote a strenuous dissent in that matter.

And ultimately, the decision that Judge Southwick ruled in favor of was overturned by the Mississippi Supreme Court. And again, the African-American judge on the Supreme Court wrote a concurring opinion, Fred Banks, someone whom I deeply admire and respect, really went through the why that word is so offensive for that particular agency and the fact that that supervisor was speaking for the agency itself, and that agency represents all of Mis-issippi.

Senator KYL. Mr. Chairman, if I could just ask one other question. You were on the board—or were on the board of the Mississippi Workers Center for Human Rights, its treasurer since 2008.

Are you still on the board of that organization?
Mr. Reeves. No, sir. I've since resigned.

Senator KYL. In 2001, there was a statement, called “statement of solidarity with migrants,” and I wonder if you are familiar with that statement and if you had anything to do with that statement.
Mr. Reeves. I'm not familiar. I'm not familiar.

Senator KYL. Well, then I will not ask you a question here. What I might do is put some information about that in a question and then take a look at it. And if you knew anything about it, then you can answer the question; if not, then, obviously, you do not need to do that.

Mr. Reeves. Thank you, Mr. Senator.

Senator KYL. Mr. Chairman, in view of the time, that is all the questions I have of the nominees. Again, I congratulate all of you for your nominations and hope that we can move forward with the consideration of the nominations as soon as possible.

Senator DURBIN. Senator Kyl, thank you so much for being here.
It is a session day when most people are heading out to another location, and thank you for your indulgence to be here at this moment.

I just want to put in the record that I had a chance to read the letter that Mr. Reeves sent on behalf of the Magnolia Bar Association and it refreshed my memory about the controversy associated with Leslie Southwick's nomination, not just the racial composition of the courts in Mississippi, but, also, that particular case, which was very controversial.

The only exceptions I would have in your letter are, in two different places, you refer to me in a positive way and——
[Laughter.]

Senator DURBIN. That may destroy your credibility with some. It is going to help you with me.

So I thank all of you for being here today, and particularly to the family and friends who have joined in this historic occasion for each one of the nominees.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is a Committee that Senator Kyl and I have been honored to serve on for quite a few years and the men and women who pass through this Committee hall, sit at this table, answer these questions are ultimately, in the vast majority of cases, then given an awesome responsibility to serve for life in the Federal judiciary and to make decisions relative to our laws and justice every single day.

So we take this very seriously and we certainly acknowledge each of you brings a wealth of experience to this, personal and legal experience, and we accept you at your word that, if given the chance to serve in the Federal judiciary, you will continue to use your very best judgment, consistent with the laws of our country and our Constitution.

At this point, I am going to ask that the Judiciary Committee stand in adjournment. If written questions are sent, if you will attend to them in a timely manner, we would appreciate it very much.

Thanks for being here, and thanks to all your family and friends.

Whereupon, at 5:26 p.m., the meeting was adjourned.

Questions and answers and submissions follow.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Responses of Denise Jefferson Casper
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Massachusetts
to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: I respectfully do not agree with this perspective. The Constitution, as interpreted by the Supreme Court, was written to withstand the course of time and, with amendments over time, it has done so.

2. Since at least the 1930s, the Supreme Court has expansively interpreted Congress’ power under the Commerce Clause. Recently, however, in the cases of United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995) and United States v. Morrison, 529 U.S. 598 (2000), the Supreme Court has imposed some limits on that power.

a. Do you believe Lopez and Morrison consistent with the Supreme Court’s earlier Commerce Clause decisions?

Response: Yes.

b. Why or why not?

Response: In Lopez and Morrison, the Supreme Court noted that its rulings in those cases were consistent with its earlier Commerce Clause precedent and it noted the same in its later decision, Gonzales v. Raich, 545 U.S. 1, 23-25 (2005).

3. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: Justice Kennedy’s analysis in Roper v. Simmons constituted the majority opinion in that case. If I am confirmed, I will be bound to follow Supreme Court precedent and will do so.

a. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

Response: The Supreme Court has ruled that “evolving standards of decency” are part of the legal framework for determining whether a criminal penalty rises to the level of cruel and unusual punishment under the 8th Amendment. If I am fortunate enough to be confirmed by the Senate, I will follow the precedent that the Supreme Court has set.

b. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?
Response: No. The Supreme Court has held that the death penalty is constitutional except in certain, limited instances. Accordingly, a federal district court judge, bound to follow Supreme Court precedent, could not rule that the death penalty was unconstitutional in all cases.

c. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge’s analysis?

Response: If I am confirmed and a constitutional challenge to the death penalty in a particular case was raised before me, I would apply and follow the applicable precedent of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the First Circuit.

4. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: Contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions are not binding precedent for any court of the United States. I would not rely on such law unless the precedent of the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals for the First Circuit required me to do so.

a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for “wise solutions” to legal problems?

Response: No. I would only look to foreign law if the precedent of the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals for the First Circuit required me to do so.

b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: None, unless the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals for the First Circuit said otherwise.

c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

Response: No.

d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?

Response: No, except to the extent that the precedent of the Supreme Court or the Court of the Appeals for the First Circuit requires otherwise.
Responses of Denise Jefferson Casper
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Massachusetts
to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. You were part of task force formed to study ways to improve the Boston criminal justice system in 2008 and 2009. The Task Force recommended legislation that would allow “postconviction access to and testing of forensic evidence and biological material by defendants who claim factual innocence” and require the retention of biological material from criminal cases.

a. Do you believe individuals have a postconviction right to access and test forensic evidence and biological material relevant to their case?

Response: No, as the Supreme Court in District Attorney’s Office for the Third Judicial District v. Osborne, 129 S. Ct. 2308 (2009) recognized, there is no freestanding right to post-conviction access or testing of biological evidence. Osborne, 129 S. Ct. 2320-23 (rejecting that Osborne had “a freestanding and far-reaching constitutional right” to such access and testing, but noting that forty-six states and Congress have enacted statutes regarding access and testing to DNA evidence under certain circumstances). If confirmed, I will follow the precedent set by the Supreme Court.

i. If so, do you believe this is a constitutional right?

Response: No.

ii. If so, from where in the Constitution does this right originate?

Response: Not applicable.

b. On June 18, 2009, the Supreme Court issued an opinion in District Attorney’s Office for the Third Judicial District v. Osborne (129 S. Ct. 2308). The petitioner, who had been charged with kidnapping and sexual assault, sought to compel release of biological evidence for testing. The Supreme Court, in an opinion by Chief Justice Roberts, held that Brady does not extend to postconviction relief and that there is no “freestanding right to access DNA evidence for testing.”

i. Do you believe this decision was wrongly decided?

Response: No.

ii. Will you be able to apply this precedent even though you may personally disagree with it?

Response: Yes.

As you know, now that the Sentencing Guidelines are advisory rather than mandatory, a judge may impose virtually any sentence ranging from probation to the statutory maximum.

a. Given your experience as a prosecutor, what level of deference will you show to the guidelines now that they are only advisory?

Response: The Sentencing Guidelines are an important tool in maintaining consistency in sentencing for similarly situated defendants convicted of similar crimes. Although the guidelines are now advisory after the Supreme Court’s decision in United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220 (2005), they remain the “starting point and the initial benchmark” for a sentencing court. Gall v. United States, 552 U.S. 38, 49 (2007). If confirmed, I shall apply and follow the precedent established by the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the First Circuit.

b. Do you commit to follow the guidelines?

Response: I will do so within the framework established by the binding precedent of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the First Circuit.

c. Do you agree that the sentence a defendant receives for a particular crime should not depend on the judge he or she happens to draw?

Response: Yes.

As you may know, President Obama has described the types of judges that he will nominate to the federal bench as follows:

“We need somebody who’s got the heart, the empathy, to recognize what it’s like to be a young teenage mom. The empathy to understand what it’s like to be poor, or African-American, or gay, or disabled, or old. And that’s the criteria by which I’m going to be selecting my judges.”

a. Without commenting on what President Obama may or may not have meant by this statement, do you believe that you fit President Obama’s criteria for federal judges, as described in his quote?

Response: Given that the President nominated me for the U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts, I assume that I must have met his criteria for federal judges.

b. During her confirmation hearing, Justice Sotomayor rejected this so-called “empathy standard” stating, “We apply the law to facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts.” Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?

Response: I do.
c. What role do you believe empathy should play in a judge’s consideration of a case?

   Response: I do not believe that empathy should play a role in a judge’s consideration of a case. A judge must base his/her decisions on a fair and impartial application of law to the particular facts of the case and, if confirmed, I will do so.

d. Do you think that it’s ever proper for judges to indulge their own subjective sense of empathy in determining what the law means?

   Response: I do not.

   i. If so, under what circumstances?

      Response: None.

   ii. Please identify any cases in which you’ve done so.

      Response: None, I have not served as a judge.

   iii. If not, please discuss an example of a case where you have had to set aside your own subjective sense of empathy and rule based solely on the law.

      Response: None, I have not served as a judge.

4. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

   Response: I received the questions on July 22, 2010. I reviewed the questions and the materials that the questions referenced and I drafted my responses. I then had discussion with an attorney from the Department of Justice. I finalized my responses and requested that the Department of Justice submit them on my behalf to the Senate Judiciary Committee on July 26, 2010.

5. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

   Response: Yes.

to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: No.

2. Since at least the 1930s, the Supreme Court has expansively interpreted Congress’ power under the Commerce Clause. Recently, however, in the cases of United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995) and United States v. Morrison, 529 U.S. 598 (2000), the Supreme Court has imposed some limits on that power.

   a. Do you believe Lopez and Morrison consistent with the Supreme Court’s earlier Commerce Clause decisions?

      Response: Yes.

   b. Why or why not?

      Response: In Gonzales v. Raich, 545 U.S. 1, 23-25 (2005), the Supreme Court explained that Lopez and Morrison were consistent with prior Commerce Clause precedent because the statutes at issue in Lopez and Morrison did not regulate economic activity.

3. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: Justice Kennedy’s analysis comprised an opinion of a majority of the Supreme Court, and if confirmed as a district judge, I would be bound to follow that precedent.

   a. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

      Response: I would follow any applicable Supreme Court case law and Seventh Circuit precedent. In Roper, the Supreme Court’s analysis began with legislative enactments and state practice, followed by a determination of the proportionality of the punishment at issue. 543 U.S. 551, 563-74.

   b. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?
Response: The Supreme Court has rejected the view that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases, and thus a district judge could not make such a finding.

c. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge's analysis?

Response: Because the Supreme Court has rejected the view that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases, a district judge would have no basis to apply any factors to ignore that binding precedent.

4. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: No.

a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for "wise solutions" to legal problems?

Response: As a judge of the United States courts, if confirmed I would be bound to follow the laws of the United States, not to resolve legal problems by reference to foreign countries.

b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: Under no circumstances would I do so, unless the binding decisions of the Supreme Court or Seventh Circuit required otherwise.

c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

Response: No.

d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?

Response: No, unless the binding decisions of the Supreme Court or Seventh Circuit required otherwise.

1. You have served for over ten years as a federal prosecutor. As you know, now that the Sentencing Guidelines are advisory rather than mandatory, a judge may impose virtually any sentence ranging from probation to the statutory maximum.

   a. Given your experience as a federal prosecutor, what level of deference will you show to the guidelines now that they are only advisory?

      Response: Although the Sentencing Guidelines are only advisory, the Supreme Court requires that district judges consider the Guidelines as “the starting point and the initial benchmark” in every sentencing. Gall v. United States, 552 U.S. 38, 49 (2007), in order to achieve Congress's “basic goal in passing the Sentencing Act... to move the sentencing system in the direction of increased uniformity.” Booker v. United States, 543 U.S. 220, 253 (2005).

   b. Do you commit to follow the guidelines?

      Response: Based on Supreme Court and Seventh Circuit precedent, in every sentencing I would give “serious consideration” to the Guidelines, Gall v. United States, 552 U.S. at 46, which “remain an essential tool in creating a fair and uniform sentencing regime across the country,” United States v. Mykytiuk, 415 F.3d 606, 608 (7th Cir. 2005).

   c. Do you agree that the sentence a defendant receives for a particular crime should not depend on the judge he or she happens to draw?

      Response: Yes.

2. As you may know, President Obama has described the types of judges that he will nominate to the federal bench as follows:

   a. Without commenting on what President Obama may or may not have meant by this statement, do you believe that you fit President Obama’s criteria for federal judges, as described in his quote?

      Response: Based on the fact that the President submitted my nomination, I assume that I fit his criteria for selection of federal judges. If confirmed, I would base my decisions solely on the facts and binding legal authorities.

b. During her confirmation hearing, Justice Sotomayor rejected this so-called “empathy standard” stating, “We apply the law to facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts.” Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?

Response: Yes.

c. What role do you believe empathy should play in a judge’s consideration of a case?

Response: I believe that a judge must treat all litigants and lawyers with respect, and also must strive to understand their respective arguments, but empathy plays no role in deciding a case. Cases must be decided solely on the facts and binding legal authorities.

d. Do you think that it’s ever proper for judges to indulge their own subjective sense of empathy in determining what the law means?

Response: No.

i. If so, under what circumstances?

Response: None.

ii. Please identify any cases in which you’ve done so.

Response: I have not served as a judge, and thus I have not had occasion to indulge my own subjective sense of empathy in determining what the law means. But if confirmed, I would apply only binding legal authorities in determining what the law means, which is the same approach I have adopted as a practicing lawyer.

iii. If not, please discuss an example of a case where you had to set aside your own subjective sense of empathy and rule based solely on the law.

Response: I have not served as a judge, and thus I have not had occasion to set aside my own subjective sense of empathy and rule based solely on the law. But if confirmed, I would set aside subjective views and would apply only binding legal authorities in rendering decisions, and I have adopted the same approach as a practicing lawyer in determining what legal positions to advance.

3. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received a copy of these questions by email from Department of Justice (DOJ) staff on July 22, 2010, and I drafted answers to the questions. I then had discussions with DOJ staff and provided a final version for transmittal to the Committee.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: The Constitution is a permanent framework for the principles of American law. I do not agree with the perspective that the Constitution evolves as society interprets it.

2. Since at least the 1930s, the Supreme Court has expansively interpreted Congress’ power under the Commerce Clause. Recently, however, in the cases of United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995) and United States v. Morrison, 529 U.S. 598 (2000), the Supreme Court has imposed some limits on that power.

   a. Do you believe Lopez and Morrison consistent with the Supreme Court’s earlier Commerce Clause decisions?

   Response: Yes.

   b. Why or why not?

   Response: The Supreme Court addressed, in Gonzales v. Raich, 545 U.S. 1, 17-23 (2005), that Lopez and Morrison are consistent with its earlier Commerce Clause decisions.

3. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: Justice Kennedy’s opinion was the Supreme Court’s majority decision. Supreme Court decisions are binding upon all lower federal courts and I would follow Supreme Court precedent in my rulings and decisions.

   a. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

   Response: I would look to Supreme Court and Ninth Circuit decisions to make the determination.

   b. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?
Response: The Supreme Court has consistently held otherwise. Judges in lower federal courts are bound to follow Supreme Court precedent and therefore I do not think that a judge could find under current Supreme Court decisions that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases.

c. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge’s analysis?

Response: As directed by the Supreme Court in Graham v. Florida, ___ U.S. ___, 130 S.Ct. 2011, 2022 (2010), the factors to be considered in evaluating whether a state’s death penalty law is constitutional would be the “objective indicia of society’s standards, as expressed in legislative enactments and state practice’ . . . [and] the standards elaborated by controlling precedents and by the Court’s own understanding and interpretation of the Eighth Amendment’s text, history, meaning, and purpose, . . .” (citations omitted).

4. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: No, unless the Supreme Court or the Ninth Circuit directs otherwise.

a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for “wise solutions” to legal problems?

Response: In interpreting American law and the Constitution, it is presently not appropriate to look to foreign countries for solutions. It would only be appropriate if the Supreme Court directs that it be done.

b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: I cannot think of any circumstances in which I would consider foreign law to interpret the Constitution, unless directed to do so by the Supreme Court.

c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

Response: No, unless the Supreme Court directs otherwise.

d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?

Response: No.

   a. Without commenting on what President Obama may or may not have meant by this statement, do you believe that you fit President Obama’s criteria for federal judges, as described in his quote?

      Response: Due to President Obama’s nomination of me, I assume that I meet his criteria for federal judges based upon my legal, judicial and personal experiences during my 27 years as a prosecutor, civil litigator, and United States magistrate judge.

   b. During her confirmation hearing, Justice Sotomayor rejected this so-called “empathy standard” stating, “We apply the law to facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts.” Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?

      Response: Yes.

   c. What role do you believe empathy should play in a judge’s consideration of a case?

      Response: Empathy is an important component of good judicial temperament. In deciding a case, however, empathy plays no role. A judge must apply the law to the facts dispassionately and without bias toward or against any person or party.

   d. Do you think that it’s ever proper for judges to indulge their own subjective sense of empathy in determining what the law means?

      Response: No.

      i. If so, under what circumstances?

         Response: None.

      ii. Please identify any cases in which you’ve done so.

         Response: None.

iii. If not, please discuss an example of a case where you have had to set aside your own subjective sense of empathy and rule based solely on the law.

Response: The parties in a civil case consented to have me, as a United States magistrate judge, serve as the trial judge. The plaintiff was the mother of a disabled child who sued the State of Hawaii’s Department of Education for intentionally discriminating against her and her son, and for retaliating against her for advocating for her child’s special education services. Her testimony was compelling but the evidence presented did not meet what the law requires. As a result, I granted judgment as a matter of law in favor of the defendant, and against the plaintiff.

2. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: The questions were forwarded to me by the Department of Justice. I reviewed the questions, did research, and prepared the responses. I had discussions with the Department of Justice, and sent my final responses to them with a request that they file my responses with the Senate Judiciary Committee.

to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: No. To the extent that by “living” document, you mean a Constitution that has an evolving interpretation unmoored from the text, I disagree with that perspective. I believe the Constitution is a fixed document whose text may be changed only through the amendment process.

2. Since at least the 1930s, the Supreme Court has expansively interpreted Congress’ power under the Commerce Clause. Recently, however, in the cases of United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995) and United States v. Morrison, 529 U.S. 598 (2000), the Supreme Court has imposed some limits on that power.
   a. Do you believe Lopez and Morrison consistent with the Supreme Court’s earlier Commerce Clause decisions?

Response: Yes.
   b. Why or why not?

Response: Because the Supreme Court has so held. In Gonzales v. Raich, 545 U.S. 1 (2005), the Court explained that Lopez and Morrison were consistent with prior Commerce Clause precedent because the statutes at issue in Lopez and Morrison did not regulate economic activity.

3. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: Justice Kennedy’s majority opinion is accorded the weight of precedent. Therefore, it is a decision that I am bound to follow and do not think it would be appropriate for me to comment on Justice Kennedy’s analysis.
   a. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

Response: I would follow Supreme Court precedent and apply the analysis that the Supreme Court has held should be applied.
   b. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?
Response: The Supreme Court has held that the death penalty is constitutional as a general matter. If confirmed, I would follow and apply that precedent.

c. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge’s analysis?
Response: I would follow Supreme Court precedent to determine the relevant factors.

4. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?
Response: There may be instances in which international law, which involves the interpretation of international contracts or the obligations of the United States under a treaty, may be relied on to resolve disputes involving such matters. Foreign law of other countries, by contrast, should not be relied on to determine the meaning of the United States Constitution.

a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for “wise solutions” to legal problems?
Response: It is appropriate to look to foreign law only if our own domestic law requires that I do so.

b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?
Response: I cannot currently envision any particular circumstance where I would consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution, but certainly would do so if the Supreme Court requires me to do so.

c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?
Response: I cannot currently envision any particular circumstance where I would consider foreign law when interpreting statutes, but certainly would do so if the Supreme Court requires me to do so.

d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment?
Response: If confirmed to the Ninth Circuit, I would adhere to Supreme Court precedent in this and all other areas of the law, as I have done as a district judge.

e. Other amendments?
Response: If confirmed to the Ninth Circuit, I would adhere to Supreme Court precedent in all areas of the law, as I have done as a district judge.

Responses of Mary H. Murguia Nominee to be U.S. Circuit Judge for the Ninth Circuit to the Written Questions of Senator Jon Kyi

1. A May 10, 1996 report of the television program 20/20 mentioned you in an investigatory report into then-U.S. Attorney Janet Napolitano’s refusal to seek a search warrant in a child pornography case. This particular search warrant was related to an investigation called “Operation Special Delivery.” In response to a written question Senator Grassley sent you following your confirmation hearing for the District Court, you described this operation as one “designed to target for prosecution those who possessed, produced and trafficked in child pornography.” The search warrant in question concerned a man named James Norman Moore, who allegedly ordered child pornography from the undercover postal inspectors conducting Operation Special Delivery.1 Mr. Moore’s name arose in the investigation in connection with the Spartacus organization, which apparently was an organization that had distributed both child pornography and legal pornography involving adult males.

   a. At that time, you were the Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division of the U.S. Attorney’s Office and supervised the violent crime section, which prosecuted child pornography offenses. Was it your responsibility to review requests for search warrants? If yes, did you review this particular request for a search warrant?

Response: As Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division of the United States Attorney’s Office for the District of Arizona, I supervised the Violent Crime Section, which prosecuted sexual crimes against children, including child pornography. I supervised the Assistant United States Attorney (“AUSA”) assigned to Mr. Moore’s case. As Deputy Chief, it was my role to review all search warrants in the Violent Crime Section and to provide guidance to AUSAs with respect to the issuance of search warrants. Along with the Criminal Chief and the line AUSA, I did review the specific request for a search warrant related to Mr. Moore.

   b. Please explain your decision about whether the search warrant sought in that case should have been approved.

Response: It was my view, and that of the United States Attorney’s Office for the District of Arizona, that the investigation had not yet developed sufficient information to support a search warrant that would lead to a successful prosecution resulting in Mr. Moore’s conviction. My view at the time was that the prosecution of Mr. Moore would have been more likely to succeed if the case agents could have obtained additional evidence of guilt, and that further factual development in the case would have been prudent and important, especially in light of the prospect of an entrapment defense.

2. According to a post on the Wolters Kluwer “Judiciary Watch” website:

“Lawyers interviewed for the Almanac of the Federal Judiciary said the following about Marguia: ‘She is a fast learner with excellent legal skills.’ ‘Her legal ability is much stronger on the criminal side than civil.’ ‘She is always polite and courteous to all.’ ‘She has an ever so slight leaning toward the underdog or the plaintiff [in civil cases].’ ‘The government gets most of the close calls in trial. She has a strong pro-government bias. She makes it tough for criminal defense lawyers.’”

Please respond.

Response: Bias or favoritism has no place in our judicial system, and I endeavor to provide all litigants that appear before me with equal consideration under the law. I believe that my record as a district court judge reflects my commitment to resolving legal questions by applying controlling precedent to the facts at issue.

Although my own personal experience as a litigator was in criminal law, during my ten years on the district court bench, I have presided over a wide range of civil matters, including multi-district litigation and other complex matters. I believe that my record reflects that I have the legal skills, ability and experience to preside over all types of cases, both civil and criminal, in a fair and just manner.

At a June 27, 2004 Conference event, you said:

"It is very important that the bench reflect the people it judges, and we have more Latinos in positions on the bench, but still not enough. And I think it is very important to have the bench reflect the community, and it is also important for people like me to remember that it's obviously your intellect and your character contribute in defining who you are, but I also think that your heritage and your culture is key, and that's what makes the person who is the judge, and who is invoking sentences or making decisions."

a. Do you believe it is proper to consider the ethnicity of a judge and the ethnic makeup of the community in selecting federal judges?

Response: I believe it is important that the public has confidence and trust in the judiciary. I believe a judiciary reflecting the people it serves inspires confidence in our system of justice. Everyone who appears before a judge should feel that they are a participant in a fair and just process, even when the judge rules against them. This is the notion I was trying to convey at the conference.

b. What role, if any, do you think diversity should play in the composition of the judiciary?

Response: I believe it is important that the federal bench reflect the American public, as this reinforces confidence in this nation’s courts. I strongly believe that a judge’s personal background should never influence his or her decisions.

c. How can litigants know that they are being treated fairly if a judge’s heritage and culture is key to imposing sentences and making decisions, rather than the application of the law to the facts?

Response: A judge’s heritage and culture should never play a role in a judge’s determination of a case, and I did not intend to suggest it should. Judges should base their decisions solely on the law and the facts presented.

d. On July 17, 2007, President Obama made the following comment:

"You look at the case law, and most of the time the law is pretty clear – 95% of the time. Justice Ginsburg, Justice Thomas, Justice Scalia – they're all gonna agree on the outcome. But it's those 5% of the cases that really count.

And in those 5% of the cases what you get to look at it is: What is in the justice’s heart? What’s their broader vision of what America should be? You know, Justice Roberts said he saw himself just as an umpire. But the issues that come before the court are not sport. They’re life and death. And we need somebody who’s got ... the empathy to recognize what it’s like to be a young, teenaged mom; the empathy to understand what it’s like to be poor, or African-American, or gay, or disabled, or old. And that’s the criteria by which I’m going to be selecting my judges.”

Considering your statement that your heritage and culture make “the person who is the judge, and who is invoking sentence or making decisions,” do you agree that it is important that a judge have “the empathy to recognize what it’s like to be a young, teenaged mom” or “the empathy to understand what it’s like to be poor, or African American, or gay, or old?”

Response: A judge must be committed to the rule of law. As a district court judge, it is not uncommon for me to see human drama unfold in the courtroom. I recognize when victims of crime who appear before me have suffered devastating loss or injury. I also recognize when criminal defendants have had a profound lack of support, moral guidance, or opportunity. But as a judge, it is important that everyone who appears before me is treated fairly, and that my decisions are not based on sympathy or emotion. I decide cases based upon the facts presented by the parties and legal precedent that governs the dispute. My decisions are not based on empathy.

2. In Center for Biological Diversity v. Kempthorne, No. CV 07-0038-PHX-MHM, 2008 WL 659822 (D. Ariz. Mar. 6, 2008), you entered an order enjoining the U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife’s attempt to delist the Desert bald eagle as an endangered species along with all other bald eagles. You found the agency acted arbitrarily and capriciously in declining to undertake a full review of whether the Desert bald eagle should be treated separately, and your decision was based on the fact that internal government scientists disagreed on the matter and that the agency had impermissibly consulted with the Arizona Game & Fish Department. The decision is somewhat unusual in that you chose to enjoin the agency’s action, rather than remand the matter for further administrative proceedings. In doing so, you acknowledged that “the ordinary remedy in finding an agency’s action arbitrary and capricious is to remand for further administrative proceedings, and that [the court] can order equitable relief or remand with specific instructions only in rare circumstances.” Nonetheless, you found the bald eagle case “was one of those rare circumstances” because “[t]he discrete population of Desert bald eagles, which the FWS acknowledges can be easily cordoned off and is still particularly vulnerable to habitat threats, should not face increased risks to its existence prior to a lawful

a. Please explain what standard you applied in this case to determine that equitable relief was warranted, rather than a remand of the matter to the agency for further administrative proceedings.

Response: In Center for Biological Diversity v. Kempthorne, I determined that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's August 2006 90-day finding that the Desert bald eagle population did not qualify as a distinct population segment was arbitrary and capricious under the Administrative Procedure Act ("APA"), 5 U.S.C. § 702 et seq. In their complaint, the plaintiffs requested the specific equitable relief that was ultimately awarded. In deciding to grant the requested relief, I applied relevant Ninth Circuit case law concerning the issuance of injunctive relief in environmental cases, specifically, Idaho Watersheds Project v. Hahn, 307 F.3d 815 (9th Cir. 2002), and Earth Island Inst. v. Hogarth, 494 F.3d 757 (9th Cir. 2007). After considering these binding Ninth Circuit precedents, along with several persuasive federal district court opinions, I determined that equitable relief was required to maintain the status quo with respect to the Desert bald eagle population at the time the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service made its arbitrary and capricious 90-day finding. The status quo at the time was that the Desert bald eagle was listed as threatened under the Endangered Species Act ("ESA"), 16 U.S.C. § 1531 et seq. Thus, I determined that it would be appropriate for the Desert bald eagle population to remain listed as threatened under the ESA until the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service was able to engage in a status review. The parties did not request that I reconsider my ruling and did not attempt to appeal my decision. Because the case is currently ongoing, and because the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has filed a motion to dissolve the injunction after completing the status review and 12-month finding, it would be inappropriate for me to offer any additional comments on this matter.

b. I understand that, in this case, you determined the agency had misapplied the standard prescribed for the determination in question, but do you generally believe that the determination of an administrative agency charged with regulating and administering a specialized area should be deferred to by Article III Courts?

Response: I understand that the decisions of an administrative agency are entitled to deference so long as the agency is not acting outside the scope of its statutory authority or inappropriately within that scope.

c. Do you believe any personal views you hold played a role in your decision that the case was a "one of those rare circumstances" where an injunction against agency action was warranted, rather than a reversal and remand for further administrative proceedings?

Response: No. My March 2008 decision in this case was guided solely by controlling Ninth Circuit precedent as applied to the facts presented by the parties. My personal views do not influence my decisions in my cases.

3. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I reviewed relevant materials, case law, and my previous orders, including the summary judgment order I issued in March 2008 in Center for Biological Diversity v. Kempthorne. I then drafted answers and had discussions with the United States Department of Justice. I finalized my answers and instructed the Department to submit them on my behalf to the Committee.

4. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.
Responses of Carlton W. Reeves
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Southern District of Mississippi
to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: No. The Constitution is a document that is circumscribed by its text and deference must be accorded to its text. The Constitution can only be changed through the amendment process.

2. Justice William Brennan once said: “Our Constitution was not intended to preserve a preexisting society but to make a new one, to put in place new principles that the prior political community had not sufficiently recognized.” Do you agree with him that constitutional interpretation today must take into account this supposed transformative purpose of the Constitution?

Response: No.

3. Do you believe judicial doctrine rightly incorporates the “evolving understandings of the Constitution forged through social movements, legislation, and historical practice”?

Response: No. I believe that judicial doctrine is governed stare decisis.

4. Do you believe empathy is “an essential ingredient for arriving at just decisions and outcomes” and should play a role in a judge’s consideration of a case?

Response: No. Empathy should play no role in a judge’s consideration of a case.

5. Since at least the 1930s, the Supreme Court has expansively interpreted Congress’ power under the Commerce Clause. Recently, however, in the Morrison, 529 U.S. 598 (2000), the Supreme Court has imposed some limits on that power.

   a. Do you believe Lopez and Morrison consistent with the Supreme Court’s earlier Commerce Clause decisions?

      Response: Yes.

   b. Why or why not?
Response: In Gonzalez v. Raich, 545 U.S. 1, 23 (2005), the Supreme Court held that Lopez and Morrison preserved the "larger context of modern-era Commerce Clause jurisprudence."

6. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the "evolving standards of decency" to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: Justice Kennedy’s concurring opinion provides the controlling precedent in this case. My personal views do not matter as all district judges are bound by the decisions of the United States Supreme Court, and if confirmed, I will follow Supreme Court precedent.

   a. Do you agree that the Constitution’s prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment “embodies a principle whose application is appropriately informed by our society’s understanding of cruelty and by what punishments have become usual?”

   Response: My understanding of Supreme Court precedent is that Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551, 560 (2005) states that “[t]he prohibition against ‘cruel and unusual punishments,’ like other expansive language in the Constitution must be interpreted according to its text, by considering history, tradition and precedent, and with due regard for the i purpose and function in the constitutional design.”

   b. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

   Response: As a district judge, if confirmed, I would be bound by the law and the facts presented before me as well as the precedent of the United States Supreme Court and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

   c. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?

   Response: No. The United States Supreme Court has declared that capital punishments is a constitutionally sanctioned punishment in many circumstances.

   d. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge’s analysis?

   Response: The only factors that must be relevant to a district judge’s analysis are those dictated by the United States Supreme Court and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.
7. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: No.

a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for “wise solutions” and “good ideas” to legal and constitutional problems?

Response: As a district judge, it is only appropriate if required under the precedent of the United States Supreme Court and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: The only instance in which I would consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution is if United States Supreme Court precedent or precedent of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals dictates that I must consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution.

c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

Response: No, unless United States Supreme Court precedent or precedent of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals dictates otherwise.

d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?

8. As you noted in your testimony, the Magnolia Bar Association has a storied history and the noble goal of striving for justice for all Mississippians. In 2007, in your capacity as President of the Magnolia Bar Association, you wrote a letter of opposition to President Bush’s nomination of Leslie Southwick to the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. In that letter, you stated that your reason for opposing him was that his nomination continued “a stark pattern of racial discrimination and racial exclusion in appointments by President Bush to the Fifth Circuit and to the federal judiciary from Mississippi … [and] Judge Southwick’s record as a state court of appeals judge in Mississippi suggests that he is not the right person for the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals at this time in our history, and that his presence there could lead to an improperly narrow interpretation of the constitution and the civil rights laws.”
You also said you “question whether Judge Southwick will properly enforce the law when it comes to the rights of those who are unpopular and who are marginalized by the political process.” You continued that you hoped President Bush would “reconsider and perhaps nominate someone who [would] add to the Fifth Circuit’s stature, diversity, and sensitivity to the need to enforce fully the civil rights laws.”

a. Judge Southwick was confirmed to the Fifth Circuit by a bipartisan vote of 59-38. Do you believe his presence on the Fifth Circuit has lead to an “improperly narrow interpretation of the constitution and the civil rights laws?”

Response: No.

b. Do you believe Judge Southwick has “properly enforce[d] the law when it comes to the rights of those who are unpopular and who are marginalized by the political process?”

Response: Yes.

c. Do you believe Judge Southwick has added to the “stature” of the Fifth Circuit during his almost three years on the court?

Response: Yes.

d. Do you believe he should have been confirmed to the Fifth Circuit?

Response: No.

e. Do you stand by your earlier statements?

Response: Yes.

f. If you are confirmed to the District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi and a case you decide is appealed, Judge Southwick could sit on the three-judge panel that reviews your decision. Given your strong criticism of his nomination, what assurances can you give the Senate that you will accept the legitimacy of a ruling that he authors or with which he concurs if a majority the panel comes to a different conclusion in a case than you did?

Response: I have great respect for Judge Southwick. I will follow and respect the precedent of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, no matter the authors or members of the panel.
9. In the 2007 letter, you claimed “the Senate and its judiciary committee must ensure that the nominations do not form a pattern that is racially discriminatory in purpose or effect.”

a. Do you believe this committee could properly reject a nominee because it believes that nominee was chosen because of his or her race?

Response: The United States Senate has the Constitutional role and duty of providing advice and consent to the President on his judicial nominations, and I believe the Senate can reject a nominee for any reason.

b. Is it your contention that the United State Senate could properly vote to reject an otherwise qualified judicial nominee, if that nominee’s race would create or continue a perceived racial imbalance on a court?

Response: Yes. The advice and consent clause of the Constitution does not restrict the Senate’s reasoning in performing this function.

i. If not, then why did your letter state “we ask that you not approve this nomination [of Mr. Southwick], but instead allow President Bush to reconsider and perhaps nominate someone who will add to the Fifth Circuit’s statute, diversity, and sensitivity to the need to enforce fully the Civil Rights Laws”? Please explain your statement.

Response: Not applicable.

10. In that same letter, you said the Fifth Circuit has applied a “narrow and overly technical interpretation of the constitution and the civil rights law.” Please list all the cases issued by the Fifth Circuit, either en banc or by a three-judge panel, that you believe applied a “narrow and overly technical interpretation of the constitution and the civil rights law” and explain why you believe they were “narrow and overly technical.”

Response: As a candidate for a district judgeship in the Fifth Circuit, I believe it would be disrespectful and inappropriate for me to criticize that court’s recent decisions. If confirmed, my personal views will not play a role in my jurisprudence. I will follow Fifth Circuit precedent and the precedent of the United States Supreme Court.

11. At your hearing, when asked about the importance of racial diversity on the federal bench, you said it is “extraordinarily important that the judiciary reflects the population in the states,” that “[p]eople need to see that they have a chance,” and “people need to believe ... that [judges] can administer justice and that they will obey and respect the rule of law.”
a. Do you believe the courts should contain a percentage of minority judges that are proportionate to the percentage of minorities in the community?

Response: No.

b. Do you believe presidents should employ affirmative action principles in the selection of federal judges?

Response: I believe that the President, as the holder of the Constitutional authority to nominate federal judges may employ whatever criteria he or she desires in selecting persons whose nominations are then forwarded to the United States Senate for its consideration.

c. Do you believe there is a relationship between a judge’s race and the legitimacy of his rulings?

Response: No.

d. Do you believe there is a relationship between a judge’s race and the perceived legitimacy of his rulings?

Response: No.

e. If justice is blind, why do you think people doubt that they “have a chance” in court if a non-minority judge is deciding their case?

Response: I do not think that people doubt that they “have a chance” if a non-minority judge is deciding their case.

f. Do you personally believe people do not “have a chance” in court if a non-minority judge is deciding their case?

Response: No.

g. Why do you think people doubt that a non-minority judge would “obey and respect the rule of law” to the same extent that a minority judge would?

Response: I do not think that people doubt that a non-minority judge would “obey and respect the rule of law” to the same extent that a minority judge would.

h. Do you believe non-minority judges will not “obey and respect the rule of law” to the same extent that a minority judge will?

Response: No.
i. If confirmed, would your race, the race of the parties or the lawyers before you, or any racially sensitive evidence or arguments play a role in your judicial decision-making? If so, how?

Response: No.

j. What exactly did you mean by these statements?

Response: My statement was intended to mean that I believe that minority judges can serve as role models to the public at-large and particularly members of the minority community who share the same race or sex, and have the opportunity to inspire minority members of the community to believe that they too could “have the chance” to sit on the federal bench.
Responses of Carlton W. Reeves
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Southern District of Mississippi
to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. According to your questionnaire, you have been a board member of the Mississippi Workers’ Center for Human Rights since 2006, and its treasurer since 2008. On December 18, 2001, that organization signed on to a “Statement of Solidarity With Migrants.” The entirety of that statement is reproduced below:

Statement of Solidarity With Migrants on the United Nations’ International Day of Solidarity with Migrants, December 18, 2001 prepared by the National Network for Immigrant and Refugee Rights

Today, to observe the second United Nations International Day of Solidarity with Migrants, we stand together to call upon the U.S. government to uphold the rights of all immigrants and refugees. In the wake of heightened attacks against immigrant communities since September 11, 2001, we call for an immigration policy built on the principles of dignity, justice, and equality that uphold the civil and human rights of all people, regardless of their race, religion, ethnicity, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, disability, immigration or citizenship status.

During the past three months, we have witnessed the devastating effects of fear, racism, and xenophobia on our communities. Immigrants have become the specific targets of law enforcement and public scapegoating in the name of national security. Law enforcement uses immigration procedure as a criminal punishment, targeting immigrant communities in the name of anti-terrorism, denying the most basic of civil and human rights protections to non-citizens.
Legislation passed hastily with little to no public dialogue, scrutiny, and participation continues to have disastrous effects for our communities, targeting immigrant workers, students, and families.

The use of military tribunals and secret evidence, the conditions under which over 1200 individuals have been detained and the additional “voluntary” questioning of over 5,000 individuals of Middle Eastern descent violates the most basic due process and equal protection rights. Hate violence and racial profiling against immigrant communities, including people of Middle Eastern and South Asian descent, Latinos and others who are alleged to be Arab, have resulted in fear, serious injuries, violence and even the death of at least three individuals. Increased militarization along the U.S.-Mexico border has exacerbated harassment, abuse, and racial discrimination in the region. Intensified employer discrimination, combined with an economic downturn for the service economy, has forced our communities into economic hardship. In the midst of humanitarian crises around the world, refugees to the United States and other wealthy nations now face increased barriers to their entry. We also emphasize the U.S. government’s accountability for the displacement and the creation of new migrant and refugee communities through its military actions in Afghanistan.

The U.S. must fulfill its commitment to uphold the human rights of all members of our country and globe. Security for all means ending the policies, laws, and practices of racial profiling and illegal detentions targeting immigrants, especially people of or alleged to be of Middle Eastern descent. We urge for the safety and protection of all communities to live free of fear, racism, and xenophobia.

In light of new legislative and executive policies, we call upon the U.S. government to:

- End the secrecy of the identity and location of those held in “anti-terror” sweeps, and stop the racial profiling and the illegal detentions of Arabs, Muslims, and other people of Middle Eastern and South Asian descent.

- Respect the due process and equal protection rights of all non-citizens and immigrants in detention, and refrain from holding individuals in indefinite detention.

- Uphold the civil liberties and human rights of all individuals, regardless of their immigration status, nationality, ethnicity, religion, political beliefs, gender, social class, or color of their skin.

- Recognize the contribution of immigrant workers, students, and families, and end discriminatory policies passed on the basis of legal status in the wake of September 11.

- Guarantee and provide relief to the loved ones of the victims and those unemployed in the World Trade Center attacks, regardless of immigration status, without intimidation or threat of deportation.
End harassment of immigrant communities fueled by the collaboration between local law enforcement and INS, FBI, and CIA in border and non-border areas.

Enact strong federal and state hate crime laws as a public policy statement that does not tolerate discrimination based on race, religion, ethnicity, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, disability, migration or citizenship status.

Enact a broad legalization program to help ensure civil liberties and other fundamental protections for all immigrants.

Reaffirm the commitment to and comply with the 1951 United Nations Convention on the Protection of Refugees.

Ratify the International Convention for the Protection of the Rights of All Migrants and Members of Their Families and adopt the Plan of Action from the 2001 UN World Conference Against Racism, Xenophobia, and Related Intolerance. The Convention, adopted on December 18, 1990, establishes a comprehensive framework to uphold the rights of migrants. The Plan of Action includes over 45 paragraphs specifically addressing the rights of migrants, refugees, asylum-seekers, and internally displaced persons.

a. Do you agree that “law enforcement uses immigration procedure as a criminal punishment” and “to deny the most basic of civil and human rights protections to non-citizens”?

Response: No.

b. Do you agree that the United States government engages or has engaged in “racial profiling and the illegal detention of Arabs, Muslims and other people of Middle Eastern and South Asian descent” during the War on Terror?

Response: No.

c. The statement called for the U.S. Government to “uphold the civil liberties and human rights of all individuals, regardless of their immigration status, nationality, ethnicity, religion, political beliefs, gender, social class, or color of their skin.” What civil liberties and human rights do you believe are not upheld by the U.S. Immigration laws and the agencies that enforce them?
Response: I believe that current U.S. Immigration laws uphold civil liberties and human rights of individuals and that the federal agencies enforce those basic rights.

2. In an August 1, 2006 letter you sent to Senators Specter and Leahy regarding the nomination of Michael B. Wallace to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals on behalf of the Magnolia Bar Association, of which you were then President-Elect, you said that “Wallace’s views on the Voting Rights Act clearly are at odds with those of the forward-thinking advocates and members of the judiciary who paved the way for enormous progress Mississippi has made since 1965.”

a. Do you still agree with that statement?

Response: Yes.

b. Was it your contention that Mr. Wallace’s views of the Voting Rights Act were, on the whole legally inaccurate, or were you simply arguing that his views of the law would yield what you considered to be sub-optimal results?

Response: It was the contention of the Magnolia Bar Association that Mr. Wallace’s views on the Voting Rights Act were legally inaccurate and were not supported by the text of the statute.

c. Do you believe it is proper for members of the judiciary to be ‘forward thinking,’ or should they merely focus on the meaning of legal texts under the established rules of interpretation and construction?

Response: The judiciary should focus on the meaning of the legal texts under the established rules of interpretation and construction together with the law and facts before them and be guided by the applicable precedent in their circuit and the precedent of the United States Supreme Court.

3. In a news article discussing voter-fraud precautions in the Presidential election of 2008, you were quoted as saying “we know there will be unprecedented steps to suppress the vote. I’ve been involved in elections in Mississippi in over 30 years and I do know the issues may change, but the methods and the methods to suppress the vote also change, but were [sic] ready.” David Kenney, Various Agencies Poised for Possible Election Problems, WLBT3, Oct. 20, 2008, http://www.wlbt.com/Global/story.asp?S=9275104. What evidence was there that there would be “unprecedented steps to suppress the vote” in the 2008 Presidential Election?
Response: Organizations with whom I had been working on voter protection initiatives had received a variety of complaints leading up to the election including: individuals had not received curb-side assistance during the relevant absentee voting period as authorized under the laws; voters were receiving calls questioning their ability to vote because they had voted in the primary election; voters were receiving calls questioning their criminal history and challenging their right to vote based on their criminal history even though the criminal history was not for crimes for which they could be disenfranchised.

4. Your May 30, 2007 letter to Senator Leahy regarding the nomination of Leslie Southwick to the Fifth Circuit, you stressed that Fifth Circuit nominees should have a “sensitivity to the need to enforce fully the Civil Rights laws.” I agree with you that federal judges should understand the need to fully enforce all federal laws.

a. Do you agree that the Voting Rights Act is a civil rights law?

Response: Yes.

b. Do you agree that officials at the Department of Justice should have “sensitivity to the need to enforce fully the Civil Rights laws?”

Response: Yes.

c. Following the Presidential election in November of 2008, video footage surfaced showing members of the New Black Panther Party, at least one of whom was wielding a knight stick, intimidating voters outside a polling place in Philadelphia. On Tuesday, July 6, 2010, J. Christian Adams, the lead attorney who prosecuted the individuals in the video, testified before the U.S. Civil Rights Commission. Mr. Adams testified that Associate Attorney General Thomas Perrelli overruled the unanimous recommendation of six career Department of Justice attorneys that the prosecutions continue. Assistant Attorney General Thomas Perez has testified that the facts and law did not support the case, but Mr. Adams' testimony revealed that career attorneys "made it very clear [to Mr. Perez] that continuing to say that the facts and the law don't support this case would not be consistent with the truth." Adams also testified that Deputy Assistant Attorney General Fernandes instructed Civil Rights Division attorneys to not pursue voter intimidation cases involving black defendants and white victims. Assuming Mr. Adams' testimony was accurate, do you think these actions show a "sensitivity to the need to enforce fully the Civil Rights laws?"

Response: I am not familiar with the case and would be hesitant to offer an opinion without all the facts and law before me.
5. On the swearing in of Jim Kitchens after Governor Haley Barbour appointed him to the Mississippi Supreme Court, Judge Kitchens apparently became emotional. You apparently commented on that fact to the press, saying that “I agree . . . that we have a new judge who has a heart.” Adam Lynch, First Black Judge Sworn In Under Barbour, JACKSON FREE PRESS, Oct. 20, 2009.

a. What did you mean by that statement?

Response: I believe the statement and article about which you are referring concerns the swearing-in of Malcolm Harrison as Hinds County Circuit Court Judge. Supreme Court Justice Jim Kitchens was not appointed by Governor Haley Barbour. Judge Malcolm Harrison was the first African-American appointed to a judicial vacancy in nearly six years. During his swearing-in Judge Harrison, apparently in reflecting on the significance of his achievement and the advocacy of the Magnolia Bar, cried. The quote attributed to me referred to Mr. Harrison showing that raw emotion.

b. On July 17, 2007, President Obama made the following comment:

“You look at the case law, and most of the time the law is pretty clear — 95% of the time. Justice Ginsburg, Justice Thomas, Justice Scalia — they’re all gonna agree on the outcome. But it’s those 5% of the cases that really count. And in those 5% of the cases what you got to look at it is: What is in the justice’s heart? What’s their broader vision of what America should be? You know, Justice Roberts said he saw himself just as an umpire. But the issues that come before the court are not sport. They’re life and death. And we need somebody who’s got . . . the empathy to recognize what it’s like to be a young, teenaged mom; the empathy to understand what it’s like to be poor, or African-American, or gay, or disabled, or old. And that’s the criteria by which I’m going to be selecting my judges.”

Considering your statement concerning Judge Kitchens, do you believe it is important that a judge have “the empathy to recognize what it’s like to be a young, teenaged mom” or “the empathy to understand what it’s like to be poor, or African American, or gay, or old?”

Response: I believe it is important for the judge to make sure that every person who participates in the judicial system is treated with respect and dignity. Judges must understand that their decisions impact persons. A judge in deciding cases, however, should always be bound by the facts and the controlling law and render decisions consistent with the facts and the law.

6. In a news release from the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund on May 27, 2008, you discussed the results of a study on juvenile offenders being given sentences of life imprisonment without the possibility of parole in Mississippi. You commented that “[p]rosecutors, law enforcement officials, lawyers, lawmakers and concerned citizens alike must pause and ask themselves how and why blacks can represent 80% of the kids sentenced to life without parole in a state whose total population is less than 40% African-American.”

a. Do you contend that juries and judges in Mississippi give harsher sentences to African-American offenders than they do to offenders of other races?

Response: In Mississippi, judges determine what sentence should be imposed. In certain circumstances, they have no discretion as they must impose mandatory sentences enacted by the state legislature. In all cases, however, there are discretionary decisions made by law enforcement authorities in the investigation and prosecution of crimes, and judges sometimes make discretionary calls throughout the criminal process. The legislature even engages in discretionary calls when enacting the legislation. The above quote refers to what I believed is Mississippi’s obligation to figure out why African-American children are sentenced to life without the possibility of parole at a rate much higher than white children who may be eligible for such a sentence.

b. Is it your contention that the statistics cited above show there is racial discrimination in criminal sentencing?

Response: No. I was wondering whether reasons should be sought for this statistical disparity.

7. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: After the Department of Justice forwarded the questions to me, I reviewed them, conducted research, and prepared draft responses. I had discussions with the Department of Justice. I then conducted additional research before finalizing my responses.

8. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.
SUBMISSIONS FOR THE RECORD

Statement of Senator Daniel K. Akaka Hearing on the Nomination of Leslie E. Kobayashi to be a U.S. District Court Judge for the District of Hawaii Senate Judiciary Committee
July 15, 2010

It is my honor to speak in support of Federal Magistrate Judge Leslie E. Kobayashi, who has been nominated to serve as a U.S. District Court Judge for the District of Hawaii. I believe she will do an excellent job upholding our nation’s laws and serve as a fine example in our justice system.

Judge Kobayashi has served as a Magistrate Judge in Hawaii since 1999. She was reappointed to a second term in 2007. Judge Kobayashi also has extensive experience in varied areas of law. She worked in private practice as an Associate at Fujiyama, Duffy, & Fujiyama, where she later became a Partner. Her experience in private practice focused on personal injury, product liability, professional liability, and complex and commercial litigation. Kobayashi has also worked for the City and County of Honolulu as a Deputy Prosecuting Attorney. Her work included research and writing for the appellate division, as well as prosecuting traffic, misdemeanor, and felony cases. Kobayashi has also served as an Adjunct Professor at the William S. Richardson School of Law at the University of Hawaii. Her extensive experience in litigation made her the perfect candidate to teach Pre-Trial Litigation classes to budding young lawyers.

Her educational background is equally varied and impressive. She attended the University of Hawaii for a few years and transferred to Wellesley College, where she earned her bachelor’s degree. She also attended the William S. Richardson School of Law in Hawaii, as well as the Boston College School of Law, earning her Juris Doctorate degree from the latter. Her experiences in various school and employment settings only add to her unique history and qualifications for this position.

Judge Kobayashi is highly respected by her peers. She was awarded the Outstanding Volunteer Award by the Hawaii State Bar Association in 1999. In 2001, she won the Outstanding Adjunct Professor Award at the William S. Richardson School of Law. Her community involvement has included serving as a secretary and board member on the Hahaione School Parent Teacher and Student Association, board member of Volunteer Legal Services of Hawaii, and board member of the Friends of Judicial History Center.

I had the opportunity to interview Judge Kobayashi. I believe she is an outstanding and well-respected jurist, and is known for her fairness and timely rulings. Her experience as a Magistrate Judge will ensure a smooth transition and I have no doubt that she will meet the challenges of this new position with the same dedication and commitment that she has displayed throughout her career. I wholeheartedly support her nomination to the U.S. District Court and extend to her my aloha. Thank you, Mr. Chairman, for the opportunity to share with the committee my strong support for Judge Kobayashi.

Re: Letter of Support for Edmond E. Chang, Nominee for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:

On behalf of the Asian American Bar Association of the Greater Chicago Area (“AABA”), we strongly urge the prompt confirmation of Edmond E. Chang for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. Mr. Chang is a well-respected member of the local Asian Pacific American legal community, and he is exceedingly well-qualified to serve on the federal bench. His historic nomination is a great source of pride for AABA and for our community.

AABA is the largest organization representing the interests of Asian Pacific American attorneys, judges, law professors, and law students in the Midwest. We are deeply committed to supporting the appointment of qualified Asian Pacific Americans to the judiciary, where Asian Pacific Americans are significantly underrepresented. Nowhere is the underrepresentation of Asian Pacific Americans more apparent than in the federal judiciary.
Asian Pacific Americans constitute almost 10% of the population of the Northern District of Illinois. Nevertheless, if confirmed, Mr. Chang would be the first Asian Pacific American Article III judge in the Northern District of Illinois or, indeed, any of the courts encompassed by the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. This includes the Midwest states of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana. In addition, if confirmed, Mr. Chang would become only the second Asian Pacific American Article III judge outside of the East and West Coasts. As such, Mr. Chang’s confirmation is of historical importance to the Asian Pacific American community, and would be an important step towards improving the diversity in the federal judiciary.

Mr. Chang’s distinguished record of professional accomplishments has prepared him well to serve as a federal district judge. First, after serving on the Northwestern University Law Review and graduating with honors, he gained experience with the federal judiciary as a law clerk to Hon. James L. Ryan of the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, and Hon. Marvin E. Aspen of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. In the Fall of 1996, while clerking for Judge Aspen, Mr. Chang began teaching Civil Rights Litigation at Northwestern University School of Law. He has continued to teach that class for over a decade. AABA appreciates the importance of training law students to practice an area of law that represents the means by which ordinary citizens pursue their constitutional rights.

Following his judicial clerkships, Mr. Chang joined the international law firm of Sidley & Austin, where he practiced employment and labor law, including representing clients in federal court. There, Mr. Chang not only practiced in a subject matter that comprises a significant portion of the federal civil docket, he also represented clients in pro bono matters. Afterwards, Mr. Chang joined the U.S. Attorney’s Office as a federal prosecutor, where he has served the community for over 10 years. In that time, he prosecuted a wide variety of federal crimes, including charges related to drugs, guns, child exploitation, fraud, tax evasion and extortion. After being promoted to Deputy Chief of the General Crimes section, Mr. Chang investigated and obtained charges and convictions against over 150 defendants. Mr. Chang ultimately was named as the Chief of Appeals, which is his current role, where he has supervised over 300 appeals in the Seventh Circuit and has continued to provide assistance in important prosecutions, including successful motions in the recent investigation and prosecution of former Illinois Governor Rod Blagojevich. Mr. Chang has received numerous awards and recognitions for his work, including the Star of Distinction, Chicago Crime Commission, Task Force Investigations and Prosecution Award; and a Certificate of Appreciation for Outstanding Contributing in the Field of Drug Law Enforcement.

Mr. Chang also has a long record of service to the legal community, particularly in promoting the Asian-Pacific American bar. He has spoken to Asian-Pacific American law student organizations on numerous occasions about the importance of public service and the need for Asian-Pacific American lawyers to break stereotypes in the legal profession. In an effort to assist the development of fair criminal justice systems in Asian nations, Mr. Chang has also presented his perspectives on the American legal system with visiting judges from China and Thailand.

Mr. Chang has been a contributing member to AABA for almost 14 years. This past year, Mr. Chang, together with three other current or former Assistant U.S.
Attorneys, presented a Continuing Legal Education program to AABA members to provide them with information regarding developments and opportunities at the U.S. Attorney’s Office. He has also assisted AABA in organizing its half-day Continuing Legal Education program on Litigation Practice and has generously participated in AABA mentoring programs. Mr. Chang was instrumental in drafting the initial judicial evaluation standards used by AABA and other organizations in connection with the evaluation of judicial candidates by the Alliance of Bar Associations. Judicial evaluations continue to play an integral part of AABA’s role in serving the legal community over the past decade.

Based on his impeccable qualifications, professional achievements, and commitment to public service, Mr. Chang would be a wonderful addition to the federal judiciary. Accordingly, AABA proudly endorses and urges the speedy confirmation of Edmond E. Chang for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois.

Very truly yours,

Sharon A. Hwang

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:

The Asian American Justice Center ("AAJC") is dedicated to the advancement of human and civil rights for Asian Americans through advocacy, public policy, public education, and litigation. AAJC is a national leader on issues of particular importance to the Asian American community including: affirmative action, anti-Asian violence prevention and race relations, census, immigrant rights, immigration, language access, and voting rights. AAJC carries out its mission by operating closely with its three affiliates: the Asian Pacific American Legal Center, the Asian Law Caucus, and the Asian American Institute. The organization also has a network of nearly 100 community-based organizations in 25 states and the District of Columbia. AAJC recognizes a critical need for greater participation by Asian Pacific Americans in the federal courts. Out of approximately 875 federal Article III judges, only ten are Asian Pacific Americans. This alarming underrepresentation of Asian Pacific Americans in the federal judicial system deprives our courts of unique perspectives that are essential to resolving the complex issues before our courts today.

AAJC urges the timely confirmation of Judge Leslie E. Kobayashi for the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii and of Mr. Edmond E. Chang for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. Both candidates have the necessary experience, integrity, intellect, and judgment that will make them outstanding U.S. District Court judges.

Judge Leslie E. Kobayashi is a proven federal judge for over 10 years to the court to which she has been nominated an. As a federal magistrate judge she handles an extensive civil and criminal docket, which averages over 40 matters per week. In her career, she has handled nearly 100 trials, including over 25 jury trials to verdict. The fact that Judge Kobayashi's reversal rate is less than one percent is testimony to her skill and capability as a jurist. Before being appointed to the bench, Judge Kobayashi had extensive experience as a Deputy Prosecution Attorney for the city and county of Honolulu, as a partner with a private law firm and as adjunct professor at the William S. Richardson School of Law at the University of Hawaii. A graduate of Boston College School of Law and Wellesley College, Judge Kobayashi's confirmation would elevate a qualified, respected jurist to the federal bench.

Judge Kobayashi's background is a uniquely American success story. Judge Kobayashi's maternal great-grandparents immigrated to Hawaii to work in the sugar plantations there. Her paternal grandparents also immigrated to Honolulu, where grandfather worked as a night watchman and her grandmother operated a Japanese noodle stand. Judge Kobayashi's father was the first member of his family to attend school in the United States, as well as the first to graduate from college. Born at Fort Dix, New Jersey, while her father was serving in the U.S. Army, Judge Kobayashi was raised in Hawaii. Judge Kobayashi's nomination is historic for the Asian Pacific American community in several respects: if confirmed, Judge Kobayashi would be the second female Asian Pacific American Article III judge in the District of Hawaii and only the fifth female Asian Pacific American Article III Judge ever. Judge Kobayashi is also involved in her community. She has served on the Board of Directors of Volunteer Legal Services of Hawaii and of the Friends of Judicial History Center. In addition, she is active in numerous other legal organizations, and is truly dedicated to public service.

Mr. Edmond E. Chang is an experienced federal litigator that has practiced extensively in the court to which he has been nominated. Mr. Chang is currently an Assistant U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Illinois, a position he has held since 1999. As an Assistant U.S. Attorney, Mr. Chang has served in the General Crimes and Narcotics & Gangs Sections, where he tried 30 federal cases and prosecuted numerous crimes, and as Deputy Chief of the General Crimes Section. Most recently, Mr. Chang has served as Chief of Appeals for the Criminal Division, where he supervised over 300 appeals before the Seventh Circuit and personally handled over 30 of those appeals. Before joining the U.S. Attorneys Office, Mr. Chang was an associate at Sidley Austin LLP. Mr. Chang has also served as an adjunct professor at the Northwestern University School of Law, where he teaches a course on civil rights litigation. Mr. Chang received his J.D. cum laude from the Northwestern University School of Law, where he was a member of the Order of the Coif and an Articles Editor for the Northwestern University Law Review.

Mr. Chang's upbringing reflects the values and sensibilities of a working, middle-class family. Mr. Chang's parents emigrated from Taiwan to the United States in the 1960s to pursue master's degrees at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale. His parents later moved to New York City, where Mr. Chang was born. Mr. Chang worked part-time jobs in high school, college and law school to make ends meet, including working the late shift at a donut shop, and the stockroom of department store. Although Mr. Chang was an engineering major at University of Michigan, he found tremendous enjoyment in writing, literature, and philosophy. As a result, he decided to go to law school, whereupon he returned to Illinois – the state where his parents first lived when they came to America. Mr. Chang's nomination is historic for the Asian Pacific American Community: if confirmed, Mr. Chang would be the first Asian Pacific American Article III Judge in any of the courts encompassed by the Seventh Circuit and only the second Asian Pacific American Article III judge outside of the East and West Coasts.

Asian Pacific Americans are woefully underrepresented on the federal bench. Indeed, while Asian Pacific Americans make up over 60 percent of the population in Hawaii, there has never been more than one Asian Pacific American federal district court judge serving in Hawaii at any given time. Further, since Asian Pacific Americans constitute almost 10% of the population of the population of Chicago and Cook County, the nomination of an Asian Pacific American for that jurisdiction is highly appropriate. Confirming Judge Kobayashi and Mr. Chang will enrich our judicial system because of their exceptional qualifications and background, their commitment to professional excellence and community service, and their integrity and character. Accordingly, the Asian American Justice Center urges for the speedy confirmation of Judge Leslie E. Kobayashi for the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii and of Mr. Edmond E. Chang for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois.

Sincerely,

Karen K. Narasaki

Chairman Leahy, Ranking Member Sessions, members of the Judiciary Committee, thank you for the opportunity to appear today to introduce Denise Jefferson Casper of Massachusetts, a nominee for the U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts. I offer my congratulations to Ms. Casper and her family who are here to share this special day. I know that Ms. Casper has worked very hard to get to this point in her career, and I am honored to have the opportunity to introduce her.

I had the pleasure of speaking with Ms. Casper several weeks ago and very much enjoyed our conversation. Ms. Casper is a dedicated public servant who has served Massachusetts in many capacities. In a 2008 article in Massachusetts Lawyer Weekly, Ms. Casper was described as “absolutely tireless. More importantly, she has a profound drive to make the community a better place for all of us, but especially the most vulnerable of us.” I understand that Ms. Casper is a courteous and humble woman, but is also a zealous and effective advocate.

In addition, Ms. Casper is an active community volunteer, having served in leadership roles with the Women’s Bar Association, the Big Sister Association of Greater Boston, the American Bar Association, and many other noteworthy organizations. She has trained the next generation of advocates and judges as an instructor at Boston University’s law school.

A graduate of Wesleyan and Harvard Law School, Ms. Casper currently serves as the Deputy District Attorney of the Middlesex District Attorney’s Office. Ms. Casper oversees the critical work of the Victim Witness Bureau, the Cyber Protection Program, and the PACT unit, which investigates and prosecutes public corruption, organized crime and financial crimes.

Ms. Casper has substantial litigation experience in private legal practice and in government—including several federal trials and before the Massachusetts Superior Court and state district court. In 1999, she became an Assistant U.S. Attorney and handled all levels of proceedings in arson, bank robbery, fraud, firearms offenses and multipledefendant drug trafficking and importation cases. Ms. Casper has also handled investigations, grand jury presentments and other pretrial matters involving wiretaps and several international extraditions. As Deputy Chief of the Organized Drug Enforcement Task Force, she oversaw other Assistant U.S. Attorneys and reviewed and approved charging documents, initiation of criminal investigations, plea agreements, and immunity orders.

In closing, I look forward to a thorough and fair examination of Ms. Casper’s record. Thank you, Mr. Chairman and Mr. Ranking Member, for your leadership and the opportunity to be here today.

Re: In Support of the Appointment of Hon. Leslie Kobayashi to U.S. District Court for the District of Hawai’i

Dear Senators Leahy and Sessions:

I have been an attorney in the State of Hawai’i since 1978. I am a past President of the Hawai’i State Bar Association and the Hawai’i Women Lawyers.
I have served on our state Disciplinary Board and numerous other positions involving our state bar and judiciary. I practice in one of the largest law firms in Hawai’i and have both personal knowledge of Magistrate Judge Leslie Kobayashi and knowledge of her reputation of among many other practitioners in our state.

I have known Leslie for over 20 years, both in a professional and social capacity. I and others in my law firm have had cases before her, and we have also worked with her in her prior capacity in private civil law practice.

Leslie is extremely smart, ethical, competent, and proficient. She has excellent legal ability and experience. She has good legal reasoning and communicative skills. I believe that she is fair and compassionate and has always been able to see both sides (or more) of any given situation. She is a hard worker, and has not hesitated to dig into complex or complicated problems that require substantial work. She has an excellent temperament which is well suited to the position of judge. She is calm, dispassionate, well reasoned and even handed. She has excellent civil litigation experience both as an attorney and as a Magistrate Judge. She has been a quick study on new issues brought to her in the court. She works easily and effectively with others. Her demeanor both on the bench and off the bench is always marked with a strong sense of professionalism and fairness.

Leslie also has an excellent reputation in the legal community for honesty, integrity and legal proficiency. She is so well respected as a magistrate judge in our federal court here that many attorneys have opted to waive their right to a jury trial in order to have their case heard by her. She has been fair, respectful of counsel and parties, and gives a wonderful image to our Judiciary. She has a successful settlement rate and is well respected for her capability to fairly assess issues and likely outcomes. She has also volunteered her time on numerous occasions to participate in programs to enhance the Judiciary, public education and access to justice. While there is always at least one losing party in every case, Leslie is remarkable in how many attorneys and parties are impressed with her, whether they win or lose in her court, for having given a fair consideration to the issues raised and done her best to rule in accordance with law.

I believe she is exceptionally qualified and would make an excellent District Court Judge.

Pursuant to policies of my law firm and our state bar association, I write this letter in my own behalf only, and not on behalf of any firm or association.

Thank you for your consideration. Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Very truly yours,

Re: Letter of Support for Edmund E. Chang, Nominee to US District Court, Northern District of Illinois

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:

I write this letter in support of Edmund Chang, who has been nominated for the position of United States District Judge for the Northern District of Illinois. Based on my experiences with Ed in the Chicago United States Attorney’s Office — where we overlapped for eight years — I respectfully submit that his keen intellect, exceedingly strong work ethic, even-keel demeanor and basic human decency will make him a first-rate jurist.

During our eight years together at the United States Attorney’s Office, I had the majority of my substantive interactions with Ed when he was elevated by United States Attorney Patrick Fitzgerald in 2003 as the Chief of Appeals, one of the most significant supervisory positions in the office. Ed was a strong voice and hands-on administrator as Chief of Appeals. I worked most closely and directly with Ed over a six-month period during the appellate process following the Office’s conviction of former Illinois Governor George Ryan. Ed was extremely supportive, directly engaged and contributed significantly to the final appellate product. Through the Ryan case experience and numerous others, I saw Ed as a very smart and unflappable attorney who faced pressure situations with quiet confidence and steadfast determination.

As I came to know Ed on the personal side, I was quite impressed with his strong work ethic. In our numerous email exchanges, it was quite common to get a response from Ed quickly, and often in the wee hours of the morning. Perhaps most significantly, I also saw his dedication to his wife and children. As a father with young children myself, I recall a number of conversations in which Ed discussed how he tried very hard to balance his challenging work schedule with his important family commitments.

Ed's background as a judicial clerk (both at the district court and appellate levels), private practice and public sector attorney, law professor and committed member of bar organizations demonstrates a breadth of experience that will allow Ed, if confirmed, to hit the ground running. Yet, as impressive as Ed's resume is, I firmly believe that he will contribute to the high-quality judicial tradition we have in our district due to his personal character. In short, Ed will execute justice thoughtfully and fairly.

I respectfully request that Ed Chang be confirmed. He will not disappoint.

Very truly yours,

Patrick M. Collins

Re: The Honorable Magistrate Judge Leslie E. Kobayashi-Nomination to the United States District Court, District of Hawaii

Dear Senators Leahy and Sessions:

I write this letter in strong support of President Obama’s nomination of the Honorable Magistrate Judge Leslie E. Kobayashi to the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii.

I am a partner with the law firm of Meheula & Devens, LLP, and provide general outside counsel for the State of Hawaii Organization of Police Officers. I also serve as our Governor’s nominee as a vice chairman on the Hawaii State Land Use Commission.

I have known Judge Kobayashi professionally for over 20 years and have appeared in her courtroom on various matters. Based on my work and appearances before her, there is no question that Judge Kobayashi has the legal intelligence, competency and work ethic to be an outstanding Federal judge. Her legal skills, experience and ability are at the highest levels and imminently qualify her for the nomination.

One of Judge Kobayashi’s special qualities is her judicial temperament that is second to none and should be a model for other judges to follow. While a life time appointment could cause a person with the very best intentions to change, there is no question that what you see is what you get with Judge Kobayashi, which is a balanced, honest, compassionate and fair minded jurist who constantly strives to make the right decisions based on the law.
Judge Kobayashi has never forgotten her litigation roots where she worked in the trial trenches for many years prior to her appointment as a Magistrate. This is evident in the respect and professionalism she displays toward the attorneys who appear in her courtroom. In return, she enjoys the highest respect and admiration of our legal community.

As a Magistrate, she has been very effective in managing cases and has been able to settle some of the most difficult cases I have had to handle during my 22 year career. In addition, she has always shown a sense of humility that is both genuine and effective in dealing with the most difficult of clients.

Judge Kobayashi has earned the privilege to serve as our next District Court Judge and I hope she will receive your committee’s favorable consideration.

Respectfully submitted,

[Vladimir Devens]
Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:

Please accept this letter in support of Magistrate Judge Leslie Kobayashi’s nomination to the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii. As a friend and colleague of Leslie’s for more than 10 years, I know her to be an intelligent and passionate legal scholar and a tireless public servant.

In a legal career spanning 27 years, Leslie has worked as a prosecutor, civil litigator, and United States magistrate judge. While serving as a magistrate judge, Leslie has consistently displayed the ability to apply the law to the facts dispassionately and without bias toward or against any person or party. Moreover, Leslie understands that the Constitution is a permanent framework of principles. I believe that Leslie will respect the Constitution and longstanding judicial precedent and will not substitute her personal beliefs for the law.

Leslie also recognizes the need to give back to the community. In 1999, the Hawaii State Bar Association honored Leslie’s commitment to pro bono work by presenting her with the Outstanding Volunteer Award. And in 2001, the University of Hawaii’s, William S. Richardson School of Law, named Leslie an Outstanding Adjunct Professor for her pretrial litigation class.

Considering her unquestionable ability, long record of employment in public service and commitment to the community, I urge you to support Leslie Kobayashi’s nomination to the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:

I write this letter in support of Edmond Chang, who has been nominated for the position of United States District Judge for the Northern District of Illinois. Mr. Chang has served the people of the Northern District of Illinois with distinction since 1999 as an Assistant United States Attorney. He is an excellent attorney, and if confirmed, I expect he will be a first-rate federal judge.

I am most familiar with Mr. Chang through his work at the U.S. Attorney’s Office in Chicago. There, he has been an accomplished federal prosecutor, rising to positions of increasing responsibility, including presently the position of Chief of Appeals. He has prosecuted a wide variety of cases, including white collar frauds, violent crimes, narcotics offenses, and child exploitation cases. He has strong experience in both the federal trial and appellate courts. Perhaps most important, he is widely respected as a level-headed, balanced, and fair person. All of those qualities will serve him well as a federal judge.

In sum, Mr. Chang has made great contributions to the Northern District of Illinois for over a decade as a federal prosecutor. I am confident he will make even greater contributions to the Northern District of Illinois if he is confirmed to be a federal district judge. I respectfully commend him to you.

Re: Leslie E. Kobayashi, Nominee to the U.S. District Court, District of Hawaii

Dear Senator Leahy:

Hawaii Women Lawyers (HWL) writes in strong support of President Obama’s nomination of the Honorable Leslie E. Kobayashi to the U.S. District Court, District of Hawaii, to fill the vacancy created by the Honorable Helen Gillmor’s ascension to senior status.

HWL is a nonprofit business organization, founded in Hawaii in 1976. Today HWL has about 300 female and male attorneys as members. The purposes of HWL, as set forth in our Articles of Incorporation, are to (1) improve the status of women in the legal profession; (2) increase the number of women attorneys in positions of authority and responsibility; and (3) promote the advancement of all women. Our mission is to improve the lives and careers of women and children in Hawaii. HWL supports qualified women nominees to positions on the bench, in connection with these purposes. Increasing opportunities for, and improving the visibility of, qualified women in the judiciary are important goals for HWL.

Judge Kobayashi, as a proven federal judge, has served as federal magistrate judge for the District of Hawaii for over ten years, and has over 15 years of experience as a practicing lawyer in Hawaii in civil and criminal law. She was originally appointed to serve as a federal magistrate judge in August 1999, and was reappointed to a second term in 2007. She oversees an extremely busy docket, and has overseen nearly 100 trials (including 25 jury trials to verdict). Her reversal rate is less than one percent. Judge Kobayashi is actively involved in the community and is a role model for young attorneys. HWL strongly supports Judge Kobayashi’s nomination and respectfully urges you to confirm her for appointment to the U.S. District Court, District of Hawaii.

Re: Letter of Support for Edmond E. Chang, Nominee for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:

I am writing in support of Edmond Chang, a nominee for United States District Judge. I worked alongside Ed in the U.S. Attorney’s Office in Chicago for six years, and I recommend him highly for a district judgeship.

I am a graduate of Yale and the University of Chicago Law School, and clerked for Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Judge Dennis Jacobs of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. I served as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in Chicago from 1998 to 2005, was the Inspector General of Chicago from 2005 to 2009, and recently was a Democratic candidate for the United States Senate seat in Illinois, losing the February 2010 primary. This spring I have been teaching at the University of Chicago Law School as an adjunct professor.

When Ed joined the U.S. Attorney’s Office in 1999, I had been in the office for one year. We worked together in the General Crimes Section, and later in the Narcotics and Gangs Section. I became a supervisor in that section and therefore saw more of Ed’s work and was involved in supervisory meetings in which Ed’s cases and work were discussed.

In an office of very talented attorneys, Ed clearly stood out as one of the most talented. He is an excellent legal writer — his writing is clear, logical, and compelling. There were other excellent
His ability to develop and present complex legal cases was also excellent. His presentations of large and sometimes complicated fraud and international-drug-conspiracy cases to supervisors in the office and ultimately judges, and juries were strong and clear. Ed is very intelligent and articulate. I saw no one stronger in the U.S. Attorney’s Office with regard to the ability to analyze and argue difficult legal issues.

Ed was an extremely hard worker, as well as a dedicated family man — two things that we know are difficult to combine. Because he regularly arrived at the office by 6:00 a.m., he managed to work 12-hour days at the office even though he was faithfully out of the office by 6:00 or 6:30 p.m. to catch his train home to spend time with his wife and children. And we could tell from his emails to us that he would regularly put in more work late at night. When I asked Ed about his ultra-early arrivals, he said that he had become accustomed to getting up very early in high school when his bus from Queens to the Bronx Science high school picked him up every morning at 5:00 a.m. The bottom line is that he has an extremely strong work ethic that impressed everyone in a very hard-working office.

Ed’s trait I admire most — and a trait I know will help make him an excellent judge — is his even keel. In an office of very animated trial lawyers, Ed’s calmness stood out. Ed also seems to be, by nature, a very reasonable person. Part of what I saw in the office’s confidence in Ed was the comfort that if Ed was recommending a particular argument or action, it was almost certain to be well-thought-out and entirely sensible. U.S. Attorney Pat Fitzgerald’s appointment of Ed as Chief of Appeals in 2005 — despite his relatively short tenure in the office — was a concrete statement about the office’s high confidence in Ed.

I am sure Ed will quickly earn universal high marks from litigants who appear before him, because I know that he combines the intellectual ability, legal skill, character, and disposition necessary to be an excellent district judge.

If I can be of further assistance with regard to Ed’s nomination, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Sincerely,

David H. Hoffman
Senate Judiciary Committee Nomination Hearing for The Honorable Magistrate Judge
Leslie E. Kobayashi to The U.S. District Court,
District of Hawaii

4pm
July 15, 2010

Introduction by Senator Daniel K. Inouye
I would like to warmly welcome the Honorable Magistrate Judge Leslie E. Kobayashi and her family in the audience: her husband, Clarence Pacarro, and their two sons, Cody and Luke.

I am here to express my full support for Judge Kobayashi’s nomination to the U.S. District Court, District of Hawaii. Judge Kobayashi’s maternal great grandparents emigrated from Fukuoka, Japan, to work as contract laborers in Hawaii’s sugar fields, and her paternal grandparents emigrated from Hiroshima, Japan, to work as a night watchman and to run a small family business. Judge Kobayashi’s father was the first in his family to attend college and dental school, and following his graduation, he served in the U.S. Army during the Korean War, and was posted at Fort Dix, New Jersey, where Judge Kobayashi was born. The family returned to Hawaii, where her father started a dental practice, and her mother worked as an elementary school teacher in Hawaii’s public school system. Judge Kobayashi excelled in her studies, and attended Wellesley College and Boston College School of Law. Judge Kobayashi is an experienced lawyer with over twenty-five years of experience in Hawaii in both civil and criminal law. She has served as a federal magistrate judge for over ten years on the court to which she has been nominated.

Judge Kobayashi is admired and respected by her colleagues on the federal bench. She is well-versed in the legal processes as a sitting magistrate, and I am confident that she will be able to take the bench in a seamless and swift transition. Judge Kobayashi is also well-respected by both the plaintiff and defense bars. She is known for her fair and even-handed manner, her knowledge of the law, and her commitment to the principle that every person has their day in court. Despite her busy schedule, Judge Kobayashi continues to be active in Bar Association activities and community service: she lectures at the William S. Richardson School of Law at the University of Hawaii; served on the Hawaii State Bar Association’s Board of Directors; and served as Vice Chair for the Magistrate Judges Executive Committee for the Ninth Circuit.

Her community involvement includes being on the Board of Directors for the Friends of Judicial History Center, and serving on the Board of Directors for the Volunteer Legal Services of Hawaii.

Judge Kobayashi’s application was reviewed by a merit selection panel that Senator Akaka and I had established. She was deemed well-qualified for the position. Judge Kobayashi is the American dream, and, like so many others, hers is a story of hard work, perseverance, and success.

I am proud to support the nomination of Judge Leslie Kobayashi for United States District Judge, District of Hawaii. She is well-qualified for the position, and would bring honor to the court. I urge her swift confirmation.

The Honorable Senator Patrick J. Leahy,
The Honorable Senator Jeff Sessions and Members of the Committee on the Judiciary:

It is with high regard that I submit this letter in strong support of Magistrate Judge Leslie Kobayashi as President Obama’s nominee to the United States District Court for Hawaii.

I currently serve as a Trustee for both the Kamakameha Schools (Honolulu, HI) and Menlo College (Palo Alto, CA). Previously, from 2003 to 2009, I was a cabinet member for Governor Linda Lingle, State of Hawaii, as the Director of the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands. From 1999 to 2003, I served as the Executive Director and Chairman of the Hawaii Republican Party.

I have known Magistrate Kobayashi for nearly ten years, during which I have maintained respect for her professionally and a fondness for her personally. She is a model mother and wife and an outstanding community leader and working professional. I am honored to express my strong support for such a highly capable, intelligent and honest individual.

Magistrate Kobayashi’s personal qualities most certainly carry over into her professional life. She consistently exhibits professionalism and a great deal of respect for all individuals. She has a contemplative and considerate nature, but also maintains the confidence to make the hard decisions demanded of her. While I’m sure there are many brilliant and qualified attorneys and judges in Hawaii meeting the legal acumen to serve on the federal bench, there are few that elevate to Magistrate Kobayashi’s human acumen.
She is special because she sees people first and foremost as equals, regardless of where they come from, what their background is, or what their political preference may be.

These qualities form the basis of my relationship with Magistrate Kobayashi and are the primary reasons why I hold her in such high regard. Given my political background and her judicial status, one would ordinarly not expect that our families could maintain such a close and respectful relationship. However, throughout these past ten years, we have. During periods when I have had to take strong political stands, our friendship has not wavered. Political issues have never been a topic of discussion or debate, nor has she been judgmental of what I was doing or questioned why I was doing it. Our relationship has always been based on two families who enjoy each other's company, share similar values, and who care deeply about Hawaii, our Country, and the future for our children.

Over the years, I've observed Magistrate Kobayashi in challenging positions, both on a personal and professional level, and her ability to maintain her composure and successfully diffuse a situation or deliver her message has always amazed me. While these traits are often referred to as necessary in the judicial arena, I believe it is during the informal and personal moments that they are genuinely tested. She has always managed to pass that test and maintain her calm and level-headed demeanor.

Simply said, Magistrate Kobayashi is an honest, fair, intelligent and hard working individual who genuinely cares about people and pre-judges no one. I believe she would be an outstanding United States District Judge for Hawaii, and therefore lend my strong support for her nomination. I humbly ask for your favorable consideration.

Sincerely,

Micah A. Kane

RE: Nomination of Ms. Leslie Kobayashi for United States District Court Judge (Hawaii)

Dear Senator Leahy and Senator Sessions:

This letter is submitted in support of the nomination of Magistrate Judge Leslie Kobayashi for the confirmation of United States District Court Judge for the District of Hawaii.

I was the elected Prosecuting Attorney for Honolulu from 1989-1996, elected to two consecutive 4-year terms. Prior to my election, I was a Deputy Prosecuting Attorney, a Deputy Attorney General, and the Executive Director of the Hawaii Crime Commission. After my two terms as the elected prosecutor, I served as the Director of the State of Hawaii Department of Public Safety. I am currently practicing law in the fields of civil law and criminal defense work. I also am licensed in Hawaii with a private investigation and private security licenses.

I have known Judge Kobayashi for over 30 years. As deputy prosecutors, we worked in the Honolulu office together. I was able to observe her excellent trial skills and her thorough and tireless work ethic in preparing her many complex criminal prosecutions.
Judge Kobayashi left the office to work for the prestigious civil law firm of Fujiyama, Duffy, & Fujiyama. Her legal skills in civil work quickly earned her the confidence of the senior partner, the late Wallace Fujiyama and she became the person that he relied on. Her trial skills, her legal reasoning, and her fairness in criminal and civil litigations earned her the respect of attorneys in both fields of practice.

As a result of her excellent work in the civil and criminal areas, she was selected as a federal magistrate in the District of Hawaii. I had the opportunity to appear before her in several federal criminal cases. As a magistrate, she was very fair in making legally sound decisions. She had a very calm legal temperament and a very keen understanding of the legal issues being litigated.

In addition to distinguishing herself as an excellent attorney and jurist in her professional life, she is a person of impeccable integrity, trustworthiness, and unquestionable moral character. She has balanced her hectic professional life by being a very loving and dependable mother and family person.

As the former Prosecuting Attorney for Honolulu and with over 20 years as a government attorney, I have seen many attorneys practicing in Hawaii. I would undoubtedly rate Judge Kobayashi as one of the top attorneys in Hawaii. She is imminently qualified and would be an excellent Judge for the District of Hawaii. I hope you will give her nomination favorable consideration. Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

Keith M. Kaneshiro
Statement of Senator Kerry

Thank you, Senator Durbin, for this opportunity to introduce Middlesex Deputy District Attorney Denise Jefferson Casper to the Judiciary Committee. I also want to thank Chairman Leahy for scheduling this hearing so quickly on Denise’s nomination to be District Court Judge for Massachusetts. I also want to welcome Denise’s mother, her husband Marc and her twin sons, Harry and Jacob to today’s hearing.

Denise will be a great judge and a worthy successor to the late Judge Reginald Lindsay, who passed away last year after a lengthy illness. He was an inspiration to us all, rising from a childhood in segregated Alabama to become only the second black man ever appointed to the federal bench in Massachusetts. Judge Lindsay loved the bench, so much so that just weeks before his death, he told a friend that he dreamed about returning to the bench every day.

Denise has that same kind of dedication — to public service as well to the administration of justice — so it shouldn’t surprise anyone that Judge Lindsay was a great mentor to her. And it also shouldn’t surprise anyone that Denise is a great mentor through her involvement with the Big Sisters program. Any time Big Sisters has a gala or some other kind of fundraiser, you can bet Denise is going to be the first to fill one of the tables.

Senator Kirk and I recommended Denise to President Obama for nomination after a rigorous examination of her record, and those of the many other qualified candidates, by a selection committee of legal community leaders in Massachusetts. Their conclusion was the same as mine — that Denise will prove to be a first rate jurist and an important addition to the District Court.

Everyone in the legal community raves about Denise’s work ethic, her drive, her exceptional management, and, in fact, her brilliance. Kathy Weinman, a lawyer on the Council of the Boston Bar Association and a member of the selection committee, praised her “respectful leadership.” Chief Judge Mark Wolf of the District Court, who she will serve under if confirmed has nothing but the best to say about her. “Denise Casper is a distinguished lawyer with a demonstrated commitment to serving the public interest. My colleagues and I particularly recall her fine service as a federal prosecutor. Ms. Casper’s appointment would greatly contribute to our constant effort to give integrity to our nation’s promise of Equal Justice Under Law.”

I also kept hearing stories about Denise’s legendary laugh. It is, I’m told, none too subtle. She is soft spoken, so much so that most people expect only a slight giggle from her when something funny happens. But in the Middlesex DA’s office, her laugh can be heard everywhere. When she laughs, everybody on the whole floor knows she’s there.

Denise graduated from Harvard Law School and is currently second in command in the Middlesex District Attorney’s Office, one of the largest in the country. She also was a prosecutor in the U.S. Attorney’s Office and for a time was the Deputy Chief of the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force. She also was a clerk for the Massachusetts Appeals Court, an attorney with the firm of Bingham McCutchen and a teacher at Boston University School of Law.

Middlesex District Attorney Gerry Leone, who is here, told me right away that Denise would be a star on the federal bench. I value Gerry’s opinion immensely. But I also have some personal experience to draw on in assessing the job Denise has done in the Middlesex DA’s Office. I was the First Assistant in the Middlesex District Attorney’s Office from 1976 until 1981, and I know what it takes to run an organization of that size. Denise has what it takes — she handles everything, from arguing appeals to trying murder cases to handling personnel matters and putting together budgets. She is the epitome of the “lawyer-manager.” And besides, she used my old desk until Gerry retired it permanently.

Anybody who looks carefully at Denise’s record — in the DA’s office, in the U.S. attorney’s office, in the Massachusetts Appeals Court and in academia — will recognize her talent, her dedication and her promise. I recommend that the Senate confirm her as quickly as possible.

RE: RECOMMENDATION OF MS. LESLIE KOabayashi FOR POSITION OF JUDGE, U.S. DISTRICT COURT, HAWAII

Dear Honorable Patrick J. Leahy and Honorable Jeff Sessions:

This letter is submitted for your consideration with respect to the potential nomination of Ms. Leslie Kobayashi for the position of Judge, U.S. District Court, Hawaii.

I am an attorney in the State of Hawaii and have been since 1966. I have practiced here during the years 1966 through 1995 in the field of civil litigation and general civil practice. During the years 1995 through 1999, I served as an Associate Judge of the Intermediate Court of Appeals of the State of Hawaii. From 1999 through 2006, I served as the first University General Counsel and Vice President for Legal Affairs for the University of Hawaii system. From 2006 through the present, I have served as the first non-clergy President of Saint Louis School, a Maristian Catholic school with a history of 164 years in Hawaii.

I also have served as past President of the Hawaii State Bar Association (1990), and a member of the American Bar Association, American Board of Trial Advocates, and the American College of Trial Lawyers, a former board member of the Japan American National Museum, former board member and chairman of the Board of Trustees of Saint Louis School in Honolulu, Hawaii.

I have known Ms. Kobayashi for approximately twenty years. Although we were with different law firms, she and I worked on several litigation cases in the past. When she was appointed as U.S. District Court Magistrate, Hawaii, I appeared before her several times in civil litigation matters. Through my work and contact with Ms. Kobayashi, I have been able to assess her abilities. It is my view that she has outstanding legal skills, is intelligent, diligent and has excellent critical analytical skills. She is also very humane, compassionate and even-tempered.

I firmly believe that Ms. Kobayashi would make an excellent judge and is worthy of appointment and confirmation as the next U.S. District Court Judge, Hawaii.

Ms. Kobayashi has an excellent judicial temperament, which is well suited to the position. She is calm, dispassionate, articulate, well reasoned and even handed.

She has an excellent reputation in the legal community for honesty, trustworthiness, character and integrity. I believe she is exceptionally qualified and would make an outstanding Judge of the U.S. District Court, Hawaii.

Thank you for your time and consideration. Should you have any questions, please contact me anytime.

Respectfully,

Re: Confirmation of Judge Leslie Kobayashi
For the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii

Dear Senators:

It is my pleasure to highly recommend Magistrate Judge Leslie Kobayashi for confirmation as a United States District Court Judge for the District of Hawaii.

I have known Judge Kobayashi for over twenty years. While in private practice, she developed a reputation as a good litigator with solid analytical and communication skills. She always presented concise, logical and well written pleadings. Her experience and training in litigation created a solid base for her career as a jurist.

Since she began sitting on the Federal bench, I appeared before her on numerous occasions. I always found her to be an excellent jurist. She has a keen intellect and is able to immediately identify and focus on key issues. She is articulate and asks pointed questions to clarify issues and positions. Her decisions are always well written and clearly express the reasons underlying her rulings. Her judicial demeanor is excellent as she treats all parties and attorneys with respect.

In addition to her judicial capabilities, she also has important leadership skills. It is my belief that her intellect, combined with her work ethic and pleasant personality will cause her to a leader and asset to the Federal Judiciary.
The Honorable Patrick J. Leahy

Re: Letter of Support for Edmond E. Chang, Nominee for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:

I am writing to strongly endorse and urge the confirmation of Edmond E. Chang for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois.

I hired Mr. Chang in 1999 at the United States Attorney’s Office in Chicago when I was serving as United States Attorney. I had previously served in that office over two terms totaling around 16 years. Not only did I supervise Mr. Chang as U.S. Attorney, but I also had the pleasure of trying a case with him. I am also familiar with Mr. Chang’s reputation in that office since I left in 2001.

Mr. Chang has been an outstanding Assistant U.S. Attorney. He is an experienced and excellent trial lawyer, and now is the Chief of Appeals where he has served with distinction since 2005. Having clerked for a district court judge (Marvin E. Aspen) and a court of appeals judge (James L. Ryan), and served as both a trial lawyer and an appellate lawyer, Mr. Chang has an outstanding background to be a district court judge.

Most importantly, Mr. Chang has the personal attributes to be an excellent judge. In addition to being extremely bright, Mr. Chang has good common sense and is very humble.
Common sense and humility cannot be taught and are very important to the success of a district court judge.

Mr. Chang’s experience doing pro bono cases at Sidley Austin, his participation in local bar activities, and his service for 11 years in the U.S. Attorney’s Office proves a commitment to public service.

Lastly, Mr. Chang has always worked extremely hard, whether putting himself through school with part time jobs or putting in long hours at the U.S. Attorney’s Office. Mr. Chang would be an outstanding district court judge.

Very truly yours,

Scott R. Lessar

Statement Of Senator Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.),
Chairman, Senate Judiciary Committee, Hearing On Judicial Nominations
July 15, 2010

Today we welcome to the Committee five of President Obama's well-qualified judicial nominees. Senator Kyl and Senator McCain support the nomination of Judge Mary Murguia of Arizona to the Ninth Circuit. Similarly, Carlton Reeves of Mississippi has the support of his Republican home state Senators, Senator Cochran and Senator Wicker. And Denise Jefferson Casper of Massachusetts has the support of Senator Kerry and Senator Brown. These nominations demonstrate again how President Obama continues to work with Senators from both sides of the aisle to identify qualified nominees to fill vacancies on the Federal bench.

I thank Senator Durbin for chairing this hearing. He and Senator Burris strongly support Edmond Chang, the nominee from Illinois who is appearing before the Committee today. I appreciate his willingness to preside over this important proceeding.

I trust that with the support of so many Members of this Committee and so many Republican Senators, all of these nominees will be treated fairly. I hope that in light of the vacancies on the Federal courts, we can proceed without delay to consider their nominations both in Committee and before the Senate. That should be the case for all nominees. Sadly, the Senate Republican leadership has insisted on months of delay before agreeing to vote on judicial nominations that are confirmed unanimously and refuses to consider many others. This serves no good purpose. This obstruction is wrong. I have called for it to end, but the Republican Senate leadership persists in their practice.

Early this week, the Senate finally confirmed Judge Sharon Coleman to a seat on the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. Judge Coleman waited nearly three months before her nomination came to a vote because of obstruction by the Senate Republican leadership. When allowed to vote, Senators confirmed her unanimously. She should have been confirmed months ago, as should have the dozen other judicial nominees who were reported by the Judiciary Committee with no objection and yet remain stalled by Republican refusal to consent to final Senate action. In all there remain 21 judicial nominees already considered by this Committee and favorably reported that are being stalled from a final vote.
The Senate Republican leadership refuses to enter into time agreements on pending judicial nominations that have support from both Democrats and Republicans, including nominees with bipartisan support from North Carolina, Tennessee, South Carolina, California, New York, Delaware, Virginia, Utah, Maryland, Minnesota, and Rhode Island. Democrats are prepared to vote on these nominations; the Republican leadership is not and continues to obstruct progress.

The Senate is dramatically behind the pace set for President Bush's judicial nominees in 2001 and 2002. In 2002, the second year of the Bush administration, the Democratic Senate majority's hard work led to the confirmation of 72 Federal circuit and district judges nominated by a President from the other party. We are more than halfway through the second year of the Obama administration, and we have confirmed just 24 so far—72 to 24.

In the first two years of the Bush administration, we confirmed 100 Federal circuit and district court judges. So far in the first two years of the Obama administration, the Republican leadership has successfully obstructed all but 36 of his Federal circuit and district court nominees—100 to 36.

Federal judicial vacancies around the country continue to hover around 100. Of these, 42 vacancies have been declared by the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts to be judicial emergencies. Nominees to fill more than 10 of these emergency vacancies remain stalled on the Senate Executive Calendar. Each vacancy represents an overburdened Federal court handicapped by Senate Republicans' refusal to act. Republican obstructionism and delay has real meaning for litigants in those jurisdictions—they are often forced to wait months or even years before their cases are heard. This is just wrong.

Last year, Senate Republicans refused to move forward on judicial nominees. The Senate confirmed the fewest judges in 50 years. The Senate Republican leadership allowed only 12 Federal circuit and district court nominees to be considered and confirmed despite the availability of many more for final action. They have continued their obstruction throughout this year. By every measure, the Republican obstruction is a disaster for the Federal courts and for the American people. We owe it to the American people to do better, and I hope we start with the judicial nominees before us today.

Judge Mary Murgia is nominated to serve on the Ninth Circuit. She has spent the last decade as a Federal district court judge in Arizona, where she has presided over thousands of civil and criminal cases. She is a former Federal and local prosecutor, and she was the first Latina to become a Federal judge in Arizona. Judge Murgia earned her undergraduate and her law degrees from the University of Kansas.

President Obama nominated Edmond Chang to sit on the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. He has served as a Federal prosecutor in that district for more than a decade, and he is currently the Chief of Appeals for its Criminal Division. Previously, he practiced labor and employment litigation in the Chicago office of Sidley Austin. He earned his B.S., cum laude, from the University of Michigan and his J.D., cum laude and Order of the Coif, from Northwestern University School of Law. If confirmed, Mr. Chang will be the first Asian Pacific American to serve as a Federal judge in Illinois.
Judge Leslie Kobayashi is nominated to be a district court judge in Hawaii. She has served that district as a Federal magistrate judge since 1999, before which she was a lawyer in private practice and a local prosecutor. Judge Kobayashi earned her B.A. from Wellesley College and her J.D. from Boston College School of Law. If confirmed, she will become the second female Asian Pacific American Federal judge in the District of Hawaii.

The President nominated Denise Jefferson Casper to serve as a Federal judge in the District of Massachusetts. She is currently the Deputy District Attorney in Cambridge, Massachusetts, and she previously was a Federal prosecutor in the U.S. Attorney's Office in Boston, where she rose to become Deputy Chief of the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force Unit. She has also worked as a lawyer in private practice and as a legal writing instructor at Boston University School of Law. She received her B.A. from Wellesley University and her J.D. from Harvard Law School.

Carlton Reeves is nominated to sit on the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi. He is a partner in a Jackson, Mississippi law firm, and he also serves as a Family Master in a local court, as part of which he adjudicates cases related to paternity and child support. He previously was the Chief of the Civil Division in the U.S. Attorney's office in the Southern District of Mississippi. He earned his B.A., magna cum laude, from Jackson State University and his J.D. from the University of Virginia School of Law. If confirmed, Mr. Reeves will be second African American to serve as a district court judge in Mississippi.

I welcome the nominees and their families to the Committee today.

Re: Letter of Support for Edmond E. Chang (N.D. Ill.) and Leslie E. Kobayashi (D. Haw.)

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:

On behalf of the National Asian Pacific American Bar Association ("NAPABA"), we proudly endorse and urge the prompt confirmation of Edmond E. Chang for the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois and Judge Leslie E. Kobayashi for the U.S. District Court for the District of Hawaii. Both candidates have the experience, intellectual capacity, integrity, and judicial temperament to be excellent U.S. District Court judges. Mr. Chang is an experienced federal litigator who has practiced extensively before the court to which he has been nominated to serve. Judge Kobayashi is a proven federal judge who has served as a federal magistrate judge for over 10 years on the court to which she has been nominated to serve. Both candidates also would help in addressing the significant under-representation of Asian Pacific Americans in the federal judiciary.

NAPABA is a national bar association representing the interests of Asian Pacific American attorneys, judges, law professors, and law students. Now in its 22nd year, NAPABA represents the interests of over 60 affiliate organizations and over 40,000 Asian Pacific American attorneys. NAPABA is deeply committed to supporting the appointment of qualified Asian Pacific Americans to the federal bench, where Asian Pacific Americans are woefully underrepresented.
Progress continues to be made with respect to Asian Pacific American representation on the federal judiciary, and NAPABA thanks the Judiciary Committee for being part of that progress. Most recently, Judge Lucy H. Koh was confirmed by the full Senate for a seat on the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California. Two additional nominees await full Senate confirmation: Judge Edward M. Chen, nominee for the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California, and Associate Dean and Professor of Law Goodwin H. Liu, nominee for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. We ask for the assistance of Judiciary Committee members to ensure that both individuals receive Senate floor votes in the upcoming weeks.

Mr. Chang and Judge Kobayashi are both excellent candidates who are poised to contribute immediately to the federal district court benches for which they have been nominated to serve. Moreover, each nomination is historic. Their qualifications and importance to the community are presented below.

Edmond E. Chang (N.D. Ill.)

Edmond E. Chang has been an Assistant United States Attorney for the Northern District of Illinois for over 10 years. Since 2005, he has served as Chief of Appeals for the Criminal Division, where he has supervised over 300 appeals to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit and personally handled over 30 appeals. He also has worked in the Narcotics & Gang Section and the General Crimes Section of the U.S. Attorney’s Office. In all, he has investigated and obtained charges and convictions against over 150 defendants, and tried over 10 federal cases. Although Mr. Chang primarily is now involved in appellate litigation for the U.S. Attorney’s Office, he continues to provide assistance in important prosecutions. For example, he recently participated in successful motions practice in the investigation and prosecution of former Illinois Governor Rod Blagojevich. Mr. Chang has received a unanimous ABA rating of Qualified.

Mr. Chang has received significant bipartisan praise for his work. For example, Mark Filip – former Deputy Attorney General and former federal district court judge for the Northern District of Illinois, both times nominated by President George W. Bush – stated that Mr. Chang is "widely respected as a level-headed, balanced and fair person." Scott Lassar, the U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Illinois nominated by President William J. Clinton, stated that Mr. Chang is an "outstanding Assistant U.S. Attorney." Notably, Mr. Lassar commented that: "In addition to being extremely, bright, Mr. Chang has good common sense and is very humble, which are very important to the success of a district court judge." A former Assistant U.S. Attorney who clerked for Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Judge Dennis Jacobs (George H.W. Bush appointee) of the Second Circuit stated that "[i]n an office of very talented attorneys, Ed clearly stood out as one of the most talented. . . . I saw no one stronger in the U.S. Attorney’s Office with regard to the ability to analyze and argue difficult legal issues."

In addition to his experience as a federal prosecutor, Mr. Chang has taught as an adjunct professor at Northwestern University School of Law since 1996. Specifically, he has taught a three-credit course on federal civil rights litigation, covering the law of section 1983 and habeas corpus. Mr. Chang also was an associate with the complex civil litigation group at Sidley & Austin in Chicago. Mr. Chang started his legal career with two prestigious clerkships: for Judge James L. Ryan on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, and then Chief Judge Marvin E. Aspen for the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. Mr. Chang graduated cum laude from Northwestern University School of Law, where he was Order of the Coif and an Articles Editor on the Northwestern Law Review. He received his undergraduate degree cum laude from the University of Michigan, where he majored in Aerospace Engineering.

Mr. Chang has been involved in the legal community in Chicago. While at Sidley & Austin, he represented numerous pro bono clients, including a habeas corpus petitioner in federal court. He also has served on the Board of Governors for the Chicago Council of Lawyers, the Federal Magistrate Judge Merit Selection Panel for the Northern District of Illinois, and the Judicial Evaluation Committee for the Asian American Bar Association of Chicago.

Mr. Chang’s nomination is historic for the Asian Pacific American community. If confirmed, he would be the first Asian Pacific American Article III judge in any of the courts encompassed by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. He also would become only the second Asian Pacific American Article III judge outside of the East and West Coasts. Moreover, given that Asian Pacific Americans constitute almost 10% of the population of Chicago/Cook County, the nomination of an Asian Pacific American for that jurisdiction is highly appropriate.

Mr. Chang’s personal history reflects the values of a working, middle-class family. His parents emigrated from Taiwan to the United States in the 1960s to pursue master’s degrees in Illinois. After earning their degrees, the couple moved to New York City and worked various jobs in order to make a better life for their American-born children. Mr. Chang was born in New York. Because of his parents’ hard work and sacrifices, Mr. Chang was fortunate to attend the prestigious Bronx High School of Science. He worked part-time jobs in high school, college, and law school, to make ends meet. Those jobs included working the late shift at a donut shop and in the stockroom of a department store. Although Mr. Chang was an engineering major, he found tremendous enjoyment in writing, literature, and philosophy. As a result, he decided to go to law school, choosing Northwestern University School of Law in Illinois – the state where his parents first lived when they came to America. Now, Mr. Chang makes Illinois his home, having married his college sweetheart and raising two daughters who are almost 10 and almost 6 years old.

Leslie E. Kobayashi (D, Haw.)

Judge Leslie E. Kobayashi has been a federal magistrate judge in Hawaii for over 10 years, and is an experienced lawyer with over 25 years of experience in both civil and criminal law. Judge Kobayashi is in her second term as a federal magistrate judge, after a thorough review of her work and reappointment in the summer of 2007. During her time as a judge, Judge Kobayashi has handled nearly 100 trials, including over 25 jury trials to verdict. Judge Kobayashi also has issued almost 400 orders and handled hundreds of civil settlement conferences. She has had a reversal rate of less than one percent. Judge Kobayashi also is the lead judge in the District’s re-entry pilot program, which seeks to increase the likelihood that high-risk offenders will finish their post-sentence period of supervision in the community successfully and thereby reduce recidivism. Judge Kobayashi has received an ABA rating of Well Qualified by a substantial majority, and Qualified by a minority.

Judge Kobayashi also has the support of Hawaii leaders from both political parties. Notably, many of these people have known Judge Kobayashi for over 20 years. Micah A. Kane, a former Executive Director and Chairman of the Hawaii Republican Party, stated that Judge Kobayashi “is special because she sees people first and foremost as equals, regardless of where they come from, what their background is, or what their political preference may be.” Vladimir P. Devens, Republican Governor Linda Lingle’s nominee as Vice Chairman on the Hawaii State Land Use Commission, stated that “[o]ne of Judge Kobayashi’s special qualities is her judicial temperament that is second to none and should be a model for other judges to follow.” Mr. Devens further described Judge Kobayashi as “a balanced, honest, compassionate and fair minded jurist who constantly strives to make the right decisions based on the law.” The Senior Vice President and General Counsel of Hawaii Telecom, John P. Komeji, also has written in support of Judge Kobayashi, stating that “I always found her to be an excellent jurist. She has a keen intellect and is able to immediately identify and focus on key issues.” A past president of the Hawaii State Bar Association and Hawaii Women Lawyers summarized Judge Kobayashi’s qualifications by stating that “[s]he has been fair, respectful of counsel and parties, and gives a wonderful image to our Judiciary. . . . While there is always at least one losing party in every case, [Judge Kobayashi] is remarkable in how many attorneys and parties are impressed with her, whether they win or lose in her court, for having given a fair consideration to the issues raised and done her best to rule in accordance with law.”

Prior to her appointment as a federal magistrate judge, Judge Kobayashi had a career that involved government service, private practice, and academia. She served as Deputy Prosecuting Attorney for the City and County of Honolulu for two years, where she appeared in court daily and prosecuted 10 jury felony cases to verdict. Judge Kobayashi was in private practice for sixteen years at Fujiyama, Duffy & Fujiyama, where she served as managing partner for five years. Judge Kobayashi taught pretrial litigation and practice as an adjunct professor at University of Hawaii, William S. Richardson School of Law. In 2001, she received the Outstanding Adjunct Professor Award at the law school.

Judge Kobayashi has been active in the local community. She has served on the Board of Directors for the Hawaii State Bar Association, on the Board of Directors for the Volunteer Legal Services of Hawaii, and the Board of Directors for the Friends of Judicial History Center. In 1999, the Hawaii State Bar Association awarded Judge Kobayashi the Outstanding Volunteer Award.

Even though the Asian Pacific American population in Hawaii is over 60%, there has never been more than one Asian Pacific American federal district court judge serving in that jurisdiction at any given time. If confirmed, Judge Kobayashi would become only the second Asian Pacific American female Article III judge in the District of Hawaii and only the fifth ever nationwide.

Judge Kobayashi’s background is reflective of the history of Hawaii. Judge Kobayashi’s maternal great-grandparents emigrated from Fukuoka, Japan, to Hawaii in 1904 as contract laborers to work at the Kahuku Sugar Plantation. Her paternal grandparents emigrated from Hiroshima, Japan, to Honolulu where her grandfather was a night watchman and her grandmother operated a suimin (Japanese noodle) stand. Judge Kobayashi’s father was the first person in his family of seven children to graduate from college and graduate school, and the only one ever to attend school in the continental United States. Following graduation from dental school, Judge Kobayashi’s father served in the U.S. Army during the Korean War and was posted at Fort Dix, New Jersey, where Judge Kobayashi was born. Shortly after her first year, Judge Kobayashi’s family returned to Honolulu, where her father eventually started his dental practice and her mother taught at a public elementary school. A life-long resident of Hawaii, Judge Kobayashi is married to a state court judge in Hawaii, and they have two children, ages 10 and 6.

Based on their qualifications, intellect, integrity, and commitment to justice, NAPABA extends an enthusiastic endorsement to Mr. Edmond E. Chang to serve as a District Judge for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, and to The Honorable Leslie E. Kobayashi to serve as a District Judge for the District of Hawaii. Both individuals would be able to make an immediate positive contribution to their respective courts. NAPABA urges that the Senate act quickly to confirm both individuals.

Sincerely,

Dear Senator Leahy:

I write in support of the appointment of Magistrate Judge Leslie Kobayashi to the U.S. District Court in Hawaii.

I have been a trial lawyer in Hawaii since 1972. I am a Fellow in the American College of Trial Lawyers and was the Attorney General for the State of Hawaii between 1986-1992. I have appeared before scores of trial and appellate judges in every level of our state court system, as well as the U.S. District Court, and the U.S. Supreme Court. I can state without any reservation that Magistrate Judge Kobayashi is eminently qualified to serve as a U.S. District Court judge, and urge her swift confirmation.

I have known Magistrate Judge Kobayashi since she first began practicing law in 1983. She worked for a prominent trial law firm and soon earned an excellent reputation for being well prepared and highly competent.

Over the years her reputation as a trial lawyer grew and we had a number of cases between our law firms. I found her to be extremely intelligent and remarkably skillful. Moreover, she was always reasonable and fair-minded.
The Honorable Patrick J. Leahy

The trial bar in Hawaii was elated when she was appointed to be a Magistrate Judge. Since her appointment I have been involved in numerous cases before her. She is always in complete control of the courtroom and her demeanor is pleasant, polite, but firm.

My law firm recently handled a very complex case in U.S. District Court involving dozens of experienced trial lawyers and over one hundred motions. As expected, the litigation at times became contentious and heated. Magistrate Judge Kobayashi handled the case with exemplary judicial temperament and insight. At the hearings she asked thoughtful questions, maintained control over the courtroom, and always demonstrated respect for the litigants and judicial process. Her preparation and keen analysis were clearly reflected in her well-reasoned written decisions. Whether we won or lost the motion, we were eminently satisfied that Magistrate Judge Kobayashi had carefully read and considered every pertinent fact and point of law.

I am confident that Magistrate Judge Kobayashi will be an outstanding U.S. District Court judge, and my support for her is unequivocal and absolute. I will be happy to answer any questions you or your committee members might have.

Very truly yours,

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:

I am writing in support of Leslie E. Kobayashi, who has been nominated by President Obama to serve as an United States District Judge for the District of Hawaii.

Since 2009, I have been a partner in the Honolulu office of Carlsmit Ball LLP, practicing in both civil and criminal law. Prior to joining the firm, I spent a number of years in the federal government, including time as an Assistant United States Attorney (AUSA) in both the Southern District of New York and the District of Hawaii. From May 2007 through December 2008, I served as Associate Counsel to President George W. Bush.

I have known Judge Kobayashi since 2004, when I joined the United States Attorney's Office in the District of Hawaii and she was in her current position as an United States Magistrate Judge. I appeared before her regularly during my time as an AUSA; she presided over bail hearings, initial appearances and arraignments of defendants, and change of plea hearings in matters that I handled on behalf of the Government. Since my return to private practice, I have appeared before Judge Kobayashi several times in the civil context, including for scheduling and settlement conferences, as well as argument on a discovery motion.
Based on my experiences before Judge Kobayashi, I am confident that she will make an outstanding United States District Judge, and I urge her swift confirmation. Judge Kobayashi is fair, thoughtful, and well-prepared for every matter; her only agenda is to follow the law faithfully. While she always maintains total control of her courtroom, she consistently allows for each party to articulate its position fully and treats each litigant, civil or criminal, with utmost respect. Her decisions are well-reasoned, thorough, and demonstrate a complete grasp of the relevant facts and law. She will make a wonderful addition to the U.S. District Court.

In sum, I strongly support the nomination of Leslie E. Kobayashi. Please do not hesitate to contact me if there is any additional information that I may provide.

Very truly yours,

NOMINATIONS OF KATHLEEN M. O’MALLEY, NOMINEE TO BE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE FEDERAL CIRCUIT; BERYL A. HOWELL, NOMINEE TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA; AND, ROBERT L. WILKINS, NOMINEE TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

WEDNESDAY, JULY 28, 2010

U.S. Senate,
Committee on the Judiciary,
Washington, DC.

The Committee met, pursuant to notice, at 2:33 p.m., Room SD–226, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Hon. Patrick J. Leahy, Chairman of the Committee, presiding.

OPENING STATEMENT OF HON. PATRICK J. LEAHY, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF VERMONT

Chairman Leahy. It may look like musical chairs. Senator Whitehouse, who has filled in twice as chair already—this will be the second time today—while we have been doing these things, also had to balance his other assignments.

So I want to begin the hearing, and we will let him take over when he gets here.

I might say that one of the people who has been nominated and will be before the Committee is Beryl Howell. And I feel strange, in a way, introducing her to the committee, because those who served here from 1993 to 2002 will remember her as my general counsel; one of the most effective members of our Judiciary Committee staff, with a background as a highly decorated Federal prosecutor.

Senator Sessions will remember her work on many criminal justice and national security issues. Senator Hatch will, no doubt, remember her work on the Digital Millennium Copyright Act or Anti-Cyber Squatting Consumer Protection Act and our No Electronic Theft Act.

And then to also remind some of my other colleagues on the other side, Senator Kyl and Senator Grassley, recall her work on the National Information Infrastructure Protection Act, our Computer Fraud and Abuse statute, and on important oversight matters, including the bipartisan hearing we had on Ruby Ridge, which led to some much overdue improvements at the FBI.

Senator Cornyn, of course, will be interested in her work on the electronic freedom of information initiatives. In that regard, I think she is the only nominee I can recall who has been inducted into the Freedom of Information Act Hall of Fame.

What some of you may not know is her background before she joined the Senate staff. She grew up in a proud military family.

And, Colonel, we are glad to have you here.

She was awarded an undergraduate degree with honors in philosophy from Bryn Mawr College in Pennsylvania. She earned her law degree at Columbia University School of Law, where she was a Harlan Fiske Stone scholar. She clerked for Judge Dickinson Debevoise in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey. And having worked as a student assistant in the U.S.
Attorney’s Office, she joined the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the Eastern District of New York in 1987. She worked there for almost 6 years, and rose to be deputy chief of the narcotics section.

Her grand jury investigations and prosecutions included complex public corruption, narcotics, and money laundering cases involving the leadership of the Chinatown Flying Dragons gang, the Cali drug cartel and others.

Descriptions of her cases read like crime novels. She successfully prosecuted the leadership of a Chinatown gang, called the Flying Dragons, for heroin trafficking and extradited the head of the gang after he fled to Hong Kong; a case of you can run, but you cannot hide.

She successfully prosecuted a group of Colombian drug dealers and arrested the gang members just as they were packing almost $20 million in cash from narcotics proceeds into a hidden compartment of a truck to smuggle it out of the country.

Incidentally, your son is listening to this very carefully, hearing about some of the things his mom did.

Then some of these defendants attempted a prison escape by bribing officials and she successfully prosecuted the perpetrators of the escape plan.

She handled the successful investigation and prosecution of over 20 corrupt New York City building inspectors involved in extortion.
Her work was recognized by twice being awarded the U.S. Attorney’s Special Achievement Award for Sustained Superior Performance; by commendations from the FBI, DEA, the New York City Department of Investigation, and ultimately by the prestigious Attorney General’s Director’s Award for Superior Performance.

I always felt lucky to have hired her and that she was willing to come work here. She left us in 2003 to help establish the Washington, D.C. office of a consulting and technical services firm specializing in digital forensics.

And her work in the private sector assisted in a government cyber extortion investigation. She received the FBI Director’s Award; and she was a member of the Commission on Cyber Secu-ry and of the Center for Strategic International Studies; Ms. Howell taught legal ethics as an adjunct professor at American’s University’s, Washington College of Law, and she has twice been con-
I will put the whole statement in the record.

But one of the things that I like very much is she and her husband, Michael, have raised three children in the District, and they are long-time citizens here, and I am proud of them.

[The prepared statement of Chairman Leahy appears as a submission for the record.]

Chairman LEAHY. Then because I know that both Senator Brown and Representative Norton have to leave, let me turn to you for the introductions you want to make, and then we can begin the hearings.

PRESENTATION OF KATHLEEN M. O’MALLEY, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE FEDERAL CIRCUIT BY HON. SHERROD BROWN, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF OHIO

Senator Brown. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman, Senator Sessions, Senator Whitehouse, Senator Franken. Thank you for your attention and your service.

It is my pleasure to introduce Judge Kathleen McDonald O’Malley, a brilliant, dedicated, and trail-blazing jurist. She was raised in Richmond Heights, a Cleveland suburb, supported and nurtured by a typical large Irish Catholic family, many of whom are here today.

Judge O’Malley said that her parents, Thomas and Mildred, whom we call Billie McDonald, in particular, have been the greatest influence in her life.

I want to extend my greetings to Kate’s mother, Billie McDonald, who is proudly watching the hearing via Webcast. So, Billie, thank you for joining us.

As a father of three daughters, I know our children’s successes are sweeter than our own, and congratulations to her mother.

I would also like to recognize Kate’s other family members who are here. Her husband, George Pappas, over my left shoulder; daughter, Nora, and son, Jack, who celebrated his 21st birthday on Monday. Kate’s brothers, Kevin and Brian McDonald, are also here, along with numerous cousins and nieces and friends.

Many of Judge O’Malley’s current and former clerks have traveled from around the Nation to be here today, she told me seven of them, and that speaks volumes, seven of them are in the audience today.

Today is a little bittersweet. Should this Committee and the Senate concur, the people of Ohio will lose one of our finest judges. But it is a proud day for me to speak about her accomplishments and to share her story with this Committee and with the Nation.

As a child, Kate was blessed with wisdom beyond her years. It was clear what she wanted to do with her life. At the age of 12, she was asked what she wanted to be when she grew up. She replied that she wanted to be a Federal judge.

As she excelled, not—centerfield for the Cleveland Indians for me, Federal judge for her. As she excelled—and she has, obviously, done better than I have, too.
As she excelled in school, high school, college and law school, in her words, “It never occurred to me that I couldn’t.”

She graduated phi beta kappa from Kenyon College in Gambier, Ohio, not far from where I grew up, in 1979. She was first in her class, with one of the Nation’s finest law schools, Case Western Reserve Law School near Cleveland.

After law school, Kate clerked for the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, for the very distinguished Judge Nathaniel R. Jones, who was one of her major influences and considers Kate to be like family.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer wrote in 1994 that her clerkship with Judge Jones taught her that as a judge, quote, “You have to be true to the law, you have to be intellectually honest.”

After her clerkship with Judge Jones, Kate spent several years in private practice, she gained invaluable experience representing numerous large corporations, in addition to medium-sized and small businesses.

She became an expert in complex corporate litigation, patent and intellectual property cases, experience that will serve her well as a circuit judge in the Federal circuit.

She translated her private sector experience into a distinguished career in public service as chief counsel and chief of staff for then Ohio Attorney General Lee Fisher. Kate used her brilliant mind and incredible work ethic to litigate major state and Federal constitutional cases at both the trial and appellate levels. Her responsibility that employs intellect and temperament required in the Attorney General’s office has served her well through her career, and people on this Committee are certainly familiar with that.

Recognizing her brilliance, her good legal mind, her superior work ethic, Ohio Senators Howard Metzenbaum and John Glenn recommended Kate’s name to President Clinton for a place on the Federal bench on September 20, 1994.

President Clinton nominated her to serve on the Federal bench as a U.S. District Judge for the Northern District of Ohio. When Judge O’Malley began her service on the northern district bench, she was among the youngest judges serving on the Federal bench. And for the last 15 years, Judge Kate O’Malley, still one of the youngest, has served the northern district of Ohio with distinction.

In case there is any doubt as to her experience, she has handled approximately 4,000 civil cases, 800 criminal cases, three major multi-district litigation cases, including one with 20,000 claimants and another with 12,000 separate cases.

And she is an innovator. She has spearheaded national efforts to integrate cutting-edge technologies into courtrooms, ensuring that the administration of justice is equal and fair and open to all who seek it.

As an educator, Judge O’Malley has generously given back to her alma mater, Case Western, to teach the next generation of patent lawyers and advocates. And as a strong believer in pro bono service, she encourages students and clerks, lawyers and educators alike to provide legal services to those who clearly need them.

She will make an outstanding judge in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. Her distinguished career pursuing justice based on merits and devoid of ideology or hidden agenda will bring an important new voice to the courtroom.

In closing, what maybe amuses me the most about Kate is when asked what is the one thing that people would not know about her, she replies, “Most people don’t know that I’m a Federal judge,” the way that she carries herself and acts, because to most people, she is a wife, mother, daughter, sister, friend, Lacrosse coach, soccer coach.

She is all those things in the community and all those things as a human being. That is what makes me proud to introduce and to support Judge Kate O’Malley.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Chairman LEAHY. Thank you very much.

And, Judge, you should know that he says these nice things about you when you are not here, too, and has.

[Laughter.]

Chairman LEAHY. And if you ever watch the Senate during a vote, you see the various Senators huddling, Republicans, Democrats. Senator Sessions and I get more work done in this Committee between votes, huddling off in a corner, but you see Senator Brown whispering—and he cannot whisper.

Senator Brown. I do not whisper, Mr. Chairman.

Chairman LEAHY. In my ear.

Senator Brown. I try to whisper, but it just carries too much.

Chairman LEAHY. Senator Brown, I know you are supposed to be elsewhere, and feel free to do it.

Senator Franken.

Senator FRANKEN. Do we get questions?

Chairman LEAHY. Of Senator Brown, no.

[Laughter.]

Chairman LEAHY. I thought about it, but we would all have too many and we would be here all afternoon.

PRESENTATION OF BERYL A. HOWELL, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA AND ROBERT L. WILKINS, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA BY HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Representative Norton and I have served together for a lot of years. She stays young, I grow old, but we still serve together, and we both had enduring interest in the District of Columbia.

Representative Norton, I am proud to have you here.

Representative Norton. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman. And I want to thank you, Senator—right here—I worked with you before on Federal judges, U.S. attorney, when President Clinton gave me senatorial courtesy. It is a pleasure to still be able to work with you as you sit once again as chair.

And I want to thank you and Ranking Member Sessions for inviting me to introduce the two nominees for United States District Court for the District of Columbia. Both of them are Washingtonians that I am proud to represent and to introduce, Beryl Howell and Robert Wilkins.
Robert Wilkins graduated in chemical engineering from Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology in 1986 and from Harvard Law School in 1989, where he served as executive editor and common editor of one of the law reviews.

He clerked for Judge Earl B. Gilliam of United States District Court for the Southern District of California. Mr. Wilkins is currently a partner in the Washington, D.C. law firm of Venable, LLP, where he practices primarily in corporate defense, white collar technology and commercial litigation.

He previously has worked as an attorney for the Public Defenders Service for the District of Columbia, where he was chief of special litigation from 1996 to 2000.

Beryl Howell received her J.D. from Columbia University School of Law in 1983, and her BA from Bryn Mawr College in 1978. After law school, Ms. Howell was a law clerk to U.S. District Court Judge Dickinson B. Debevoise of the District Court of New Jersey, and worked in private practice as an associate of the law firm of Schulte Roth & Zabel.

She then was an assistant United States attorney for the Eastern District of New York, where she became deputy chief of the narcotics section. And as you have, I think, perhaps, most authoritatively, Mr. Chairman, outlined in great detail, in much greater detail than I would ever know. She has served in a number of different posts, but perhaps particularly notably, your own staff and as your own general counsel of this Senate Subcommittee on the Judiciary, and as your own senior adviser. So she comes well recommended before this committee, to say the very least.

Robert Wilkins and Beryl Howell have both enjoyed a full range of the experience and intellectual background that has helped them earn reputations as excellent lawyers and makes them ideal candidates for the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

I am pleased to represent them and to recommend them both to you.

Chairman LEAHY. Thank you very, very much.

What I am going to do, and this is no lack of respect for any of the nominees, I am going to slip out. Senator Sessions is going to handle the hearing for me.

I thank Representative Norton especially for coming over, because she has to cross the whole campus to get here, and I appreciate that.

Senator SESSIONS. I appreciate you delegating the chairmanship to me for a change. You are getting nicer and nicer as election coronation gets closer.

[Laughter.]

Chairman LEAHY. I hope you have enjoyed it. I just took it back.

[Laughter.]

Senator SESSIONS. Brief though it is. Mr. Chairman, before you leave, I think you probably heard that the House has just passed the crack cocaine/powder bill, the Senate version. It will be sent to the President for signature, which I have enjoyed working with you on and Senator Durbin and others.

I believe we made a good step to improve justice and I know you agree.
Chairman LEAHY. I think we did. There was a lot of back-and-forth and compromise, and, Senator Sessions, I applaud what you did on that, and Senator Durbin, what he did.

The crack and powder cocaine disparity has bothered me greatly. Ms. Howell has had experience with that on the Sentencing Commission. And I have never been able to understand why somebody who is in the highest levels of society, or their business, whatnot, can pay $200 for cocaine in one form and if they are caught, they are probably going to do some community service. A black kid in the inner city paid $200 for another kind of cocaine and ended up going to prison and their life ruined.

I think it is unfair. So I am delighted to see this. I know the President is going to sign it.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. [Presiding.] All right. We will now have Judge O'Malley come forward.

[Nominee sworn.]

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you. Please be seated. Welcome. Why don't I give you a chance to introduce for the record all of your family who are here with you or who may be watching? I gather your mom is watching over the Webcast.

STATEMENT OF KATHLEEN M. O'MALLEY, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE FEDERAL CIRCUIT

Judge O'MALLEY. Yes, my mom is watching on the Webcast.

First, I would like to thank Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions for scheduling this hearing. I truly appreciate it. And thank you, Senator Whitehouse, for agreeing to chair it.

I also want to thank President Obama for the faith in me that this nomination shows. I want to thank Senator Brown, who is always charming, and I want to thank him for his kind words. And I would like to thank Senator Voinovich, who couldn't be here, but did write to the President on my behalf and has agreed and told me that he is going to submit a statement for the record in support.

Thank you, Senator Franken, for being here.

I won't introduce all of my family and friends that are here, because we would be here all day, but I will introduce a few, if that's okay with you.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Of course.

Judge O'MALLEY. First, of course, my husband, who has already been introduced, is George Pappas. My children, Nora and Jack O'Malley. My brother, Kevin McDonald and his wife, Marybeth, and his daughters, Megan and Molly. My brother, Brian McDonald, and his wife, Chris, and his daughter, Claire.

And I also have here two other nieces and nephews, Eleni and George Alafoginis, from the Greek side of the family.

There are lots of friends. I have friends that have come from Ohio for me, I have friends from Massachusetts. I have Judge Marvin Garvis, who came from Maryland to support me. And I also have seven of my current and former law clerks, who I am thrilled came all the way to be here.

So there are lots of other friends and family that are watching. I do want to say hello to my mother, and I want to say that my dad and my brother, Tom, were both with me 16 years ago and, unfortunately, have passed away, but they would have loved this. So thank you, Senator.

b. The American Bar Association's Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

No.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

   a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

Law Review Editor: I was a member of the Case Western Reserve Law Review from 1980-1982 and edited articles written by others in that capacity. I do not recall the names of the specific articles I edited.

Newspaper Articles: During college, I wrote for the Kenyon Collegian, the school newspaper. I do not have copies of any of the articles that I wrote, nor do I specifically recall the titles of the articles.

b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

In my capacity as First Assistant Attorney General I often spoke publicly as a surrogate for the Attorney General. These statements and/or legislative testimony generally related to the operations and initiatives of the office and/or to the status of legal matters of interest to the office. None addressed or expressed legal policy views that were personal to me, as opposed to the Office of the Attorney General. I do not have notes of any of them.

The Sedona Conference Journal, Cooperation Proclamation, Vol. 10 Suppl. (Fall 2009) – As a member of the Advisory Board of The Sedona Conference, I have formally endorsed the recent publication encouraging cooperation in civil discovery. The Sedona Conference regularly issues “white papers” on topics relating to complex litigation, on which I have occasionally offered informal comment to committees and drafters.

c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

I testified before the United States Senate Committee on the Judiciary on October 6, 1994, in connection with my nomination to be United States District Judge for the Northern District of Ohio.

In my capacity as First Assistant Attorney General of Ohio from 1993-1994, I often spoke publicly as a surrogate for the Attorney General, including before state legislative bodies. These speeches generally related to the budget, operations and initiatives of the office and/or to the status of legal matters of interest to the office. None of these speeches addressed or expressed legal policy views that were personal to me, as opposed to the Office of the Attorney General. I do not have notes of any of them.
d. Supply four (4) copies, transcripts or recordings of all speeches or talks delivered by you, including commencement speeches, remarks, lectures, panel discussions, conferences, political speeches, and question-and-answer sessions. Include the date and place where they were delivered, and readily available press reports about the speech or talk. If you do not have a copy of the speech or a transcript or recording of your remarks, give the name and address of the group before whom the speech was given, the date of the speech, and a summary of its subject matter. If you did not speak from a prepared text, furnish a copy of any outline or notes from which you spoke.

I frequently present or serve as a panelist at bar association events, continuing legal education seminars, and bar and academic conferences. I have not maintained a comprehensive, running listing of such appearances. I have, however, attempted to list below as many of my speaking engagements as possible by searching my archives, reviewing available calendars from past years, and searching my own memory of these events.

I do not always prepare written versions of my remarks or notes, and I have done so less frequently in recent years. I also have not made it a practice to keep copies of my remarks or notes.

In addition to these listed presentations, I frequently have participated in programs at monthly meetings of the John M. Manos Inn of Court. I have not retained records of the specific dates or topics of these programs.

e. List all interviews you have given to newspapers, magazines or other publications, or radio or television stations, providing the dates of these interviews and four (4) copies of the clips or transcripts of these interviews where they are available to you.
Since my appointment to the federal bench, it has been my policy not to grant interviews to the press. On a handful of occasions, I have been profiled in publications, e.g., an alumni newsletter, local bar journal, or Federal Bar Association magazine, and have provided biographical information to that end. I specifically recall two published articles based on interviews I provided since being nominated to become a federal judge in 1994:

Spring 2002/Summer 2002 issue of In Brief: The Magazine of Case Western Reserve University School of Law

In my capacity as First Assistant Attorney General of Ohio from 1993-1994, I often spoke publicly as a surrogate for the Attorney General. Comments I gave to the media generally related to the operations and initiatives of the office and/or to the status of legal matters of interest to the office. I made such comments to address or express the legal policy of the Office of the Attorney General, rather than my own personal views. I do not have copies of articles from those days, but they most likely would have appeared in the Columbus Dispatch, the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the Akron-Beacon Journal, the Dayton Daily News, the Cincinnati Post, or the Youngstown Vindicator.

I do not recall any other interviews and have not identified any by searching publicly-available databases.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.
In 1994, I was appointed by President William Jefferson Clinton to be United States District Judge for the Northern District of Ohio.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

In my fifteen years on the bench, I have handled approximately 4,000 civil cases and 800 criminal cases. In addition, I have presided over three major multi-district litigations: one with more than 20,000 claimants, a second with more than 12,000 cases, and a third with dozens of cases.

In addition to the multi-district litigation, I have presided over at least 60 criminal trials and 45 civil trials.

i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

- jury trials: 85%
- bench trials: 15%
- civil proceedings: 80%
- criminal proceedings: 20%

b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

See attached list of opinions.

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

1. Sulzer Orthopedics Inc. Hip Prosthesis and Knee Prosthesis Liability, Master Case No. 1:01cv9000, MDL Docket No. 1401.

By order of the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation ("MDL"), several personal injury cases were transferred to me for coordinated pretrial proceedings in 2001. Thereafter, more than 400 additional cases, including 34 putative class actions, also were made a part of the MDL. Plaintiffs alleged injuries caused by manufacturing defects in the defendant’s hip and knee implants.

Ultimately, the parties reached a class action settlement and agreed to a claims administration process that put more than $1 billion into the hands of injured claimants. Further, the vast majority of these funds were delivered within three years of the inception of the MDL. In addition to issuing several substantive legal opinions, I worked with the parties to structure an appropriate and workable settlement, conducted preliminary and final fairness hearings, determined appropriate attorneys' fee awards, and presided over the opt-out cases remaining post-settlement. A recapitulation of the entire litigation appears at In re Salzer Hip Prosthesis and Knee Prosthesis Litig., 268 F. Supp. 2d 907 (N.D. Ohio 2003).

The Telxon litigation began as a class action securities fraud complaint filed under the then newly-enacted Private Securities Litigation Reform Act ("PSLRA") asserting securities fraud claims against Telxon Corporation, certain of its officers and directors, and its auditing firm, PricewaterhouseCoopers ("PwC"). In addition to the twenty-seven securities fraud class actions consolidated under the case caption above, the litigation also included related cases Hayman v. PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, Case No. 1:01cv1078 and Wyser-Pratte Mgmt. Co., Inc. v. Telxon Corp., 5:02cv1105. The shareholder claims arose out of a series of audit restatements. Given the passage of the PSLRA in 1995, this action required me to address a number of complicated and novel issues under that Act.

I ultimately approved a number of settlements in the case, and class distributions relating thereto. I also conducted numerous hearings and issued a number of substantive decisions during the course of the proceedings, including: In re Telxon Corp. Sec. Litig., 67 F. Supp. 2d 803 (N.D. Ohio 1999) (consolidating twenty-seven putative securities fraud class actions and identifying lead plaintiffs); In re Telxon Corp. Secs. Litig., 133 F. Supp. 2d 1010 (N.D. Ohio 2000) (denying motion to dismiss securities fraud class action under the PSLRA); In re Telxon Corp. Sec. Litig., Case No. 5:98cv2876, slip op. 120 (N.D. Ohio Sept. 19, 2001) (granting motion for class certification); Hayman v. PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, Case No. 1:01cv1078, slip. op. 38 (N.D. Ohio Aug. 26, 2002) (granting motion for class certification); In re Telxon Corp. Sec. Litig., Case No. 5:98cv2876, slip. ops. 386-93 (N.D. Ohio Dec. 2004-Jan. 2005) (evidentiary hearings regarding discovery and sanctions); Wyser-Pratte Mgmt. Co. v. Telxon Corp., Case No. 5:02cv1105, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27882 (N.D.
Ohio June 4, 2003) (resolving multiple motions to dismiss and certifying questions to the Ohio Supreme Court); In re Telxon Corp. Sec. Litig., Case No. 5:98cv2876, slip op. 236-40 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 13, 2004) (approving class action settlement as to certain aspects of cases, attorneys’ fees, and allocation of settlement proceeds); In re Telxon Corp. Sec. Litig., Case No. 5:98cv2876, slip op. 409 (N.D. Ohio Dec. 21, 2005) (final fairness hearing).

3. United States v. Johnson, Case No. 98cr98.

The defendant, a former Cleveland City Councilman and Ohio State Senator, was charged in a six-count indictment with Hobbs Act violations and wire fraud. The indictment was issued roughly one month after the defendant announced his intention to run for Congress. The defendant was alleged to have demanded $17,000 in campaign contributions and personal loans in exchange for using his position and influence to obtain liquor permits, lottery licenses, food-stamp permits, and licenses to accept food stamps for grocers between 1994 and 1996. Prior to trial, I granted defendant’s motion to dismiss the wire fraud counts.

After a roughly two-week trial, a jury convicted the defendant on three of the four extortion charges. Shortly thereafter, the defendant resigned his Senate seat. I sentenced him to 15 months imprisonment with one year supervised release. The Court of Appeals affirmed. See United States v. Johnson, Case No. 98cr98, slip op. 98 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 19, 1999), aff’d United States v. Johnson, Case No. 99-3259, 2000 U.S. App. LEXIS 22723 (6th Cir. Sept. 5, 2000) (affirming conviction in unpublished opinion).

This case is also significant because it was one of the first times a case was tried in a federal courthouse using high-tech equipment to facilitate the presentation of materials to the jury.

In this case, Weatherchem claimed that J.L. Clark, Inc., willfully infringed two patents owned by Weatherchem: Patent No. 4,693,399 (the "399 patent") and Patent No. 4,936,494 (the "494 patent"). The two patents are directed toward plastic "two-flap closures," which are commonly used as caps to seal cylindrical spice containers; the caps allow the contents to be sprinkled or spooned out. The defendant asserted counterclaims for invalidity, unenforceability, and noninfringement.

The parties tried this matter to the bench and I found that both patents were invalid. With respect to the '399 patent, in a decision later echoed by the Federal Circuit in Pfiff v. Wells Electronics, Inc., 124 F.3d 1429 (Fed. Cir. 1997), aff'd 525 U.S. 55 (1998), regarding the concept of reduction to practice in application of the "on-sale bar," I found the patent invalid due to that statutory bar. I found the '494 patent invalid because it was obvious given the prior art, which included the enclosure embodying the claims of the '399 patent. In the alternative, I found that, as to the '494 patent, if it was valid, its claims were not infringed by the defendant's closures.

In this case, the two defendants carjacked at gunpoint and held for ransom a cooperating witness of the FBI’s New York office. While being held captive, the witness called his FBI contact in New York via cell phone. Eventually a meeting to exchange the witness for ransom was arranged between the FBI and the captors. When the FBI swat team arrived at the scene, a shoot-out occurred, during which the witness was shot and killed.

The defendants were charged in a nine-count indictment that included charges of carjacking and attempted murder of FBI agents engaged in official duties. I presided over a multi-week jury trial of both defendants in August 2004. The jury convicted each defendant on several counts.

6. United States v. City of Euclid (“Euclid I”), Case No. 06cv1652; United States v. Euclid City Sch. Dist. (“Euclid II”), Case No. 08cv2832.

In Euclid I, the government filed a complaint alleging that the City of Euclid’s method of electing its City Council violated Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act. In particular, the government alleged that the City of Euclid used a combination of single-member districts and at-large positions, resulting in the dilution of African-American voting strength. I conducted a bench trial and found a Section 2 violation. I ordered the City to redistrict, which resulted in the election of the first African American ever elected to the Euclid City Council. See United States v. City of Euclid (“Euclid I”), 580 F. Supp. 2d 584 (N.D. Ohio 2008).

In Euclid II, the government filed suit against the Euclid City School District Board of Education (“the Board”) and the Cuyahoga County Board of Elections alleging that the at-large method of electing members of the Board, utilizing staggered terms, violates Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act. The parties noted that Euclid I considered the same population at issue and agreed that the findings in Euclid I were probative of and meaningful to the Court’s assessment of liability in this case. Accordingly, the parties stipulated that the Board violated Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act. The parties disagreed, however, as to the remedy for this past discrimination. I considered the Board’s proposed remedies – limited voting or cumulative voting – and concluded that the Board’s limited voting proposal remedied the Section 2 violation and was not itself violative of Section 2. United States v. Euclid City Sch. Bd. ("Euclid II"), 632 F. Supp. 2d 740 (N.D. Ohio 2009). No appeal was taken in Euclid I. While the government initially filed a notice of appeal in Euclid II, it dismissed that appeal prior to briefing.

Plaintiff, a computer service provider to pharmacies, brought this suit against a pharmacy client and its technology partner. The services contract had included a “Source Code Agreement” to protect plaintiff’s copyrighted software. Plaintiff brought a variety of claims in this case including breach of contract, fraud, copyright infringement, and misappropriation of trade secrets.

Plaintiff settled with the technology partner. I granted parts of several summary judgment motions filed by the pharmacy, leaving four remaining claims for trial: (1) breach of the software license agreements; (2) breach of technical support services agreements; (3) misappropriation of trade secrets; and (4) fraud.

A jury trial resulted in judgment in favor of the plaintiff, awarding compensatory and punitive damages in the amount of $7,347,795.78. Defendant filed a motion for judgment as a matter of law, new trial, or remittitur. I granted the motion for remittitur in part, finding that the jury’s award of $280,000 in compensatory damages flowing from MGI’s breach of the software license agreements was excessive. I denied the remainder of the motion for remittitur and the motion for new trial.

The Sixth Circuit affirmed my decisions and the jury’s verdict, including all aspects of the damages award, as revised by my remittitur order. See Mid-Michigan Computer Sys. v. Marc Glassman, Inc., 416 F.3d 505 (6th Cir. 2005).

Over a several-year period in the mid-to-late 1990s, I presided over a series of cases arising out of a decades-long investigation of organized crime in Youngstown, Ohio. These cases involved the prosecution of more than 60 defendants, and related to wide-scale government corruption, including of state judges, the County Prosecutor, several assistant prosecutors, the County Sheriff, the local Chief of Police, as well as numerous other law enforcement officials, local businessmen, and practicing lawyers. In total, I presided over trials in Alshuler and related cases nearly-continuously for an 18-month period.

In Alshuler, 30 co-defendants, including alleged Youngstown mob boss Lenine “Lenny” Strollo, were indicted for various charges including racketeering, illegal gambling, conspiracy, and, as to a few defendants, murder for hire. Most of the Alshuler defendants pled guilty (Strollo himself entered a last-minute plea while I was empanelling an anonymous jury). Because Strollo’s plea agreement required extensive government cooperation, I waited until 2004, after he had satisfied these requirements, before sentencing him to 12 years and 8 months imprisonment. The information provided by Strollo to the Government was critical to several other successful mob-related corruption prosecutions of public officials. Where these defendants appealed, the Sixth Circuit affirmed.

Of the 30 co-defendants in the Alshuler case, only three went to jury trial (all were convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment). United States v. Alshuler, Case No. 4:97cr385, slip ops. 669-673 (N.D. Ohio Mar. 12, 1999). The Court of Appeals affirmed all trial proceedings, judgments, and sentences as to these three defendants. See United States v. Riddle, 249 F.3d 529 (6th Cir. 2001); United States v. Riddle, No. 99-3405, 2001 U.S. App. LEXIS 8893 (6th Cir. May 4, 2001). The Supreme Court denied certiorari. See Turnage v. United States, 534

9. In re Scrap Metal Antitrust Litig., Case No. 02cv844.

This was a class action suit brought against a number of defendants who operated businesses that buy residual scrap metal and resell it in Ohio and other states. The plaintiffs alleged that the defendants conspired to restrain trade, suppress and eliminate competition, and fix the price of scrap metal in Northeastern Ohio.

After years of litigation, including certain delays occasioned by deference to ongoing criminal proceedings, all but three of the original defendants in this case were either dismissed by or settled with the plaintiffs. I presided over the fairness hearings on these settlements.

As to the remaining three defendants, the jury returned a split verdict after a three-week trial, finding only one of the three liable. The jury awarded an $11.5 million verdict against the liable defendant. Pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 15(a), I trebled the jury’s award to $34.5 million and then subtracted the amount received from the from other defendants’ settlements. The losing defendants appealed the jury verdict and damages award and the Court of Appeals affirmed. In re Scrap Metal Antitrust Litig, 527 F.3d 517 (6th Cir. 2008), cert. denied, 129 S. Ct. 1673 (2009)

10. United States v. City of Parma, Case No. 73cv439.

In 1973, the Department of Justice sued the City of Parma alleging violations of the Fair Housing Act. More specifically, the government alleged that Parma had a policy of excluding African Americans from residing within its limits and that the City engaged in various acts and practices which operated to deny equal housing opportunity to African Americans on the basis of race.

At the time I inherited this case as part of my new docket in 1994, it had been pending for more than 20 years and the differences between the parties were great. The case had been transferred among many judicial officers prior to being assigned to me. I conducted multiple settlement conferences over several months, including a single conference that itself spanned several days. Through this process, the parties settled. In the agreement, the City of Parma agreed to establish a public-housing board, pledged to spend $1 million on marketing the City to African Americans, enacted a fair-housing ordinance, and created a panel to handle complaints about housing discrimination. See United States v. City of Parma, Case No. 73cv439, slip op. issued Nov. 15, 1996 (N.D. Ohio Nov. 15, 1996) (regarding settlement agreement and dismissal).

c. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

The Supreme Court of the United States has granted certiorari in two cases over which I presided:

See attached list of cases in which certiorari was denied.

Chappell v. City of Cleveland, 584 F. Supp. 2d 974 (N.D. Ohio 2008), rev’d, 585 F.3d 901 (6th Cir. 2009). The Court of Appeals ordered summary judgment in a case where I had found a genuine issue of material fact.

Lenz v. City of Cleveland, Case No. 04cv0669, slip op. 195 (N.D. Ohio Sept. 21, 2007), aff’d in part, rev’d in part, 333 Fed. Appx. 42 (6th Cir. 2009). The Court of Appeals affirmed most aspects of a jury verdict but remanded for reconsideration of the propriety of remittitur of the damages award.

Gordon v. Dadante, Case No. 1:05cv2726, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22926 (N.D. Ohio March 29, 2007), rev’d, 294 Fed. Appx. 235 (6th Cir. 2008). My order concluded that a financial brokerage had waived its right to enforce an arbitration clause. The Court of Appeals reversed, holding that the brokerage’s conduct was not “completely inconsistent” with asserting its right to arbitration.

Erico Int’l Corp. v. Doc’s Mfg., Case No. 1:05cv2924, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 98234 (N.D. Ohio May 3, 2006), vacated, 516 F.3d 1350 (Fed. Cir. 2008). I preliminarily enjoined the defendant in this patent case from selling any of its products until the resolution of this action. Applying all four of the traditional preliminary injunction factors, I found that, on balance, an injunction should issue. A divided panel vacated my injunction, employing the “substantial question” test rather than the traditional four factor test. Judge Pauline Newman dissented, disagreeing with the test employed by the majority. The Federal Circuit has since adopted the four-factor approach. See Titan Tire Corp. v. Case New Holland, Inc., 566 F.3d 1372 (Fed. Cir. 2009).

Girts v. Yanai, No. 1:02cv0264, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 45611 (N.D. Ohio July 12, 2005), rev’d, 501 F.3d 743 (6th Cir. 2007), cert. denied, 129 S. Ct. 92 (U.S. 2008). A divided panel of the Court of Appeals held that I had given an inappropriate degree of deference to the state court in finding that a habeas petitioner had not been denied the effective assistance of counsel.

United States v. Montanez, Case No. 1:04cr138, slip op. 59 (N.D. Ohio Nov. 17, 2004), vacated, 442 F.3d 485 (6th Cir. 2006). The Court of Appeals overruled its prior binding precedent on which I relied to conclude that a particular Ohio Code violation qualified as a controlled substance offense for purposes of career offender classification under the United States Sentencing Guidelines.

Davis v. United Auto. Aerospace & Agric. Implement Workers of Am., Case No. 1:03cv1311, slip op. Doc. 19 (N.D. Ohio Dec. 31, 2003), rev’d, 392 F.3d 834 (6th Cir. 2004), cert. denied, 549 U.S. 1204 (2007). The Court of Appeals reversed my decision to remand a state-law age discrimination case, holding that the plaintiff’s claims were preempted by the Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act (“LMRDA”).

CSX Transp., Inc. v. United Transp. Union, Case No. 1:02cv2394 (N.D. Ohio Aug. 28, 2003), rev’d, 395 F.3d 365 (6th Cir. 2005). A divided panel of the Court of Appeals found that the dispute at issue was a “minor” dispute under the Railway Labor Act where I had found it to be a “major” dispute.

Hodge v. Harley, Case No. 01cv1773, slip op. 25 (N.D. Ohio Jan. 14, 2003), rev’d, 426 F.3d 368 (6th Cir. 2005). A divided panel of the Court of Appeals held that I had given an inappropriate degree of deference to the state court in finding that a habeas petitioner had not been denied the effective assistance of counsel. Judge Eugene Siler dissented, recommending that my decision be affirmed.
United States v. Sauder, Case No. 4:00cr488, slip op. 166 (N.D. Ohio May 9, 2002), aff’d in part, rev’d in part, 393 F.3d 669 (6th Cir. 2005). Addressing an issue of first impression, the Court of Appeals reversed the defendant’s conviction under the Hobbs Act, finding that “a private citizen who is not in the process of becoming a public official may be convicted of Hobbs Act extortion under the ‘color of official right’ theory only if that private citizen either conspires with, or aids and abets, a public official in the act of extortion.” The Court affirmed all other convictions and the defendant’s sentence was unaffected.

United Church of Christ v. Gateway Econ. Dev. Corp. of Greater Cleveland, Case No. 00ev661, slip op. 40 (N.D. Ohio Mar. 22, 2001), aff’d in part, rev’d in part, and remanded, 383 F.3d 839 (6th Cir. 2004). The Court of Appeals affirmed most of my opinion in this First Amendment case, but reversed and remanded for further findings on the reasonableness of speech restrictions on a portion of the sidewalk ringed a sports stadium near downtown Cleveland.

Esparza v. Anderson, Case No. 3:96cv7434, slip op. 132 (N.D. Ohio Oct. 13, 2000), aff’d sub nom. Esparza v. Mitchell, 310 F.3d 414 (6th Cir. 2002), rev’d, 540 U.S. 12 (2003). I granted the petition for a writ of habeas corpus on the sentencing phase of this state death penalty case. I found that the state court had failed to adhere to state statutory law regarding how and when the death penalty can be imposed, and that this failure rendered the sentence unconstitutional. I concluded that the state court’s error was a “structural” error not susceptible to “harmless error” review. In so holding, I acknowledged that my analysis depended on reconciling two arguably inconsistent Supreme Court decisions – Neder v. United States, 527 U.S. 1 (1999) and Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466 (2000). The Court of Appeals affirmed in all respects. In a per curiam opinion, the Supreme Court reversed, holding that the sentencing error at issue was susceptible to harmless error review.

Keller v. Cent. Bank of Nig., Case No. 1:98cv1270, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21879 (N.D. Ohio Feb. 28, 2000), aff’d in part, vacated in part, 277 F.3d 811 (6th Cir. 2002). The Court of Appeals held that the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act precluded civil RICO claims because the foreign sovereigns would not be indictable for the criminal acts that are necessary predicates to those claims. The Sixth Circuit’s opinion created a circuit split, see United States v. Campa, 529 F.3d 980, 1000–01 (11th Cir. 2008) (noting this split).

United States v. Chance, Case No. 4:99cr22, slip op. 94 (N.D. Ohio Nov. 24, 1999), aff’d in part and rev’d in part, 306 F.3d 356 (6th Cir. 2002). The Court of Appeals reversed for additional justification of my upward departure from the sentencing range recommended by the United States Sentencing Guidelines. On remand, I imposed the same sentence with further justification and that sentence was not appealed.
Ross v. Campbell Soup Co., Case No. 98cv196, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23288 (N.D. Ohio Aug. 26, 1999), rev'd, 237 F.3d 701 (6th Cir. 2001). The Court of Appeals reversed my grant of summary judgment for the defendant in an ADA case, finding a genuine issue of material fact as to whether the company “regarded” the Plaintiff as having a disability. Two other circuits later disagreed, see Nese v. Julian Nordic Constr. Co., 405 F.3d 638, 642 (7th Cir. 2005) (citing Rakity v. Dillon Companies, Inc., 302 F.3d 1152, 1165 (10th Cir. 2002)).

Cleveland Indians Baseball Co. v. United States, Case No. 1:96cv2240, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1043 (N.D. Ohio Jan. 25, 1999), aff'd, 215 F.3d 1325 (6th Cir. 2000), rev'd, 532 U.S. 200 (2001). In this tax case, I granted summary judgment in favor of the plaintiff based on binding Sixth Circuit precedent, which required that “a settlement for back wages should not be allocated to the period when the employer finally pays but should be allocated to the periods when the regular wages were not paid as usual.” I noted that, had I not been bound by Sixth Circuit precedent, my decision may well have been different. The Court of Appeals affirmed my application of its precedent, but the Supreme Court reversed that precedent.

Scott v. Anderson, 58 F. Supp. 2d 767 (N.D. Ohio 1998), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 209 F.3d 854 (6th Cir. 2000), cert. denied, 531 U.S. 1021 (2000). In Scott, I granted the petition for writ of habeas corpus on the basis that the state trial court’s imposition of the death penalty was unconstitutional given the trial judge’s improper instruction that the jurors had to unanimously recommend a life sentence. I denied the petition on all other grounds. The Court of Appeals affirmed my treatment of all but the unanimity issue, which it found to have been procedurally defaulted.

LSJ Inv. Co. v. O.L.D., Inc., Case No. 96cv1527, slip op. 45 (N.D. Ohio Aug. 11, 1997), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 167 F.3d 320 (6th Cir. 1999). The Court of Appeals affirmed my entry of default judgment in this civil RICO case on all grounds except as to one individual defendant, finding that a lack of proper service prohibited judgment by default as to that defendant.

Cehrs v. Ne. Ohio Alzheimer Research Cir., 959 F. Supp. 441 (N.D. Ohio 1997), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 155 F.3d 775 (6th Cir. 1998). The Court of Appeals reversed in part my grant of summary judgment to the defendant in this employment case, agreeing that summary judgment was appropriate on certain of plaintiff's claims, but finding that there was a genuine issue of fact as to whether the plaintiff's requested accommodation was reasonable under the ADA.

Blake v. Wright, Case No. 1:96cv2337, slip op. 19 (N.D. Ohio July 16, 1997), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 179 F.3d 1003 (6th Cir. 1999), cert. denied, 528 U.S. 1136 (2000). The Court of Appeals affirmed in part and reversed in part my denial of qualified immunity to an ex-police chief who had used concealed equipment to eavesdrop on and had wiretapped his employees' conversations.

Weatherchem Corp. v. J.L. Clark, 937 F. Supp. 1262 (N.D. Ohio 1996), aff'd in part, vacated in part, 163 F.3d 1326 (Fed. Cir. 1998). The Federal Circuit affirmed my disposition of this patent infringement case in full but found that alternative findings I had made were unnecessary and should be vacated.

Ferro Corp. v. Garrison Indus., 927 F. Supp. 234 (N.D. Ohio 1996), rev'd, 142 F.3d 926 (6th Cir. 1998). The Court of Appeals reversed my order vacating an arbitrator's award, finding that a general choice of law clause was insufficient to establish that the parties intended to employ Ohio law with respect to the scope of an arbitrator's authority.

It has not been my practice to keep a list of opinions in which I was reversed. I generated my response to this question by reviewing the appellate history of my decisions included in the Lexis database. In addition to shepherding the subsequent history of my reported opinions, I searched for opinions from the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit that mentioned my name as the district judge, thereby capturing reversals of certain unpublished slip opinions. Beyond this list, I do not recall any other reversals.

g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.
I resolve most significant and/or dispositive motions via written opinion and order. Occasionally, in the interest of judicial efficiency in time-sensitive matters, I resolve such motions by oral rulings from the bench. I use non-document orders or short unpublished orders to address procedural issues, scheduling, discovery disputes and other administrative issues and motions. All orders are docketed when issued. Since approximately 2002, individual case dockets are available through the Court’s Electronic Case Filing system. For cases that predate 2002, the dockets and copies of all orders entered in those cases are located in an off-site storage facility located in Chicago, Illinois.

It is my understanding that, in recent years, the Westlaw and Lexis databases identify and make available most substantive decisions from most federal courts. Before that, I sent opinions to be published only where I felt a significant legal issue had been addressed and decided, or where a party or interested organization requested publication.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

I assess the propriety of recusal in all cases by reference to governing statutory and ethical rules or canons, including advisory opinions relating thereto. Where I have been unclear as to the obligations imposed by the governing criteria, I have sought guidance from the General Counsel of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts and/or the United States Judicial Conference Committee on Codes of Conduct for United States Judges.

Our Court’s automatic recusal system assists judges in their effort to comply with these governing standards. Under that system, the Clerk’s Office and my individual courtroom deputy maintain lists of persons and entities whose involvement in a case triggers my recusal without action on my part. The lists, which I update regularly, include entities in which my spouse and I have a financial interest and attorneys with whom I have a familial or other disqualifying personal relationship. Earlier in my service as a judge, it also included my former law firm.

Criminal defendants occasionally have requested via a letter addressed directly to the Court that I recuse myself. I read these letters and consider the asserted bases for recusal. I have never, however, recused myself from a case based on this sort of request from a criminal defendant. I have not retained any list of such cases.

In addition, based on my recollection and search of my files, I have identified the following cases in which I recused or ruled on a motion or request to recuse:

Hines v. Chandra, 06cv2233 (2009): Plaintiff pro se questioned my fairness and asserted that I was biased against him after I issued an order granting summary judgment against him in which I noted that he had been disbarred. I denied his recusal motion based on the applicable legal standard.

United States v. Zaidi, 5:08cr187 (N.D. Ohio 2009): The pro se Defendant questioned my fairness and accused me of conspiring against him with the Government. Although I ultimately transferred the case to another Judge for trial for administrative reasons, I found the Defendant’s allegations to be baseless and did not recuse myself.

ACLU v. Ashbrook, 211 F. Supp. 2d 873 (N.D. Ohio 2008): A Defendant serving as a state court judge filed a motion to disqualify based on the contention that, in the process of inquiring about scheduling issues, my then-law clerk had an ex parte conversation with a party. I denied the motion and retained the case, finding that the communications at issue related to purely procedural matters. Later, the defendant judge sent me a letter discussing his motives. Thereafter, when a renewed action was filed against the same parties, I recused myself sua sponte because of the out-of-court communication initiated by the state court judge. See ACLU v. DeWeese, Case No. 08cv2372 (N.D. Ohio 2008).

Muller v. Simone, 03cv2357, slip op. 129 (Oct. 30, 2006): In a written opinion, I granted defendant’s motion to recuse on the grounds that she had retained counsel from Jones Day, where my brother is a partner.
United States v. Goist, 4:03cv1048 (2005): I recused myself sua sponte in a civil suit when the plaintiff had been a criminal defendant who had appeared before me, and his civil suit attempted to place a lien on my property and asserted claims against the prosecutor in his criminal case.

DirectTV, Inc. v. Katakos, 03cv2403 (2003): I recused myself sua sponte because a relative of one of my staff members was a named defendant in a related case.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

   a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

   I have not held public office other than judicial office. I have not had unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

   b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

   I provided a limited amount of volunteer policy support to Lee Fisher’s reelection campaign for Attorney General of Ohio in 1994.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

   a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

      i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

      From 1982 to 1983 I served as a law clerk to the Honorable Nathaniel R. Jones, United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.
ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I never practiced alone.

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

Other than my role in facilitating alternative paths toward resolution of matters that come before me as a district court judge, I cannot recall serving as a mediator or arbitrator.
b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

From 1982 to 1983, I was a judicial law clerk, during which time I conducted legal research and drafted materials for Judge Jones.

From 1983 to 1991, I was a civil litigator in private practice.

From 1991 to 1993, I was Chief Counsel to the Ohio Attorney General. I personally litigated major cases on federal and state constitutional questions in both federal and state court, at the trial and appellate levels. I supervised all matters litigated by the 350 lawyers in the Office, including on questions relating to sovereign immunity, reapportionment, election law, environmental law, administrative law, criminal law, eminent domain, the state’s constitutional spending and taxing authority, and state court jurisdictional issues, among others.

From 1993 to 1994, I was First Assistant and Chief of Staff to the Ohio Attorney General. I was responsible for oversight of all aspects of the office, including the legal, law enforcement, legislative, communications, and collections operations and the human resources and administrative aspects of the office, which employed in excess of 1,100 persons. I spent a significant amount of time in this role spearheading law enforcement-related initiatives and concentrating on improving the management and professionalism of the office.

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

While in private practice (1983-1991), my typical clients were large corporations (including several Fortune 500 companies) as well as medium and small businesses. My early work was primarily in complex corporate litigation and particularly intellectual property litigation. For several years, I spent a substantial amount of my time as special counsel to the State of Ohio in connection with the Savings and Loans (S&L) Collapse. After resolution of the S&L cases, in addition to my work for large corporations, I also began representing small and mid-sized businesses, specifically in connection with shareholder disputes and cases involving trade secrets, trademarks, restrictive covenants, and covenants not to compete. I also did some First Amendment and products liability litigation. Beginning in 1990, I spent most of my time on a complex securities fraud case. My last major case in private practice was as co-counsel representing Lee Fisher in an election contest filed in connection with his 1990 election to Attorney General of the State of Ohio.
While serving in the Office of the Ohio Attorney General, my clients were the State of Ohio and its agencies and officers, including the Governor and other elected public officials.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

During my time as a practicing attorney, I tried a number of cases and otherwise appeared in court occasionally.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. federal courts: 65%
   2. state courts of record: 35%
   3. other courts:
   4. administrative agencies:

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. civil proceedings: 95%
   2. criminal proceedings: 5%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I estimate that I was counsel in 15-20 cases tried to verdict or judgment. In approximately six to eight of those cases I functioned as either sole or lead counsel, and in the others I participated either as co-counsel or associate counsel.

i. What percentage of these trials were:
   1. jury: 15%
   2. non-jury: 85%

e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

During my tenure at the Ohio Attorney General’s Office, I participated in and supervised the petition for certiorari filed in the Supreme Court of the United States in connection with Ohio’s Ethnic Intimidation/Penalty Enhancement Law. I also helped to draft the amicus brief filed on behalf of all states in support of the State of Wisconsin’s successful effort to have its ethnic intimidation statute declared constitutional. While in private practice, I participated in drafting oppositions to petitions for certiorari in a handful of cases.
17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

   a. the date of representation;

   b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and

   c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

1. In re Election of November 6, 1990 for the Office of Attorney General of Ohio, 62 Ohio St. 3d 1 (1991).

Paul E. Pfeiffer, Attorney General Lee Fisher's opponent in the 1990 election for the office of the Attorney General in the State of Ohio, challenged the election of Attorney General Fisher, claiming that alleged irregularities existed in the election process that rendered the election defective.

Because election contests in Ohio are direct actions before the Supreme Court of Ohio, the matter was litigated in a unique fashion. The parties submitted all factual evidence to the court through trial depositions, affidavits, exhibits and/or stipulations of fact. The depositions of more than forty witnesses were taken and submitted to the court and those depositions generated more than 150 exhibits for the court's consideration. A lengthy brief synthesized and summarized this evidence for the court, and delineated how those facts, as applied to controlling law, supported Lee Fisher's election. The election contest commenced during the last week of December 1990 and the Supreme Court heard oral argument on all of the parties' submissions on February 20, 1990. This compressed schedule necessitated expedited and sometimes around the clock trial preparation.

In this matter, I sat second chair to Richard M. Markus, representing Attorney General Lee Fisher. I conducted all of the research and drafted the briefs. I also assembled the factual record for submission to the court and played a significant role in devising and implementing litigation strategy decisions. I participated in outlining and preparing the argument to the Ohio Supreme Court, which Richard Markus made. The Court ruled in favor of Attorney General Fisher.

I represented plaintiffs pro bono in their action against two police officers and the City of Cleveland, under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. A jury heard the evidence for approximately ten days in the Honorable Alvin I. Krenzler’s courtroom.

The trial involved allegations that two City of Cleveland vice officers who arrested the two plaintiffs for prostitution and testified against them in a criminal trial on those charges, had (1) arrested plaintiffs without probable cause to do so; (2) engaged in excessive use of force; (3) failed to provide sufficient medical attention to the plaintiffs when needed; and (4) intentionally inflicted emotional distress upon the plaintiffs by perjuring themselves in the course of the plaintiffs’ criminal trial. The jury returned a verdict on all counts against the two police officers, crediting my clients’ claims and finding the defendants liable under all theories of liability. Prior to subsequent trial phases on municipal liability and on damages, the case settled on terms favorable to the plaintiffs. I served as the lead lawyer for plaintiffs. An associate from my former law firm assisted.

Co-counsel: Robert Mann, Last known phone number: (216) 766-5081. Opposing counsel: Kathleen Martin, Last known phone number: (216) 664-2800

As primary counsel, I represented then-Governor George V. Voinovich in connection with plaintiff’s challenge to the constitutionality of Governor Voinovich’s system for appointing persons to fill in-term judicial vacancies in the State of Ohio. The plaintiff claimed that the trilogy of cases issued by the Supreme Court of the United States addressing the propriety of patronage hiring and discharges (Elrod, Branti, and Rutan) mandated the conclusion that the Governor’s appointment practices violated the plaintiff’s and other would-be candidates’ First Amendment rights of expression and association. Plaintiff also asserted violations of the Voting Rights Act.

The court ordered expedited discovery, followed by a hearing, on plaintiff’s request for a preliminary injunction. The plaintiff sought to prohibit the Governor from making further judicial appointments in the State of Ohio unless and until the Governor instituted a bipartisan screening process for purposes of choosing judicial candidates.

Following the hearing, which included testimony of numerous fact and expert witnesses, the court entered judgment in favor of Governor Voinovich and dismissed plaintiff’s complaint on the merits sua sponte. Plaintiff appealed. I argued the appeal in the Sixth Circuit, again representing Governor Voinovich as the appellee. The Court of Appeals ruled in the Governor’s favor and the Supreme Court of the United States denied certiorari.

4. Preterm Cleveland v. Voinovich, Common Pleas Case No. 92CV-01-528 (Judge Guy Reese); Ohio Tenth District Court of Appeals Case No. 92-AP 791

In this matter, I represented defendants then-Governor George V. Voinovich, the Ohio Department of Health, and then-Attorney General Lee Fisher. Plaintiffs challenged the constitutionality of House Bill 108, the Ohio Law requiring physician-driven informed consent and a 24-hour waiting period prior to the performance of an abortion in the State of Ohio. The trial court conducted a hearing on plaintiffs’ request for a preliminary injunction and received evidence regarding plaintiffs’ claim that House Bill 108 violated the plaintiff’s privacy and First Amendment rights under the United States Constitution.

In response, the State argued that the statutes were constitutional under the standard adopted by the Third Circuit in Planned Parenthood v. Casey, 947 F.2d 682 (3d Cir. 1991). The court consolidated plaintiffs’ federal claims with the trial on the merits of plaintiffs’ state law claims. After trial, the trial court declared House Bill 108 unconstitutional under both the United States and Ohio Constitutions.

The state appealed the matter to the Tenth District Court of Appeals and in October 1992, I argued the appeal on behalf of the State. The Tenth District reversed the trial court and ruled in the State’s favor, relying on the undue burden standard, which had then been adopted by the Supreme Court of the United States in Planned Parenthood v. Casey, 505 U.S. 833 (1992). The Supreme Court of Ohio thereafter refused to hear the matter.

Co-counsel: Andrew L. Sutter, Assistant General Counsel, JP Morgan Chase & Co., 1111 Polaris Parkway, Columbus, OH 43240, (614) 248-6478; Andrew Steven Berge, Deputy Dir. for Legal Affairs, State of Ohio, Ohio EPA, Lazarus Government Center, 50 W Town St., Columbus, OH 43215, (614) 644-2782. Opposing Counsel: Kevin F. O'Neill, Associate Professor of Law, Cleveland - Marshall College of Law, Cleveland State University, 1801 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, OH 44115-2223, (216) 687-5282.

5. State ex rel, Cincinnati Post v. the Second & Sixth District Courts of Appeal, Case No. 91-2552, decided December 14, 1992, 65 Ohio St. 3d 378 (before the Ohio Supreme Court)

This was a direct action in the Supreme Court of Ohio seeking a writ of mandamus against the Second and Sixth District Courts of Appeals. The Cincinnati Post sought the production of records relating to the Courts’ consideration of minors’ requests to bypass the statutory obligation to inform their parents or guardians prior to obtaining an abortion in the State of Ohio. I was lead counsel representing the Courts of Appeals. I argued to the Supreme Court that the importance of protecting the anonymity of minors involved in the judicial bypass proceedings outweighed petitioner’s claimed right to the documents.
The Supreme Court of Ohio ruled in favor of the newspaper, concluding that the State's interest in protecting the anonymity of the minor was not sufficient to override the First Amendment interest in free access to the Courts. The Supreme Court further found that the State should attempt to protect the anonymity of the minor through more narrowly drawn means.

In this case, I was the lead lawyer defending Gentry Clothiers. Diamonds Men's Stores claimed that Gentry engaged in false advertising by asserting that it sold top quality clothing at "about half" the price of regular-priced men's retailers. The court conducted a several day trial on plaintiff's request for a preliminary injunction.

After the preliminary injunction hearing, the court found that the plaintiff: (1) was not entitled to a preliminary injunction; and (2) had very little likelihood of ever succeeding on the merits of its underlying claims against Gentry. Judge James J. McMonagle issued a written opinion delineating his findings. Sometime following the court's ruling on the preliminary injunction, the parties settled their dispute.

In this products liability case, I sat second chair in the defense of a manufacturer. Plaintiff claimed that a three-wheeled all-terrain vehicle produced by Kawasaki was defectively and/or negligently designed, that it was negligently manufactured, and that Kawasaki had failed properly to warn plaintiff regarding the use of the vehicle. In April 1988, following approximately eight days of trial, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendant Kawasaki.

8. Harris v. Arthur Andersen & Co., Ohio Ct. of Claims

This action against Arthur Andersen & Co. was one of the most substantial aspects of the Home State litigation in which my firm, Porter, Wright, Morris & Arthur, acted as special counsel to the Superintendent of Savings & Loans and the State of Ohio. The State alleged, in the name of the Superintendent of Banks and on behalf of the depositors and creditors of Home State Savings Bank, that Arthur Andersen negligently discharged its professional functions as the auditors of Home State Savings Bank, thus contributing to its collapse. Specifically, the State alleged that Arthur Andersen failed to address the dangers inherent in the extensive reverse repurchase transactions in which Home State had engaged with ESM Securities, and had given Home State the equivalent of an auditing clean bill of health, despite its precarious financial position and its failure to maintain a sufficient net worth to cover its potential losses.

The matter went to trial in the Ohio Court of Claims before a visiting judge. Since the matter presented some questions triable to a jury and some that were not, the court began jury trial in February 1988. Following six full weeks of trial, the plaintiff completed the submission of its case in chief to the jury. Before the defendant began its case, the parties settled, and the trial ended without deliberation by the jury. Under the settlement, Arthur Andersen’s insurers paid a significant sum of money to the State.

I was one of six lawyers who participated in the trial in the Court of Claims.

In this matter, I was one of three counsel of record representing the Dayton Daily News in a defamation action filed by former Supreme Court of Ohio Justice James J. Celebrezze against the newspaper and its editorial cartoonist. On the opening day of trial, the court entered judgment in favor of the newspaper and cartoonist. Plaintiff appealed the matter to the Eighth District Court of Appeals in Cuyahoga County and, again, the newspaper prevailed. This was the first case in Ohio in which a court declared that an editorial cartoon, as a matter of law, constitutes an expression of opinion protected by the First Amendment and the Ohio Constitution.

In this matter, I served as lead counsel to entrepreneurs who pioneered the provision of emergency care services through urgent care centers in the State of Ohio. Their business initially was successful and highly profitable. The entrepreneurs sold shares to a large out-of-state interest that, in partnership with a number of other investors, gained majority control of the shares in the corporation. I successfully defended against a claim brought by the corporation that sought a temporary restraining order and preliminary and permanent injunctions against one of the entrepreneurs who was also head of the medical staff for the urgent care centers. After the court refused to enter injunctive relief against my client, I instituted an action on his behalf (and that of the second entrepreneur) in which we asserted that the majority shareholders of the corporation had engaged in an effort to “squeeze out” my clients, and had violated the securities laws and the corporation’s own shareholder agreements. After extensive discovery and on the eve of the scheduled hearing on my clients’ request for the appointment of a receiver and the dissolution of the corporation, the matter settled, resulting in a buy out of the entrepreneurs’ shares.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

During my time in private practice, I was a full-time litigator. In addition to my courtroom work, I was involved in several substantial representations that did not proceed to trial during my involvement with them. For example, during my first several years in practice, I worked on a number of patent and intellectual property disputes relating to oil additives. From 1985 to 1988, most of my practice related to the Savings and Loan collapse, in which I was part of a team representing the State of Ohio and was engaged in constant motion practice and other pre-trial proceedings on the State’s behalf in various courts of Ohio and of other states. In 1990, I spent a substantial portion of my year representing a rental car company in a civil Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) case in which I was one of two lead attorneys and won a substantial victory freezing defendants’ assets.

While Chief Counsel and later First Assistant Attorney of Ohio, I supervised all litigation in the Office and counseled senior government officers on legal questions. I coordinated state-wide law enforcement initiatives, such as boarding up of drug houses, I helped coordinate legislative efforts to strengthen the authority of the Attorney General’s Office in areas such as Medicaid fraud and environmental enforcement, and had supervisory authority over the Ohio Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation and the Ohio Police Officers Training Academy. I directly managed special legal situations, such as representations for the reapportionment and congressional redistricting in the State of Ohio in 1991-92. In that matter, special counsel represented the majority and minority members of the Reapportionment Board, but both groups of special counsel reported to me (necessitating a unique and delicate conflicts treatment). In addition, I personally represented the interests of the State of Ohio in the reapportionment litigation filed in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio and the Supreme Court of Ohio, and I argued on behalf of the State in the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

   "Handling Patent, Copyright, and Trademark Cases" (2003, 2005 & 2007-Present)—Berkeley Center for Law and Technology. I am a faculty member at an annual three-day intensive program to educate Federal Judges regarding the handling of patent, copyright, and trademark matters including as to substantive, procedural, and case management issues in all three fields.

   Patent Litigation (2002, 2003, 2004 & 2006)—Case Western Reserve University School of Law ("CWRU"). Three credit hour course addressing matters relating to case management, jurisdiction, procedure, claim construction, trial tactics, client management, counsel's role in the litigation process, the use of technology in patent cases, and key substantive areas of patent law such as obviousness, infringement, damages, and Daubert.

   From 1998 to 2006, I have been a periodic pro bono visiting lecturer at CWRU, conducting presentations in advanced criminal procedure (including one for Prof. Paul Giancinnelli's class in roughly February of 2006), trial tactics, and the use of technology in the courtroom.

   ALI-ABA Course of Study: In 1999, 2002 to 2006, and 2008, I served as a faculty member for "Trial of a Patent Case," an annual, multi-day program to train lawyers on best practices for the handling of patent matters. Judicial officers, practitioners, in-house counsel, and experts present, preside over, and critique a mock patent trial, and give presentations on substance, procedure and tactics.

   Research, Advocacy, and Writing (1981-1982)—CWRU.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I have no such arrangements.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

While I may consider teaching again at some point in the future, I would not do so soon after taking the appellate bench. I would hope, however, to continue participating in the development of the law through lectures, law-related advisory boards and panels, and similar activities undertaken without compensation. I would ensure strict adherence to all ethical rules in any such activity. I have no other plans, nor any commitments or agreements, to pursue outside employment.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

My spouse is a partner at Covington & Burling and my brother is a partner at Jones Day. Both firms have practices that may cause them to appear before the Federal Circuit. I always have recused myself from all matters involving either firm and will continue to do so, if confirmed to a new court. I also will recuse myself with respect to the clients of either of these firms to the extent appropriate under all governing statutes, canons, and rules of ethics or with respect to entities in which I or my spouse have a financial interest that would require recusal (though I do not anticipate this would occur on other than rare occasions). I know of no other potential conflicts of interest.

In my present position and if confirmed as a Circuit Judge, I will continue to adhere to all statutory and ethical obligations regarding recusal and will disclose any circumstances where any conflict or potential appearance of conflict arises, even where recusal is not mandated. I will follow all guidelines provided for the judiciary in all relevant statutes, canons, or advisory opinions. When necessary, I will also seek guidance from the General Counsel of the Administrative Office of United States Courts and the Committee on Codes of Conduct for United States Judges.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

Prior to taking the bench in 1994, I was actively engaged in pro bono representations:

Gordon Square Restaurant & Lounge, Inc. v. Sergeant Roger Dennerll, Case No. C86-1883, N.D. Ohio, August, 1990 (Judge Alvin L. Krenzler): I devoted significant amounts of time over a two-year period to the representation of the plaintiffs in this action. The action involved two women falsely accused of prostitution and solicitation, who had been physically abused by certain police officers in the process. These women had no money to sue the City and no access to lawyers. My firm allowed me, with the help of another associate in the firm, to conduct extensive discovery in this case and spend a full two weeks trying the matter in Federal District Court on a pro bono basis.

I was appointed both by the Southern District of New York (as an intern during law school) and by the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit (soon after completing my clerkship) to act as counsel for indigent defendants and appellants, respectively. In connection with the Sixth Circuit matter, I received compensation at the statutory rate and, in fact, was given a compensation enhancement based on the amount of work performed in the matter, but was paid at a rate far below my normal private practice rates. Again, these efforts were made possible by the willingness of the law firms with which I was affiliated to allow me to participate in these court-sponsored programs.

Assistant Attorney General Patrick Devine and I drafted an amicus brief for the State of Ohio to file in support of the State of Massachusetts’ defense of its IOLTA Program (the program by which lawyers are required to place certain funds into a pooled trust so that the interest generated may be used to help provided civil legal services to the indigent). We were successful in getting 22 other states to join our effort in support of Massachusetts, even though we filed the amicus brief at the Court of Appeals level, which is unusual for a state to do.
In addition, prior to taking the bench I was involved in a number of charitable activities in the legal community:

I was a founding Board Member of the Ohio Legal Assistance Foundation, whose mission is to help provide funding for and determine the appropriate distribution of funds to Ohio’s Legal Aid community. I was on the Committee appointed by Ohio Chief Justice Thomas Moyer to create (via legislation and otherwise), fund and staff this Foundation.

I conceived and spearheaded “Project A.G.”, or “Project Above Ground,” in which employees of the Attorney General’s Office worked on their own time to raise money for victims of the Mid-West floods in 1993. We challenged all other State Attorney General offices to follow our lead and donated all funds to the Red Cross.

I supervised and participated yearly in another Attorney General Office project – “Project Wish List” – which provides goods and funds to domestic violence shelters across the State of Ohio.

Since taking the bench, my ability to continue in pro bono and charitable activities has been limited by the ethical restrictions placed upon judicial officers. As a judicial officer, I have attempted to encourage pro bono legal activity in a number of ways. I am a member of the court committee that proposed use of court admission fees to repay volunteer lawyers for the costs of expenses incurred when accepting pro bono assignments in civil cases. The system proposed by the Committee has since been adopted by the full court and is used regularly. I also have spoken to law firms and bar association gatherings about this new program and the importance of accepting pro bono civil appointments generally.

I have committed a substantial amount of time to educating students and lawyers on best practices in the litigation process. Among other things, I have been an active member of the John M. Manos Inn of Court and was its president for over three years. The Inn’s purpose, in addition to fostering professionalism and ethics in the profession, is to encourage established lawyers to mentor young lawyers who have less access to older practitioners (i.e., who do not have the luxury of a large law firm practice).

I regularly teach and lecture at law schools for little or no salary, preside over moot court competitions, welcome new students, sponsor externships and often welcome students of all ages and from all communities to my courtroom in an effort to foster an understanding of the legal system. I regularly agree to speak at functions and programs designed to foster a better understanding of the law and the various players in the judicial system, always with no remuneration.

I was among the first judges in the country to spearhead the addition of technology to federal courtrooms, in large measure to level the playing field with respect to the use of persuasive technology between the government and indigent defendants and between the well-heeled and the less financially fortunate. I organized a free on-going CLE program to familiarize the bar with the new technology.

Finally, I have volunteered many hours to my local community and schools. Among other things, I have served as a coach in the Chagrin Falls Community Soccer League and as a coach for the Chagrin Falls Middle School girl's lacrosse team.

26. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

There is no selection commission for the Federal Circuit.

Early in 2009, I spoke with Senator Sherrod Brown and with staff members of Senator George Voinovich about my interest in a court appointment in the Washington, D.C., area, where my husband resides and works. I contacted the White House Counsel's Office in writing in February 2009 to request consideration for any future vacancy on the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. In May 2009, I met with attorneys from the White House Counsel's office to reiterate my interest in the Federal Circuit. In September 2009, the Honorable Alvin Schall took senior status, creating an opening on the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. I interviewed with White House Counsel Gregory Craig on October 12, 2009. Since January 2010, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. I interviewed again with attorneys from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice on February 12, 2010. On March 10, 2010, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you. We are delighted to have you with us. I am conscious, as I chair these hearings, of how significant they are, as we consider some of America's finest individuals, really our best and our brightest, our most committed and dedicated for lifelong positions on the Federal bench.

You have already crossed the first hurdle and are now going from the trial to the appellate level, and we are very proud to have you here.

We are very conscious on this Committee that every day, Federal judges make decisions that affect the lives of everyday Americans; not only the everyday Americans right before them in that case, but others whose lives are affected by the holdings that they deliver.

So it is important to us, and I usually ask of judges to assure me that they will, first, respect the role of Congress as the representative branch of government of the American public policy; and, second, that they will decide cases based on the law and the facts; third, that they will not prejudge any case, but listen to every part that comes before them; fourth, that they will respect precedent, like it or not; and, finally, that they will limit themselves to the issues that the court is called upon to decide.

I am sure that question will come as no challenge to you, after your 16 years of distinguished service on the district court. But if you do not mind, may I ask you if you agree with those propositions?

Judge O'MALLEY. Those are easy commitments for me to make and I think that my 16 years on the bench and my record has proven that I have adhered to all of them.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Well, I appreciate that very much, and I am delighted to have you here.

Senator Sessions.

Senator SESSIONS. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Judge O'Malley, it is a pleasure to see you. You have got a good long history in judicial work. I think it will stand you in good stead.

Let me ask a question or two, because it goes to maybe what I think the role of a judge should be.

There have been some criticisms of Justice Roberts' metaphor that a judge should be a neutral umpire. But I like it. I mean, a judge does not take sides in the game, does not decide who he would like to win before the game starts, and fairly calls the plays as best they can, maybe not perfectly, but do their best in an intellectually honest way, and that is the closest we can get to justice, I think.

I do believe that there is objective truth and our entire justice system, we have been taught since our earliest days, is to find the truth and then render opinions based on that.

You, in an interview discussing your appointment to the bench in 1994 and the impact Judge Nathaniel Jones, for whom you clerked, had on you, you stated this, “You have to be true to the law, you have to be intellectually honest,” A-double-plus, triple-plus, for that.

And you went on to say, “You can't say I want a certain result and set out to achieve that result, regardless of where the law really takes you. Jones’ attempt to strike a balance between those two ultimate goals is something that stayed with me throughout my career."

But what two goals were you talking about, the striking a balance between two goals? Do you recall that? If you do not, do not let me bother you with it.

[Laughter.]

Judge O’MALLEY. I think what was said about Judge Jones the first time that I spoke about that is that Judge Jones said that judges can play an important role in the world and in society. For instance, it’s because of judicial rulings that everyone has a right to counsel ultimately, and that conclusion has been reached. But he said judges should never seek to play a role in society that goes beyond applying the facts to the law that is before them.

So what he was saying is that you can play a very important role, but only within the bounds of what the framers intended for that branch of government.

Senator SESSIONS. I think that is a fair answer. I am not sure exactly how you balance that, but there is—I call it the Siren’s Song of Activism. Some judges seem to get a little bored on the bench and like to make a little history.

I think it is a temptation you should normally reject, although sometimes you are thrust into a situation where you have to make a decision not fully understanding.

You have two death penalty cases that you have been reversed on; one where the defendant failed to object to a jury instruction because the defendant’s lawyer said, “Well, I didn’t object because I thought it would be futile,” and you overturned the death penalty part of it, not the conviction, as I understand it.

But the Supreme Court has rejected this futility standard. It said you cannot not object and then later complain and come before the court and say, “Well, I didn’t think you would rule with me, anyway, Judge,” and still preserve error.

How do you evaluate the way you handle that in life?

Judge O’MALLEY. At the time that was decided, which was very early in my career, so almost 15 years ago, the Supreme court had not been as clear at that point with respect to that issue. And in my original opinion, I actually stated at some length that the issue of exhaustion and the issue as to whether or not procedural default would apply was a very close call.

Ultimately, the sixth circuit disagreed with me on that narrow question. Out of a 180-page opinion, that is the only thing they disagreed with.

But even at the time, I acknowledged that it was a close issue and that the law was not fully developed as it would apply to those particular facts.

Senator SESSIONS. And the sixth circuit affirmed you in the Esparza v. Mitchell case. However, they were reversed by the Supreme Court, an occasion on which you, again, upheld an objection to a death penalty case.

Would you want to comment on that briefly?

Judge O’MALLEY. Again, the sixth circuit did affirm me in a unanimous opinion with respect to the Esparza case. There were a number of issues in that case particularly having to do with the fact that the jury was never told about frontal lobe damage to the defendant.

I think, actually, given the development of case law out of the Supreme Court since then, if the Court were to get the Esparza decision today, it might actually reach a different result.

Senator Sessions. Let me ask you to just make an affirmation, if you will, that you will—that you are prepared to give the government, the state prosecutors and the Federal prosecutors a fair shake and follow the law with regard to death penalty cases and that you have no personal feelings about the death penalty that would impair your ability to objectively and fairly adjudicate those cases.

Judge O'Malley. Absolutely, Senator. If you look at my record, you will see that I have affirmed more death penalties than I have set aside throughout the course of my career.

Senator Sessions. Well, I appreciate that and I think those cases both were close cases and good people could disagree on them.

I would just say you have got the kind of experience that would appear to warrant elevation to the court of appeals and I look forward to—at this point, I am not aware of anything that would cause me to have serious concern about your nomination.

Judge O'Malley. Thank you, Senator.

Senator Sessions. Mr. Chairman I am—well, I have a few more minutes before I will have to leave.

Senator Whitehouse. Senator Franken.

Senator Franken. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Judge O'Malley, Senator Brown gave a great introduction to you and I congratulate you and the minions behind you.

[Laughter.]

Senator Franken. You are Irish Catholic. Is that right?

Judge O'Malley. How did you guess?

Senator Franken. My wife is Irish Catholic. Also, you are named O'Malley.

[Laughter.]

Senator Franken. If you are confirmed, you will start to consistently hear a lot of intellectual property cases and in those cases, you are very often going to have to weigh the public's interest in then the free flow of information against proprietary interests or protecting investments.

This is coming up a lot in the net neutrality debate, where a lot of us in the government want to ensure a free and open Internet, and where we also want to guard against piracy.

Can you tell me how you are going to go about weighing those interests?

Judge O'Malley. Well, Senator, thank you. Those interests or, actually, the balance with respect to those interests are actually spelled out in the statutes that we would need to apply.

So the Patent Act, the trademark laws, the laws that I would have to apply actually contain the very balances that you are talking about.

They were Congressional decisions and my job is to apply that balance as Congress has dictated it.

Senator Franken. Well, I am glad to hear you say that, as if I was doubting that you would do that. But we were talking here about activism and judicial modesty, and I do have a concern myself about—what did you call it—the Silent Song of Activism, I think the Ranking Member called it.

Senator SESSIONS. Siren's Song.

Senator FRANKEN. Oh, the Siren's Song. Oh, I see. Much better than Silent Song.

Senator SESSIONS. Some songs are better silent.

Senator FRANKEN. Well, anyway, that was my real question, which is, is it Silent or Siren's Song and the Ranking Member answered it.

But thank you and congratulations again.

Judge O'MALLEY. Thank you, Senator.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you very much, Judge O'Malley. We are pleased that you are here. It is always a pleasure and an honor when the Ranking Member is here for these and his assurances that he sees nothing to inhibit your going forward is always pleasant news and the fact that there is not a whole wall of people on that side with questions is also usually a pleasant sight.

So I will excuse you and we look forward to the Committee taking up your nomination in short order. And then I am going to assume it will be taken to the floor, where, along with a great number of other judges who cleared the Committee unanimously or with microscopic dissenting votes, we will descend into political quicksand for a while.

Regrettably, that is the current situation. I hope that we can clear judges through, but I must say that there are judges who have cleared the Committee unanimously who have sat for months and months and months and months on the Senate floor awaiting a vote.

Judge O'MALLEY. I have ultimate faith that won't happen.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. It is always good to have faith, Judge O'Malley.

Judge O'MALLEY. Thank you very much, Senator, and my whole family thanks you, as well.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Congratulations to you and to your family. We are proud to have you with us.

We will take just a 2-minute recess while the next panel comes forward.

[Recess.]

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Will you please stand and be sworn?

[Nominees sworn.]

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you very much. Please be seated. If you would like to each take a moment to introduce your family and friends who are here, we would welcome that. And it is good to have that on the record of these proceedings for posterity.

STATEMENT OF BERYL A. HOWELL, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Ms. HOWELL. Thank you very much, Chairman Whitehouse. I want to take the opportunity, first, to thank the committee, Chairman Leahy for his very gracious and kind remarks this morning, as well as Representative Norton. Thank you, Chairman Whitehouse, for chairing the hearing, and, Senator Franken, for being here. I really appreciate all the work that goes in on preparing for hearings and for the Committee giving me the opportunity to be here today.

I also want to thank President Obama. I am profoundly humbled and honored by his nomination of me and for the opportunity to be considered by this Committee and the Senate to give its consent to my appointment to the bench for the district court for the District of Columbia.

I with your forbearance, I do want to take the opportunity to introduce some of my family and friends who are here.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. We would like that.

Ms. HOWELL. Starting with my husband, Michael Rosenfeld, who has been my unwavering support since we met in college. My parents, Colonel Howell and Ruth Howell. My father has spent a career in the military, doing public service, and instilled in both my siblings and me the ethic that you should always leave a place better than you found it, including picking up litter that you didn’t leave, and I think that that is a public service commitment that all of us have endeavored to fulfill.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. We thank him for his service and wise counsel.

Ms. HOWELL. Yes. And my son, George Rosenfeld, is here. He is a rising junior at Columbia University and has taken time off from his two summer jobs in New York to come down for the hearing.

My two daughters, whose names I did want to mention, Alina Rosenfeld. She can’t be here because she is volunteering in an orphanage in Nicaragua. And my other daughter, my 12-year-old daughter, Calla Rosenfeld, has decided this would be a little boring and decided to stay in camp in Vermont.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. The chairman, I know, would appreciate that choice.

[Laughter.]

Ms. HOWELL. I do want to take the opportunity, also, to thank my mother-in-law, Judy Rosenfeld, who is also in Vermont, for her loving support for the past 30 years.

I also have a friend, Kirby Heller, who is here. She is a dear friend from when we were prosecutors together.

Thank you very much for the opportunity to do that.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

I have not held a judicial office.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment? ______

i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

- jury trials: ____%
- bench trials: ____%
- civil proceedings: ____%
- criminal proceedings: ____%

b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature of the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

gh. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;
c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

I have not served as a judge.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

On November 29, 2004, following confirmation by the United States Senate, I was appointed by President George W. Bush to be a Commissioner on the United States Sentencing Commission. This appointment was continued by President Bush on December 12, 2006, for the next session of the Congress. On March 5, 2007, following confirmation by the United States Senate, I was appointed by President Bush to a second term as a Commissioner on the United States Sentencing Commission.

I have had no unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

I have never held a paid or unpaid position with any political party, political campaign organization or election committee.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;
From 1983 to 1984, I served as a law clerk to the Honorable Dickinson R. Debevoise, United States District Judge for the District of New Jersey.

ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I have never practiced law alone. Since 2009, I have worked as a solo legal consultant.

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have never served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings.

b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

Following my one-year clerkship with a United States District Court Judge in 1984, I became a litigation associate at the law firm of Schulte Roth & Zabel. At the law firm, I worked on civil matters for the firm's clients, which were generally corporations, including handling discovery-related motions in U.S. District Court, conducting direct examination of witnesses at an arbitration, drafting briefs and memoranda of law, and assisting in oral arguments before various district and appellate courts. In 1987, I joined the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of New York. As an Assistant U.S. Attorney and Deputy Chief of the Narcotics Section, I was the lead prosecutor on over one hundred criminal cases, many of which involved multiple defendants and all of which were resolved by verdict or guilty plea. I conducted lengthy grand jury investigations of public corruption among New York City Building Inspector, heroin trafficking by a notorious Chinatown gang, the Flying Dragons; and money laundering by a Colombian cocaine organization, all of which resulted in convictions of the defendants.

In 1993, after moving to Washington, D.C., I worked for Senator Patrick J. Leahy on the staff of the U.S. Senate Committee on the Judiciary. As a Senior Counsel and, later, General Counsel, I provided legal analysis on proposed and pending legislation and issues; drafted legislation and helped to carry out the legislative and oversight agenda of Senator Leahy.

In 2003, I joined the consulting and technical services firm Stroz Friedberg, and established the first regional office of the company. Until March 2009, when I left the firm, I headed the Washington, D.C. office, served on the executive committee of the firm with management.
responsibilities for the firm as a whole, managed consulting engagements for clients, who were primarily law firms and companies, and also served as in-house general counsel handling general legal affairs for the firm as it grew from two to eleven offices internationally and from a dozen to over 150 employees.

In addition to my work at the firm, from 2004 until the present, I have served as a Commissioner on the United States Sentencing Commission. As a Commissioner, I have voted on numerous amendments to the Guidelines Manual, including those prompted by directives from the Congress, recommended changes in Federal criminal law to the Congress, joined with my fellow Commissioners in presiding at public hearings and conferences on criminal justice issues, and contributed to the direction of research projects and reports on Federal sentencing and related matters.

Since January 2010, I have taught Legal Ethics as an Adjunct Professor at American University's Washington College of Law.

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

In private law practice and as a consultant, my clients were corporations, law firms, a trade association, and occasionally individuals. As a prosecutor, I represented the Federal government in criminal matters.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

In private practice at Schulte Roth & Zabel, from 1983 to 1987, I appeared in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York occasionally to argue discovery motions, and also assisted counsel in appearances in other federal trial courts and the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, primarily in civil matters. As an Assistant United States Attorney, from 1987 to 1993, I appeared regularly in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York, as well as the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, entirely in criminal matters. I did not appear in court while I worked for Senator Patrick Leahy from 1993 to 2003. From 2003 to 2009, as General Counsel for a private firm, Stroz Friedberg, I did not appear in court but supervised outside counsel retained by Stroz Friedberg to represent the firm, including in litigation.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. federal courts: 100%
   2. state courts of record:
   3. other courts:
   4. administrative agencies:
446

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. civil proceedings: 20%
   2. criminal proceedings: 80%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

During the time that I served as an Assistant United States Attorney and Deputy Chief of the Narcotics Section in the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the Eastern District of New York, I tried approximately ten jury trials to verdict as the lead prosecutor. I also handled many more criminal cases that resulted in a plea.

   i. What percentage of these trials were:
      1. jury: 100%
      2. non-jury:

e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus curiae or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation. Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

   a. the date of representation;

   b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and

   c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

   I led a wide-ranging three-year grand jury investigation into widespread corruption within the New York City Department of Buildings by building inspectors and their supervisors across the boroughs of Manhattan, Staten Island, Brooklyn and Queens. The case resulted in the convictions of over 25 building inspectors for extorting payoffs from architects, engineers, builders and others for “expediting” certificates of occupancy (COs) and insure that paperwork was not “lost” or unreasonably delayed. The intense investigation involved reluctant cooperators and consensual recordings and culminated in a five-week jury trial on Hobbs Act and other charges that resulted in the convictions of nine defendants. Before the trial, one of the defendants sought to kill a cooperating witness by hiring a “hit-man,” who cooperated with authorities. The illegal plan was stopped before a witness was harmed. This case uncovered a pervasive and systematic pattern of corruption at the Department of Buildings, and resulted in the arrests of over one-fifth of the inspection force of the construction division of the Department. Importantly, this investigation provided the impetus for local officials to reform Department of Buildings’ procedures and management policies to minimize corruption on this massive scale in the future at the Department.

2. United States v. Eng, 14 F.3d 165 (2d Cir. 1994). From 1988 through 1992, I led the investigation and prosecution of Johnny Eng, who was the head of the Flying Dragons, a violent gang operating in the Chinatown area of Manhattan.
He was charged with engaging in a continuing criminal enterprise and running a heroin trafficking operation that used various ingenious methods to smuggle heroin into the United States from 1987 to 1988. Shortly after other members of the Flying Dragons were arrested, the defendant fled the country and was subsequently apprehended in Hong Kong, where he was held in custody from August 1989 until November 1991. Shortly after I traveled to Hong Kong to work with authorities there, he was successfully extradited to the United States to stand trial. Over the course of this investigation, a cooperating defendant was shot at point-blank range in an assassination attempt, but survived. Eng was convicted after a four-week trial in December 1992.

3. United States v. Yu et al., 697 F. Supp. 635 (E.D.N.Y. 1988). From 1988 through 1992, I led the investigation of a heroin trafficking import and distribution network of a violent gang called the “Flying Dragons,” which operated in the Chinatown area of Manhattan. The investigation required the prosecution of low-level associates to obtain cooperation all the way up the leadership chain to the underboss and the leader of the gang, whom I extradited from Hong Kong where he had fled when the success of the investigation became apparent. The gang recruited Chinese women, who were regular customers at gambling parlors operated by the gang and owed gambling debts, to accept boxes of heroin shipped from Hong Kong to help repay their debts. The investigation resulted in the convictions of eight individuals at trial and other associates of the gang, who pleaded guilty and cooperated. The investigation and prosecutions successfully disrupted the heroin trafficking operation of this Chinatown gang.

From 1988 through 1991, I supervised the successful investigation and prosecution of various aspects of the largest money laundering cell and narcotics distribution cell of the Cali, Colombian cartel ever located up to that time, in the New York area. Under my supervision, agents and police officers assigned to the New York Drug Enforcement Task Force conducted intensive surveillance of various defendants as they moved large loads of cocaine and drug proceeds around Queens, New York. Searches pursuant to warrants resulted in the recovery of $19 million, which was the single largest cash seizure of drug proceeds ever made at that time in the United States. The investigation also resulted in the arrests of ten high ranking associates of the Cali cartel, and records showing the accumulation of $44 million in narcotics proceeds between 1988 and 1989. Ultimately, all ten defendants were convicted. Six pleaded guilty to money laundering charges and four were convicted of money laundering and narcotics charges after a four week trial at which I led the prosecution team. For my work on this case, I was awarded the prestigious Attorney General’s Director’s Award from the United States Department of Justice.

5. United States v. Campino, et al., 890 F.2d 588 (2d Cir. 1989), cert. denied, 110 S. Ct. 1787 (1991). From 1987 through 1992, I supervised the investigation into a narcotics operation in Queens that led to the arrest and conviction of senior-level Colombian traffickers. At a jury trial, I presented evidence of narcotics trafficking based solely on the seizure, pursuant to search warrant, from the defendants of $921,000 in cash narcotics proceeds, firearms and coded transactions that were proved to be narcotics records, as well as sophisticated electronic surveillance equipment and counterfeit money detector. No cocaine was ever found connected to the defendants, but this case helped demonstrate that senior management in cocaine wholesale operations could not insulate themselves from narcotics charges by storing the narcotics in a separate place than the money and records of the illegal wholesale operation.

6. United States v. Montoya, 750 F. Supp. 27 (E.D.N.Y. 1991) and United States v. Michael Abujia, 936 F.2d 83 (2d Cir. 1991). From 1989 through 1991, while in the midst of prosecuting a Cali cartel cell, I discovered that an undercover New York City Police Officer had been approached with a bribe to aid in the escape of four of the defendants incarcerated at the Metropolitan Correctional Center in New York City. The investigation resulted in the identification of additional members of the conspiracy to break the defendants out of jail, all of whom were believed to be high ranking associates of the Cali cartel. These additional targets paid a $50,000 cash bribe to an undercover NYC police officer, made arrangements for the defendants to fly out of the country to Colombia, provided four complete suits of clothing so that the defendants would be appropriately attired when they made their escape, and negotiated a bribe price for the jail-break of two additional members of the narcotics organization, who had been arrested with the seizure of $5.7 million in Houston, Texas. I successfully prosecuted these individuals, two of whom pleaded guilty and one of whom was convicted after a two-week trial. This case was important to demonstrate to Colombian drug cartel members that the American criminal justice system was not easily susceptible to corruption, and that they could not bribe their way out of United States jails and prisons to avoid liability for criminal activity here.

7. Brennan v. United States, 867 F.2d 111 (2d Cir. 1989). From 1988 through 1998, I successfully handled the response to a petition, filed pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 2255, by a corrupt former Justice of the New York Supreme Court to set aside his convictions for racketeering, Travel Act violations and extortion. The defendant had been convicted of agreeing to “fix” cases in exchange for bribes at a trial that occurred before I became an Assistant U.S. Attorney in the Eastern District of New York. Following the Supreme Court decision in McNally v. U.S., 107 S.Ct. 2873 (1987), which rejected an “intangible rights” theory for wire and mail fraud convictions, the defendant’s wire fraud convictions were vacated. He then sought vacatur of his remaining convictions. I handled the briefing and argument on appeal. The Second Circuit denied his motion to set aside his remaining convictions.

8. United States v. Contractor, et al., 926 F.2d 128 (2d Cir. 1991). I supervised an undercover investigation of heroin trafficking by a practicing physician at a medical clinic in Brooklyn, New York. This physician agreed to sell almost a kilogram of cocaine to a confidential informant and undercover agent of the Drug Enforcement Administration. Over the course of the next few months, arrangements were made for the shipment of five kilograms of heroin in meetings that took place in Pakistan and New York. The investigation resulted in the arrest not only of the physician, but also of his heroin suppliers from Pakistan. All three defendants pleaded guilty.

9. United States v. Huerta, 878 F. 2d 89 (2d Cir. 1989). The defendant in this case arranged for the sale and delivery of one kilogram of cocaine to a Drug Enforcement Administration informant. Although he agreed to cooperate, his efforts were fruitless, incomplete and produced no results. Consequently, the defendant was sentenced to a mandatory minimum of five years' imprisonment. On appeal, he claimed that the statute requiring a government motion for eligibility to be sentenced below the statutory mandatory minimum was unconstitutional as violation of the separation of powers, and on other grounds. I successfully defended, both before the District Court and before the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, the constitutionality of the Sentencing Reform Act and the government's prerogative to evaluate the substantiality of cooperation.

10. United States v. Sanchez and Reynoso-Nunez, Appeal No. 91-1620 (2d Cir. March 17, 1992). I supervised the investigation and was the lead trial counsel at the jury trial resulting in the convictions of two defendants for the illegal distribution of cocaine. This case was a "dry conspiracy" -- no cocaine was ever found connected to the defendants. They were convicted on the basis of expert testimony and the seizure of $75,000 in cash narcotics proceeds, firearms, ammunition and a ledger containing coded transactions that were proved to be narcotics records. This case helped demonstrate that senior management in cocaine wholesale distribution operations could not insulate themselves from narcotics charges by storing the narcotics in a separate place than the money and records of the illegal wholesale operation.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s).

As an Assistant U.S. Attorney, at both the trial and appellate levels, I investigated and prosecuted different types of criminal activity, including gang-related crimes, narcotics trafficking, money laundering, and public corruption investigations. I successfully prosecuted the leadership of a Chinatown gang named the Flying Dragons, broke up a large Cali. Colombian money laundering ring on the eve of their plan to transport millions of dollars in cash narcotics proceeds outside the country, and exposed a public corruption extortion scandal among building inspectors that operated across all five boroughs of New York City. As Deputy Chief of the Narcotics Section and part of the management of the U.S. Attorney’s Office, I was responsible not only for supervision of my own cases and those of other Assistant U.S. Attorneys in the section, but also for addressing broader issues raised by local Federal Judges, law enforcement agencies, and Main Justice, that had implications for investigations and cases throughout the Office. These issues ranged from reducing delays in execution of court-orders for electronic surveillance to developing mechanisms to manage the large number of drug couriers caught carrying illegal narcotics through the international transit points located within the Eastern District of New York.

My prosecutorial work garnered numerous awards from the Federal law enforcement agencies with which I worked, as well as the prestigious Attorney General’s Director’s Award for Superior Performance and Special Achievement Awards from my peers within the U.S. Attorney’s Office.

For a decade, I served on the staff of the United States Senate Committee on the Judiciary, where I worked for Senator Patrick J. Leahy. My responsibilities included providing legal analysis of the constitutionality and impact of legislation, crafting bills and reports issued by the Judiciary Committee and Conference Committees, organizing hearings, supervising staff in oversight investigations of Federal agencies subject to the jurisdiction of the Judiciary Committee, and coordinating legislative initiatives with staffs of other Members and Executive Branch agencies.
During my time in private practice, I gained significant civil litigation experience. I have extensive expertise in application of the electronic discovery amendments to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the discovery obligations of counsel. My articles on these topics (and others) have been published in peer-reviewed, leading legal journals, including the Journal of Securities Law, Regulation & Compliance, the New York Law Journal and Digital Discovery and E-Evidence. At Stroz Friedberg, I was a consultant to lawyers dealing with the potentially high-stakes and high-cost issues surrounding electronic discovery, and was called upon to develop legally defensible and reasonable protocols to comply fully with litigation hold requirements for preservation of records and to identify, collect, review, and produce large volumes of electronic documents in response to document demands and for use in internal investigations.

Additionally, during my tenure at Stroz Friedberg, I successfully built a small digital forensics and cyber-security business and gained invaluable experience with the practical, legal, and other issues that inform business decision-making. I believe this experience would be particularly helpful to me if I am confirmed as a judge in guiding parties in civil cases to reach cost-effective resolutions efficiently.

At the same time as performing General Counsel duties at Stroz Friedberg, I managed client matters, many of which required an understanding of applicable legal parameters, developing creative technical solutions and expertly marshaling the facts to reach a successful conclusion. For example, I conducted an investigation on behalf of a client company victimized by defamatory e-mails and computer security breaches, for which investigation I was awarded the Federal Bureau of Investigation Director’s Award.

I am currently working alongside U.S. District Judges on the U.S. Sentencing Commission, providing guidance to sentencing judges on appropriate sentences and procedures for the myriad of extant Federal crimes as well as new ones created by recently enacted laws. My role as a Commissioner on the U.S. Sentencing Commission has allowed me to immerse myself in critical current criminal justice issues.

From 2004 until 2009, I was a registered lobbyist for Stroz Friedberg and was registered to lobby for the Recording Industry Association of America and Vivendi Universal - Universal Music Group. I was the contact person within the firm who acted to provide advice on anti-piracy strategies and legislation.

Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

From January to May 2010, I taught Legal Ethics at the American University's Washington College of Law, with a focus on the American Bar Association's Model Rules of Professional Conduct and pertinent rules of Federal Civil Procedure.
19. Deferred Income/Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I continue to hold common stock in Stroz Friedberg, but have no voting or other management rights or responsibilities in the firm. In addition, I hold a limited number of restricted stock units, which were awarded to me during my employment with the firm and will vest over the next four years.

20. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I plan to fulfill my term, which ends in 2011, as a Commissioner on the United States Sentencing Commission. I have no other plans, commitments or agreements for any other outside employment should I be confirmed and appointed as a U.S. District Judge.

21. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

22. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

23. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

I would recuse myself from any case based on a client matter in which I was involved or that I supervised at Stroz Friedberg, as well as litigation involving husband’s employer. While I would carefully assess each case for any potential conflict or appearance of conflict, and would disclose information or recuse myself as called for by the canons and the law, I am not aware of any other conflict likely to arise when I first assume the position of District Judge, if I am confirmed by the Senate.
b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

If confirmed and appointed as a U.S. District Judge, I will adhere to 28 U.S.C. § 453, the Code of Conduct for United States Judges, and all applicable ethical rules, statutes and codes to resolve any potential conflicts of interest. I will review all assigned matters for potential conflicts before taking any action. To help discharge this obligation, I will provide all necessary information, including regular updates, to implement fully the automated screening adopted by the Judicial Council of the District of Columbia Circuit to identify possible financial or other conflicts of interest. In addition, I will participate in training and take advantage of any assistance provided to judges to facilitate my participation in the automated screening, and require my staff to do so as well.

24. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

Most of my legal career has been spent in public service. I believe that my over twenty years of public service is consistent with Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility as well as Rule 6.1 of the American Bar Association’s more recently adopted Model Rules of Professional Conduct. Consistent with current ethical rules, I have endeavored over my legal career to participate in activities for improving the law, the legal system and the legal profession. During my service as a federal prosecutor, staff member on the Senate Judiciary Committee and as a Commissioner on the United States Sentencing Commission, I have strived to improve the administration of justice in the highest tradition of the Bar. I have also contributed my time, at no fee, as a Member of a Commission sponsored by the Center on Strategic and International Studies to make recommendations to the new 44th President on cybersecurity vulnerabilities and solutions, and through board membership for the Center for Democracy and Technology, to assist this non-profit group in furthering the interest of protecting civil liberties and privacy rights. After leaving full-time government service in early 2003, I have participated extensively in continuing legal education events to improve the profession.

During periods when I worked in the private sector, I also committed my time to pro bono matters. For example, early in my career, while I was in private practice at Schulte Roth & Zabel, I worked pro bono on an immigration matter representing a Haitian immigrant seeking asylum. More recently, at Stroz Friedberg, I promoted a policy of accepting pro bono assignments requiring use of the firm’s digital forensic expertise, and piloted the program by assisting, on a pro bono basis, Steptoe & Johnson’s representation of a U.S. Naval Academy student accused of raping a fellow student.
25. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

United States Senator Patrick J. Leahy recommended me to the President to fill a vacancy of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. In May 2009, I submitted an application to the Federal Law Enforcement Nominating Commission, which was established by Hon. Eleanor Holmes Norton, United States Representative for the District of Columbia, and thereafter met with the Commission on two occasions, in July and December 2009. Since March 16, 2010, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. I was interviewed on April 14, 2010, by members of the White House Counsel's Office and the United States Department of Justice. On July 14 2010, I was nominated by the President.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

AFFIDAVIT

I, Beryl Alaine Howell do swear that the information provided in this statement is, to the best of my knowledge, true and accurate.

July 14, 2010

[Signature]

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 14th day of July, 2010.

[Notary]

My commission expires August 31, 2012.
Senator WHITEHOUSE. Mr. Wilkins, would you like to do the same.

STATEMENT OF ROBERT L. WILKINS, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Mr. WILKINS. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Thank you for the opportunity to appear before you. And I would like to thank Senator Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions, as well. And, Senator Franken, thank you for also appearing here.

It's an honor for me to be here, and it is an honor for me to have been nominated by President Obama, and that's an honor that I will take and consider and seek to uphold as faithfully as I possibly can.

I would like to take this opportunity to introduce my family, asking them to please stand. First of all, of course, my beloved wife, Amy “Amina” Wilkins; my sons, Bakari James Wilkins and Alim Russell Wilkins; my mother, Joyce Wilkins. My mother-in-law and father-in-law, Ernesteen and James Long. Unfortunately, there are two very special family members of mine who were not able to be here with me, my brother, Larry Wilkins and my dear grandmother, Marcella Hayes.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of my family members and colleagues, past and present, who have supported me.

Two very special people are here today that I'd like to acknowledge, dear friends of mine, Melvin Elvin Williams and Carl Racine.

I am a 20-year resident of the District of Columbia and very proud of that, but I would be remiss if I didn't also advise this Committee that I was born and raised in Muncie, Indiana. And therefore, it is a distinct honor and pleasure for me to have with me my law partner, but, more importantly, my former Senator who has served this body so honorably for many years, including on this committee, and that's Senator Birch Bayh.

C. Clyde Ferguson Human Rights Fellow, Summer 1988

College
Herman A. Mocenich Distinguished Senior Commendation Marathon Oil Outstanding Minority Scholarship Award National Achievement Scholarship

9. Bar Associations: List all bar associations or legal or judicial-related committees, selection panels or conferences of which you are or have been a member, and give the titles and dates of any offices which you have held in such groups.

Associations
American Bar Association
National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers National Bar Association
Washington Bar Association

Committees and Commissions
- District of Columbia Access to Justice Commission (Vice-Chair, 2005 – 2008)
- District of Columbia Bar Foundation Advisory Committee (2003 – present)

10. Bar and Court Admission:

a. List the date(s) you were admitted to the bar of any state and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership.
Massachusetts, 1990
District of Columbia, 1991

There have been no lapses in membership.

b. List all courts in which you have been admitted to practice, including dates of admission and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership. Give the same information for administrative bodies that require special admission to practice.

Supreme Court of the United States, 1994
U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit, 1996
U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, 2006

National Museum of African American History and Culture Plan for Action Presidential Commission
Chair, Site and Building Committee (2002-2003)

b. The American Bar Association’s Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

None of these organizations practiced any such invidious discrimination during my involvement with them and I am aware of no former discrimination. Lambda Chi Alpha, founded in 1909, is a social fraternity that admits only males. I took no action to change that policy.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

This list represents the published material I have identified through searches of my files and Internet databases. I have tried my best to list all of them here, although there may be some that I have not been able to identify or locate.

“The Forgotten Museum,” July 31, 2002

“How Much Longer Must We Wait?” The Washington Post, August 5, 2001

b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

This list represents the reports, memoranda and policy statements I have identified through searches of my files and internet databases. I serve and have served on multiple bar association committees and non-profit boards that may have issued statements with or without my personal involvement. I have tried my best to list all of them here, although there may be some that I have not been able to identify or locate.

e. List all interviews you have given to newspapers, magazines or other publications, or radio or television stations, providing the dates of these interviews and four (4) copies of the clips or transcripts of these interviews where they are available to you.

Throughout my career I have had many occasions to be interviewed by various media outlets. I have thoroughly searched my files and Internet databases in an effort to produce a complete list of these as I could, but it is still possible there are some I was not able to identify or locate.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

I have not held judicial office.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

jury trials? ___%; bench trials ___% [total 100%]

civil proceedings? ___%; criminal proceedings? ___% [total 100%]

b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).
d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

I have not served as a judge.

   a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

   b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

   c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

   d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.
15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

1998 – 2000
District of Columbia Advisory Commission on Sentencing (now known as the District of Columbia Sentencing and Criminal Code Revision Commission)
Pursuant to D.C. Law 12-167, one member of the commission was required to be a representative of the Public Defender Service of the District of Columbia, and Jo-Ann Wallace, the Director of the agency, appointed me to serve as that representative.

1998 – 2000 (approximate)
District of Columbia Juvenile Justice Advisory Group
Pursuant to administrative order of the Mayor of the District of Columbia, one member of the Advisory Group was required to be a representative of the Public Defender Service of the District of Columbia, and Jo-Ann Wallace, the Director of the agency, appointed me to serve as that representative.

1997 – 1998
District of Columbia Truth-In-Sentencing Commission
Pursuant to Public Law 105-33, one member of the commission was required to be a representative of the Public Defender Service of the District of Columbia, and Jo-Ann Wallace, the Director of the agency, appointed me to serve as that representative.

I have had no unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

Obama for President (2008), Member of Committee of Lawyers for Obama, provided voluntary assistance with fundraising, canvassing and vetting.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

August 1989 – August 1990. I served as a law clerk to the Honorable Earl B. Gilliam (since deceased) on the United States District Court for the Southern District of California.

ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

From August 2000 to May 2002, I primarily did non-legal volunteer work advocating for the creation of a national museum dedicated to African American history and culture. I also practiced alone as a contract attorney out of my home during that time.

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have never served as a mediator or arbitrator.

b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

When I started practicing law in 1990 following my clerkship, my practice consisted exclusively of criminal trial and appellate work. In the mid-1990s, my practice began to include some civil work, primarily in consent decree enforcement, but it remained primarily a criminal practice. From August 2000 to May 2002, my practice was part-time and I worked almost exclusively on civil matters, including civil rights, commercial law, real property and trust and estate litigation matters. Since joining Venable LLP in May 2002, my practice has consisted of white collar criminal defense, intellectual property litigation and complex commercial litigation.

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

From 1990 to 2002, my typical clients were indigent individuals who were facing charges or had been convicted or adjudicated in either the juvenile delinquency or adult criminal justice systems. During that time, I specialized in criminal law, and to a lesser degree, civil rights law. Since 2002, my typical clients have been individuals and companies facing investigation or charges in white collar criminal matters or companies, both large and small, involved in intellectual property or commercial disputes. During this time, I have maintained my specialties in criminal and civil rights law and am developing a specialty in patent litigation.
c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

Since 2002, nearly 100% of my practice has been in litigation, and I have appeared in court frequently. From 1996 to 2002, my practice was approximately 50% litigation and 50% public policy, though I still appeared in court fairly frequently. From 1990 to 1996, my practice was 100% litigation, and I appeared in court very frequently.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. federal courts: 30%
   2. state courts of record: 65%
   3. other courts:
   4. administrative agencies: <5%

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. civil proceedings: 30%
   2. criminal proceedings: 70%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I have tried approximately 25 – 30 cases to verdict or final decision over my entire career, the vast majority during my tenure with Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia. I estimate that of those trials, I was sole counsel in approximately 70% of those cases, chief counsel in approximately 15% and associate counsel in approximately 15%.

i. What percentage of these trials were:
   1. jury: 80%
   2. non-jury: 20%

e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have represented parties seeking certiorari review in the following matters, serving as the primary author of each petition for writ of certiorari:

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

a. the date of representation;

b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and

c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

The Wilkins case was a “racial profiling” civil rights lawsuit that arose out of an incident in which I and three family members were stopped and detained for a search by a drug-sniffing dog by the Maryland State Police while returning from a funeral in Chicago. In 1995, we reached a landmark settlement that required systematic statewide compilation and publication of highway traffic stop and search data by race. In 1998, we filed a new lawsuit on behalf of the Maryland NAACP and several individuals as a putative class action, alleging that the Maryland State Police engaged in “racial profiling” in traffic stops and searches along I-95 in Maryland, and litigation to enforce the settlement agreement in the Wilkins case was consolidated with the NAACP case. In 2003, the parties agreed to resolve the demands for equitable relief in the Wilkins case and the NAACP case by entering into another landmark consent decree that required that the Maryland State Police take a number of further actions, including hiring an independent consultant, installing video cameras in its vehicles, requiring an internal investigation of all citizen complaints of racial profiling, assigning a senior officer to review all racial profiling complaints and data, and providing the Maryland NAACP with quarterly reports containing detailed information on the number, nature, location and disposition of racial profiling complaints. The portion of the NAACP case involving the requests for damages by individual motorists was settled in April 2008. These cases and the data have been examined and described in thousands of books, scholarly articles and popular media publications and have inspired an Executive Order by President Bill Clinton, legislation in the House and Senate, and legislation in at least twenty-eight states prohibiting racial profiling and/or requiring data collection. I was the lead plaintiff in the Wilkins case, but I also participated in the Wilkins and NAACP cases as co-counsel, assisting the lead lawyers in the case with legal research, litigation strategy, drafting pleadings and settlement negotiations.

I represented Kimberly-Clark, which owns a patent for endotracheal tubes with an innovative feature that helps prevent fluid from leaking past the tube’s cuff and aspirating into the lungs of intubated patients, thereby helping to prevent those patients from contracting pneumonia. Kimberly-Clark sought a preliminary injunction against Tyco Healthcare, who had recently begun marketing an endotracheal tube in the United States that copied the patented feature. The parties engaged in expedited fact and expert discovery in advance of an evidentiary hearing on the request for a preliminary injunction. Following the hearing, the court ruled that Kimberly-Clark had established a likelihood of success on the merits with its showing that the patent was valid and was being infringed, however the court ruled that Kimberly-Clark would not suffer irreparable harm pending trial and that the public interest would not be served by a preliminary injunction. Subsequently, the case was resolved by settlement, with Tyco agreeing to license Kimberly-Clark’s patented technology. I served as lead counsel for Kimberly-Clark.

3. 2002 – 2005. Janssen Pharmaceutica N.V., et al., v. Eon Labs Manufacturing Inc., Docket No. 01-CV-2322 (NG) (MDG), U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York. Reported at: Janssen Pharmaceutica N.V., et al., v. Eon Labs Manufacturing Inc., 374 F.Supp.2d 263 (E.D.N.Y. 2004), aff’d, 134 Fed.Appx. 425 (Fed.Cir. Jun. 13, 2005); see also Janssen Pharmaceutica N.V. v. Eon Labs Mfg., Inc., 2003 WL 25819555 (E.D.N.Y. Nov 25, 2003). This was a patent infringement case that was before Judge Nina Gershon. I represented the plaintiff, Janssen Pharmaceutica, the owner of a patent for pharmaceutical beads used in an innovative antifungal medication in a lawsuit against Eon Labs. Eon had received FDA approval to manufacture and market a generic version of the antifungal medication, and Janssen brought suit pursuant to the federal Hatch-Waxman Act to obtain injunctive relief against Eon. Following a bench trial, the court reached a split verdict, rejecting Eon’s challenges to the validity of the patent, but also finding that Eon’s formulation of the medication did not infringe Janssen’s patent. The case was appealed to the Federal Circuit, and the trial court ruling was affirmed. I acted as second chair in the case and assisted with all aspects of the case from discovery, through motions practice, trial and appeal.

Co-counsel: Vicki Margolis, Senior Counsel, Kimberly-Clark Corporation, 2300 Winchester Road, Neenah, WI 54956, (920) 721-2609. Opposing Counsel: Stanley Lieberstein, St. Onge Steward Johnston & Reens LLC, 986 Bedford Street, Stamford, CT 06905, (203) 324-6155.

I acted as lead counsel for plaintiffs in class action lawsuit challenging the District of Columbia Sex Offender Registration Act on constitutional and Privacy Act grounds, obtaining temporary, preliminary and permanent injunctive relief in the District Court. While the case was on appeal, the Supreme Court of the United States upheld the sex offender registration statutes of Connecticut and Alaska, and based on those rulings, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit reversed the injunctions in part.

This case was brought pursuant to 42 USC § 1981, alleging that Ronald Newman was discriminated against while shopping at a Borders bookstore in Washington. Borders filed a motion to dismiss, which was granted in part and denied in part, and the matter proceeded through discovery. The parties reached a confidential settlement of the matter. I represented Borders, serving as co-lead counsel in the case.

In this case, I represented the Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia in various challenges brought by Carl Chase to his termination from the agency. In a case of first impression, the D.C. Court of Appeals was asked to construe the impact of the passage by Congress of the National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act of 1997 upon the status of the Public Defender Service. The court held that Revitalization Act altered the charter of the Public Defender Service such that its employees were not subject to the same personnel procedures as employees of the District of Columbia government, upholding the agency’s right to terminate Mr. Chase. I served as lead counsel in the matter, overseeing the briefing and strategy on appeal and in prior proceedings before an administrative law judge and the District of Columbia Superior Court.

Mr. Martin was convicted of first-degree murder in the District of Columbia Superior Court, and I represented him in the appeal of the conviction and in subsequent proceedings. This was my very first case with the Public Defender Service, and I wrote the brief and argued the appeal. The D.C. Court of Appeals reversed the conviction, holding that the trial court erred by refusing to grant a mistrial when Mr. Martin’s co-defendant pled guilty in the middle of trial and made statements during his guilty plea that were exculpatory as to Mr. Martin. Following the reversal, I was junior counsel in the trial court, where we actively litigated bond review and collateral estoppel motions leading up to his retrial, and I played a lead role in the briefing and argument of the appeals of those issues. Mr. Martin eventually entered an Alford plea to voluntary manslaughter.

This matter involved a consent decree entered in the District of Columbia Superior Court in 1986 on behalf of juveniles detained in secure facilities pending trial or following adjudication. I served as co-lead counsel for the plaintiffs, litigating the violation of various consent decree provisions due to overcrowding and inadequate medical care, housing conditions, food and education. I tried two contested civil contempt proceedings to verdict, including a landmark motion to place the school of the Oak Hill detention center school in receivership due to repeated educational failures, particularly violations of federal special education requirements. The Court of Appeals reversed the receivership order.

I represented Ms. Smith in a series of cases, including a case in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia charging her with two counts of stalking, two counts of blackmail and three counts of felony threats. This was a landmark prosecution for at least two reasons. First, the case was unique because it was the first blackmail case to be tried in the District of Columbia in at least 20 years. Secondly, the case was unique because it was one of the first prosecutions under the District of Columbia’s new stalking statute. Following extensive motions practice and lengthy hearings, Judge Henry Greene granted the defense motions to dismiss the stalking counts on constitutional grounds. Following a trial on the remaining charges, Ms. Smith obtained not guilty verdicts on all counts except one blackmail count, on which there was a hung jury. The government appealed the dismissal of the stalking charges, and the Court of Appeals reversed and reinstated those charges. Ms. Smith eventually pled guilty to a misdemeanor charge. I was co-lead counsel in the case.

I was appointed to represent Mr. Gibson following an incident in which he and another man attempted to rob a taxi driver using an inoperable BB gun. The taxi driver stopped his car in a busy intersection, resisted, disarmed Mr. Gibson, and was fighting with Mr. Gibson when an off-duty police officer in his street clothes came upon the scene. The off-duty officer approached the men, pulled his gun and was pointing it at the men when a police squad car came upon the scene. After exiting the squad car, one of those officers shot the off-duty officer, killing him. Mr. Gibson was arrested at the scene and charged with armed robbery of the taxi driver and felony murder of the off-duty police officer. The case and the incident received a great deal of media attention and scrutiny due to the death of the police officer and the circumstances of the shooting. Following vigorous advocacy, the felony murder charges were dismissed and Mr. Gibson was permitted to plead guilty to armed robbery. I acted as lead counsel in this case, though I was assisted and supervised by co-counsel.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)
The vast majority of my most significant legal activities have been litigation matters such as those described in response to Question 17. However, I have spent a substantial amount of time from 2003 to the present on a litigation matter that is currently before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. In that matter, I represent Enron Creditors Recovery Corp. in an adversary proceeding that was originally filed in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York, seeking to recover $1.1 billion in payments made on commercial paper notes prior to maturity and just six weeks prior to Enron’s bankruptcy filing. Enron alleges that, after its financial difficulties became public, the market for its commercial paper collapsed and its commercial paper dealers and note-holders pressured Enron to draw on its $3 billion revolver and to prepay the notes at their accrued par value, which was substantially in excess of their market value. Enron sought to recover the $1.1 billion in prepayments as voidable preferences under the Bankruptcy Code from approximately 200 defendants. Enron has recovered the equivalent of approximately $500 million in settlements, and the case has been resolved against all but three of the defendants, whose motions for summary judgment were granted by the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. That ruling is on appeal.

In addition, I have been involved in several significant non-litigation legal activities. First, I was involved with the District of Columbia Truth-in-Sentencing Commission and the District of Columbia Advisory Commission on Sentencing, serving as the representative of the Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia on those bodies, which were tasked with making legislative and policy recommendations to the Council for the District of Columbia. Secondly, I was appointed by the United States Senate to serve on the National Museum of African American History and Culture Plan for Action Presidential Commission, and I chaired its Site and Building Committee. In addition to studying various policy and administrative issues, this Presidential Commission addressed legal issues relating to subjects such as governance of federal agencies and the Smithsonian, appropriations and fundraising, and building on the National Mall. The Presidential Commission also drafted proposed legislation and made recommendations to Congress. Finally, I have extensive past involvement with the legal issue of racial profiling, as I have been invited to provide testimony or participate in panel discussions in numerous meetings on the subject, including before the United States Senate, the United States House of Representatives, the United Nations, the American Bar Association, and various other organizations.

I have not engaged in lobbying activities.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I have not taught any courses. I occasionally have spoken to a class as a guest lecturer, and I have helped supervise and teach at trial advocacy workshops.
20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I am currently an equity partner with Venable LLP. As such, I have made an equity investment in the firm, and I share in the profits of the firm. If confirmed and appointed to the bench, I would resign from the Venable partnership, and it is my understanding that within a year my capital contribution would be returned to me (with interest) and Venable would provide a payment for the value of any earnings and profits accrued up to the date of my resignation. In addition, Venable would undertake the ministerial duty of assisting me with “rolling over” my Venable retirement accounts to another account of my choosing.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I have no plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during my time with the court.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the Financial Disclosure Report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

Due to my partnership with Venable LLP, I would anticipate a need to recuse myself from certain litigation involving Venable LLP. Thus, if confirmed, I would anticipate recusing myself from 1) cases in which Venable LLP is either a party or counsel for a party and the litigation arose prior to my departure from the firm, 2) cases involving matters in which I may have played some role in the past, and 3) cases involving a former client with whom I had a long-standing relationship or about whom I gained confidential information or knowledge that may be potentially relevant to the litigation. In addition, I would consider and disclose, as appropriate, any other relationships with the parties or counsel in all matters and recuse myself as appropriate. Parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest during my initial service in the position to which I have nominated would include family members, relatives, close friends, former clients, former partners, or matters pending in any law firm in which I was formerly associated. In addition, I would recuse myself from any matter that was pending in the Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia during my time of service in that office.

b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

I will handle all matters including actual or potential conflicts of interest through the careful and diligent application of the Code of Conduct for United States Judges as well as other relevant Canons and statutory provisions.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

I have actively served the disadvantaged throughout my entire legal career. During my 10-year tenure with the Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia, I served the disadvantaged virtually full-time. From 1992 prior to my joining Venable in 2002, I donated thousands of hours of my time to the Wilkins v. State of Maryland and NAACP et al v. Maryland State Police cases. Since joining Venable in 2002, I have continued my work on those two cases, and I also have represented clients in other pro bono matters involving child custody, social security disability, asylum, public information act requests and other matters, for a total of more than 1500 hours since 2002.

26. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes Norton appointed a Federal Law Enforcement Nominating Commission, chaired by Pauline Schneider, to assist her with recommendations for judicial nominations to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. On May 15, 2009, I submitted an application to that commission, and the commission interviewed me on June 29, 2009. Based upon the recommendation of the commission, I was interviewed by Congresswoman Norton on October 7, 2009. Shortly after May 15, I informed the White House Counsel’s Office of my application. I thereafter communicated with the Counsel’s Office shortly after June 29, twice in October, and again in late-November 2009.

Since November 25, 2009, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. I interviewed with attorneys from the White House Counsel’s Office and the Department of Justice on February 2, 2010. On May 20, 2010, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

I, ROBERT LEON WILKINS, do swear that the information provided in this statement is, to the best of my knowledge, true and accurate.

5/19/2010

Robert L. Wilkins

5/19/2010

Donna C. Pieper

Notary Public, District of Columbia

My Commission Expires 6/30/2014
Senator WHITEHOUSE. We are delighted to have Senator Bayh with us and back in this chamber again and we will be very sad when his son, Evan, goes on to other accomplishments and leaves us at the end of this term.

I have been very honored to serve with Evan. We serve on the Intelligence Committee together. And the Bayh family, father and son, have left a very distinguished record in this body and we are honored that he is here.

Senator BAYH. Thank you, Senator.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Now, I gave you a preview of the previous nominee's testimony.

I think that it is an important step when people move from their private lives to wear the robes and as we wear the robes and assume the responsibilities, the lifetime responsibilities of a United States district court judge.

We have a certain amount of jousting back and forth on this Committee about activism and who does it, but I do think that underneath the jousting about an important constraint around the activities of a lifetime appointed judge, and it's a useful part of the hearing process to reflect that and to give you an opportunity to comment on it.

The way that I say it is that judges must respect the role of Congress, the elected representatives of the American people; that they must decide cases based on the law and the facts and nothing else; that they not prejudge any case, but make sure that any person coming before them, gets a full and complete hearing, irrespective of their wealth or lack of it, power or lack of it; that they must respect precedent, like it or not; and that they must limit themselves to the question the court has fairly presented.

Those are constraints that help define and protect the judicial function in this country, and I hope that you will both agree that they are ones that you will abide by as United States district court judges.

Ms. HOWELL. Yes, Chairman Whitehouse. I can unequivocally say that those are principalties that I would abide by, would I be lucky enough to be affirmed as a district court judge.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Mr. Wilkins.

Mr. WILKINS. Thank you, Senator. I think that those are all excellent guideposts that I would certainly also affirm that I would try to maintain and abide by during my tenure, if I am so fortunate as to be confirmed.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Very good. I appreciate that.

Senator Franken.

Senator FRANKEN. I probably would not be a good judge because I do not agree with any of that.

[Laughter.]

Ms. Howell, you got a pretty decent intro from our chairman.

Ms. HOWELL. I would agree with that.

Senator FRANKEN. That was really pretty amazing. So I really do not have much to ask you, other than I am really curious about the corrupt building inspectors you prosecuted. Could you tell me how they were corrupt and exactly what they were doing? How many were there?

Ms. Howell. I successfully convicted about 20 of them across different boroughs in the metropolitan New York City area, and their MO, modus operandi, was to extort payoffs before they would issue a certificate of occupancy to people who usually were quite desperate for their C-of-Os, certificates of occupancy, in order to move into their buildings.

Senator Franken. So what does that mean? Why did they—a certificate of occupancy means they could not move in until they got it.

Ms. Howell. Owners of the buildings could not actually start using and occupying their building until they were issued a certificate of occupancy by the New York City building inspector.

Senator Franken. And the building inspector basically was saying this building is sound enough to be occupied; is that what the certificate of occupancy is?

Ms. Howell. Essentially, yes. And the building inspectors would not issue the certificate of occupancy unless they had received a payoff.

Senator Franken. And how long did they go to jail for?

Ms. Howell. Approximately 3 years.

Senator Franken. Seems fair. Mr. Wilkins, you have worked with indigent clients as a public defender and you have served on the D.C. Access to Justice Commission to expand access to legal services for poor people.

I think that equal access to justice is absolutely necessary for a fair justice system. What will you do as a judge to ensure that everyone who comes in your courtroom has equal access to justice?

Mr. Wilkins. Thank you, Senator. I think that as a judge on the U.S. district court, you have to be mindful of your obligation to make sure that justice is blind and that justice is equal and that a person who perhaps doesn’t have all of the resources isn’t affected unfairly on the merits because of that. And so I would try to be mindful of those issues as I was issuing my—as I would rule on particular matters.

And I note that in the District of Columbia, there is a process by which judges can appoint counsel to the pro se matters, where the plaintiffs may have meritorious cases or potentially meritorious cases that need to be explored with competent counsel and that the judges often times work with the legal community to get them to take those cases, and I would certainly applaud and support that effort.

Senator Franken. So that is the judge appointing a lawyer for a plaintiff.

Mr. Wilkins. I believe that there is a process by which the court can refer a matter and seek to encourage counsel to take the case. He can’t actually, I don’t believe, appoint counsel. But firms sign up and agree to take cases as they are referred.

Senator Franken. Well, I applaud the work that you have done and I congratulate you both on these nominations. Congratulations.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Senator Whitehouse. Thank you, Senator Franken.
I join Senator Franken in congratulating you on the worthy academic and service careers that have prompted President Obama to nominate you for this extraordinary office, and I wish you every success as we go forward.

As I said earlier, there is an unfortunate situation on the Senate floor right now; that people who come out of this Committee with unanimous support of the Committee nevertheless seem to fall into months of quicksand, but without prejudging how the Committee hearing will go, I hope and expect that it will be uneventful and that we will be able to get you through the floor and on to what I hope will be very distinguished careers at the bench.

I congratulate both of you, I congratulate your families.

The hearing will remain open for an additional week, the record of it will, if anyone wishes to add any further materials.

But with no more business before the committee, the hearing is adjourned.

[Whereupon, at 3:23 p.m., the hearing was concluded.]
[Questions and answers and submissions for the record follow.]
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Responses of Beryl A. Howell
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia
to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. According to a May 2009 presentation you gave at the 18th Annual National Seminar on the Federal Sentencing Guidelines, only roughly 40% of sentences handed out by the D.C. District Courts are within the federal sentencing guidelines. Of course, that means that around 60% of all sentences are departures from the guidelines. If you are confirmed as a District Judge, you will be among the judges within the D.C. District Court imposing sentences.

a. Do you agree that the sentencing guidelines, if applied properly and followed faithfully, can go a long way to assure predictability and uniformity in sentencing?

Response: Yes.

b. I recognize a substantial number of the downward departures in the District of D.C. are requested by the government; however, if you are confirmed, do you think you would conclude the sentencing guidelines got it wrong more than half the time?

Response: Should I be confirmed as a District Court Judge for the District of Columbia, I would adhere to a three-step sentencing process, in accordance with the policy statements of the U.S. Sentencing Commission and consistent with the directions of the U.S. Supreme Court. Specifically, first, I would determine correctly the applicable guideline range. See 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a)(4); Rita v. United States, 551 U.S. 338, 347-48 (2007) (a district court should begin all sentencing proceedings by correctly calculating the applicable Guidelines range); Gall v. United States, 552 U.S. 38, 49 (2007) ("As a matter of administration and to secure nationwide consistency, the Guidelines should be the starting point and the initial benchmark."). Second, I would consider whether policy statements or commentary in the Guidelines Manual warrant consideration in imposing sentence. See 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a)(5). Finally, I would consider the factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a), taken as a whole, to determine the appropriate sentence in each individual case. As part of the process, I would consider fully and fairly the arguments made by the government and defendant, and explain the reasons for the sentence imposed.

2. On April 30, 2008, you gave a presentation at the White Collar Women's Lunch entitled “Data Detours: E-Discovery and the EU Data Protection Directive.” In that presentation, you discussed the effect European law has on discovery in cases involving multinational corporations. I recognize your presentation was about the practical consequences of foreign law, not the interpretation of American law. However, do you believe the multinational nature of the business environment makes it permissible for American judges to take foreign law into account when determining the meaning of America’s laws and Constitution?

Response: No. Consideration of foreign law is not appropriate in interpreting the meaning of domestic law and the U.S. Constitution, unless such consideration is required by statute or the Constitution, or controlling precedent from the U.S. Supreme Court or the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

3. During the 2008 presidential campaign, President Obama described the types of judges that he will nominate to the federal bench as follows:

“We need somebody who’s got the heart, the empathy, to recognize what it’s like to be a young teenage mom. The empathy to understand what it's like to be poor, or African-American, or gay, or disabled, or old. And that’s the criteria by which I’m going to be selecting my judges.”

a. Without commenting on what President Obama may or may not have meant by this statement, do you believe that you fit President Obama’s criteria for federal judges, as described in his quote?

Response: I am honored that President Obama nominated me to the position of District Court Judge for the District of Columbia and that my record of educational and professional achievements met his criteria.

b. During her confirmation hearing, Justice Sotomayor rejected this so-called “empathy standard” stating, “We apply the law to facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts.” Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?

Response: Yes.

c. What role do you believe empathy should play in a judge’s consideration of a case?

Response: In consideration of a case, a district court judge should find the relevant law from the text of the statute or the Constitution and binding precedent from the Supreme Court and appellate courts, determine the facts fairly from the evidence presented by the parties, and then apply the law to the facts, with clear articulation of the findings of fact and conclusions of law to the parties. Empathy does not play a role.

d. Do you think that it is ever proper for judges to indulge their own subjective sense of empathy in determining what the law means?

Response: No.
i. If so, under what circumstances?

Response: Not applicable.

e. Following Justice Stevens' retirement, the President said that he would select a Supreme Court nominee with "a keen understanding of how the law affects the daily lives of the American people." Do you believe judges should base their decisions on a desired outcome, or solely on the law and facts presented?

Response: Judges should base their decisions solely on a diligent application of the law to fairly evaluated facts that are presented by the parties.

4. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I prepared my responses after careful consideration of each question and any relevant legal issues raised. I discussed my responses with representatives of the Department of Justice and requested that my responses be transmitted to the Committee.

5. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.
Responses of Beryl A. Howell
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia
to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: The Constitution embodies principles that district courts are called upon to apply to specific factual situations, guided by the text of the Constitution, the historical record reflective of the purpose and intent of the provision at issue, and binding precedent from the Supreme Court and appellate courts. While the factual situations may change, the Constitution does not.

2. Justice William Brennan once said: “Our Constitution was not intended to preserve a preexisting society but to make a new one, to put in place new principles that the prior political community had not sufficiently recognized.” Do you agree with him that constitutional interpretation today must take into account this supposed transformative purpose of the Constitution?

Response: In context, Justice Brennan’s quoted statement from his October 12, 1985 speech at Georgetown University titled “Constitutional Interpretation,” is immediately followed by his statement that: “Thus, for example, when we interpret the Civil War Amendments to the charter—abolishing slavery, guaranteeing blacks equality under law, and guaranteeing blacks the right to vote—we must remember that those who put them in place had no desire to enshrine the status quo. Their goal was to make over their world, to eliminate all vestige of slave caste.” Justice Brennan appears to be suggesting that interpretation of the Constitution should take into account the original purpose of the Constitutional provision at issue. I believe that when presented with a case that requires application of the Constitution to a specific factual situation, a district court judge must be guided by the text of the Constitution, the historical record reflective of the purpose and intent of the provision at issue, and binding precedent from the Supreme Court and appellate courts.

3. Do you believe judicial doctrine rightly incorporates the “evolving understandings of the Constitution forged through social movements, legislation, and historical practice”?

Response: No. In applying the Constitution to a specific factual situation, a district court judge must be guided by the text of the Constitution, the historical record reflective of the purpose and intent of the provision at issue, and binding precedent from the Supreme Court and appellate courts.
4. Do you believe empathy is "an essential ingredient for arriving at just decisions and outcomes" and should play a role in a judge's consideration of a case?

Response: In consideration of a case, a district court judge should find the relevant law from the text of statute or the Constitution and binding precedent from the Supreme Court and appellate courts, determine the facts fairly from the evidence presented by the parties, and then apply the law to the facts, with clear articulation of the findings of fact and conclusions of law to the parties. Empathy does not play a role.

5. Is any transaction involving the exchange of money subject to Congress's Commerce Clause power?

Response: Whether a particular transaction involving the exchange of money would be subject to Congress's Commerce Clause power would depend on whether the transaction falls within three categories of activity identified by the Supreme Court as covered by the Clause: namely, the channels of interstate commerce; instrumentality of, or persons or things in, interstate commerce; and activities having a substantial relation to interstate commerce. United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995).

   a. In light of the Court's Commerce Clause jurisprudence, if the government can mandate that every man, woman, and child purchase a health insurance policy, can the federal government require citizens to join a gym (and therefore lower national health care costs)?

Response: As noted in the response above, the Supreme Court has set out a framework for determining whether federal regulations fall within the scope of authority vested in Congress by the Commerce Clause. A federal regulation requiring citizens to join a gym would be subject to analysis under this framework.

   i. If not, what in the Constitution prevents this?

Response: The powers granted to Congress under Article I of the Constitution are enumerated, with limits on their scope, as well as bounded by the protections in the Bill of Rights and other constitutional amendments.

   ii. In a recent report discussing the constitutionality of the individual mandate, the Congressional Research Service (CRS) stated: “whether Congress can use its Commerce Clause authority to require a person to buy a good or service and whether this type of required participation can be considered economic activity” is “a novel issue.” Do you agree with CRS that this is a novel issue for the courts to decide?

have yet to determine the constitutionality under the Commerce Clause of section 1501, the Minimum Essential Coverage Provision. To do so, courts will analyze the statute under the framework provided by the Supreme Court.

6. What limitations remain on the individual Second Amendment right now that it has been incorporated against the States?

Response: In District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S. Ct. 2783 (2008), the Supreme Court held that the Second Amendment protects the right to possess a handgun in the home for the purpose of self-defense. The Supreme Court expressly noted in McDonald v. City of Chicago, Illinois, 130 S. Ct. 3020 (2010), in applying the Second Amendment protection to the States, that the holding in Heller “did not cast doubt on such longstanding regulatory measures as ‘prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons and the mentally ill,’ “ laws forbidding the carrying of firearms in sensitive places such as schools and government buildings, or laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms.” The currently recognized limitations on the individual Second Amendment right are those expressly noted by the Supreme Court; whether any additional limitations apply may be resolved in future cases.

a. Is it limited only to possession of a handgun for self-defense in the home, since both Heller and McDonald involved cases of handgun possession for self-defense in the home?

Response: The Supreme Court has expressly noted that some limitations exist on the scope of the Second Amendment right but not as narrowly as this question suggests. Whether any additional limitations apply may be resolved in future cases.

7. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: In evaluating challenges to sentences, including capital punishment, brought under the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution, the Supreme Court has looked beyond historical conceptions of whether a punishment is cruel and unusual to “the evolving standards of decency that mark the progress of a maturing society.” Graham v. Florida, 130 S. Ct. 2011, 2021 (2010) (quoting Trop v. Dulles, 356 U.S. 86, 101 (1958)(plurality opinion)). Should I be confirmed as a district court judge, I would follow the law regarding imposition of the death penalty, both as directed by statute and in binding precedent from the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

a. Do you agree that the Constitution’s prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment “embodies a principle whose application is appropriately informed by our society’s understanding of cruelty and by what punishments have become unusual?”
Response: In explaining the Eighth Amendment’s prohibition on infliction of cruel and unusual punishments, the Supreme Court has stated that the “standard of extreme cruelty is not merely descriptive, but necessarily embodies a moral judgment. The standard itself remains the same, but its applicability must change as the basic mores of society change.” Kennedy v. Louisiana, 128 S. Ct. 2641, 2649 (2008). Should I be confirmed as a district court judge, I would follow the law regarding imposition of the death penalty, both as directed by statute and in binding precedent from the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

b. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

Response: Should I be confirmed as a district court judge, I would follow the law regarding imposition of the death penalty, both as directed by statute and in binding precedent from the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

c. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?

Response: The Supreme Court has held that the death penalty is constitutional, with exceptions in certain circumstances, such as imposition of the death penalty for nonhomicide crimes against individuals, Kennedy v. Louisiana, 128 S. Ct. 2641, 2649 (2008), for defendants who committed their crimes before the age of 18, Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), or whose intellectual functioning is in a low range, Atkins v. Virginia, 536 U.S. 304 (2002). Accordingly, should I be confirmed as a district court judge, I would follow the law that the death penalty is not unconstitutional in all cases.

d. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge’s analysis?

Response: The Supreme Court has looked at several factors in determining whether a sentence is unconstitutionally “cruel and unusual” under evolving standards of decency, including (1) “objective indicia of society’s standards, as expressed in legislative enactments and state practice” to determine whether there is a national consensus against the sentencing practices at issue, Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551, 563 (2003); (2) “the standards elaborated by controlling precedents and by the Supreme Court’s own understanding and interpretation of the Eighth Amendment’s text, history, meaning and purpose,” Kennedy v. Louisiana, 128 S. Ct. 2641, 2649 (2008); and (3) the Supreme Court’s exercise of its “own independent judgment whether the punishment in question violates the Constitution.” Roper, supra, at 564. In the judicial exercise of independent judgment, the Supreme Court has considered such factors as whether the challenged sentencing practice serves legitimate penological goals, the proportionality of the sentence to the defendant’s crime, and the offender’s culpability and characteristics. Roper, supra, at 568. Should I be confirmed as a district court judge, I would follow the law regarding imposition of the death penalty, both as directed by statute and in binding precedent from the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.
8. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: Consideration of foreign law is not appropriate in interpreting the meaning of domestic law and the U.S. Constitution, unless such consideration is required by statute, the Constitution or controlling precedent from the U.S. Supreme Court or the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for “wise solutions” and “good ideas” to legal and constitutional problems?

Response: No.

b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: Consideration of foreign law is not appropriate in interpreting the meaning of domestic law and the U.S. Constitution, unless such consideration is required by statute, the Constitution or controlling precedent from the U.S. Supreme Court or the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

Response: No.

d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?

Response: Should I be confirmed as a district court judge, I would not consider foreign law in interpreting the meaning of domestic law and the U.S. Constitution, unless such consideration is required by statute, the Constitution or controlling precedent from the U.S. Supreme Court or the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.
Responses of Kathleen M. O’Malley Nominee to be U.S. Circuit Court Judge for the Federal Circuit
to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. In U.S. v. Stern, you departed downward and sentenced a defendant convicted of possessing 1,000 pages of child pornography on his computer to only 12 months and one day in prison. The Sentencing Guidelines recommend a range of imprisonment between 46 and 57 months. In your opinion you stated: “The individual who possesses child pornography, while demanding punishment, is considerably less culpable than a producer or distributor of the exploitative materials and is a marginal player in the overall child exploitation scheme.”

   a. Your explanation for your downward departure cited the greater culpability of producers and distributors of child pornography.

      i. Do you acknowledge that separate statutes provide greater penalties, including mandatory minimum sentences, for those who produce and distribute child pornography?

         Response: Yes.

      ii. Do you acknowledge that the U.S. Sentencing Guidelines provide higher offense levels for individuals who produce and distribute child pornography?

         Response: Not necessarily. Because of the manner in which sentencing enhancements are considered under U.S.S.G. §2G2.2(b), the Guidelines sometimes recommend a lower sentence for a given defendant who distributed child pornography than they recommend for a defendant who possesses, but does not distribute, child pornography.

      iii. Based on the higher statutory and guideline sentences for those who produce and distribute child pornography, do you acknowledge that the greater culpability of these offenders is already built into our federal sentencing law even in the absence of downward departures?

         Response: Not always, as explained in my answer to question 1(a)(ii).
b. Do you believe the Sentencing Guidelines are too harsh on child sex crimes?

Response: No, generally. In particular, as I note in Stern, I have “consistently imposed harsh sentences upon defendants who possess child pornography” and I have rarely “disagreed with the Government’s recommended sentences.” United States v. Stern, 590 F. Supp. 2d 945, 947 (N.D. Ohio 2008). As noted in response to question 1(a)(ii), however, in light of how these particular guidelines operate, there are instances in which the guideline range for possession of child pornography can be higher than the recommended range for distribution or crossing state lines to engage in sexual intercourse with a minor.

i. If not, why did you cut the sentence so dramatically in this case?

Response: Given the sentencing factors that I was mandated to consider under 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a), Stern presented “an extraordinary and unique case.” Stern, 590 F. Supp. 2d at 947. Many circumstances differentiated Stern from any other over which I have presided during my almost 16 years on the bench. These circumstances included, but were not limited to, the fact that: (1) the defendant began his crime by looking at pictures of other 14-year-old girls when the defendant was himself 14; (2) expert testimony indicated that, at that young age, the defendant’s adolescent brain was particularly susceptible to suggestion and addiction; (3) the Government did not suggest that Stern posed a risk of recidivism and expert testimony confirmed he did not; (4) the defendant sought therapy and counseling before any charges were brought; (5) the defendant completed college and began a productive career after, and in the face of the shame caused by, the charges; (6) the defendant’s remorse was credible; (7) the images downloaded, while reprehensible, were less graphic or violent than those downloaded by other defendants I have sentenced; and (8) expert medical testimony indicated that a lengthy prison term for an offender who began viewing pornographic images at age 14 would interfere with, rather than enhance, rehabilitation.

ii. What factors did you consider when you decided to depart downward in this case?

Response: As required by law, I considered all factors outlined under 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) and the advice provided by the Sentencing Guidelines. I outlined the factors I considered in my previous answer to question 1(b)(i). Notably, the Government did not appeal the sentence I imposed in Stern, which I believe indicates that my consideration of all relevant sentencing factors and exercise of my sentencing discretion were reasonable in the unique circumstances presented.
c. You criticized the Sentencing Guidelines in your opinion stating:

“In short, the national sentencing landscape presents a picture of injustice. In the absence of coherent and defensible Guidelines, district courts are left without a meaningful baseline from which they can apply sentencing principles. The resulting vacuum has created a sentencing procedure that sometimes can appear to reflect the policy views of a given court rather than the application of a coherent set of principles to an individual situation. Individual criminal sentences are not the proper forum for an expansive dialogue about the principles of criminal justice. Such conversation, though vital, should not take place here – lives are altered each and every time a district court issues a sentence: this is not a theoretical exercise.”

i. Why do you believe the Sentencing Guidelines do not provide a “meaningful baseline” and lack coherent and defensible guidelines?

Response: I do not. As to the Sentencing Guidelines generally, I believe they serve the important purpose of promoting uniformity in sentencing, are well and carefully conceived, and are deserving of great deference. The quotation listed here from Stern applied only to child pornography Sentencing Guidelines. As noted in Stern, I am troubled that the specific Guidelines at issue there have been adjusted repeatedly in a manner that is contrary to recommendations made by the United States Sentencing Commission, “do not reflect the kind of empirical data, national experience, and independent expertise that are characteristic of the Commission’s institutional role,” and, in certain, though not all cases, can suggest illogical results. See Stern, 590 F. Supp. 2d at 960 (citing United States v. Ontiveros, No. 07-CR-333, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 58774, *20 (E.D. Wis. July 24, 2008)).

ii. Do you think a judge should be able to impose whatever sentence he or she pleases based on each individual’s circumstances?

Response: No.

iii. Do you believe empathy should play a role in sentencing?

Response: No. A court’s sentencing determinations must be based upon the sentencing factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a), the advice provided by the Sentencing Guidelines, and a careful and reasonable exercise of the court’s discretion in keeping with binding legal precedent.
d. On May 21, 2010, the New York Times published an article discussing Brooklyn Judge Jack Weinstein’s “crusade” to thwart federal child pornography laws. See, A.G. Sulzberger, Defiant Judge Takes on Child Pornography Law, N.Y. TIMES (May 21, 2010). Judge Weinstein defied congressionally set criminal penalties and decided cases based on his own policy preferences. I ask that you read the New York Times article on Judge Weinstein and answer the following questions:

i. Do you agree with Judge Weinstein that “those who view [child pornography] images, as opposed to producing or selling them, present [no] threat to children?” Why or why not?

Response: No. As I said in Stern:

The Court finds that possession of child pornography is an exceedingly serious offense, among the most serious class of offenses that do not involve the direct use of violence or coercion on the part of the perpetrator. See, e.g., United States v. Holtz, 285 Fed. Appx. 548, 553 (10th Cir. 2008) (“Possession of child pornography is a serious matter. It’s not just the possessing of it; it’s what is done to innocent victims worldwide in order to allow adults to knowingly possess it.”)...

Laws criminalizing the possession of child pornography are in place to reduce the market for exploitation of the children that are severely victimized by this crime. This crime shocks the conscience: “Children are exploited, molested, and raped for the prurient pleasure of [the defendant] and others who support suppliers of child pornography.” United States v. Goff, 501 F.3d 250, 259 (3d Cir. 2007). The written word seems inadequate to describe the horrors of this crime.

Stern, 590 F. Supp. 2d at 951-52 (some citations omitted).

ii. Do you agree with Judge Weinstein that, through application of federal child pornography laws, “[w]e’re destroying lives unnecessarily?” Why or why not?

Response: No. As I said in Stern, possession of child pornography must be punished with a term of imprisonment to discourage its creation and the exploitation of children.
iii. Do you agree with Judge Weinstein that “[a]t the most, [possessors of child pornography] should be receiving treatment and supervision?” Why or why not?

Response: No.

iv. Do you agree with Judge Weinstein that criminal defendants have “a constitutional right to have a jury know the punishment that would accompany a guilty verdict?” Why or why not?

Response: No. Neither the Supreme Court nor the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit has found such a right to exist.

2. The Sixth Circuit criticized you in reversing your denial of qualified immunity to two police officers in Chappel v. City of Cleveland. The court stated that your analysis

“represents exactly the sort of theoretical speculation that the courts are prohibited from engaging in...It represents the impermissible substitution of the district judge’s own personal notions – about what might have been, could have been, or should have been – in a ‘sanitized world of...imagination’ quite unlike the dangerous and complex world where the detectives were required to make an instantaneous decision.”

a. Do you accept the Sixth Circuit’s criticism of your decision in this case?

Response: I accept the Sixth Circuit’s decision as binding precedent. I respectfully disagree, however, with their characterization of my opinion.

b. Why did you believe it was proper to speculate about the facts in this case?

Response: I do not believe that I engaged in speculation. The role of a district court on summary judgment is to construe the facts in the light most favorable to the non-moving party to determine whether a genuine issue of material fact exists. This includes drawing all reasonable inferences in favor of the non-moving party. I believe I adhered to that obligation and avoided resolving factual questions which were in dispute.

c. Why did you believe it was proper to question the two officers’ actions after they were confronted by a criminal suspect who emerged in the dark from a closet holding a knife?

Response: I did not question the officers’ actions. That was not my role. I attempted to apply the law as it existed at the time to the facts presented. Ultimately, I concluded that there were material issues of fact regarding whether the officers’ use of deadly force against a 15 year old boy who was hiding in his bedroom closet and who was suspected of robbing a pizza delivery man was reasonable. As I said in Chappell:

The Court does not, and would not presume to pass moral judgments upon McCloud, his family, or the Detectives. The very narrow question before the Court now is whether, on the record before it, there are genuine disputes of material fact that prevent judgment in the Detectives’ favor on their claim of qualified immunity and require further inquiry before a jury. While the Court has found that certain legal and factual issues are not open to fair debate – such as whether McCloud was holding a knife when encountered – it also finds that there is genuine dispute over a host of other important facts. It is this reservoir of disputed facts which, at least under current, binding Sixth Circuit precedent, counsels against a judgment granting qualified immunity to the Detectives at this stage of the proceedings.

d. In your personal opinion, when do you think a police officer should not be civilly liable for his or her actions while on duty?

Response: My personal opinion is not relevant. In this position and my former role as First Assistant to the Ohio Attorney General, I have worked closely with and formed close bonds with a variety of law enforcement officers. I have great respect for them and the difficult and dangerous jobs they do. Those agents and officers understand that, despite my relationship with and regard for them, my position requires a balancing of the facts of each individual case, and that there will be times when I am compelled to leave some decisions in the hands of the jury. The law dictates that these assessments be made on a case-by-case basis. In Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S. 386 (1989), the Supreme Court established the test for analyzing objective reasonableness. I described this test in Chappell before applying it to the facts presented there:

Determining whether the force used to effect a particular seizure is “reasonable” under the Fourth Amendment requires a careful balancing of the nature and quality of the intrusion on the individual’s Fourth Amendment interests against the countervailing governmental interests at stake.

Application of this test “requires careful attention to the facts and circumstances of each particular case, including the [1] severity of the crime at issue, [2] whether the suspect poses an immediate threat to the safety of the officers or others, and [3] whether he is actively resisting arrest or attempting to evade arrest by flight.”
Chappell, 584 F. Supp. 2d at 990 (citations and footnote omitted). Importantly, as I also noted in Chappell,

[1] It is not for the Court to substitute its own notion of the “proper police procedure for the instantaneous decision of the officer at the scene.” “The calculus of reasonableness must embody allowance for the fact that police officers are often forced to make split-second judgments – in circumstances that are tense, uncertain, and rapidly evolving – about the amount of force that is necessary in a particular situation.”

Id. (citations omitted).

3. As you may know, President Obama has described the types of judges that he will nominate to the federal bench as follows:

“We need somebody who’s got the heart, the empathy, to recognize what it’s like to be a young teenage mom. The empathy to understand what it’s like to be poor, or African-American, or gay, or disabled, or old. And that’s the criteria by which I’m going to be selecting my judges.”

a. Do you believe that you fit President Obama’s criteria for federal judges, as described in his quote?

Response: I assume that President Obama concluded that I am qualified to serve as a Judge on the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit and to handle its unique jurisdiction and docket.

b. During her confirmation hearing, Justice Sotomayor rejected this so-called “empathy standard” stating, “We apply the law to facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts.” Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?

Response: Yes.

c. What role do you believe that empathy should play in a judge’s consideration of a case?

Response: To the extent one defines empathy as the capacity to understand what others are experiencing and how they perceive the way they are treated, a judge can and should show empathy for all parties by engaging in careful and rigorous analysis of all arguments presented, explaining thoroughly the bases for all decisions, and being temperate in the language employed in those decisions and used in the courtroom. I do not believe, however, that empathy plays any role in the application of the law to the facts presented, and, accordingly, in the ultimate disposition of a case.
d. Do you think that it is proper for judges to consider their own subjective sense of empathy in determining what the law means?

Response: No.

i. If so, under what circumstances?

Response: Not applicable.

ii. Please provide an example of a case in which you have considered your own subjective sense of empathy in determining what the law means.

Response: Not applicable.

iii. Please provide an example of a case where you have had to set aside your own subjective sense of empathy and rule based solely on the law.

Response: In 2008, I considered a case in which a plaintiff contended that he had been terminated by his long-time employer in violation of the Americans with Disabilities Act and the Family and Medical Leave Act. The plaintiff had been an exemplary employee of the defendant for many years, but his performance declined as he succumbed to “the destructive power of alcoholism . . . .” Seitz v. Lane Furniture Indus., Case No. 07cv171, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79651, at *2 (N.D. Ohio Sept. 17, 2008). Ultimately, it was “clear that alcohol ruined [the Plaintiff’s] career,” and I empathized with what were clearly his “best efforts to overcome” his alcoholism. Id. at *2, *85. I concluded, however, that the “law [was] not designed to protect [the Plaintiff] from losing his job under the circumstances of the case.” Id. at 85. In my opinion, I “recognized” that this [was] a harsh result,” for the Plaintiff, but concluded that the Defendant “had the right to keep its business running” and was under no legal obligation to “retain [the Plaintiff] if it decide[d] that his performance deficiencies [were] harming the company.” Id. at 86.

e. When Justice Stevens announced his retirement, the President said that he would select a Supreme Court nominee with “a keen understanding of how the law affects the daily lives of the American people.” Do you believe judges should base their decisions on a desired outcome, or solely on the law and facts presented?

Response: Solely on the law and facts presented.
4. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I reviewed the particular decisions about which I was asked, reviewed the May 21, 2010 New York Times article which I was asked to read, and pulled from memory a number of cases I believed were responsive to question 3(d)(iii). I then drafted these responses. Thereafter, I had discussions with my law clerks and with individuals from the Department of Justice.

5. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.
Responses of Robert Leon Wilkins
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia
to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. In 2004, prior to the Supreme Court’s decisions in Booker and Fanfan, you co-authored an article in the Atlanta Journal-Constitution entitled “Fix Sentencing Guidelines.” In that article, you urged Congress to “repeal the federal sentencing guidelines along with the mandatory minimum drug sentences,” and allow the Sentencing Commission to draft new guidelines.
   a. Now that the guidelines are advisory instead of mandatory, do you still hold the same criticisms?

   Response: No.

   b. What level of deference will you show to the guidelines now that they are only advisory?

   Response: In several cases, including Nelson v. United States, 129 S.Ct. 890 (2009) (per curiam), the Supreme Court has explained that “the sentencing court must first calculate the Guidelines range, and then consider what sentence is appropriate for the individual defendant in light of the statutory sentencing factors, 18 U.S.C. §3553(a), explaining any variance from the former with reference to the latter.” I will follow that precedent.

   c. Do you commit to follow the guidelines?

   Response: I will follow the framework established by the Supreme Court, as described above.

   d. Do you agree that the sentence a defendant receives for a particular crime should not depend on the judge he or she happens to draw?

   Response: Yes.

2. From 2001 to 2003, you served as counsel for a group of convicted sex offenders filing as plaintiffs in a class action suit challenging the District of Columbia Sex Offender Registration Act on constitutional and Privacy Act grounds. The plaintiffs received temporary, preliminary, and permanent injunctive relief in the district court. While the case was on appeal, the Supreme Court upheld sex offender registry statutes in Connecticut and Alaska. Based on those rulings, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit reversed the injunctions.

a. Do you believe the law should provide greater protection for perpetrators of sexual assault rather than their victims and the communities in which they live?

Response: No, I have never expressed or held such a belief.

b. Are you uncomfortable with the idea of a Megan’s law?

Response: No.

c. Are you concerned that Megan’s laws may violate the rights of convicted sex offenders?

Response: I am bound by and will follow the Supreme Court decisions and other precedent that have rejected constitutional challenges to Megan’s laws. To the extent that there could be future litigation raising other challenges to Megan’s laws in the future, it would be inappropriate for me to opine further.

d. Are you uncomfortable with the idea of requiring convicted sex offenders to register with the police or state administrative body?

Response: No.

3. According to your questionnaire, you are a member of the ACLU.

a. What is your level of involvement with that organization?

Response: I am currently a dues paying member. I have never held an official position in the organization. If confirmed, I intend to discontinue my membership.

b. Is it fair to say that you personally agree with the positions taken by the ACLU?

Response: I am not familiar with all of the positions taken by the ACLU, of those which I am aware, I have agreed with some and disagreed with others.

c. According to their website, the ACLU believes that the death penalty inherently violates the constitutional ban on cruel and unusual punishment and the guarantees of due process and equal protection.

i. Do you agree with the ACLU’s position on the death penalty, as set forth on its website?
Response: I am not familiar with this statement on the ACLU website. My understanding is that the ACLU often challenges alleged unfairness and arbitrariness in the application of the death penalty. Nonetheless, to the extent that the ACLU has articulated a position on the death penalty as characterized in the question above, I disagree.

ii. Do you have a personal objection to the death penalty?

Response: No.

d. If confirmed, how will your affiliation with the ACLU impact your judicial decision-making?

Response: If confirmed, my past affiliation with the ACLU will have no impact. I will be bound by and will follow the precedent of the United States Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

4. During the 2008 presidential campaign, President Obama described the types of judges that he will nominate to the federal bench as follows:

“We need somebody who’s got the heart, the empathy, to recognize what it’s like to be a young teenage mom. The empathy to understand what it’s like to be poor, or African-American, or gay, or disabled, or old. And that’s the criteria by which I’m going to be selecting my judges.”

a. Without commenting on what President Obama may or may not have meant by this statement, do you believe that you fit President Obama’s criteria for federal judges, as described in his quote?

Response: When President Obama announced my nomination, he stated that I and the others nominated that day were “distinguished individuals [who] have demonstrated an unwavering commitment to justice throughout their careers,” so I can only presume that those were the most important criteria to the President. I am an African American who was born to a teenage mother in modest financial circumstances, so one could say that I fit some of the criteria mentioned by President Obama in the quote mentioned above.

b. During her confirmation hearing, Justice Sotomayor rejected this so-called “empathy standard” stating, “We apply the law to facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts.” Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?

Response: I agree with Justice Sotomayor that judges apply the law to the facts, not feelings to facts.

c. What role do you believe empathy should play in a judge’s consideration of a case?
Response: To the extent that empathy is defined as the ability to recognize the position and circumstances of others, that quality could enhance a judge’s ability to listen to the parties, but it should not play a role in applying the law to the facts.

d. Do you think that it is ever proper for judges to indulge their own subjective sense of empathy in determining what the law means?

Response: No.

i. If so, under what circumstances?

Response: Not applicable.

e. When Justice Stevens announced his retirement, the President said that he would select a Supreme Court nominee with “a keen understanding of how the law affects the daily lives of the American people.” Do you believe judges should base their decisions on a desired outcome, or solely on the law and facts presented?

Response: I believe that a judge should not base his or her decisions on a desired outcome, but rather on the law and the facts.

5. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received the questions, via the Department of Justice, on August 4, 2010. I then reviewed the questions and drafted responses. I later had discussions with the Department of Justice, and subsequently I asked the Department of Justice to submit these responses to the Judiciary Committee on my behalf.

6. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.
Responses of Robert L. Wilkins
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia
to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: If the “living document” perspective means that the Constitution should not be interpreted first and foremost in accordance with its text, then I disagree.

2. Justice William Brennan once said: “Our Constitution was not intended to preserve a preexisting society but to make a new one, to put in place new principles that the prior political community had not sufficiently recognized.” Do you agree with him that constitutional interpretation today must take into account this supposed transformative purpose of the Constitution?

Response: I am not familiar with this statement by Justice Brennan or the context in which it was made. If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would consider the text of the Constitution, the intent of the framers, and Supreme Court precedent to resolve constitutional questions.

3. Do you believe judicial doctrine rightly incorporates the “evolving understandings of the Constitution forged through social movements, legislation, and historical practice”?

Response: I am not familiar with this statement or the context in which it was made. The Supreme Court has held that the plain language of the text of the Constitution, as well as the original intent of the framers, is the starting point for constitutional interpretation. At the same time, the Court has at times recognized that the Constitution can protect rights in a context not explicitly envisioned by the framers, such as by holding that the 14th Amendment prohibits gender discrimination and racial segregation, even though both of those practices were embraced by the framers of that amendment. If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would be bound by those precedents.

4. Do you believe empathy is “an essential ingredient for arriving at just decisions and outcomes” and should play a role in a judge’s consideration of a case?

Response: To the extent that empathy is defined as the ability to recognize the position and circumstances of others, that quality could enhance a judge’s ability to listen to the parties, but it should not play a role in applying the law to the facts.

5. Since at least the 1930s, the Supreme Court has expansively interpreted Congress’ power under the Commerce Clause. Recently, however, in the cases of United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995) and United States v. Morrison, 529 U.S. 598 (2000), the Supreme Court has imposed some limits on that power.
a. Do you believe Lopez and Morrison are consistent with the Supreme Court’s earlier Commerce Clause decisions?

Response: Yes.

b. Why or why not?

Response: In Gonzales v. Raich, 545 U.S. 1 (2005), the Supreme Court explained that Lopez and Morrison were consistent with the Court’s earlier Commerce Clause decisions because the statutes struck down in those two cases did not actually regulate economic activity, in contrast to the statutes which had been upheld in earlier Commerce Clause decisions.

6. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would be bound by the holding and analysis of the majority opinion in Roper.

   a. Do you agree that the Constitution’s prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment “embodies a principle whose application is appropriately informed by our society’s understanding of cruelty and by what punishments have become unusual?”

Response: I am not familiar with this statement. In Roper, the Supreme Court stated that “we have established the propriety and affirmed the necessity of referring to ‘the evolving standards of decency that mark the progress of a maturing society’ to determine which punishments are so disproportionate as to be cruel and unusual.” 543 U.S. at 560-61 (quoting Trop v. Dulles, 356 U.S. 86, 100-101 (1958) (plurality opinion)). If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would be bound by that and other relevant precedent of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

b. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

Response: If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would follow Supreme Court precedent to perform this analysis.

c. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?

Response: The Supreme Court has rejected constitutional challenges to the death penalty in a variety of circumstances. Judges are bound by those precedents.

d. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge’s analysis?
546

Response: As a District Court judge, I would follow Supreme Court precedent to ascertain the relevant factors.

7. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: If confirmed as a District Court judge, it would be proper to rely upon foreign law only in those circumstances where precedent of the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit so requires.

   a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for “wise solutions” and “good ideas” to legal and constitutional problems?

   Response: If confirmed as a District Court judge, it would be appropriate to look to foreign law only in those circumstances where Supreme Court precedent or domestic law so requires.

   b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

   Response: If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would consider foreign law only in those circumstances where Supreme Court precedent so requires.

   c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

   Response: I am not aware of any such circumstances.

   d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment?

   Response: If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would follow Supreme Court precedent to ascertain whether foreign law was relevant to an Eighth Amendment challenge.

   e. Other amendments?

   Response: If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would follow Supreme Court precedent to ascertain whether foreign law was relevant to a constitutional issue.

Re: Nomination of the Honorable Kathleen M. O’Malley to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:

The American Intellectual Property Law Association (“AIPLA”) is pleased to submit this letter in response to President Obama’s nomination of the Honorable Kathleen M. O’Malley, United States District Court Judge for the Northern District of Ohio, to be a judge on the United States Court of Appeals the Federal Circuit. AIPLA believes that Judge O’Malley, having demonstrated dedication, diligence, and respect for the law, is well qualified to serve on the Federal Circuit and that her knowledge and experience enable her to serve ably and well.

AIPLA is a national bar association of over 16,000 members who are primarily lawyers in private and corporate practice, in government service, and in the academic community. AIPLA represents a wide and diverse spectrum of individuals, companies, and institutions involved directly or indirectly in the practice of patent, trademark, copyright, and unfair competition law, as well as other fields of law affecting intellectual property. Our members represent both owners and users of intellectual property.

AIPLA notes that Judge O’Malley has presided over more than 100 patent and trademark cases in the fifteen years that she served on the District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, and that she has sat by designation on several Federal Circuit panels hearing appeals in patent cases. Judge O’Malley has also served as a visiting professor at Case Western Reserve University School of Law and has lectured extensively on patent law and litigation. In her eight years of legal practice prior to her appointment to the bench, Judge O’Malley focused on complex litigation, including patent, trademark, antitrust and trade secret litigation. Judge O’Malley earned her Bachelor’s Degree from Kenyon College, where she graduated magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa, and received her Juris Doctorate (and Order of the Coif) from Case Western Reserve University School of Law.
AIPLA finds Judge O’Malley to have the “intellect, legal skills, professional and personal integrity, sound judgment, and extensive experience in relevant fields of law” necessary for service on the Federal Circuit. These are qualifications which the Association has identified in its recent “White Paper” on judicial nominations to the Federal Circuit (“AIPLA Recommendations Regarding Nomination of Judges to the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit”). Judge O’Malley’s credentials also satisfy the White Paper’s recommendation that, at this point in time, a preference should be given to federal district court judges having substantial experience in trying patent cases and a demonstrated ability to effectively manage those cases.

For the reasons noted, we believe Judge O’Malley will be an excellent addition to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. In our view, her service as a district judge and other activities have demonstrated an interest in and understanding of patent law, as well as an objective appreciation of the U.S. intellectual property system as a whole.

Respectfully submitted,

Re: Nomination of Honorable Kathleen M. O’Malley to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit

Dear Senator Leahy:

The Intellectual Property Law Association of Chicago (IPLAC) Judicial Appointments Committee submits this letter in formal support of the Honorable Kathleen M. O’Malley, presently a judge in the Northern District of Ohio, for confirmation to the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.

IPLAC is one of the largest intellectual property law associations in the United States, with approximately 1000 members. Established in 1884, IPLAC is the nation’s oldest bar association focused on patent law. The Association’s founding members declared their original purpose to include “aiding reforms in the administration of the Patent Office,” and “discussing such other matters hereafter to arise as may be of common interest . . .” Today, one such common interest is the Federal Circuit judiciary.

Since 1982, when the Judicial Code was amended to create the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, that court has had exclusive appellate jurisdiction over appeals of patent cases from all federal district courts across the United States and its territories. Of course it also has jurisdiction over appeals from the United States Patent and Trademark Office (“USPTO”) (along with other appellate jurisdiction). During the past 28 years, the number patents issued by the USPTO has risen dramatically. Likewise, the number of patent infringement lawsuits filed in federal courts, and appeals of those cases to the Federal Circuit, have increased significantly. Even during the recent economic downturn, filings of patent infringement appeals to the Federal Circuit stayed strong—392 cases were filed in 2008 and 398 in 2009.
Senator Patrick D. Leahy

This remarkable increase in patents and patent litigation reflects the importance that industry, universities, federal agencies, and individual inventors place on patents. This activity is fueled by large investments in research and development that generate new inventions to patent, as well as the need to obtain strong intellectual property rights to protect those investments. Intellectual property rights represented by patents are a crucial and growing component of our knowledge-based economy.

Congress has become increasingly aware of the significance of patents, and the need to maintain their vitality. Since 1982, Congress has passed legislation on over 25 different occasions to reform and improve Title 35, the patent statute. For the past several years, Congress has been considering further patent reform legislation that addresses significant, and sometimes controversial, issues of great public interest.

This year, the Federal Circuit faces three vacancies with Chief Judge Paul R. Michel's retirement at the end of May 2010, and Judges Alvin A. Schall and Haldane R. Mayer taking senior status. Due to these vacancies and the important role of the Federal Circuit in our patent system, IPLAC is committed to assist the Senate in its evaluation and confirmation of appointments of nominees to the Federal Circuit. IPLAC shares and supports the Senate's interest in filling these vacancies with highly qualified candidates who will further and improve the important work of the Federal Circuit.

While the Federal Circuit has been comprised of many talented judges with diverse backgrounds (including former administrative judges, in-house corporate counsel, outside private counsel and law professors), no Article III district court judge has ever been appointed to the Federal Circuit. This is in stark contrast to every other Circuit Court of Appeals. IPLAC strongly believes the Federal Circuit will benefit greatly from the appointment of an Article III district court judge, particularly one with experience...

adjudicating patent cases. Many of the appeals to the Federal Circuit come from the district courts. While the Federal Circuit occasionally has had district court judges sit by designation, there is no substitute for a full-time Federal Circuit judge who has years of first-hand experience as a district court judge deciding all of the multifaceted issues that are reviewed by a Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Honorable Kathleen M. O’Malley is well qualified to be the first district court judge appointed to the Federal Circuit. She was nominated for the Federal Circuit by President Barack Obama on March 10, 2010. Prior to that date, Judge O’Malley spent sixteen years in the Sixth Circuit as a district court judge, six years in private practice, and three years in the Office of the Attorney General. Considering this experience, as well as Judge O’Malley’s substantial patent experience, IFLAC fully supports the President’s nomination of Judge O’Malley.

Judge O’Malley’s significant experience with patent cases as a district court judge merits elaboration. She has adjudicated a wide range of issues that are significant to the outcome of a patent case, including claim construction, infringement, invalidity, inequitable conduct defense, preliminary injunction, and concurrent USPTO proceedings. Her cases have encompassed a broad and varying assortment of technologies.

She has held numerous Markman hearings on claim construction, which is a threshold issue in most patent cases. For example, in Oatey Co. v. Ips Corp., she construed claims involving a washing machine drain outlet box. No. 1:03 CV 1231, 2006 WL 581240 (N.D.
Ohio 2006). In SKW Americas v. Euclid Chem. Co., she construed claims involving a

In Baran v. Medial Device Tech., Judge O’Malley granted summary judgment of non-infringement after holding a Markman hearing for claim construction of claims covering an automated biopsy instrument. One of the claims included a means-plus-function limitation, which requires special consideration under 35 U.S.C. § 112(6). 666 F. Supp. 2d 776 (N.D. Ohio 2009). Judge O’Malley granted summary judgment of non-infringement of a screw driver garage door opener patent after concluding prosecution history estoppel barred application of the doctrine of equivalents. GMI Holdings, Inc. v. issues on a patent for construction shears, Judge O’Malley denied a motion to dismiss and a motion for summary judgment in Allied Gator, Inc. v. NPK Constr. Equip., Inc., 937
Senator Patrick D. Leahy

Judge O'Malley has considerable experience in deciding the validity of patent claims. In Oatey Co. v. Ips Corp., she held a patent on improvements to washing machine outlet boxes invalid based on obviousness and granted summary judgment. 665 F. Supp. 2d 830 (N.D. Ohio 2009). Additionally, in Weatherchem Corp. v. J.L. Clark, Inc., she found a patent for caps to seal cylindrical spice containers invalid under 35 U.S.C. § 103 for being obvious and unpatentable under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) for on-sale bar. She also found there was no infringement. 937 F. Supp. 1262 (N.D. Ohio 1996).

Judge O'Malley also has experience with the affirmative defense of inequitable conduct. In a case involving PrintNet software, she found the allegations of inequitable conduct were sufficient to survive a motion to dismiss. Tesseron, Ltd. v. GMC Software, No. 1:04CV2182, 2006 WL 840365 (N.D. Ohio 2006). This case was decided pre-Exergen, in which the Federal Circuit held there is a heightened level of scrutiny in pleading inequitable conduct as an affirmative defense.

Patent cases often raise a variety of other issues, and Judge O'Malley has first-hand experience with many of them. In a case involving processes for making radio frequency identification devices, she granted a motion to stay pending reexamination of the patent at issue by the USPTO. She also denied a motion to dismiss/transfer venue and considered the four factors for preliminary injunction in that case. Avery Dennison Corp. v. Alien Tech. Corp., No. 08 CV 795, 2009 WL 2169211 (N.D. Ohio Jul. 20, 2009).

In conclusion, after review of Judge O'Malley's experience as an Article III district court judge with many patent cases, IPLAC submits this letter in support of Judge O'Malley's nomination to the Federal Circuit and encourages the Senate to ratify her nomination.

Respectfully,

Statement Of Senator Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.),
Chairman, Senate Judiciary Committee,
On The Nomination Of Beryl Howell To Be A United States District Court Judge For The District Of Columbia
July 28, 2010

I am delighted to introduce Beryl Howell to the Committee, now as a nominee. Those of you who have served with me here from 1993 through 2003 will remember her as my General Counsel and one of the most effective members of our Judiciary Committee staff. With her background as a highly-decorated Federal prosecutor, Senator Sessions will remember her work on many criminal justice and national security issues. Senator Hatch will no doubt remember her work on our Digital Millennium Copyright Act, our Anti-Cybersquatting Consumer Protection Act and our No Electronic Theft Act. Senator Kyl and Senator Grassley will recall her work on our National Information Infrastructure Protection Act and our Computer Fraud and Abuse statute, and on important oversight matters including our bipartisan hearings on Ruby Ridge that led to improvements at the FBI. Senator Cornyn will be interested in her work on Electronic Freedom of Information initiatives and her induction into the Freedom of Information Act Hall of Fame.

What some of you may not know is her background before she joined the Senate staff, and her work since. She grew up in a proud military family. She was awarded her undergraduate degree with honors in Philosophy from Bryn Mawr College in Pennsylvania, and earned her law degree at Columbia University School of Law, where she was a Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar. She clerked for Judge Dickinson Debevoise on the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey.

Having worked as a student assistant in a U.S. Attorney's office, she joined the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of New York in 1987. As an Assistant U.S. Attorney, she worked there almost six years and rose to be the Deputy Chief of the Narcotics Section. Her grand jury investigations and prosecutions included complex public corruption, narcotics and money laundering cases involving the leadership of the Chinatown Flying Dragons gang, the Call drug cartel and others.

Descriptions of her cases read like crime novels. She successfully prosecuted the leadership of a Chinatown gang, called the Flying Dragons, for heroin trafficking, and extradited the head of the gang after he fled to Hong Kong. She successfully prosecuted a group of Colombian drug dealers and arrested the gang members just as they were packing almost $20 million in cash from narcotics proceeds into a hidden compartment of a truck to smuggle it out of the country. Then, some of these defendants attempted a prison escape by bribing officials, and she successfully prosecuted the perpetrators of the escape plan. She also handled the successful investigation and prosecution of over 20 corrupt New York City building inspectors engaged in extortion.

Her work was recognized by her twice being awarded the U.S. Attorney Special Achievement Award for Sustained Superior Performance, by commendations from the FBI, DEA and the New York City Department of Investigation, and ultimately by the prestigious Attorney General's Director's Award for Superior Performance. I always felt lucky to have hired her.

She left us in 2003 to help establish the Washington, D.C., office of a consulting and technical services firm specializing in digital forensics, computer fraud and abuse investigations as the Executive Managing Director and General Counsel of Stroz Friedberg. While in the private sector, she received the FBI Director's Award for her work assisting in a Government cyber-extortion investigation.

She was a member of the Commission on Cyber Security of the Center for Strategic and International Studies, has taught legal ethics as an adjunct professor at the American University Washington College of Law and has twice been confirmed by the Senate to serve as a member of the bipartisan U.S. Sentencing Commission, to which she was appointed by President Bush. She contributed to the Sentencing Commission report that led to our breakthrough this year with Senate passage of historic legislation that Senator Durbin, Senator Sessions and Senator Coburn crafted to end sentencing disparities, the Fair Sentencing Act.

We rarely have before us nominees to the bench with the breadth of experience that she brings. She has spent more than 23 years in public service. In addition to her experiences in the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial branches of the Federal Government, she has also been a law professor, a lawyer in private practice; and a principal and in-house general counsel at a business that she helped to grow from one office to 11 offices around the world.

She and her husband have raised their three children in the District and are longtime citizens here. That involvement, her public service background and her steadfast commitment to justice make her an ideal nominee. I commend President Obama for choosing to nominate her. I urge this Committee to approve her nomination and the Senate to grant its consent so that she may be appointed and serve all the people of the District of Columbia fairly and impartially as a United States District Court Judge.

Prepared Statement of Paul Strauss

United States Senator

for the District of Columbia before the Committee on The Judiciary

United States Senate

on the Nominations of

Robert Leon Wilkins, and Beryl Alaine Howell to be United States District Judges for the District of Columbia,

Wednesday, July 28, 2010

Dirksen Senate Office Building

Room 226
Chairman Whitehouse, and Members of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary, I am Paul Strauss, the United States Senator elected by voters of the District of Columbia, a position sometimes referred to as the Shadow Senator. I appreciate the opportunity to provide this statement for the record on behalf of my constituents. I wish to express my full support of President Barack Obama’s nominations of Ms. Beryl Alaine Howell and Mr. Robert Leon Wilkins to be United States District Court Judges for the District of Columbia. I have taken considerable time to familiarize myself with the outstanding records of these individuals, and have met with Ms. Howell personally. I have also spoken with Mr. Wilkins briefly as well as substantially reviewing both of their professional and scholarly work. As an elected official and practicing attorney, it is my opinion that these candidates would be exceptional United States District Court Judges.

Ms. Beryl Alaine Howell

Ms. Howell received her Juris Doctor degree from Columbia University School of Law in 1983, after attending Bryn Mawr College for her Bachelor of Arts. After law school she began an impressive and multi-faceted career in the legal world, in both the public and private sectors.

Ms. Howell clerked for the Honorable Judge Dickinson Richards of the District of New Jersey for two years, followed by another two years of private practice in New York. From 1987 to 1993, Ms. Howell served as an Assistant United States Attorney for the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York. After working for the Judiciary Committee, on November 21, 2004 Ms. Howell was confirmed as a member of the United States Sentencing Commission. She also was the executive managing director and general counsel of Stroz Friedberg LLC from 2003 to 2009.
Ms. Howell’s vast experience and understanding of the law, along with her specialization in first amendment protection and public corruption make her a very strong candidate to be seated as a United States District Court Judge for the District of Columbia. Furthermore, I believe that Ms. Howell’s most notable contribution to the Federal Courts will be drawn from her extensive knowledge and expertise concerning cyber crime, a topic about which she has written a myriad of scholarly articles as well as receiving significant national recognition. As our world becomes increasingly technologically advanced, Ms. Howell’s leadership on electronic crime will help to keep the District of Columbia on the cutting edge. Her exposure and expertise in both the public and private sectors of the law make Ms. Howell a veteran of the judiciary process. I am fully confident that she will excel at the position of United States District Judge for the District of Columbia.

Mr. Robert Leon Wilkins

Mr. Wilkins earned his degree in Chemical Engineering at The Hulman Institute of Technology in 1986, graduating cum laude. He then went on to attend Harvard Law School in 1989 earning a J.D. Beginning as a litigator, Mr. Wilkins immediately showed a strong work ethic and knowledge of the law and in 1996 he was made Chief of the Public Defender Service's special litigation section. In this role he not only tried over 30 cases but also dealt with appeals and judicial investigations, along with coordinating impact litigation and government relations. His work in this role led him to be named the office's “premier advocate for defendants' rights,” by the Legal Times.
On May of 2002 Mr. Wilkins joined Venable LLP's corporate defense, white collar, technology, and commercial litigation practice groups and immediately excelled in this position. He represented a wide variety of clients in a multitude of cases from bribery and patent infringement cases to Grand Jury subpoena investigations. Based on his accomplishments and proficiency in complex litigations Mr. Wilkins was also honored as one of the city's top criminal defense lawyers by the Washingtonian magazine.

Mr. Wilkins’ vast experience in complex litigations and his extensive understanding of the judiciary process make him a premier candidate for the position of U.S. District Judge. Mr. Wilkins’ accomplishments have not gone unnoticed; he has been nominated and received multiple honors and awards, one of which being an award from the National Law Journal designating him one of "40 under 40 most successful young litigators in America". I am fully confident that Mr. Wilkins will be an outstanding U.S. District Court Judge and I look forward to his prompt confirmation.

Were I seated with the full rights and privileges of a voting United States Senator, I would vote to confirm both these nominations without hesitation. However, since I am unable to do so, I ask that you extend to me a degree of Senatorial courtesy and cast your vote in support of my constituents, Robert Leon Wilkins and Beryl Alaine Howell, both residents of the District of Columbia. I look forward to following their successes as they serve our nation as outstanding members of our Federal Judiciary.

Finally, in closing, I would like to thank Mr. John Mickley of my legislative staff for his help in facilitating meetings with the nominees, researching their backgrounds, and preparing this statement.
July 27, 2010

Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:

I write to urge an expeditious confirmation process for Judge Kathleen O’Malley who is nominated to the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.

Judge O’Malley was appointed to the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Ohio by President Clinton on October 12, 1994. Prior to this, and while I was Governor, Judge O’Malley served Ohio as First Assistant Attorney General and Chief of Staff for the Ohio Attorney General from 1992-1994 and as Chief Counsel to the Attorney General from 1991-1992. Judge O’Malley also worked in private practice for Porter, Wright, Morris & Arthur, from 1985-1991 where she was partner. Judge O’Malley graduated magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa from Kenyon College in 1979 and received her J.D. degree from Case Western Reserve University School of Law, Order of the Coif in 1982, where she served on Law Review and was a member of the National Mock Trial Team.

During her time with the Ohio Attorney General, Judge O’Malley showed herself to be a lawyer’s lawyer. I believe that her judicial career also reflects her commitment to a life in the law. I trust that her intellect that can be seen in her judicial work and her work ethic that I saw firsthand at the Attorney General’s office will be well appreciated at the Federal Circuit. Since I arrived in the Senate, I have had a particularly keen interest in intellectual property issues. Consequently, I am pleased that the court charged with review of many such issues will receive the benefits of an experienced jurist like Judge O’Malley.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact me.

Sincerely,

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 2010

U.S. SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, DC.

The Committee met, pursuant to notice, at 10:02 a.m., Room SD–226, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Hon. Richard J. Durbin presiding.

Present: Senators Franken and Sessions.

OPENING STATEMENT OF HON. RICHARD J. DURBIN, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF ILLINOIS

Senator DURBIN. If I could ask everyone to please be seated. Good afternoon. This hearing of the Judiciary Committee will come to order.

Today, we have before us six outstanding judicial nominees to the Federal bench, and I commend President Obama for sending their names to the Senate. I would like to welcome each of our nominees, as well as their family members and friends who are in attendance.

Our first nominee panel today—excuse me just a second. Thank you. I am just getting my signals straight here.

First, we are going to welcome members of the House and Senate who are here to introduce those nominees who will be before the Judiciary Committee today. I see Senator Chris Dodd is in attendance. Senator Chambliss we hope will arrive very shortly. Senator Isakson from Georgia, also, welcome. Representative Eleanor Holmes Norton from the District of Columbia, fresh from her victory yesterday, welcome back. And Congressman Aaron Schock.

So at this point, because of their own schedules, I am going to allow my colleagues to speak. I will tell those in attendance that on the first nominee panel today, we will have Susan Carney, nominated to serve on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

On the second panel, we will hear from five district court nominees. Amy Totenberg, who has been nominated to serve in the Northern District of Georgia; James Boasberg and Amy Jackson, nominated to serve on the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia; and, James Shadid and Susan Myerscough, who have been nominated to serve in the Central District of Illinois.

Each of the nominees has the support of their home state Senators and in the case of the two District of Columbia nominees, they have the support of D.C. Delegate Eleanor Holmes Norton.

At these nominations hearings, it is traditional for nominees to be introduced to the Committee by members from their home states. The Ranking Member is on his way and will be here shortly, and he has given me permission to go forward with the hearing.

I would note that at 3 p.m., we have a ceremony on the steps of the Capitol in remembrance of the victims of September 11. We may be able to conclude this entire hearing by then; but if not, it is likely that we will take a short recess so that all members will have a chance to participate in that important hearing.

So before I introduce my nominees, I am going to defer to my colleagues who are here. And I believe the most senior in attendance would be the Senator from Connecticut, Senator Chris Dodd.

PRESENTATION OF SUSAN L. CARNEY, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE SECOND CIRCUIT BY HON. CHRISTOPHER DODD, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF CONNECTICUT

Senator Dodd. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. That was not always the case, I want you to know, I was senior. But I thank you, Mr. Chairman, very much. And I know the Ranking Member will be along soon, as well.

So I thank you for providing me this opportunity this afternoon to present to you and to the members of the Committee for your consideration the pending judicial nomination for the second circuit. And as you mentioned already, I have the honor of introducing you to Susan Carney, an extremely well respected member of Connecticut’s legal community, nominated by the President in May to serve on the court of appeals for the second circuit.

I would also like to take this opportunity to introduce some of her family. I am hesitant, because it is a—I do not know if the whole crowd made it or not, but I went down the potential list and it could fill this room, I think, potentially. But her husband, who is here, Lincoln Caplan; her daughter, Molly, who I met a moment ago, a student at Columbia University.
Her mother, Mrs. Carney, who is a veteran of the United States Navy, and delighted that she made the trip to be with us. Mrs. Carney, thank you and thank you for your service to our country, as well, too, and glad to have you with us today.

Birch Bayh is here, former colleague, member of this Committee, and a great friend of the Carney family, the nominee’s family, and was willing to come along and be here with us today, as well. Birch, it is great to see you as part of this confirmation process.

The Senate’s constitutionally mandated duty to provide advice and consent on nominees to the Federal bench is, in my view, one of the body’s most important functions. It is our obligation, as members of the U.S. Senate, to carefully examine judicial nominees and determine for ourselves whether they are qualified for the positions that they have been nominated for.

While I realize that my colleagues approach this process with different criteria, I firmly believe that Susan Carney is, by any measure and any criteria, imminently qualified to serve on this most important circuit court.

Since her graduation from Harvard Law School in 1977, Susan has enjoyed a diverse and illustrious legal career that has taken her from government service to private practice to the halls of some of the most prestigious education and research institutions in the world.

Having graduated magna cum laude, Susan clerked for Judge Levin Campbell on the first circuit court of appeals, following a distinguished career in the private sector, where she represented large nonprofit organizations on behalf of a variety of firms in Washington, DC, Los Angeles and Boston.

Susan Carney was hired as the associate general counsel for the Peace Corps in 1996 and after 2 years of performing important legal work for that agency, Susan joined the office of general counsel at Yale University in New Haven, Connecticut.

Since 2001, Susan has served as Yale’s deputy general counsel and done so with great distinction, I might add, Mr. Chairman. It is the second highest ranking legal position at the university. In her capacity, Susan has worked on a broad array of legal matters that come before the university, from international affiliations and transactions to research, intellectual property, technology transfer, and compliance issues.

Throughout her career, Susan Carney has developed a professional versatility and breadth of legal knowledge well suited to serve on the second circuit court of appeals. And perhaps even more important, I believe she has exhibited the kind of temperament and unflinching respect for the rule of law that are absolutely critical components, in my view, of serving on the Federal courts.

Last fall, before she was nominated by President Obama, I had the wonderful opportunity to spend time with Susan in my office in Hartford, Connecticut. Among the many topics, including, obviously, the Peace Corps—I served as a volunteer and she served as legal counsel—it came up during that conversation.

We talked about my father’s service at the Nuremberg trials in 1945 and 1946 and how the Nuremberg trials are a powerful example of our Nation’s commitment to the rule of law. And during that meeting, Susan reiterated her commitment to that ideal. I have no doubt whatsoever that, if confirmed, that commitment to the rule of law will define her service as a Federal judge on the second circuit court of appeals.

So, Chairman Durbin and Senator Sessions, Senator Franken, as well, has joined you on the Committee here, I am certain that during the course of this afternoon’s hearing, Susan’s excellent qualifications will be closely and fairly scrutinized. It is my hope and confidence that following the Committee’s consideration, the full Senate will be able to move forward expeditiously in confirming this superb nominee to serve on this most important circuit court.

I thank the Committee.

Senator Durbin. Thank you, Senator Dodd.

I received a note here, and I would ask the indulgence of the other members. Congressman Schock, I believe, has a roll call vote that ends very shortly and I would like to give him an opportunity to say a few words before he has to depart.

PRESENTATION OF JAMES E. SHADID, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE CENTRAL DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS BY HON. AARON SCHOCK, A U.S. REPRESENTATIVE FROM THE STATE OF ILLINOIS

Representative Schock. Thank you very much, Senator Durbin. I appreciate that. And to my fellow panelists, I appreciate you indulging me.

Once again, thank you, Senator Durbin and members of the Committee, for allowing me to share with you my reasons for enthusiastically supporting President Obama’s nomination of State Circuit Court Judge James Shadid as a Federal district court judge.

Jim Shadid is from my hometown of Peoria, Illinois. But that is not why I am here to support his nomination. I want to make clear that my support is not perfunctory support for someone who is simply from my district. I am here because State Circuit Court Judge James Shadid has been an outstanding circuit court judge, by every measure.

In fact, I believe he is a role model for what it takes to clear backlogged cases and efficiently running the courts; and, more importantly, he is also a role model for fairness, justice, and protecting the public.

James Shadid has the perfect temperament to serve the public as a judge. He comes to trials with no preconceived notions and is abundantly fair, has deep insights into the law, and has always ensured criminal defendants a fair trial. If and when those defendants have been found guilty, Judge Shadid’s sentencing for violent criminals has been consistent. He is a tough, no nonsense, clear-headed judge, who has handed down thoughtful, but tough sentences.

In a well known case in my hometown of Peoria, a defendant was on trial for shooting a gun into a crowd at one of Peoria’s high schools. The defendant was found guilty. Judge Shadid sentenced him to 24 years in prison.

The sentence was appealed and the appellate court found that Judge Shadid placed an undue emphasis on the fact that the shooting took place in a school, reversed the sentence, and remanded the case back to Judge Shadid for re-sentencing.

The appearance of the appellate court pressing Judge Shadid to go easier on the defendant’s sentence was plain for all to see in our community. Yet, Judge Shadid carefully considered the appellate court’s ruling, clarified the legal basis on the sentence, and once again came down with a sentence of 24 years in prison for the defendant.

Our circuit court, misdemeanor court, was notoriously backlogged with cases for a very long time. The average turnaround time was 8 months. Though he was in a position to focus on other sometimes more interesting types of cases, Judge Shadid volunteered to step up and take on the mess. He swiftly eliminated the backlog and put in place a more efficient process that has radically improved the functioning of our misdemeanor court.

Judge Shadid goes above and beyond the call of duty, even in his judgeship, by holding mock trials in partnership with local high schools. This has given students invaluable insight into the criminal justice system, and I personally know of many young people whose lives have been turned around by Judge Shadid’s admirable efforts to help at-risk youth.

All in all, I do not believe it is possible to find a better person to serve as a Federal court judge. I commend Senator Durbin for his recommendation of Judge Shadid and President Obama for nominating James Shadid to serve the public as a Federal district court judge in Illinois.

Once again, I thank the Committee for your consideration.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you, Congressman Schock, and I know you have to leave. We understand that.

Representative SCHOCK. Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. I would now like to recognize Senator Chambliss from Georgia.

PRESENTATION OF AMY TOTENBERG, NOMINEE TO BE U.S.
DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF GEOR-GIA BY HON. SAXBY CHAMBLISS, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF GEORGIA

Senator Chambliss. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman and Senator Sessions, Senator Franken, and other members of the Committee.

I am very pleased to be here today to introduce to the Committee
Amy Totenberg, who has been nominated to serve as a district court judge for the Northern District of Georgia. My colleague, Senator Isakson, joins me here, obviously.

This must be the day for Harvard graduates, as Ms. Totenberg is a graduate of Radcliffe College at Harvard, as well as Harvard Law School. She came to Atlanta in 1977, after attending Harvard Law School, began working at the Law Project in Atlanta, where she concentrated on constitutional rights litigation.

She has been a solo practitioner in Atlanta for some 20 years and in addition to specializing in constitutional law, Ms. Totenberg has become a well known arbitrator and mediator, particularly in employment and civil rights cases. She served as a court-appointed monitor and mediator for the U.S. district court here in the District of Columbia and has also served as a special master for the U.S. district court in Maryland on an institutional education reform case, an area of the law where she has an awful lot of expertise, as she served as general counsel to the City of Atlanta’s Board of Education from 1994 to 1998.

She also has a background in academia, having taught at Emory University, one of our great law schools, as an adjunct professor from 2004 through 2007. She has also been deeply involved in our community. Ms. Totenberg has sat on the State Personnel Board, chaired a special advisory education committee to the Georgia State Board of Education, served as a member of the Governor’s Educational Reform Commission, presided over the Georgia Center for Law and Public Interest, and given her time to Hands-On Atlanta, the city’s largest volunteer service program.

She has a wealth of experience both inside the courtroom, as well as outside the courtroom, and I am very pleased to be here to recommend her today.

Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you, Senator Chambliss.

Senator Isakson.

PRESENTATION OF AMY TOTENBERG, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF GEORGIA BY HON. JOHNNY ISAKSON, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF GEORGIA

Senator Isakson. Thank you very much, Senator Durbin. And I want to thank the Ranking Member and Chairman Leahy for offering us the opportunity to be here today to introduce Ms. Totenberg.

I am not an attorney and I am certainly not going to repeat the resume introduction of Senator Chambliss, but I would add that the Senator and I chair a six-member judicial review committee that reviews all the nominees presented in Georgia, and they recommended that Ms. Totenberg be presented to you for consideration for the Northern District of Georgia.

I do, however, have one bit of knowledge or expertise in an area where Ms. Totenberg has been eminently qualified, and that is in the area of public education. And I would note that today in the audience are two district court judges from the District of Columbia who have often called on Ms. Totenberg to serve them both in arbitration and mediation, as well as opinion on education law.

So I am pleased to join Senator Chambliss today to commend Ms. Totenberg to the Committee for their consideration, and I thank you for your time.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you, Senator Isakson.

Delegate Eleanor Holmes Norton.

PRESENTATION OF JAMES E. BOASBERG, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA AND AMY B. JACKSON, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA BY HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON, A U.S. REPRESENTATIVE FROM THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Representative Holmes Norton. Thank you very much, Chairman Durbin, Ranking Member Sessions.
I am pleased to introduce two exceptionally well qualified nominees for the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

As you know, we do not have Senators in the District of Columbia, but I have appreciated that President Obama has granted me the courtesy to recommend the U.S. attorney, the district court judges, and similar Federal law enforcement officials. In turn, I have sought to empower the residents of the District of Columbia by forming a 17-member commission of lawyers and laymen to investigate and vet and recommend to me candidates, and I consider only candidates who have come through my judicial nominating commission.

I am particularly proud of the two nominees before you today. Judge James Boasberg now serves as an associate judge for the District of Columbia Superior Court. Before that, he was an assistant attorney for the District of Columbia for some years and in private practice.

He clerked for Dorothy Nelson of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, has his degrees from Yale College, Yale Law School, and Oxford University.

Amy Berman Jackson is a top practitioner in one of the District's top law firms, where she specializes in complex criminal and civil trials, litigation and appeals. Ms. Jackson also served as an assistant United States attorney for the District of Columbia, winning a number of awards from the Department of Justice while she was there.

Ms. Jackson is a cum laude graduate both of Harvard College and Harvard Law School.

The District of Columbia is the home of a plethora of highly qualified lawyers. Mr. Chairman, I believe that the two nominees I introduce today would be rated among the best by their own peers.

Thank you very much.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you, Delegate Norton. I appreciate that very much.

PRESENTATION OF JAMES E. SHADID, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE CENTRAL DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS AND SUE E. MYERSCOUGH, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE CENTRAL DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS BY HON. RICHARD DURBIN, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF ILLINOIS

Senator DURBIN. I would like to say a few words about the two nominees from Illinois, Jim Shadid and Susan Myerscough, who have been nominated to fill judgeships in the U.S. District Court for the Central District of Illinois.

I am going to appeal to Senator Sessions after this hearing, assuming a favorable outcome, because we only have one active status district court judge in the Central District of Illinois. The remaining three judgeships are currently vacant. It is a large district and one judge just cannot handle it.

The Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts has determined that the Central District vacancies are a judicial emergency. So we are hoping for a timely consideration, if the nominees are approved by the Judiciary Committee.
A word about Jim Shadid. As Congressman Schock has said, he is highly regarded in the Peoria community for his service on the state bench. He is seeking the seat that was vacated when Judge Michael Mihm took senior status.

Jim Shadid is a leading figure in the Peoria legal community. He was born in Peoria and many believe he got his start in life in a favorable way because he knew how to play ball. Specifically, he was quite a baseball player for the Bradley University Braves. He was a two-time team MVP and inducted into the Bradley Athletics Hall of Fame.

After graduation, he played a season of minor league baseball, and then turned his talents to the law. He was first appointed as circuit judge in 2001; won retention elections, which require 60 percent of the vote, I might add, in 2002 and 2008; presided over 300 trials and thousands of pleas and sentencing.

Prior to his service on the state bench, he worked as an attorney in private practice, public defender, commissioner on the Illinois Court of Claims, and assistant attorney general.

In addition to his broad experience on the bench and in the law office, he has an impressive record in the Peoria community, tenure as president of the Boys and Girls Club, and has service on the boards of numerous other organizations.

Finally, I will note that Judge Shadid was the first Arab-American to serve as a state judge in Illinois. Upon his confirmation, if the Committee gives approval, he will be the only Arab-American Federal judge in our state.

There is a large Arab-American community in Peoria, including my friend, former colleague, and current Secretary of the Department of Transportation, Ray LaHood. So I know this community is very proud of Judge Shadid.

A word about Sue Myerscough. She has been nominated to fill the Springfield-based seat vacated by the retirement of Judge Jeanne Scott, who has long been a prominent figure herself on the Springfield legal landscape.

Sue Myerscough has over 23 years of judicial experience, currently serves as an elected justice of the Illinois Fourth District Appellate Court.

A native of Springfield, she earned her BA and law degree from Southern Illinois University and began her career as a law clerk for Judge Harold Baker of the Central District. Following that, she was in private practice for 6 years. She was appointed as associate judge in 1987, elected full circuit judge in 1990; and, during her 11 years as trial judge, she presided over thousands of bench and jury trials, including the most complex civil litigation and murder trials.

In 1998, Justice Myerscough was elected to her current seat on the Illinois appellate court; in 2008, won her retention election; and, during her 12 years on that court, has authored over 1,200 decisions on a wide range of issues.

She has worked actively to promote legal education for school children and, since 2001, has served on the board of visitors for the SIU Law School. Since 1994, she has served as adjunct professor at the SIU School of Medicine, an institution where I also had the privilege of a non-paid teaching job.
Justice Myerscough was first nominated to serve as Federal district court judge 15 years ago, but never reached the point of a hearing.

Today is an important step, Judge Myerscough, and thanks for your patience. You have waited a long time, and it is my pleasure to welcome you and your family here today.

If there are no further introductions from my colleagues and others, I thank those who did come to introduce the nominees, and they will be excused to return to their important duties. Thank you all.

Now, first, we will consider Circuit Court nominee Susan Carney, and she will be brought to the table individually and questions will be asked, and then we will bring the other nominees forward.

Before she is seated, it is the custom of the Committee to administer an oath before testimony. So if you would please repeat after me.

[Nominee sworn.]

Senator Durbin. Thank you. Let the record reflect that the nominee has answered in the affirmative.

So, first, I would like to give you, Ms. Carney, an opportunity to introduce family and friends who may be in attendance.

STATEMENT OF SUSAN L. CARNEY, NOMINEE TO BE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE SECOND CIRCUIT

Ms. Carney. Thank you very much. I’d also like to thank the Chairman, the Ranking Member, yourself, Senator Durbin, Senator Dodd for his generous introduction, Senator Franken, with whom I met this morning, and the rest of the Committee for their time and consideration of my nomination. I would also like to thank Senator Birch Bayh, whose presence here today honors me.

If I could introduce my family members who are here, they could stand up perhaps. My husband, Lincoln Caplan, my husband of 31 years; my daughter, Molly Caplan; my mother, Cleo Carney, a veteran and recently retired from her long-time work; my two aunts, Dr. Maria Olgas, a nurse and professor of medical surgical nursing in Richmond, Virginia; my Aunt Kassie Olgas, long-time operating room supervisor in the Veterans’ Administration, including at Hines Memorial Hospital.

My sister-in-law, Joanna Caplan; her husband, Bob Blaemire, worked for Birch Bayh. My brother, Scott Carney; my mother-in-law, Kit Caplan. And I’d also like to acknowledge my four other brothers who are watching from other venues, my 14 nieces and nephews, my sisters-in-law, and my extended family.

I’m very fortunate in having a large and wonderful family and wonderful colleagues at Yale and elsewhere, as well. So thank you very much.

Senator Durbin. Thank you.

Ms. Carney. One last thing. I did want to mention my father, who died 8 years ago. He was the first lawyer I knew and gave me my first lessons in the law, and he would have been very proud to be here today.

Senator Durbin. Thank you very much for that recognition. I might also add that we will, without objection, include statements in the record relative to nominees by Senator Joe Lieberman on be... half of Susan Carney, before us now, and a statement also being made by the Chairman of the Committee, Senator Pat Leahy, will be entered, without objection.

[The statements of Senator Lieberman and Chairman Leahy appear as a submission for the record.]

Senator DURBIN. I will ask first and then defer to my Ranking Member here, Senator Sessions.

You have got an interesting background in the clients that you have had, the work that you have done in the legal field, general counsel’s office at Yale University, associate general counsel of the Peace Corps. But sticking with the topic which I raised in relation to Judge Shadid, you provided representation for the Major League Baseball Players Association in the unfair labor practices action against the baseball owners during the 1994–1995 baseball strike.

To the relief of myself and baseball fans everywhere, the litigation ultimately resulted in the ending of the players’ strike. Tell us about your role in that litigation.

Ms. CARNEY. I had worked at the law firm of Bredhoff and Kaiser in those years with George Cohen, who is now the director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, and Virginia Seitz, in particular, on briefing issues to the National Labor Relations Board about whether a Section 10(j) injunction should issue to prevent the unilateral imposition of the salary cap that the owners were considering at the time.

That effort, the briefing effort, I worked on researching and writing the briefs with my colleagues at Bredhoff and Kaiser. That resulted in an opinion by the National Labor Relations Board in favor of the injunction.

The injunction was subsequently sought and granted by now Justice Sotomayor in New York.

Senator DURBIN. So you have friends in high places. And you also did a lot of work with intellectual property, which is something we discuss at length in the Judiciary Committee. It is a very difficult, complicated issue, but very important, as well. And you did a lot of work on intellectual property law, particularly when you were serving as general counsel at Yale.

How would that experience in this complicated area of law enhance your perspective as a Federal judge?

Ms. CARNEY. I served as acting general counsel for about 6 months and in my—throughout the 12 years I’ve been at Yale, I’ve worked on intellectual property issues, including patent law and copyright law.

With all the technological change that we have been experiencing, the law has been changing rapidly in those areas. And there are areas that are subject to consideration by this body that—the Patent Reform Act, for example—that I think the experience I have in licensing, working on licenses for the university, working on issues related to the Digital Millennium Copyright Act, for example, that experience would serve me in good stead, as those issues are presented to the second circuit.

Senator DURBIN. I would like to ask you my last question, a general question, so that it will be part of the record.

Tell us about the pro bono and civic work that you have done even as you pursued your legal career.
Ms. CARNEY. I have focused—not having been a litigator in recent years, but more supervising litigation, although I started as a litigator, I have focused my pro bono work on community service through board memberships, largely, providing guidance and counsel, as I have participated in New Haven youth soccer and so on.

I did work extensively on one pro bono matter here in the District of Columbia when I was a resident here, but by appointment of Judge Frank Burgess in the D.C. superior court.

So I have kind of scattered my pro bono efforts in those ways. I think community service is very important and I've always tried to find ways to contribute.

At the moment and last year, I've been serving as a reading tutor. So it hasn't been legal activity, but community involvement in that way.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much.

I am going to recognize my colleague, Senator Sessions. And at the beginning of the hearing, I noted that if you had an opening statement, we would be happy to enter it as part of the record at the appropriate place.

Senator SESSIONS. Well, I will do that and would just note that we are moving nominees through the Committee at a rather good rate, and I will definitely be amenable to your request for your judges. They both seem to have good backgrounds. So we will look at that.

But President Obama's nominees to the district court have waited an average of 49 days for a hearing. President Bush's nominees to the district courts have waited 89 days, on average; 28 of those nominees had not received a hearing at this point in the process, and, likewise, we are moving at a pretty fast pace.

So you and the Chairman are keeping us busy. We are keeping up. The President is taking somewhat of his time in making nominations. He should not rush. But of the 85 district court vacancies today, only 33 do we have nominees from. So we cannot confirm people when we do not have a nomination.

But we should take the time to review them carefully because it is a lifetime appointment. It is not an election. It is the confirmation process and it is the only opportunity the American people have to make sure the nominees are well qualified before they are launched on the public, for good or ill.

Judge Shadid, I see you are a good baseball player. The only thing better would be a good umpire. I think baseball is a good experience for a Federal judge. A neutral umpire would be pretty good, although I noticed some of my colleagues did not like the idea of a neutral umpire in the last confirmation hearings that we have had.

Ms. Carney, you have had about 12 years now as Yale's lawyer and I understand that you have not tried or litigated any cases before the court. Have you ever tried a case yourself as lead counsel or actually been in the trial where you participated in examination of witnesses or arguments before a jury?

Ms. CARNEY. I have been primarily an appellate lawyer, Senator Sessions. I have participated in one hearing in which I examined witnesses and I participated in several depositions, but I have not tried a case to conclusion.
As I said, my focus has been on appellate lawyering.

Senator Sessions. Have you argued before the court of appeals a case?

Ms. Carney. I have not.

Senator Sessions. Nor the Supreme Court.

Ms. Carney. No, sir.

Senator Sessions. Well, it is a lack. It is not a disqualifying lack. But to me, I think normally we would expect a judge to the United States Court of Appeals, one step below the Supreme Court, to have some experience in the courtroom or in the appellate arena.

Do you think that is a handicap to you and do you have any plans as to how you might overcome that?

Ms. Carney. Senator, I don’t see it as a handicap. I would have preferred to have that experience given where I am at the moment, but I started out as a clerk for an esteemed Federal circuit judge, Levin H. Campbell, worked on many opinions with him, for him. Of course, the result was his.

I worked on appellate briefs, including Supreme Court briefs, extensively in the first chapter of my career when I was a lawyer here in Washington. I have continued to be involved in litigation since then, more as a supervisor or a co-counsel, on activities for the Peace Corps and for Yale.

And I believe that the breadth of experience that I have as a government lawyer, in private practice, and now as an in-house counsel for a major research university gives me broad exposure to the legal issues that are likely to come before the court of appeals. And so I do feel that I’m qualified for this position.

Senator Sessions. I would just say I do believe you learn something from actual participation before a judge. If you want to be a judge, you normally like to have seen one in action. And I do think that we should—that is a factor that weighs in my evaluation of a nominee.

I will not attempt to express the things that you can learn from that actual experience, but one of the things is that a lawyer who has practiced a lot or a judge who has been on the bench for a while, I think, understands that they are not policy-setting officials.

They have to decide the discreet dispute before them and that is what the parties expect and when they get away from that, they are damaging the system and they are not as effective as they should be.

You have had very little criminal experience. Are you familiar with the sentencing guidelines and describe your understanding of the sentencing guidelines, the importance that they play in the criminal judge system and Federal court, and the degree to which you feel guidelines should be followed.

Ms. Carney. I am familiar with the sentencing guidelines. I believe that they brought an important consistency to Federal sentencing throughout the United States after years of great inconsistency.

I’m familiar with the Booker decision that held that they were—these guidelines were no longer mandatory, but were advisory, and I believe the second circuit has extensive case law with regard to the guidelines and requires its district court judges to apply and calculate the sentences and the sentencing range that would be applicable were the guidelines still mandatory and that the practice is of deferring and giving weight to the guidelines in sentencing.

Senator Sessions. Have you formed an opinion about your personal view as to the respect the guidelines should be given?

Ms. Carney. Well, if I were so fortunate as to be confirmed, Senator Sessions, I would follow the Supreme Court law and the court of appeals law in the second circuit about implementing the guidelines in the post-Booker environment.

Senator Sessions. Well, I agree with you that they are valuable, too. There is no doubt it has reduced the disparity in sentencing and you have to know, which perhaps you have not had the experience to know, but judges in the very same courthouse, often on the same floor, were giving dramatically different sentences for the very same offenses. And it is like which judge you knew depended on whether you got probation or 10 years in jail, and that is what this Committee, before I got on it, from Senator Kennedy to Senator Thurman and Senator Biden and others agreed was an untenable position.

So we moved to the guidelines, but there is an erosion of their power by recent Supreme Court decisions. And I hope that as you wrestle with those issues that come before you, you will understand that there is a danger in deferring too readily to unsupported views of a trial judge who just may not be willing to—does not want to be consistent.

Tell me about your view on the death penalty. Have you expressed any views on that and do you have an opinion as to its appropriateness?

Ms. Carney. If I were to be confirmed, Senator Sessions, I would apply the law as it—as I read the law, the law of the second circuit and of the Supreme Court, and I feel comfortable doing that.

Senator Sessions. Have you expressed an opinion on the death penalty as to whether or not you think it is an appropriate sentence and if the legislature should or should not pass it?

Ms. Carney. I have not.

Senator Sessions. And you are prepared to enforce it, regardless of your personal views, in a fair and effective way.

Ms. Carney. Yes, Senator, I am.

Senator Sessions. We have had a good bit of discussion about a judge allowing empathy or their feelings for how the law affects the daily lives of American people in their decisionmaking process.

Do you believe a judge should allow their own personal, political, moral, religious or social values to influence their decisionmaking process?

Ms. Carney. Senator, I believe the job of a judge is to objectively apply the—and neutrally apply the law to the fact as found before him or her, as presented.

Senator Sessions. I know Justice Sotomayor rejected President Obama’s empathy standard, as it came to be known, saying, quote, “We apply the law to the facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts,” closed quote.

Do you agree with that comment?

Ms. Carney. Yes, Senator.
Senator Sessions. Well, thank you for these comments. I will be submitting, I am sure, some additional questions for the record.

I will note, for all of the nominees and for the people in the audience, that you have to go through a pretty rigorous examination before you get to this chair. You have to meet with Department of Justice, you meet with the White House lawyers, you are reviewed by the ABA, the FBI does a background check, all of which is available to us and we evaluate in our analysis of the nominees.

So I would just say that we feel a responsibility, all of us do, I think, on the Committee to make sure that we fulfill that duty carefully before we cast our vote.

Thank you very much.

Ms. Carney. Thank you, Senator.

Senator Durbin. Thank you, Senator Sessions.

Senator Franken.

Senator Franken. Ms. Carney, as Senator Sessions mentioned and as you acknowledged, you have never tried a case to verdict. But as you replied, you have had a pretty substantial appellate practice.

How many Federal appeals have you worked on?

Ms. Carney. Senator Franken, I'm not exactly sure. I haven't done the count. I've worked on some appeals at Yale. I have worked on appeals when I was in practice in Washington. Maybe it's 15 cases. I couldn't say.

Some of those—that includes a Supreme Court case, which involves a petition for certiorari and so on.

Senator Franken. But this is an appeals court and you have had somewhere in the ballpark of 15 appeals.

Ms. Carney. I couldn't say for sure, but I think that would be—that doesn't include the experience I had when I was clerking for Judge Campbell and the other brief-writing that I participated in, which is a similar exercise.

Senator Franken. How many Federal appellate briefs have you written?

Ms. Carney. I, again, would think it's around 15, but that's appellate brief. Similar would be motions for summary judgment, motions to dismiss, arguing legal standard and analyzing cases in the motions practice, which more characterizes the litigator's practice this day than a trial practice, which my father engaged in.

Senator Franken. And this is an appellate court, obviously, that you—

Ms. Carney. Yes, Senator.

Senator Franken (Continuing). Have been nominated for. So that experience is very relevant, I would think.

Ms. Carney. Yes, Senator.

Senator Franken. Now, Senator Sessions was talking about the job of a circuit judge is to apply the law, and I would think that could well be described—since you are abiding by decisions that are made by the Supreme Court, that the appellate judge really is an umpire, more or less.

Ms. Carney. Well, I think that the job is—— Senator Franken (Continuing). Maybe more so than a Supreme Court justice.

Ms. CARNEY. I think that the job is to apply the law to a record that's established in the district court and because the facts are found below and the Supreme Court is directive above and one is surrounded by precedent, there are fairly narrow margins for——

Senator FRANKEN. Interpretation.

Ms. CARNEY (Continuing). Interpretation, exactly.

Senator FRANKEN. Right. So that, in a way, really is—it is narrow because it has really been defined by decisions that you adhere to. You are always going to be applying the decisions that have been made by the court, by the Supreme Court and by the appellate court, before you, right?

Ms. CARNEY. Yes, Senator.

Senator FRANKEN. So in that way, very much like an umpire, and I think that Senator Sessions can take great solace in that.

On the Supreme Court, then, you do not have to answer this, but it seems to me that you are almost defining the strike zone and it is almost an entirely different job. I would not expect you to want to even get into that.

But an important part of your work, if you are confirmed, is to interpret our work in the Congress. When you are interpreting a statute, what will you do to make sure that you are interpreting the law in line with our intent?

Ms. CARNEY. I would start with the text of the statute. I would look to other judicial interpretations of the statute, starting with the Supreme Court, of course, and within the second circuit, as well as collegial circuits and, from the text and the interpretations that had already occurred, work to understand the Congressional intent and to apply it as Congress intended.

Senator FRANKEN. Well, let me ask one last one. In the 1990's, mid 1990's, you represented a workers' union in Tennessee, after its members were exposed to depleted uranium, and I think you had an important victory there.

Can you tell us about that case?

Ms. CARNEY. That was a case in which workers had walked off the job because of a fear of imminent harm from their exposure to depleted uranium. They invoked a clause of the National Labor Relations Act, as I recall, that gave them the permission, if you will, under the statute to absent themselves in a non-strike situation.

And there was a debate between the union and the employer about whether that clause applied or whether there was really something else going on. The firm I was with, Bredhoff and Kaiser.

After a very long history in the courts and before the National Labor Relations Board, the workers' position was vindicated that this was a potential harm to them and that they were justified in invoking this section of the statute that Congress had passed.

Senator FRANKEN. Thank you, Ms. Carney, and congratulations on your nomination.

Ms. CARNEY. Thank you so much.

Senator DURBIN. Ms. Carney, thank you very much. And since there are no further questions for you at this time, we are going to excuse you. You probably will receive written questions from members who are here today and those who will look over the transcript of the record and your background before reaching their conclusions about your nomination.
But thank you very much for being here, we really appreciate that, and for your family and friends for attending with you.

Senator Bayh, it is always good to see you and I think that Ms. Carney has at least one Senator she might recommend that you speak to on her behalf.

I would thank all those who are here and ask their consideration of the fact that we are going to stand in recess. At 3 p.m., there is a ceremony involving Members of Congress and the observance of the 9/11 anniversary that we just recently noted, I should say, and that will probably go until about 3:30 p.m.

I will try to return promptly at that moment and bring in the second panel, put them under oath, and move forward as quickly as I can.

So if there are no objections—I am not sure it would make any difference if there were—I am going to ask that this Committee stand in recess.

Senator Sessions. Senator Bayh, it is great to see you. Thank you for being here.

Senator Durbin. This Committee stands in recess.

[Recess.]

Senator Durbin. The Committee will resume consideration of the nominees. And if I could ask the district court nominees to stand behind your chairs while I administer the customary oath.

[Nominees sworn.]

Senator Durbin. Let the record indicate that all five nominees have answered in the affirmative.

Senator Sessions has told me to start and he will try to return, as others will. As you can understand, things come and move about here.

I would like to ask each of you to take a moment and introduce your family and friends who are in attendance today, and perhaps we will start with Ms. Totenberg of Georgia.

7. Military Service and Draft Status: Identify any service in the U.S. Military, including dates of service, branch of service, rank or rate, serial number (if different from social security number) and type of discharge received, and whether you have registered for selective service.
I have not served in the U.S. Military. I have not registered for selective service.

8. Honors and Awards: List any scholarships, fellowships, honorary degrees, academic or professional honors, honorary society memberships, military awards, and any other special recognition for outstanding service or achievement.

   Certificate of Appreciation from the Yale Corporation and Officers for outstanding service as Acting General Counsel (December 2008)
   Peace Corps Inspector General’s Award for “exemplary efforts in promoting the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness of the Peace Corps” (July 1998)
   Peace Corps certificate of appreciation for “exemplary service and many contributions” to the Peace Corps (July 1998)
   Best Bar Report, Bar Association of the District of Columbia, for Report on Court Funding (I was the Reporter and researched and wrote the report, with input from some committee members) (1993)
   Department Award for Superior Performance, U.S. Department of Transportation (1974)
   James B. Conant Essay Award, Harvard-Radcliffe Colleges (1970)

9. Bar Associations: List all bar associations or legal or judicial-related committees, selection panels or conferences of which you are or have been a member, and give the titles and dates of any offices which you have held in such groups.

   American Bar Association
   Bar Association of the District of Columbia
   Connecticut Bar Association
   Massachusetts Bar Association
   Women’s Bar Association of the District of Columbia

10. Bar and Court Admission:

    a. List the date(s) you were admitted to the bar of any state and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership.

       Connecticut, 1999
       District of Columbia, 1980
       Massachusetts, 1977

       There has been no lapse in membership. I became an inactive member of the Massachusetts bar for approximately three years in the early 1980s, but remained a member and am currently an active member.

    b. List all courts in which you have been admitted to practice, including dates of admission and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership. Give the same information for administrative bodies that require special admission to practice.
Supreme Court of the United States, 1982
United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit, 1978
United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, 1982
United States Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit, 1994
United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit, 1980
United States District Court for the District of Columbia, 1980
District of Columbia Court of Appeals, 1980.

In 2004, I did not renew my membership in the bar of the United States Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit because I did not anticipate future appearances before the court. In 2009, I changed my membership in the bar of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia to inactive status because I did not anticipate future appearances before the court. There has been no other lapse in membership.

11. Memberships:

   a. List all professional, business, fraternal, scholarly, civic, charitable, or other organizations, other than those listed in response to Questions 9 or 10 to which you belong, or to which you have belonged, since graduation from law school. Provide dates of membership or participation, and indicate any office you held. Include clubs, working groups, advisory or editorial boards, panels, committees, conferences, or publications.

Council Member (1989 – 1993) Lady Lawyers Limited, Secretary (approximately 1981-1992) (non-profit incorporated by some of my male and female law firm colleagues and by me; used purely as a fraternal organization) Palisades Pool, Montgomery County, Maryland (mid- to late- 1990s)
Merrimack Pool, Bethesda, Maryland (public) (late 1980s, early 1990s)
Ron Freeman Chorale, Arlington, Virginia (early 1980s)
The Wilderness Society (approximately 1983 – 1984)

I have made financial contributions to a number of charitable organizations over the years, including various health research, cultural, environmental, disaster relief, neighborhood civic, and other types of organizations. I have not included in the list above any organizations to which I only have given funds and where I have not participated in programmatic activities, although the organizations’ development protocols may call me a “member.” Although there may be others I have not found in my records, these organizations include: Greater Boston Youth Symphony; Smith College Museum of Art; Metropolitan Museum of Art; Bruce Museum; Artspace; Himalayan Institute; Metropolitan Opera; Peabody Essex Museum; Smithsonian Institution; Eli Whitney Museum; St. Columba’s Nursery School; Georgetown Day School; Foote School; Hopkins School; Hamden High

Foundation for Transitional Living; Friends of the Falls Library; WAMU; WETA; CARE; National Women’s Law Center; All Our Kin.
b. The American Bar Association's Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin or through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

I have not to my knowledge held membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

This list represents the published material I have identified through searches of my files and Internet databases. I have tried my best to list all of them here, although there may be some that I have not been able to identify or locate.

"University-Industry Collaborations: Two Perspectives (the University View)," American Health Lawyers Association Life Sciences Institute, Baltimore, May 2006. Copy supplied.

Yale Institutional Publications

Working Globally: Legal Considerations (editor and co-author), Yale (2007).
Copy supplied.

Copy supplied.

b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

This list represents the reports, memoranda and policy statements I have identified through searches of my files and Internet databases. I have tried my best to list all such documents to which I contributed, although there may be some that I have not been able to identify or locate.

“A Call for Adequate Funding for the District of Columbia Courts,” Report of the D.C. Bar’s Task Force on Court Funding (January 28, 1993). I served as Reporter of the Task Force, which called for preservation of sufficient funding to operate the District of Columbia Courts. The report was named Best Bar Report of the year. Copy supplied.

Report of the Special Committee on Gender to the D.C. Circuit Task Force on Gender, Race, and Ethnic Bias and its Special Committee on Gender (contributor, 1992-1993) (Professor Vicki Jackson, Professor Susan Deller Ross, and Susan M.
List, Esq., Co-chairs). Reprinted at 84 Geo. L.J. 1657 (1996). In support of this effort, I researched and prepared a chronology of significant events in women’s Historical Society of the District of Columbia Circuit, Interviews with Helen Patton Wright, widow of the Hon. J. Skelly Wright. At the request of the D.C.

Circuit Historical Society and as part of its Oral History Project, I conducted four interviews of Mrs. Wright in 1995 and 1996, covering her life and in particular her life as the wife, then widow, of Judge J. Skelly Wright, U.S. District Judge in Louisiana and then U.S. Circuit Judge for the D.C. Circuit. These were transcribed, reviewed by me, and published by the Society in 1999. Copy supplied.

Three Mile Island, A Report to the Commission and to the Public, by Mitchell Rogovin and George T. Frampton (1980). (I provided editorial assistance and worked with one of the substantive subgroups contributing to the report.) Copy supplied.

c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

I do not recall any other testimony, official statements, or other communications that I provided or that others presented on my behalf.

d. Supply four (4) copies, transcripts or recordings of all speeches or talks delivered by you, including commencement speeches, remarks, lectures, panel discussions, conferences, political speeches, and question-and-answer sessions. Include the date and place where they were delivered, and readily available press reports about the speech or talk. If you do not have a copy of the speech or a transcript or recording of your remarks, give the name and address of the group before whom the speech was given, the date of the speech, and a summary of its subject matter. If you did not speak from a prepared text, furnish a copy of any outline or notes from which you spoke.

This list represents the presentations I have identified through searches of my files and Internet databases and discussions with others to help refresh my memory. I have tried my best to list all of them here, although there may be some that I have not been able to identify or locate.

In November 2009, I gave brief remarks to incoming Board members of the National Association of College and University Attorneys, reflecting on my experience as a Board member of the organization. I have no notes, transcript, or recording.

“IP Clauses in Action” (co-presenter), NACUA Annual Conference, Vancouver, June 16, 2004. Audio recording supplied on CD.

“Is the Grass Greener Over There?” (moderator), NACUA Annual Conference, Boston, June 2002. Audio recording supplied on CD.

I have also introduced speakers or sessions informally in a variety of settings. These include, for NACUA: “Difficult Conversations” presentation by Debbie Goldstein, Triad Consulting, two sessions (Toronto, 2009); and “Handling the Tough Research Misconduct Case, from Allegation to Adjudication” (Vancouver, 2004). Similarly, in 1987-88, as President of the Harvard Law School Association of Washington, D.C., I organized programs and introduced speakers at regular luncheons. Records available to me today show that those sessions included the following: Steven Brill, “The Transformation of American Lawyering” (Mar. 24, 1988); Donald Flexner, Arthur Rothkopf, and James Jones, “Expanding the Bounds of the Law Firm [with Non-law Affiliates]: Conflicts of Interest or a New Frontier?” (Dec. 9, 1987); L. William Seidman, Chairman FDIC, “Deregulation of Financial Institutions,” (Nov. 4, 1987); Sen. William Proxmire, (Oct. 19, 1987); Fred Wertheimer and Asst. Attorney General John Bolton, “The Independent Counsel Statute: A Necessity or a Mistake?” (Aug. 5, 1987). I have no notes, transcripts, or recordings from my introductions of these speakers.

In addition, as part of my duties at Yale, I have conducted informational sessions on legal issues for Yale employees. These have included, for example, training sessions on the range of federal legislation and regulations that apply to university operations. Similarly, while Associate General Counsel of the Peace Corps (1996 – 1998), I conducted internal trainings of Peace Corps staff on various legal issues.
Sometime during 1967-68, my high school exchange year in France, I spoke to a formal gathering in my host community in the Town of Romans, France. I also gave several local presentations to clubs and associations in my home town on my return to Massachusetts. I do not recall the exact dates or venues. I have no transcripts or recordings of these programs and have not located any notes.

e. List all interviews you have given to newspapers, magazines or other publications, or radio or television stations, providing the dates of these interviews and four (4) copies of the clips or transcripts of these interviews where they are available to you.

I have searched my files and Internet databases to refresh my memory in an effort to produce as complete a list of interviews as I could, but it is still possible there are some I was not able to locate.

TV news interview re Tylenol scare (as a consumer in Rodman’s Drug Store, Washington, DC), 1982. I do not recall the exact date or the interviewer and I have no video or transcript.

“Une charmante ambassadrice américaine: Miss Suzanne CARNEY” Aug./Sept. 1967 (I have been unable to identify the publication name). Clip supplied.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.
I have not held judicial office.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

   i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

      jury trials ___%; bench trials ___% civil proceedings ___%; criminal proceedings ___%

b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature of the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.
14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (if your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

I have not served as a judge.

a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

I have not held public office, nor have I been a candidate for public elective or appointed office. I have had no unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

I have not held office in or rendered service to any political party. In 2004, I canvassed in Pennsylvania for Senator John Kerry’s presidential campaign and on Election Day I worked at local election headquarters in Allentown to assist in resolving voter registration and ballot disputes.
16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

   a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

      i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

      ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

      I practiced part-time from my home at 4516 47th St., NW, Washington, D.C., from approximately 1988 through 1993. During that time, I did work for the Bar Association of the District of Columbia, Georgetown University, and the law firm Swidler & Berlin, among others.

      iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have not served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings.

b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

Following my clerkship, I worked as an associate and then a partner in private law practice. Initially, I focused on litigation in federal and state courts. While affiliated with Rogovin, Hauge & Lenzner (1979 – 1986), I gradually took on transactional work as well. At Tuttle & Taylor (1986 – 1988), I continued to do transactional work, focusing with my partners on serving as lead counsel to a turnaround management firm for a large set of bankrupt limited partnerships related to the savings and loan association collapses of those years.

I stepped back from full-time law practice in the law firm context for several years for family reasons. During this period, I worked on a large copyright case in federal district court and a variety of other legal projects. Thereafter, my practice turned back to appellate brief-writing, primarily, as Of Counsel at the Washington, D.C. firm Bredhoff & Kaiser.

From 1996 to 1998, as an associate general counsel of the Peace Corps, I undertook a broad range of legal support for the organization, including counseling with regard to internal adjudicatory mechanisms, working with U.S. Attorney’s Offices to defend the agency in litigation, developing tools for effective preventive lawyering, and counseling on other matters.
Since 1998, I have practiced law as in-house counsel at Yale University, one of the major research universities in the country and world. Since 2001, as Deputy General Counsel, I have been the second principal legal officer of the University, and in 2008, I served on an acting basis as the University's chief legal officer for six months. Yale is a large and complex entity—in addition to the well-known academic and research operations, it runs four internationally known museums; it operates power plants; it runs a health plan, offers outpatient clinical services, and its faculty helps staff a hospital; and it provides Internet and computer services to most members of its community of some 22,000 individuals. Its operating budget is more than $2 billion annually. Thus, my work in the counsel's office has demanded versatility and breadth, in addition to the ability to give timely and accurate advice.

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

My typical clients, both in the law firm context and in-house, have been governmental (Peace Corps) or large non-profit organizations, such as universities, labor unions, environmental organizations, and professional trade associations (such as the American Psychiatric Association).

When I came to Yale in 1998, my portfolio focused on research, intellectual property, technology transfer, and information technology. In 2001, when I became Deputy General Counsel, I began to advise on conflicts of interest in research, international affiliations, federal law regarding international transactions, relationships with major research sponsors, restrictions on research related to bond issuance, large commercial matters, and more. At the request of the Vice President and General Counsel, I also focused on developing instructional tools about legal issues for the Yale community.

As Acting General Counsel from July through December 2008, I worked on the full range of legal issues that confront the University, including real estate matters concerning state regulation of geothermal wells; on the terms of large gifts and various investment-related matters; on the operation of a facility that houses a summer music festival; and on sensitive employment and student matters.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

Over my career, I estimate that approximately 40 percent of my practice has been in litigation and 60 percent in counseling or transactional work. I have appeared in court occasionally.
i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. federal courts: 80%
   2. state courts of record: 15%
   3. other courts:
   4. administrative agencies: 5%

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. civil proceedings: 98%
   2. criminal proceedings: 2%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

   Having spent my law career as an appellate lawyer and in-house counsel, I have not tried cases to verdict, judgment, or final decision.

   i. What percentage of these trials were:
      1. jury:
      2. non-jury:

e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

   As an associate at Rogovin, Stern & Huge in 1979 and 1980, I assisted lead counsel Joel I. Klein in drafting the petition for certiorari and merits briefs in one case before the Supreme Court, Pennhurst State School and Hospital v. Halderman, 451 U.S. 1 (1981). We represented Pennhurst Parents-Staff Association, one of several petitioners in cases heard together under the Halderman umbrella.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

   a. the date of representation;

   b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

1. In re Estate of Ellen B. Stoeckel, No. 08-000207 (Northwest Corner Probate Court, Litchfield County, Connecticut) Charles R. Vail, Probate Judge.

This Probate Court matter, active from 2008 through 2009, concerned trust interpretation and administration. Under the terms of the trust at issue, Yale conducts a summer music festival and arts program on the former estate of the settlor. The terms required that a “duly organized trust company” serve as trustee. When the long-time corporate fiduciary tendered its resignation in 2008, Yale sought to reform the trust to provide a new management structure in light of changed circumstances since the trust’s establishment in the 1930s.

I worked for approximately 18 months with Yale’s outside counsel, Keith Bradoc Gallant, negotiating with counsel for the other trustees and with the Connecticut Assistant Attorney General charged with this matter. I was closely involved in drafting the brief in support of Yale’s application and also participated with other counsel at the Probate Court hearings. The Probate Court granted the application and issued a lengthy memorandum of decision.

Yale Outside Counsel: Keith Bradoc (“Brad”) Gallant (Day Pitney LLP, One Audubon Street, New Haven, CT 06511 (203) 752-5025). For the individual trustees and Bank of America: Robert H. Smith (Robinson & Cole LLP, 280 Trumbull Street, Hartford, CT 06103 (860) 275-8266). For the State of Connecticut: Karen Gano, Assistant Attorney General (55 Elm Street, Hartford, CT 06141 (860) 808-5108)

As Deputy General Counsel at Yale, around 2000-2002, I worked with Yale’s trial counsel, Patrick Noonan, preparing the defense of the University and two Yale faculty members who were sued by a doctoral student. The student claimed that faculty members had misappropriated his ideas and that the University failed to protect him from or properly investigate the alleged misconduct. Yale moved to dismiss. The court granted in part and denied in part the motion, permitting plaintiff’s claims for breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, and negligence to go forward. Johnson v. Schmitz, 119 F. Supp. 2d 90, 105 (D. Conn. 2000). After trial, the jury returned a verdict for the University and the faculty members.

My participation in this matter focused on analyzing intellectual property issues and managing the student’s earlier administrative appeal, to the National Science Foundation, of the University’s adjudication of the student’s allegations. During the administrative appeal (in which Yale prevailed), I was also responsible for engaging an expert witness who subsequently testified on Yale’s behalf at trial.
Yale Outside Counsel: Patrick Noonan (Donahue Durham & Noonan, PC, Concept Park, 741 Boston Post Road, Guilford, CT 06437, (203) 458-9168). For Mr. Johnson: Daniel S. Blinn (Consumer Law Group, LLC, 35 Cold Spring Road, Suite 512, Rocky Hill, CT 06067, (860) 571-7457).

From approximately 2002 through 2006, I worked with Vice President and General Counsel Dorothy K. Robinson and outside counsel at Wiggin & Dana to defend Yale’s intellectual property rights against claims by a former faculty member, Dr. Fenn, who had developed an invention in the field of chemical mass spectrometry. Under the University and Small Business Patent Procedures Act, 35 U.S.C. §§ 202 et seq. (commonly known as the “Bayh-Dole Act”), universities that receive federal research funds may retain title to and license inventions developed with that funding, sharing royalties with the inventor pursuant to University policy. Dr. Fenn, however, patented the invention in his own name without disclosing its significance to Yale, and then licensed the invention to a local company in which he had an ownership interest. When Yale learned about the patent, it asked Dr. Fenn to assign the patent to it in accordance with the University’s patent policy. Dr. Fenn refused. The company to which Dr. Fenn licensed the invention then asked Yale to enter into a licensing agreement that would cover the invention. Yale did so. See 283 F. Supp. 2d 615 (D. Conn. 2003). Dr. Fenn sued Yale, alleging torts including conversion and tortious interference. Yale counterclaimed, seeking an accounting and assignment to Yale of the patent in question. After a bench trial, the district court held that the patent was rightly Yale’s. The court directed that the patent be assigned to Yale and awarded Yale royalties earned on the patent and attorneys’ fees. See 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1827, at *23.

Dr. Fenn appealed to the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, arguing that a patent license form signed by an administrator at the National Institutes of Health established that NIH had determined the patent was owned by Dr. Fenn, not Yale. The Court of Appeals rejected that contention and affirmed the district court’s judgment in favor of Yale. Fenn v. Yale Univ., 184 Fed. Appx. 21 (2d Cir. 2006).

Yale Outside Counsel: William Doyle (now retired) and Jonathan Freiman (Wiggin & Dana, 265 Church Street, One Century Tower, New Haven, CT 06508, (203) 498-4584). For Dr. Fenn: Hubert Santos (Santos & Seeley, P.C., 51 Russ Street, Hartford, CT 06106, (860) 249-6548; Brenda Sharton (Goodwin Procter LLP, Exchange Place, 53 State Street, Boston MA 02109 (617) 570-1000)

The case involved a Rehabilitation Act challenge to Peace Corps’ medical screening protocols and their application to Plaintiff Mendez. (All of the events at issue pre-dated my tenure at Peace Corps.) After contingent acceptance for service as a volunteer overseas (the contingency called for her to satisfy a medical examination), Plaintiff Mendez reported to Peace Corps that she was being medicated for a depressive mood disorder. Pursuant to then-existing Peace Corps guidelines, the Medical Service required her to defer the start of her service for one year, and then to submit a re-evaluation of her condition. (This protocol had developed in light of difficulties in medically supporting volunteers being medicated for psychiatric conditions while overseas, concerns about the deterioration of such conditions during service abroad, Peace Corps’ limited medical staff, and other limitations in medical support available for foreign volunteer placements.) The agency’s decision was not individually-tailored in the first instance but was subject to administrative appeal. Ms. Mendez chose not to appeal the ruling internally at Peace Corps and instead filed suit.

The district court determined that Ms. Mendez was not required to exhaust her administrative remedies before filing suit because her cause of action arose under the Rehabilitation Act (which has no exhaustion requirement) rather than the Administrative Procedure Act (which requires plaintiffs to pursue administrative remedies first). 947 F. Supp. at 1370-1371. As Associate General Counsel of Peace Corps arriving at the agency shortly before the 1996 decision was handed down, I worked with Assistant U.S. Attorney Hemann on Peace Corps’ subsequent motion for summary judgment and defense against Plaintiff Mendez’s cross-motion. The district court granted in part and denied in part each motion, ordering the agency to evaluate Ms. Mendez’s condition and ability to serve on an individualized basis. 956 F. Supp. at 1529-30.

For Peace Corps: John Hemann, Assistant U.S. Attorney, San Francisco (Mr. Hemann is now at Morgan Lewis, One Market, Spear Street Tower, San Francisco, CA (415) 442-1355). For L. Mendez: Kent Jonas, Graham & James (Mr. Jonas is now at Thelan LLP, 101 Second Street, Suite 1800, San Francisco, CA 94105, (415) 371-1200; kjonas@thelan.com).

Plaintiff faculty members of Brevard Community College (“BCC”) alleged that they had been discharged, transferred, or denied benefits in retaliation for their union activity and vocal criticism of the BCC administration, in violation of their federal and state constitutional rights to free expression and substantive due process. They also challenged as unconstitutional BCC’s “dissent” policy, which restricted “dissent” on campus to a small “designated demonstration area” away from the campus’ main performance arts center and gave BCC’s President the authority “to delineate types of acceptable and unacceptable dissent.” 82 F.3d at 1004.

My involvement with the case was on the appeal, after the district court granted summary judgment to all defendants on all claims. As Of Counsel at Bredhoff & Kaiser from 1994 to mid-1996, I participated in briefing plaintiff faculty members’ appeal from summary judgment on their Section 1983 claims for unconstitutional retaliation against administrators and trustees of BCC. We won a partial reversal and a remand. I did not participate in the litigation on remand.

As Of Counsel at Bredhoff & Kaiser in 1994-1995, I worked with colleagues representing the Major League Baseball Players’ Association (MLBPA) in an unfair labor practices action against the Major League Baseball Player Relations Committee and its member clubs (“Owners”). During difficult negotiations for a new collective bargaining agreement and with the players on strike, the Owners unilaterally imposed a salary cap, and made other changes in the terms and conditions of the players’ employment. We sought an injunction restoring the status quo under Section 10(j) of the National Labor Relations Act. The Regional Director of the National Labor Relations Board (Mr. Silverman) adopted MLBPA’s position that a violation of the Act had occurred and injunctive relief was appropriate. He then successfully sought the injunction in the district court. Silverman v. Major League Baseball Player Relations Committee, Inc., 880 F. Supp. 246 (S.D.N.Y. 1995) (Sotomayor, J.). The issuance of the injunction was upheld on appeal to the Second Circuit. 67 F.3d 1054 (2d Cir. 1995). The district court’s injunction restored the terms and conditions of employment under the expired contract and required the Owners to return to the bargaining table. The ruling caused an end to the protracted players’ strike.

As Of Counsel at Bredhoff & Kaiser, I participated in briefing this case on behalf of plaintiff union at the Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit and then on remand before the National Labor Relations Board.

The case involved the interpretation of Section 502 of the Labor Management Relations Act, 29 U.S.C. § 143. Section 502 provides that employers may not treat good faith "quitting of work" in response to "abnormally dangerous conditions" as a "strike." In this case, employees working at a Tennessee arms production plant engaged in a work stoppage over health concerns arising from exposure to depleted uranium. (Depleted uranium dust particles had been associated with cancer and posed a threat of toxicity to the kidneys.) Under established principles of labor law, workers who strike in response to unfair labor practices are protected from replacement during the period of the strike. In this case, the employer treated employees as "economic strikers" and hired replacement workers. The employee union members challenged the employer's actions, asserting that a work stoppage under Section 502 should be deemed the equivalent of an unfair labor practices strike, such that the employer could not replace the workers. A divided National Labor Relations Board dismissed the employees' complaint.

We filed an appeal from the Board's dismissal with the D.C. Circuit. The Court of Appeals rejected the concurrence's "sole cause" theory as "patently meritless," 46 F.3d at 88. That left the Board's order supported by the opinion of just two members. Accordingly, the Court of Appeals concluded that "the Board as a whole has failed to articulate an appropriate legal standard for the resolution of this case," and remanded for reconsideration. Id. at 92.

I also participated in the briefing before the Board, on remand. In those proceedings, the Board rejected as unduly burdensome the earlier plurality's test for establishing good faith belief of abnormally dangerous conditions. It held that the employees would be entitled to Section 502 protection if they identified "ascertainable, objective evidence" supporting their belief of abnormal danger. 329 NLRB at 603. Applying that test, the Board determined that the employees' actions were protected under Section 502. (The Sixth Circuit subsequently vacated the Board's opinion in light of the 17 years that had elapsed since the time of the initial offense; in 1981. See 296 F.3d 384 (6th Cir. 2002), cert. denied, 537 U.S. 1106 (2003). I did not participate in the Sixth Circuit appeal.)

For OCAW: George Cohen, Jeremiah Collins, Susan L. Carney, Bredhoff & Kaiser, 805 15th Street NW, Washington, DC 20005, (202) 842-2600. (Mr. Cohen is now Director, Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service; 2100 K Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20427, (202) 606-8101; Mr. Collins is a partner at Bredhoff & Kaiser.) For the NLRB: John Fawley, Attorney, NLRB, Linda R. Sher, Acting Associate Gen. Counsel, and Aileen A. Armstrong, Deputy Associate General Counsel (Both Ms. Sher and Ms. Armstrong still practice at the National Labor Relations Board, 1099 14th Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20570.) For TNS, Inc.: William M. Earnest (Mr. Earnest is currently practicing at 800 International Tower, 229 Peachtree Street NE, Atlanta, GA).

As an associate at Rogovin, Stern & Huge in 1979 and 1980, I assisted lead counsel Joel I. Klein in drafting the petition for certiorari and merits briefs for Pennhurst Parents-Staff Association (PPSA)—the petitioner in one of four related appeals heard together with the Halderman suit.

Pennhurst State School & Hospital was a residential facility for developmentally-disabled individuals run by the State of Pennsylvania. A group of residents and their representatives filed suit in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania alleging that conditions at the facility violated their rights under the Constitution, the Rehabilitation Act, a state statute, and the Developmentally Disabled Assistance and Bill of Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. § 6010 et seq. Among other forms of relief, the plaintiffs sought an injunction requiring the State to close the facility and create community living arrangements.

Parents of other individuals living at Pennhurst opposed the movement to close it. These parents wanted to see Pennhurst improved rather than closed, and were concerned that community living arrangements would not provide suitable care for all developmentally-disabled individuals. These parents and certain staff at the facility formed PPSA, which became an intervenor in the action.

Before I became involved in the case, the district court had issued an injunction ordering the State to close Pennhurst, and to create and fund community living arrangements and employment opportunities for the residents. 446 F. Supp. 1295, 1326-29 (E.D. Pa. 1977). That order had been affirmed in major part by the Third Circuit. The Court of Appeals declined to order the State to close the facility or find alternative employment for its residents, but did order the State to undertake individual evaluations of each Pennhurst resident and to develop a plan favoring community placements. 612 F.2d 84, 116 (3d Cir. 1979). The Third Circuit based its ruling on the Developmentally Disabled Assistance and Bill of Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. § 6010 et seq., which it held created a substantive right to “appropriate treatment, services and habilitation” in “the setting that is least restrictive of . . . personal liberty.” In the alternative, the Court of Appeals held that Pennsylvania’s Mental Health and Mental Retardation Act created a state statutory right to habilitation.

My involvement in the case began after the Third Circuit’s ruling. The PPSA, the State, and the City of Philadelphia appealed to the Supreme Court, which granted certiorari and reversed. The Supreme Court held that the Developmentally Disabled Assistance and Bill of Rights Act did not create a substantive right against the states to habilitation in the least restrictive setting. The Court found that the Act had been passed pursuant to the spending power of Congress rather than its power to implement the guarantees of the Fourteenth Amendment. It therefore assessed whether Congress intended to impose affirmative obligations on states receiving funding under the Act to overhaul their systems of caring for the developmentally disabled so that they satisfied the “least restrictive setting" standard. 451 U.S. 1, 16-23. Finding no such expressions of intent, the Court concluded that the Third Circuit had "failed to recognize the well-settled distinction between congressional 'encouragement' of state programs and the imposition of binding obligations on the States." It therefore remanded for further proceedings, including reconsideration of the state statutory and federal constitutional questions. Id. at 31-32.

(On remand, the Third Circuit affirmed its prior holding that Pennsylvania statutory law required the State to place Pennhurst residents in the least restrictive setting. The Supreme Court reversed again, this time on Eleventh Amendment grounds. 465 U.S. 89 (1984). I did not participate in the later litigation, which was handled on behalf of PPWA by Mr. Klein and Mr. Farr, who were no longer at the Rogovin firm, and their new colleagues.)

For the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, et al.: Allen C. Warshaw, Deputy Attorney General, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania (Mr. Warshaw is now the Chief Counsel, Department of Welfare, State of Pennsylvania, 333 Market Street, 17th Floor, Harrisburg, PA 17101 (717) 783-6563.) For the Mayor of Philadelphia: Alan J. Davis, City Solicitor (Mr. Davis is now Counsel of the Disciplinary Board of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, 820 Adams Avenue, Suite 170, Trooper, PA 19403, (610) 650-8210.) For the Suburban Counties: Thomas Kittredge (Mr. Kittredge is currently practicing with Morgan Lewis & Bockius, 1701 Market Street, Philadelphia, PA 19103, (215) 963-5636). For PPWA: Joel I. Klein, H. Bartow Farr, III, Susan L. Carney, Rogovin, Stern & Huge, Washington DC. (Mr. Klein is now the Chancellor, New York City Department of Education, 52 Chambers Street, New York, NY 10007, (212) 374-0200, and Mr. Farr is now with Farr & Taranto, 1150 18th Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20036, (202) 775-0184). For Halderman, Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Citizens, et al.: David Ferleger, Esq. (Mr. Ferleger is now practicing at 413 Johnson Street, Jenkintown, PA 19046, (215) 887-0123.) For the United States: Solicitor General Drew Days. (General Days is now Professor at Yale Law School, Wall Street, New Haven, Connecticut, (203) 432-4948.)

Mr. White and his co-plaintiffs were shipyard workers who developed asbestosis and other asbestos-related diseases after installing insulation made of asbestos on ships. They brought a products liability suit seeking recovery from the manufacturers of the asbestos insulation. They brought the suit in federal court on the basis of federal jurisdiction over admiralty cases. The district court ruled that plaintiffs' injuries did not bear a sufficient relationship to traditional maritime activity to support the exercise of admiralty jurisdiction. Exercising its diversity jurisdiction instead, it applied the Virginia statute of limitations to bar one plaintiff’s claim, and to limit (and ultimately overturn) jury awards of $435,000 to each of the remaining four plaintiffs.

We appealed on behalf of the workers, arguing both that the district court should have exercised admiralty jurisdiction, and that even if diversity jurisdiction applied instead, the Virginia statute of limitations should not bar or limit plaintiffs’ claims. I worked primarily on the admiralty law argument.

The Court of Appeals reversed, holding that the district court should have exercised its admiralty jurisdiction because the plaintiffs’ injuries occurred in a maritime locality and the installation of asbestos products into ships has a direct effect on marine commerce. 662 F.2d 234, 239 (4th Cir. 1981). It remanded with directions to apply the equitable doctrine of laches to the limitations period, giving due consideration to the “insidious nature of the disease.” Id. at 240.

(Several years later, the issue of admiralty jurisdiction over this kind of case came before the Fourth Circuit again, and the court overruled its earlier decision, adopting a new four-part test under which federal courts may not exercise admiralty jurisdiction over damage claims by land-based ship repair or construction workers for employment-related, asbestos induced disease. Oman v. Johns-Manville Corp., 764 F.2d 224 (4th Cir. 1985). I had no involvement with the later case.)

For John White et al.: Joel I. Klein, H. Bartow Farr, III, Susan L. Carney, Rogovin, Stern & Huge, Washington, DC. (Mr. Klein is now Chancellor, New York City Department of Education, 52 Chambers Street, New York, NY 10007, (212) 374-0200, and Mr. Farr is now practicing at Farr & Taranto, 1150 18th Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20036, (202) 775-0184.) Robert R. Hatten (Mr. Hatten is now with Patten, Wornom, Hatten, & Diamonstein, L.C., 12330 Jefferson Avenue, Suite 300, Newport News, VA 23602, (757) 223-4546), Richard S. Glasser (Mr. Glasser is currently with Glasser & Glasser P.L.C., 580 East Main Street, Suite 600, Norfolk, VA 23510, (757) 625-6787).

For H.K. Porter Co. and Southern Textile Corp.: Archibald Wallace III (Mr. Wallace is currently at WallacePledger, 7100 Forest Avenue, Suite 302, Richmond, VA 23226, (804) 282-8300) For Pittsburgh Corning Corp.: Allan S. Reynolds (Mr. Reynolds is currently at Crenshaw, Ware & Martin, 200 Bank of America Center, One Commercial Place, Norfolk, VA 23510, (757) 623-3000.)

In about 1980-1981, as an associate at Rogovin, Stern & Huge, I helped prepare an amicus brief on behalf of the American Psychiatric Association (APA) in the first stage of this appeal. The issue presented to the Third Circuit was whether an individual who has been civilly committed in accordance with applicable New Jersey law retained a liberty interest in refusing medication and, if so, what process is due before a patient can be involuntarily treated.
The APA took the position that the procedures followed to obtain an involuntary civil commitment sufficiently protected patients' liberty interests and that requiring an adversarial hearing at each phase of a treatment program would disrupt treatment and impose financial costs on the state and therapeutic costs on the individual and the treating psychiatrist.

The Third Circuit ruled en banc that committed patients retained the right to decline antipsychotic drugs as a part of the right to be "free from . . . unjustified intrusions on personal security" under the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. 633 F.2d 836, 844 (3d Cir. 1981) (en banc). It further held that courts should police the boundary between justified and unjustified intrusions by applying a "least intrusive means" test to evaluate the proposed treatment. Id. at 847. Applying this test, the Court of Appeals then upheld as constitutional administrative procedures that New Jersey had already promulgated for making and reviewing a decision to administer drugs against a patient's will. Id. at 848-852.

For the State of New Jersey: John J. Degan, Attorney General of New Jersey, Assistant Attorney General Stephen Skillman (Mr. Skillman is now a Judge with the Appellate Court of New Jersey, R. J. Hughes Justice Complex, 25 Market Street, Trenton, NJ 08625, (609) 984-2446.) For Rennie, et al.: Sheldon Gelman, Asst. Deputy Public Advocate (Mr. Gelman is now a Professor of Law at Cleveland-Marshall College of Law, 2121 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, OH 44115, (216) 687-2000.) For amicus curiae American Psychiatric Association: Joel I. Klein, Ellen Semonoff, Susan L. Carney, Rogovin, Stern &ige, Washington, D.C. (Mr. Klein is currently the Chancellor, New York City Department of Education, 52 Chambers Street, New York, NY 10007, (212) 374-0200, and Ms. Semonoff is currently Assistant City Manager, Department of Human Service Programs, 51 Irman Street, Cambridge, MA 02139, (617) 349-6200.)

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

The most significant legal activities I have pursued have been as Deputy General Counsel and, from July through December 2008, Acting General Counsel, at Yale University. Yale's actions are often important in the immediate community, nationally, and even internationally. In addition to resolving disputes, providing transactional assistance, and counseling Yale on understanding and determining how best to meet its legal obligations (private and public) in various areas of responsibility, I have contributed to Yale's efforts to create a culture in which its members understand their duty to know applicable law, and engage with efforts to apply the law to their situations and conform their behaviors to the law. Education about legal obligations, through teaching and creating suitable vehicles for communicating about the law, has been among my most significant contributions. In close collaboration with the Vice President and General Counsel and with other colleagues, I have played a leading role developing the tools for education.

I coordinated the development of a 60-page “Guide to Reviewing Business Agreements and Contracts at Yale” and of a 50-page booklet called “Working Globally: Legal Considerations,” which lays out and explains an array of United States and foreign legal requirements applicable to international operations; the drafting of the University’s Standards of Business Conduct; the legal review and completion of its Information Technology Appropriate Use Policy; the creation of a two-hour course for Yale business managers designed to acquaint them with the basics of contracts and about the applications of the federal, state, and local laws and regulations at the University; the development, in collaboration with other colleagues and the Vice President and General Counsel, of the Office’s website, which includes a series of essays by members of the Office on substantive obligations of interest to the Yale community; and development, under the leadership of former Provost and Professor Emeritus of Economics William Brainard, of the report providing the basis for a new, robust, and detailed conflict of interest policy for faculty with interests in startup companies.

As examples of the breadth of matters that I have handled at Yale, I chaired the committee charged with reporting on integrity as part of the University’s reaccreditation self-study; I have provided counsel on several museum-related issues involving past gifts, the terms of trusts, and the complex interaction of laws governing paleontological digs in North Dakota; and I have worked with scholars to facilitate their research by helping them to understand and apply the law and to negotiate solutions to their legal issues, where possible.

I have not performed lobbying activities for any client.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I have not taught formal courses.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.
21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

   I have no plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during my service with the court. If confirmed, I hope to continue my volunteer tutoring of elementary school students during court service.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

   See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

   a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

   If confirmed, I anticipate recusing myself from any case in which Yale University is a party for a period of years after beginning service as a judge.

   b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

   If confirmed, I would carefully study and apply the recusal statutes, Canon 3 of the Code of Conduct for United States Judges, and any other relevant rules and practices. In addition, I would seek and utilize the advice of colleagues to ensure that I avoid any conflict or appearance of conflict, as required by the rules and applicable canons.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.
In addition to my work for nonprofit organizations and bar organizations, I undertook an extended pro bono representation in 1985 when I was assigned by Judge A. Franklin Burgess of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia to serve as guardian ad litem of K.G., a young mentally disabled woman living in the community who had been raped and become pregnant. The court requested advice about what would be in K.G.’s best interests. I do not recall how much time I devoted to this matter, but I believe that the overall representation went on for several weeks and that I continued to visit with K.G. until after the birth of the child. (Childbirth went smoothly and the baby was given up for adoption.) I was commended by the Court for my service on this matter.

More broadly, I have taken seriously my obligations to contribute to the community. For example, I participate in a tutoring program, New Haven Reads, in which I work with a 10-year-old girl on her reading an hour each week. I have also used my legal skills and training to serve various community organizations through board membership in those organizations.

26. Selection Process:

   a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

There is no selection commission in Connecticut to recommend individuals for appointment to the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

I initially was contacted by the White House Counsel’s Office in or about March 2009, and asked whether I would be interested in being considered as a candidate for a seat on the Court of Appeals. I was also asked to suggest other possible candidates. In April, I submitted materials regarding my experience to the White House Counsel’s Office. In the fall, I was advised that the White House and United States Senator Christopher Dodd had agreed that I would meet with him, and on October 16, I met with Senator Dodd at his offices in Hartford, Connecticut. On October 22, I met with United States Senator Joseph Lieberman’s Chief of Staff in Washington, D.C. I also met with attorneys in the White House Counsel’s Office on October 22. On November 12, I was advised by the White House Counsel’s Office that my name was being forwarded to the Department of Justice for review.

Since November 16, 2009, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. I interviewed with attorneys from the White House

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

Re: Nomination Financial Disclosure Filing

Dear Judge Baldock:

Thank you for your letter of June 8, 2010, regarding the Nomination Financial Disclosure Filing I made on May 19, 2010, in connection with my nomination to be a United States Circuit Judge for the Second Circuit. Please accept this letter as a supplement to my report, providing the information you requested.

In Part III.A: I had reportable compensation during 2008. The source was Yale University and the type was “Compensation (W-2, Box 1).” The income amount was $240,740.23.

In Part VIII: The note provided in Part VIII was excess information because the asset is already included in the entry on line 2 of Part VII. Please delete the note.

Thank you for your attention to this supplement. Please let me know if there are any additional questions or concerns.

Sincerely,

Susan L. Carney

The Honorable Patrick J. Leahy
Chairman
Committee on the Judiciary
United States Senate
Washington, DC 20510

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I write to provide the Committee with an update to the questionnaire I submitted in connection with my nomination on May 20, 2010, to be United States Circuit Judge for the Second Circuit.

As of September 1, 2010, my husband became a member of the editorial board of the New York Times. Accordingly, I wish to update my answer to Question 24(a) to add that, if confirmed and appointed, I anticipate a conflict at the time I begin service as a judge in any case in which the New York Times Company is a party. I would address this conflict by recusing myself from any such case.

I appreciate the Committee’s consideration of my nomination.

Sincerely,

Susan L. Carney

STATEMENT OF AMY TOTENBERG, NOMINATED TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF GEORGIA

Ms. TOTENBERG. First of all, thank you very much, Senator and members of the Committee, in absentia, for your review and consideration of the application. I'm just deeply grateful, deeply grateful to the President, and, of course, to my Georgia Senators who appeared today for their very kind and generous introduction. It is a real privilege to be here today.

I want to start off by, of course, introducing my family who is here, both in body and in spirit, and would like to start off by just speaking about my father, Roman Totenberg, who will be 100 on January 1 and who is not with us today, but who is actually living and working in Boston and teaching at Boston University and remains an extraordinary man.

He first came to this country in 1935 to give his first concert here. He had been a concert violinist in Europe and he gave his debut concert in Washington, DC and fell in love with this country totally, and then with the shadow of Nazi power coming over Europe in the following years, he moved to the United States and married my mother.

He embraced the freedom and democracy in our country, which has just really been sort of the hallmark of our experience of citizenship. And he has been a lifelong model of human independence, professional dedication, and personal wisdom, and I am deeply grateful for the role model he has provided, as well as his affection. And I know he will be watching the Webcast when there is somebody at home to manage the technology.

And my mother, who is no longer alive, would love to be here and I honor her in principal, of course, but I've got a great gang who are here. And first and foremost, my husband, Ralph Green, a man for all seasons and my great support, married for 30 years; and, my three daughters, Naomi Green, Sonya Green, and Clara Green. And I would ask them all to stand up.

And my husband is hiding out, but that's all right. He's got the girls for protection. I also have a great daughter, Emily Green, in California and she couldn't join us, because she has a new job there.

And I've got wonderful other supports here, as well. I've been incredibly fortunate in my life to have worked with Judge Marvin Garbis and Judge Paul Friedman from Maryland and from DC, and they are both here today, and they have given me an exceptional opportunity in life to work with both of their courts in very important cases that benefit the children of the city of Baltimore and Washington, DC and have been very difficult cases and complex ones. But it's been an extraordinary opportunity to work with them.

And flowing out of that, I have a great crowd of people from Baltimore and Washington, DC. There are representatives, both council and representatives of the parties in the Baltimore case, from the State of Maryland, Baltimore City Schools, and the Maryland Disability Law Center are all here, and I would ask them to stand up, all that entire group of people.
And then we also have people from the Washington city schools and I am very appreciative of them, as well. And I have my very close former colleague from Baltimore, Erin Leff, and my very good friend from Atlanta, Midge Sweet, who has traveled up here today, and, of course, a host of people in Georgia who I have worked with.

Thank you so very much, and thank you to all my friends and family who are here.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you.

Judge Boasberg.

10. Bar and Court Admission:

   a. List the date(s) you were admitted to the bar of any state and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership.

   Georgia, 1977. There have been no lapses in my membership.

   b. List all courts in which you have been admitted to practice, including dates of admission and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership. Give the same information for administrative bodies that require special admission to practice.

   Supreme Court of the United States, 1988
   United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, 1981
   United States Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit, 1981
   United States District Court for the Middle District of Georgia, 1978
   United States District Court for the Northern District of Georgia, 1978
   Supreme Court of the State of Georgia, 1977
   Georgia Court of Appeals, 1977
   Fulton County, Georgia Superior and State Courts, 1977

   I recently learned that my admission to the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit has lapsed. I have not practiced before the Fifth Circuit in many years, and I was unaware of the lapse until inquiring about my admission status to answer this question. I am aware of no other lapse in membership.

11. Memberships:

   a. List all professional, business, fraternal, scholarly, civic, charitable, or other organizations, other than those listed in response to Questions 9 or 10 to which you belong, or to which you have belonged, since graduation from law school. Provide dates of membership or participation, and indicate any office you held. Include clubs, working groups, advisory or editorial boards, panels, committees, conferences, or publications.

b. The American Bar Association's Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

None of the organizations of which I have been a member presently discriminates or discriminated while I was a member.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

"Use of Special Masters in Complex Litigation," JAMS Atlanta Newsletter, Spring 2002.

b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

I served on the Georgia State Bar’s General Counsel Overview Committee in the period 1998 to 2000 (approximate). The committee made recommendations to the State Bar’s Executive Committee, President, and/or General Counsel. The recommendations were reached through a collaborative committee process. I do not have access to the reports containing these recommendations.

c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

I presented the recommendations of the Ad Hoc Committee to the Board of Education for the State of Georgia regarding revisions of State Board rules and policies required to implement current requirements of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

I made an oral presentation to a committee of the Governor’s Education Reform Commission in Georgia in 1999 regarding education issues impacting students with disabilities, including: federal legal requirements for participation of students with disabilities in school administered standardized testing, disparities in dropout data, school completion data, and legal mandates for placement in the least restrictive environment. I did not provide a written submission and do not have a copy of any transcripts of the committee proceedings.

As a Member of the State Personnel Board (2002 – 2003), I made occasional comments regarding state personnel policies under review. Similarly, as a member of the Governor’s Education Reform Commission (1998 – 99), I made public comments at times during the Commission’s meetings as to education policy and reform changes under consideration. Finally, as General Counsel to the Atlanta Board of Education, I responded to questions of Board members at various times regarding general legal issues in public meetings of the Board. I do not have copies of the transcripts of these meetings or proceedings.
I testified before an ad hoc committee of Georgia legislators regarding the functioning of the Georgia Office of Fair Employment Practices sometime in the mid 1980s. I do not have any records or transcripts relating to this testimony.

I gave testimony before the United States Senate Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs, Subcommittee on Housing and Urban Affairs in 1976 on civil rights issues raised by the administration of the Community Development Block Grant Program. A copy of my report, “Broken Promises: An Analysis of Discrimination in the Implementation and Distribution of Federal Community Development Block Grants,” was provided to the Committee. I do not have a copy of the transcript of those hearings or the final report filed with the Committee.

d. Supply four (4) copies, transcripts or recordings of all speeches or talks delivered by you, including commencement speeches, remarks, lectures, panel discussions, conferences, political speeches, and question-and-answer sessions. Include the date and place where they were delivered, and readily available press reports about the speech or talk. If you do not have a copy of the speech or a transcript or recording of your remarks, give the name and address of the group before whom the speech was given, the date of the speech, and a summary of its subject matter. If you did not speak from a prepared text, furnish a copy of any outline or notes from which you spoke.

I have given presentations and participated in panels in a variety of continuing legal education programs. I also have given speeches and presentations in universities, colleges, law schools, K-12 public schools, and community groups. I have a record of participating as a presenter or panel member in the following seminars, conferences, classes, or programs:

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

Municipal Court Judge, pro hac vice, for the City of Atlanta, 1986 – 1993:
I was appointed by the Mayor of the City of Atlanta. The Municipal Court has jurisdiction to try and punish violations of the city ordinances, city and state traffic laws, and other matters as provided by general law, including a range of criminal misdemeanor offenses. The court handles a high daily volume of cases, primarily involving vehicular offenses, sentencing, fines, and the approval of plea agreements. Daily sessions involved brief hearings usually spanning from two to thirty minutes in duration. Depending on the year, I served anywhere from approximately twice a month to five times during the course of a year.

Special Master, United States District Court for Maryland, 2000 – present:
I was appointed through an Order of Reference, pursuant to Rule 53 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, by Judge Marvin J. Garbis. The Order of Reference authorizes me to monitor, conduct evidentiary investigations and hearings, and issue reports, including findings and remedial recommendations, to the federal court pursuant to Rule 53 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. I am also authorized to mediate and resolve disputes between the parties. Consistent with Rule 53 and the Order of Reference, the District Court reviews my recommended findings of fact and recommendations and adopts such, based upon that review and the nature of objections, if any, from the parties.

Monitor (previously mediator), United States District Court for the District of Columbia, 2006 – present:
I was appointed by Judge Paul L. Friedman through an Order of Reference entered pursuant to the provisions of the Consent Decree entered in the case on August 24, 2006. The Order of Reference authorizes me to conduct evidentiary investigations and issue reports regarding the status of defendants’ compliance with the Consent Decree and applicable law as well as make remedial recommendations. It also authorizes me to mediate and facilitate resolution of disputes between the parties.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

As a municipal court judge pro hac vice, I heard approximately 1,500 cases.

i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

   jury trials: 100%
   bench trials: 100%

   civil proceedings: 100%
   criminal proceedings: 100%

b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissent.

None.

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature of the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

Given the nature of municipal court offenses, my rulings on municipal court cases were routine and short.

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

I did not write opinions.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

None.

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.
g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

I did not write opinions.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

None.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

I have not sat by designation.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

Due to the specific nature of municipal court proceedings and my limited service, I was never called upon by motion or case circumstances to recuse myself.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

General Counsel, Board of Education for the City of Atlanta and Atlanta Public Schools (1994 – 1998) (appointed by the Atlanta Board of Education).

Member, Governor’s Education Reform Commission (1999 – 2000) (appointed by Governor Roy Barnes). The Commission was charged with the responsibility for making comprehensive recommendations for the revision of Georgia’s education laws and programs.

Chair, Ad Hoc Committee to the Georgia Board of Education (2000 – 2002) (appointed by the Georgia State Board of Education).

Board Member, State Personnel Board (2002 – 2003) (appointed by Governor Roy Barnes). The Board is charged under law with responsibility for issuance of regulations regarding state employment and review of administrative appeals of state employee cases.

I have had no unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office. I served a partial term on the State Personnel Board. The newly elected governor, who took office six months after my appointment by Governor Barnes, did not submit my name to the state legislature for ratification. My service ended in April 2003.

b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

Between 1988 and 2008, I did occasional volunteer work for Democratic presidential campaigns, such as driving voters to the polls. In the 2008 presidential campaign, I performed voter protection work, assisting in the effort to ensure that citizens were able to register, confirm their voting status and voting precinct, and exercise their right to cast a ballot in conformity with the law. I also served as a volunteer state-wide poll watcher in the November 2008 elections.

I recall being listed on event host committees for State Senator Nan Orrock and for former Atlanta Mayor Shirley Franklin, although I do not recall the date or dates. I may have been listed on other event host committees, but I do not recall specifics of them.
I worked on a volunteer basis as a scheduler for the congressional campaign of Robert Drinan in 1970 (May – November).

I have been a member of the Democratic Party intermittently between 1988 and 2008. I have never held a paid position with a political campaign or political entity.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

   a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

      i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

         I did not serve as a clerk to a judge.

      ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

         While I have maintained a solo practice through a substantial portion of my career, I have consistently affiliated with other attorneys in handling litigation due to the broad scope of many of the cases handled. In the last decade, I have maintained my legal practice while spending the majority of my time as a special master, monitor, and arbitrator/mediator. My office has been located at various addresses: The Healy Building 57 Forsyth St., Atlanta, GA 30303 (1982 – 1984); The Grant Building 44 Broad St., Atlanta, GA 30303 (1984 – 1987); The Hurt Building 50 Hurt Plaza, Atlanta, GA 30303 (1987 – 1994); P.O. Box 17521, Atlanta, GA 30316 (1998 – present).

      iii. The dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each; whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

A primary area of my responsibility in the past decade has been to serve as a mediator in the two major federal court cases described below. I have also handled a wide range of arbitration and mediation cases. Due to the confidential nature of many ADR cases, I have not provided a full case identification for some of the cases or specific terms of resolution.

1. Mediation to Develop Class Action Remedial Decree: In 2005 Judge Paul L. Friedman appointed Judge David Tatel (of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit) and me as co-mediators to work with the parties in Blackman v. District of Columbia, C.A. No. 97-1629 (PLF) and Jones v. District of Columbia, C.A. No. 97-2402 (PLF) in an effort to develop an appropriate systemic remedy in these consolidated class action special education cases. Over a period of a year in 2005 – 2006, Judge Tatel and I conducted more than 44 mediation sessions with the parties as well as 20 additional conferences. I was exclusively responsible for the mediation in many of these sessions, given the demands of Judge Tatel’s judicial schedule. A comprehensive consent decree tailored to address the specific violations at issue in this case was developed and ultimately approved by the District Court on August 24, 2006 subsequent to a fairness hearing. One year later, the parties agreed to my mediating (along with Clarence J. Sundram) pending disputes and crafting remedies to address serious compliance and educational service delivery issues evident from our monitoring report and reviews. Through this process, the parties were able to reach an agreement, rather than look to the Court for further hearings and external intervention.

2. Mediation of Systemic Remedy Issues under Consent Decree: As a special master in Vaughn G. v. Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, C.A. No. MJG-84-1911, I have handled mediation responsibilities from the date of my appointment in 2000, including the development of objective outcome measures for the case to ensure its manageability; delivery of compensitory educational services to students; and annual district-wide education remedial plans. Significant progress has been made in this case, and it is now at the final resolution stage.

3. Mediation of Bonnie Anderson v. CNN, et. al. United States District Court, Northern District of Georgia, Atlanta Division, C.A. No. 1:03-CV-2482-JEC. This was a high profile employment discrimination and retaliation case brought by a former CNN Vice President that addressed both the plaintiff’s individual treatment and the network’s anchor recruitment practices.
4. Arbitration of Large Group of Related Employment Discrimination Cases: Since June 2008 I have arbitrated a large number of related individual racial employment discrimination cases arising out of a class action, ultimately not certified, against a major national corporation. Significant case management and streamlining have been required to handle these cases, given their large volume and difficult evidentiary issues.

5. Mediation of Jennifer DeBray v. the City of Marietta, et. al., a case filed in the United States District Court, Northern District of Georgia, Atlanta Division, C.A. No. 1:03-CV-3889 (JOE). The lawsuit involved sexual harassment allegations against certain city officials and the claim that the City had ignored the alleged conduct over time.

6. Arbitration of Viatical Insurance Contract Dispute: The case of HF v. Estate of NZ involved a dispute involving a company engaged in the purchase and sale of “life settlements” for insured individuals who need (usually due to fatal illness) to obtain advance cash payment in exchange for selling their life insurance interests. The company sought to recover funds it had paid for the insurance policy of the deceased policy holder as well as substantial attorney fees. Issues in the case included the mental competence of the policy holder, unconscionability in contractual practices, defenses under the McCarran Fergurson Act, and several other contract defenses. I ruled in favor of the company on substantive grounds, but denied attorneys’ fees.

7. Arbitration of Constitutional Claims of Small Business Owner, Rucker v. City of Laxonia, United States District Court, Middle District of Georgia, Athens Division, C.A. No. 3:04-CV-075 (CDL): The plaintiff challenged the constitutionality of the city’s occupation tax ordinance, alleging that the city had closed his business on the basis of his speech and associational activities and on arbitrary and capricious grounds, in violation of the First and Fourteenth Amendments. My decision found for the plaintiff on his Fourteenth Amendment claim but rejected plaintiff’s First Amendment speech and association claims. As the plaintiff’s business was small and the city similarly was small in population and resources, the hearing and court arbitration process offered an efficient, fair, and constitutionally meaningful public review of the claims in dispute.

8. Arbitration of Employment Discrimination Case: This employment pro se race discrimination case against a national corporation was tried over the course of multiple days. Substantial patience and communication efforts were required to ensure that the pro se plaintiff was able to understand the proceedings sufficiently for his case to be presented fairly and adequately for decision, without alternatively improperly prejudicing the defendant.

9. Mediation of First Amendment Constitutional Claims of Students, Shingler et al. v. Seminole County School District, U.S. District Court, Middle District of Georgia, Albany Division, C.A. No. 6:01-CV-36-WLS:
In this case, a group of students asserted that the school district’s prohibition of the wearing of t-shirts and clothing reflecting the confederate flag and other similar insignia violated their rights under the First Amendment. The case involved a delicate and difficult balancing of the school district’s legitimate educational policy interests with the potential constitutional interests of the plaintiff students.

10. Mediation of Estate Dispute: This mediation arose from protracted probate litigation of the estate of a prominent Atlanta attorney. Multiple parties with conflicting interests and claims, including ERISA as well as probate and contract claims, were involved. After a seventeen-hour mediation, the case was brought to a successful resolution.

b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

After law school, from 1977 to 1982, I worked with the Law Project, primarily handling civil litigation concentrated in the areas of federal constitutional and employment law, although I also maintained a general civil practice. I continued with this litigation practice focus when I started my own law firm in 1982. In the period 1982 to 1994, I handled all forms and levels of litigation, ranging from trial and appellate litigation in the state and federal courts to representation of clients in administrative hearings and arbitrations.

In 1994, I was appointed to serve as the first in-house general counsel for the Atlanta Public School District. I built a legal department for the school system and exercised close management over a wide range of legal affairs involving the school district. I advised the Board and top administration of the school district on a daily basis. I supervised outside and in-house counsel and handled selected litigation personally.

In late spring of 1998, I returned to my private practice after receiving a fellowship award by the Open Society Institute to study labor relations and legal issues affecting teacher quality in the public schools. While the fellowship study and work with the Governor’s Education Reform Commission constituted a primary focus of my work over the course of the next year and a half, I also handled an array of education and employment related cases and matters, and I subsequently began my arbitration and mediation practice.

Since January 2000, I have devoted the majority of my time to work as a special master and monitor for the U.S. District Courts in Maryland and the District of Columbia. This work entails ongoing monitoring and review of implementation of federal court orders and legal compliance issues arising out of special education class action lawsuits against the city school systems in Baltimore and Washington, D.C. As a Special Master, I have played a critical role in working with the district court to manage the Baltimore case and in conducting hearings. I have combined this work with an active arbitration and mediation practice and additionally have handled some civil litigation during this period.

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

Between 1977 and 1994 I represented a broad range of individuals, including teachers, hospital attendants, nurses, law enforcement personnel, clerical employees, community groups, pilots, state administrators, and many others. My practice principally focused on constitutional and civil rights litigation, particularly in the employment realm. From 1994 through May 1998, I exclusively represented the Atlanta Board of Education and the staff of the school system. This representation involved many legal areas, including contract, construction, tort, employment, constitutional law, intellectual property, education law, local government, and communications law issues. Since 1998, my primary “clients” have been the Districts Courts in Baltimore and the District of Columbia as well as school districts in Georgia. As an arbitrator and mediator, I have handled employment, commercial, and civil rights disputes involving businesses, individuals, and governmental entities.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

My practice focused on civil litigation through 2004. As the cases I handled most frequently entailed lengthy periods of discovery and preparation, trials were the culmination usually of at least two years of work. While I appeared in court with some regularity, this type of litigation practice does not involve frequent trials. As general counsel of the Atlanta Board of Education, my management and litigation oversight responsibilities precluded me from regularly appearing in court. However, I personally handled a number of cases requiring oral argument in court throughout my tenure. I also collaborated with outside counsel in developing trial and appellate strategy in other major cases as well as participated in the hearings in some of these cases.
Since 2000, my practice has significantly shifted to focus on work as a special master, monitor, and arbitrator/mediator. In this capacity, I have conducted or participated in hearings on a regular basis. I also participated in state litigation that entailed appearances in court for oral argument. The percentages provided below are based on my cumulative law practice over the past thirty years and are an approximation.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. federal courts: 65%
   2. state courts of record: 25%
   3. other courts:
   4. administrative agencies: 10%

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. civil proceedings: 99%
   2. criminal proceedings: 1%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I have tried to verdict, judgment, or final decision approximately 12 cases as chief counsel, 17 cases as sole counsel, and 10 cases as associate counsel.

i. What percentage of these trials were:
   1. jury: 25%
   2. non-jury: 75%

e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I filed one petition for writ of certiorari with the Supreme Court of the United States, seeking review of a decision of the Georgia Supreme Court. The petition was not granted.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

23
a. the date of representation;

b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and

c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

This lawsuit was a ground-breaking class action employment case in the state of Georgia. The case was filed in 1977 as a class action on behalf of 2,300 African American employees and applicants against Central State Hospital, the Department of Human Resources, and the State Merit System. In his 1982 liability order, U.S. District Judge Wilbur Owens found a pervasive pattern and practice of race discrimination in the hospital and State Merit System’s job selection, training, and classification practices, affecting employees extending from the lowest ranks of attendants and laundry workers to medical personnel and other professionals. In 1983, the court approved a Consent Decree providing for $3.3 million in back pay for the plaintiff class and comprehensive injunctive relief. After protracted contempt and enforcement proceedings in 1989 and 1990, the court expanded the Decree and required significant changes in the operation of the State Merit System to ensure fair and non-discriminatory personnel selection procedures on a statewide basis. I continued work on the case, including active participation in the State’s revamping of its personnel selection procedures, until my 1994 appointment as general counsel to the Atlanta Board of Education. I represented the plaintiff class as joint lead counsel with Bensonetta Tipton Lane for most of the duration of the case.

The dates of representation were 1977 through 1994, and the case was litigated in the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Georgia before the Honorable Wilbur D. Owens. My co-counsel included Fletcher Farrington (now deceased) and the Honorable Bensonetta Tipton Lane, prior to her appointment to the City of Atlanta Municipal Court. Her current contact information is: Superior Court of Fulton County, 185 Central Avenue SW, Suite T-1955, Atlanta, GA 30303-3643 (404-302-8535).

Opposing counsel were George P. Shingler and Wayne P. Yancey (co-lead counsel) as well as Susan Rutherford, all of whom worked for the Georgia Office of the Attorney General at that time. Current contact information is as follows: George P. Shingler, Six Concourse Parkway, Suite 2200, Atlanta, GA 30328 (770-512-0300); Wayne P. Yancey, 3697 Kelin Court, Lilburn, GA 30047 (770-979-6066); Susan Rutherford, State Law Department, 40 Capitol Square, S.W., Atlanta, GA 30334 (404-463-8850).

The plaintiff, a Coweta County firefighter recently returned from the Gulf War, presented a video at a public meeting of the Coweta County Commission. The video raised critical concerns regarding deficient fire equipment and safety conditions within the county and received significant attention in the local media. After a series of retaliatory measures were taken against the plaintiff following the video presentation, he filed suit, asserting claims under the First Amendment and the Veterans Re-Employment Act. A jury verdict and final order was entered in his favor. Major reforms subsequently were made in the fire department. I served as the plaintiff’s lead trial counsel.

The date of representation was 1993. The case was litigated in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia before the Honorable G. Ernest Tidwell. Co-counsel was Michael E. Kramer, 175 Trinity Avenue, SW, Atlanta, GA 30303 (404-688-6700) and opposing counsel were Walter O. Lambeth, Jr. (lead counsel) and William D. Deveney, both of whom then worked at Elarbee, Thompson, Sapp & Wilson, LLP, 229 Peachtree Street NE, Suite 800, Atlanta, GA 30303 (404-659-6700). Current contact information for Walter Lambeth, Jr. is 9 Prescott Walk, NE, Atlanta, GA 30307 (404-371-1669).

This action involved a successful constitutional challenge to a newly enacted Georgia statute requiring the drug testing of job applicants for all positions in the state government and public schools. The District Court’s Order enjoined the statute in its entirety because it was not specifically limited to a requirement of drug testing for safety sensitive positions and was unconstitutionally overbroad. The legislature declined to re-enact the statute in a more narrow form thereafter. I served as lead counsel in the case.

The date of representation was 1990, and the case was litigated in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia before the Honorable Robert Hall.

Co-counsel were Michael E. Kramer, 175 Trinity Avenue, SW, Atlanta, GA 30303 (404-688-6700) and Elizabeth J. Appley, 235 Peachtree Street NE, Suite 2212, Atlanta, GA 30303 (404-523-1800), and principal opposing counsel (who was then serving in the Georgia Office of the Attorney General) was Wayne P. Yancey (lead counsel), 3697 Kelin Court, Lilburn, GA 30047 (770-979-6066).

This sex discrimination and free speech retaliation action was successfully brought on behalf of the top female administrative officer in the Georgia Department of Public Safety. Judge William O’Kelley described the case as one of the most flagrant cases of retaliation he had ever heard. Evidence presented during the trial provided an early omen of serious mismanagement problems in the Department of Public Safety that culminated in a major investigation pursued by the Georgia Bureau of Investigation and the State Attorney General’s Office. I served as lead counsel for the plaintiff.

The dates of representation were 1983 through 1985. The case was litigated in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia before Judge William O’Kelley. My co-counsel was Bensonetta Lane (prior to her judicial appointment), Superior Court of Fulton County, 185 Central Avenue SW, Suite T-1955, Atlanta, GA 30303-3643 (404-302-8535). Opposing counsel, both of whom worked for the Georgia Office of the Attorney General at the time and served as co-lead counsel, were George P. Shingler, Six Concourse Parkway, Suite 2200, Atlanta, GA 30328 (770-512-0300), and Wayne P. Yancey, 3697 Kelson Court, Lilburn, GA 30047 (770-979-6066).

5. Consortium for Adequate School Funding in Georgia v. State of Georgia, et al., C.A. No. 2004-cv-1004 (Fulton County Superior Court), (Complaint filed September 14, 2004; Summary Judgment Motion denied August 11, 2008)

This lawsuit challenged the constitutional adequacy of state funding of public education in Georgia on behalf of 51 rural school districts and parents and children in these districts. The plaintiffs claimed that students were unable to obtain an adequate education as guaranteed by the Georgia Constitution due to insufficient state funding. I assumed a key role in the litigation team handling the case for the plaintiff school districts for three years, through critical stages of the litigation, before we transferred leadership due to financial constraints to a larger law firm in 2007. The new team of plaintiffs’ counsel voluntarily dismissed the case in the latter part of September 2008 for other reasons. While the case was not successfully resolved, the significant policy and legal issues raised in the case were publicly raised throughout the State of Georgia.

The dates of representation were 2003 to September 10, 2008. Judge Roland Barnes served as the original judge in this case for the Fulton County Superior Court of Georgia. After his death, Judge Elizabeth Long, who held senior status, was assigned the case. Judge Craig Schwall was assigned the case in September 2008, subsequent to the reduction in funding for senior status judges. Co-counsel were Thomas A. Cox, 285 Peachtree Center Avenue, 2600 Marquis Two Tower, Atlanta, GA 30303 (404-373-3131), David Long, 333 Lowell Avenue, Mill Valley, CA 94941 (415-383-1942), Elizabeth J. Appley, 235 Peachtree Street NE, Suite 2212, Atlanta, GA 30303 (404-523-3800) (beginning on December 20, 2006), and Robert B. Remar, Brett A. Rogers, Daniel A. Cohen, and Christopher Golden, all with Rogers & Hardin, LLP, 229 Peachtree Street NE, 2700 International Tower, Atlanta, GA 30303 (404-522-4700) (the firm began representing the plaintiffs commencing July 11, 2007). Opposing counsel were Dennis Dunn, Stefan Ritter (lead counsel for the State) and Alfred Evans (now deceased), all of the State Law Department, 40 Capitol Square, SW, Atlanta, GA 30334-1300 (404-656-3300) and Alfred A. Lindseth, Rocco E. Testani (lead private counsel for the State) of Sutherland Asbill & Brennan 999 Peachtree Street NE, Suite 2300, Atlanta, GA 30309-3996 (404-853-8000).

In this declaratory judgment action, the plaintiff taxpayer contended that the Atlanta School System’s setting of the tax millage rate in excess of 20 mills violated Article VIII of the 1983 Georgia Constitution. The Georgia Supreme Court ruled that the independent school system was authorized to set a tax millage rate above 20 mills under the grandfather provision contained in Article VIII. This case constituted a major challenge to the funding of public schools which potentially would have seriously undermined public education in the State of Georgia, the City of Atlanta, and other independent school districts. I served as co-counsel in the case, representing the Atlanta Public Schools.

The dates of representation were 1996 through 1997. The case was tried in the Superior Court of Fulton County, Georgia before the Honorable Isaac Jemette. The Georgia Supreme Court affirmed the lower court’s order. Co-Counsel were Emmet J. Bondurant and Paul H. Schwartz, at Bondurant, Mixson & Elmore, 1200 West Peachtree Street, Suite 3900, Atlanta, GA 30309 (404-881-4100). The City of Atlanta was also named as a defendant, and its counsel’s appearances at hearings were handled by Joe M. Harris (lead counsel) and Joseph D. Young of the City of Atlanta Law Department but currently located at 205 Corporate Center Drive Suite B, Stockbridge, GA 30281 (678-610-8155) and One Atlantic Center, Suite 2800, 1201 West Peachtree Street, Atlanta, GA 30309 (404-736-7828); Holland & Knight, 1201 W. Peachtree Street, Atlanta, GA 30309; (404-817-8500), and Susan Forsling (current address T2955 Justice Center Tower, 185 Central Ave. SW. Atlanta, GA 30303). Opposing counsel was Robert J. Proctor, of Proctor Hutchins, 8010 Roswell Road, Suite 250, Atlanta, GA 30350 (770-394-3500).

A jury verdict was rendered for the plaintiff teacher on all promotion and retaliation claims raised in this free speech and age discrimination lawsuit against the Polk County School District. The verdict triggered rapid changes in the School Board and its management of the Polk County School System. I served as lead counsel for the plaintiff.

The dates of representation were 1990 through 1992. The case was litigated in the U.S. District Court of the Northern District of Georgia before Hon. Harold L. Murphy. Co-counsel was Matthew C. Billups, 567 Ladonna Drive, Decatur, GA 30032 (404-298-8995). Opposing counsel was Sam S. Harben, Jr., Harben & Hartley Jewell Parkway, Suite 750, Gainesville, GA 30501 (770-534-7341).

This case established new precedent regarding the interpretation of the State of Georgia’s Employment Retirement Act, holding that the State could not circumvent specific statutory requirements in the Employment Retirement Act. I was the plaintiff’s sole counsel in the case.

The dates of representation were 1990 through 1992. The case was tried in the Superior Court of Fulton County, Georgia before Judge William W. Daniel. My opposing counsel were Charles Richards and Susan Rutherford (co-lead counsel), both then with the State Law Department, 40 Capitol Square, SW, Atlanta, GA 30334 (404-656-3300). Ms. Rutherford continues to work at the State Law Department. Mr. Richard’s current contact information is Building One, Suite 200, 2100 East Exchange Place, Tucker, GA 30084 (770-414-3655).

This case against the Atlanta Public Schools resolved in the school district’s favor significant and complex legal issues involving general damages remedies in cases brought under 42 U.S.C. §1983 where a public employee has previously obtained complete back pay relief and reinstatement through state administrative and judicial procedures. I took over representation of the case from private counsel upon becoming the district’s general counsel and argued the case before the Georgia Supreme Court, which reversed the decision of the Court of Appeals.

The dates of representation were 1994 to 1996. The trial court judge was Hon. Elizabeth J. Long. I appeared solely before the Supreme Court. Co-counsel was Bruce H. Berman, 171 17th Street NW, Suite 1100, Atlanta, GA 30363 (404-815-3000), and opposing counsel was R. Mason Barge, 379 Redland Road, GA 30309 (404-351-2977).

This lawsuit served as a direct catalyst to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission’s issuance of religious discrimination policy guidelines and regulations specifically dealing with coercive “New Age” training programs and “New Age” religious activity. The case challenged the employer’s requirement that employees actively participate in “New Age” training programs as a condition of employment. The plaintiffs included former management employees with a wide range of religious and cultural backgrounds: Catholic, Baptist, Episcopalian, Jewish, Hindu and Muslim. The case was successfully settled. I served as lead counsel for the plaintiffs.

The dates of representation were 1988 through 1999. The case was litigated in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia before Hon. Horace T. Ward. Co-counsel was James Zito, 150 E. Ponce de Leon Avenue, Suite 200, Decatur, GA 30030.
(404-574-2441). Opposing counsel was Edward D. Buckley, Buckley & Klein, LLP, 1180 W. Peachtree Street, Suite 1100, Atlanta, GA 30309 (404-781-1100).

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s).

(Notes: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

My most significant legal activities in the last decade have been as a special master and monitor for the federal courts as well as my work as an arbitrator and mediator. As a special master and mediator, I have engaged in detailed investigation and fact finding, report drafting, mediation, and the development of significant remedial solutions for the court and parties based on the credibility of my reviews and judgment. As an arbitrator and mediator, I have resolved challenging cases, some of which have been involved in litigation for many years.

Since 1994, I have represented school districts throughout Georgia, both as general counsel for the Atlanta Public Schools and as private litigation counsel for other districts. As the Atlanta school district’s first in-house general counsel during a major period of reform, I devoted significant time to addressing the systemic vacuum of legal procedures relating to critical areas of potential liability as well as major backlogs of litigation and pending claims. I provided legal counsel to the board and district leadership staff. I developed organizational procedures for the school district to handle review of contracts, new initiatives, the investigation of discrimination and harassment charges brought by employees and students, and the handling and review of student disciplinary measures. I also lead and participated in training of staff on employment and student related legal issues. Finally, as general counsel, I played a vital role in representing the school system in a wide range of cases. As private counsel for rural school districts throughout Georgia, I litigated school funding issues that carry enormous educational and fiscal consequences in low wealth districts.

My private law practice has involved both litigation and legal counseling. In the period before 1994, I worked closely with individuals as well as community and employee groups, providing legal advice on employment and labor law issues as well as zoning and development disputes. I represented a broad range of individuals and groups in civil litigation and was particularly successful in resolving cases at the trial court level.

I have also devoted my energies to service with the variety of State Boards and Commissions as well as non-profit organizations. My legal experience has played an invaluable role in this service. Additionally, I mentored a number of students through my role as an adjunct faculty member at Emory University Law School.

I have never performed any lobbying activities.
19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I taught as an adjunct professor of law at Emory University Law School during the period 2004 – 2007. The courses taught were:

- Education Law and Policy Seminar, 2004 and 2005
- Education Law and Policy Class (Non-seminar), 2006
  These classes covered the same overall subject matter, including the wide scope of federal and state education related legislation and civil rights and constitutional case law that govern the provision of education in the United States.
- Complex Education Litigation Clinic, 2007
  This class provided students with supervised clinical experience and training in handling complex public interest litigation involving public education, including state constitutional and taxation issues. It also included training on discovery management.

In addition to my formal teaching, I have had the following academic affiliations:

- Visiting Scholar, Georgia State University, College of Education, Department of Policy Studies (1998 – 1999)
- Scholar, Annenberg Institute, Providence, Rhode Island (1998 – 1999)

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I have no plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, or financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

I have no family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, or financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when I assume the position of United States District Judge. I do not foresee any recurrent basis for disqualification, except possibly in connection with matters in which former co-counsel serve as counsel for a party or where I have previously represented a party. If confirmed, I will carefully review and address any real or potential conflicts in accordance with the Code of Conduct for United States Judges and recuse myself and/or disclose relationships as appropriate.

b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

If confirmed, I will carefully review and address any real or potential conflicts in accordance with the Code of Conduct for United States Judges and recuse myself where necessary and/or disclose relationships as appropriate to the parties. I will endeavor at the outset of each case to identify any potential conflict or appearance of conflict. I will also seek the advice of colleagues and the Judicial Conference as needed in handling any such conflict or appearance of conflict.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

I have provided pro bono services for disadvantaged clients throughout my legal career as well as assisted other lawyers who sought the benefit of my guidance and experience in representing such clients. My efforts have taken various forms over the course of my legal practice. Over the last two decades, I devoted substantial time to ensuring that all children in our society are guaranteed the fundamental protections of law and have access to the strong educational foundation essential to their participation in a democratic society. This commitment led me to serve on the Governor’s Education Reform Commission in Georgia, Hands on Atlanta (the city’s largest volunteer organization), and the National Faculty. My work with these organizations entailed more than 800 hours of pro bono service.

Since becoming a lawyer in 1977, I have provided pro bono legal consultations on a regular basis to impoverished or non-represented individuals seeking legal assistance. Until I became general counsel of the city school district in 1994, I provided approximately 200 hours annually of pro bono legal consulting assistance on consumer, landlord/tenant, employment, and education matters. Although my travel schedule in the last decade has restricted my availability, I continue to provide approximately 70 hours of pro bono legal consultation assistance annually. As an extension of this work, I have participated in a variety of citizen and community group forums so as to broaden public awareness regarding basic legal issues.

I have litigated a number of pro bono cases throughout my career. The most demanding of these involved my representation of community groups in a zoning case that resulted in significant additional industrial development in an inner city low/moderate income residential neighborhood in Atlanta. While a favorable Superior Court decision on behalf of the clients was ultimately reversed by the Georgia Supreme Court, we were able, as a result of the litigation and community advocacy, to negotiate a plan with the state, the city, and defendants to alleviate the most severe effects of the development. This case involved at least 1,500 hours of work.

26. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

The Georgia Democratic Congressional Delegation appointed a selection committee chaired by former Congressman George W. “Buddy” Darden. The committee subsequently screened a large initial list of applicants and requested that a subset of applicants submit full written applications. I submitted a resume and letter of interest in February 2009 and a formal application in March 2009. I was interviewed by the committee on April 13, 2009. I was among the applicants whose names were thereafter submitted to the White House as a finalist for one of the open judicial positions in the Northern District of Georgia.
On October 14, 2009, I received a call from the Office of Legal Policy for the United States Department of Justice. Since that date, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. I was interviewed by Department of Justice officials and a member of the White House Counsel's office on December 18, 2009. The President submitted my nomination to the Senate on March 17, 2010.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

AFFIDAVIT

I, Amy Mil Totenberg, do swear that the information provided in this statement is, to the best of my knowledge, true and accurate.

March 15, 2010
Amy Mil Totenberg

Notary Public
Atlanta, Georgia
Ms. TOTENBERG. And I did forget my sister, Jill Totenberg, and that would be like I'm going to be really in trouble. But she's right there. I can hear her whispering.

Senator DURBIN. Judge Boasberg.

STATEMENT OF JUDGE JAMES E. BOASBERG, NOMINATED TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Judge Boasberg. Thank you very much. I am also very honored to be here and would like to introduce my family. I'll start with my father, Tersh Boasberg, who is here. My mother, Sally Boasberg, would very much like to be here. She's, however, in the hospital recovering from cancer surgery, but the good news is she is watching on the Webcast, which is being engineered by my sister, Margaret, who is with her in the hospital. So they're watching now.

My other sister, Melissa Boasberg, is here, and she is also representing my brother, Tom Boasberg, who now has the job that now Senator Michael Bennett from Colorado formerly had as the superintendent of the public schools in Denver.

I'd also like to mention my wife, Liddy Manson, who is here, and also my children; my son, Daniel, and my twin daughters, Katherine and Anne. And as impressed as they are by this August proceeding, I think they're even more excited that they got out of school early.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much.

Ms. Jackson.

   Secretary (1995 – 2000)
   25th Reunion Attendance Committee (2010)

   b. The American Bar Association’s Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

   St. Albans School is a school for boys. None of the organizations discriminates.
12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

None.

c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

June 26, 2002, Hearing before the Committee on Governmental Affairs, United States Senate, “Nomination of James ‘Jeb’ E. Boozberg.”

A transcript of the hearing on my confirmation to Superior Court of the District of Columbia is available at:

http://frwebgate.access.gpo.gov/cgi-bin/podc.cgi?dbname=senate_hearings&doid=f-80608.wais
d. Supply four (4) copies, transcripts or recordings of all speeches or talks delivered by you, including commencement speeches, remarks, lectures, panel discussions, conferences, political speeches, and question-and-answer sessions. Include the date and place where they were delivered, and readily available press reports about the speech or talk. If you do not have a copy of the speech or a transcript or recording of your remarks, give the name and address of the group before whom the speech was given, the date of the speech, and a summary of its subject matter. If you did not speak from a prepared text, furnish a copy of any outline or notes from which you spoke.

During my time at the U.S. Attorney’s Office and on the Superior Court, I have spoken to a variety of different groups on legal topics. I have searched my files and public databases in an effort to identify every occasion, but it is possible I have omitted some. I have attached all of the notes, outlines, or speech texts that I have been able to find. They are indicated in bold.

April 28, 2010 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – talk to St. Albans School 7th Grade, about how the court works. I spoke without notes.

April 1, 2010 – Georgetown University Law Center, Washington, D.C. – talk to a first-year Criminal Procedure class on Fourth Amendment issues. (The same or similar notes were used for all of my talks to these classes over the years.)

December 4, 2009 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – talk to other judges in the Criminal Division on self-defense issues.

November 5, 2009 – Georgetown University Law Center, Washington, D.C. – talk to a first-year Criminal Procedure class on Fourth Amendment issues.

February 25, 2009 – Georgetown University Law Center, Washington, D.C. – talk to a first-year Criminal Procedure class on Fourth Amendment issues.

December 17, 2008 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – lecture to members of the Criminal Justice Act Bar on the mechanics of jury selection. The session was not recorded, and any handwritten notes from which I spoke have been discarded.

July 31, 2008 – D.C. Circuit Historical Society, Washington, D.C. – In a program on technology in the courtroom, I gave a mock closing argument at the assassination trial of Charles Guiteau, the murderer of President James Garfield.

April 4, 2008 – Georgetown University Law Center, Washington, D.C. – talk to a first-year Criminal Procedure class on Fourth Amendment issues.

March 20, 2008 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – talk to Sidwell Friends School 7th and 8th Graders about being a judge and the criminal law. I spoke without notes.

March 9, 2008 – Kehila Congregation, Chevy Chase, MD – speech on the topic of “Dickens and the Jews.”

December 12, 2007 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – lecture to members of the Criminal Justice Act Bar on trial tips.

December 7, 2007 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – talk to judges entering the Felony FI assignment about criminal procedure issues.

March 17, 2007 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – talk to middle school students attending the 2007 Youth Law Fair about how the court works. I spoke without notes.

February 22, 2007 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – talk to the Law Students in Court class on judging and tips for being a good courtroom advocate. Any notes from which I spoke have been discarded.

February 15, 2007 – Georgetown University Law Center, Washington, D.C. – talk to a first-year Criminal Procedure class on Fourth Amendment issues.

January 26, 2007 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – participation on a panel with former jurors, who recounted how the Court could have improved their experience. Any notes from which I spoke have been discarded.

December 1, 2006 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – talk to judges in the Criminal Division on issues relating to joinder and severance.

November 2, 2006 – Catholic University Law School, Washington, D.C. – participation on a panel, “Becoming a Lawyer.” I am not aware if the session was recorded; I had no prepared notes or outline.

April 13, 2006 – Georgetown University Law Center, Washington, D.C. – talk to the Criminal Justice Clinic class on judging and tips for being an effective advocate.

April 12, 2006 – George Washington University Law School, Washington, D.C. – talk to seminar class on homicide cases.

March 23, 2006 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – participation on a panel of judges who spoke to the Charlotte E. Ray American Inn of Court on “Techniques of Litigation – A View from the Bench.” Any notes from which I spoke have been discarded.

March 2, 2006 – First District of the Metropolitan Police Department, Washington, D.C. – talk to new officers about testifying in court. Any notes from which I spoke have been discarded.

November 3, 2005 – Georgetown University Law Center, Washington, D.C. – participation on a panel in a program entitled “Litigating and Resolving Employment Cases: Views from the Bench.” Any notes from which I spoke have been discarded.

October 26, 2005 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia - talk to 9th Grade students from Paul Public Charter School about the court system. I spoke without notes.

February 2005 – Georgetown University Law Center, Washington, D.C. – participation on a panel in an ABA-sponsored program on Evidence Issues and Jury Instructions in Employment Cases. I am not aware if the session was recorded, I had no prepared notes or outline.

December 2004 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – talk to judges in the Criminal Division on recent Fourth and Fifth Amendment decisions.

March 31, 2004 – Yale Law School Association, Washington, D.C. – speech at a regular meeting of the Association on being a judge in the Superior Court. The session was not recorded, and any handwritten notes from which I spoke have been discarded.

January 14, 2004 – Superior Court of the District of Columbia – talk to students from Georgetown Day School on criminal law issues. I spoke without notes.

November 11, 2003 – Yale Law School, New Haven, CT – participation on a career-development panel, speaking about life as an Assistant United States Attorney Any notes from which I spoke have been discarded.

May 6, 2003 – District of Columbia Bar – participation on a panel at a CLE class on closing arguments. I am not aware if the session was recorded; I had no prepared notes or outline.

Since 2005, I have supervised the annual two-day September training for all new law clerks at the Superior Court. During that training, I have been on a panel of judges that discusses the judge-clerk relationship, and I have lectured on drafting judicial opinions. Any materials I have kept from those sessions is attached.

When I was an Assistant United States Attorney, I occasionally participated in office training of new or more junior AUSAs on trial skills – e.g., opening statements, closing arguments, direct and cross-examination. I have retained no notes from such sessions.

c. List all interviews you have given to newspapers, magazines or other publications, or radio or television stations, providing the dates of these interviews and four (4) copies of the clips or transcripts of these interviews where they are available to you.

As an Assistant United States Attorney, I gave a few brief interviews after homicide trials I conducted. I have listed below and attached all of these interviews that I could identify through a search of my records and internet databases, but it is possible that I have not been able to find them all.

I also had brief interviews with newspaper reporters after basketball games I played in college and high school. I did not keep those clippings.

13. Judicial Officer: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

I was appointed by President George W. Bush in September 2002 to be Associate Judge of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, following confirmation by the United States Senate.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

Approximately 500.

i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

The only published opinions are:

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

1. United States v. Eric Gardner, 2004-FEL-7761. This was a homicide case in which the defendant was found guilty of killing a taxi driver during a robbery.

2. United States v. Gerard Parker, 2004-FEL-2605. This was a homicide case in which the defendant was found guilty of beating a man to death after a fight outside a bar.

3. United States v. Brian Copeland, 2008-CFI-3817. This was a first-degree sexual abuse case in which a man was convicted for raping his estranged wife.

4. United States v. Neal King, 2007-CF3-27842. This was a case in which the defendant was convicted of assault with intent to kill for shooting a man in the middle of the day in a public courtyard.

5. United States v. James Britton, 2000-FEL-2555. This was a homicide case in which the defendant was found guilty of shooting a man to death in an alley.

6. United States v. Odell Powell, 2006-FEL-23645. Although this case was eventually tried, its importance was in the defense’s challenge to the Superior Court’s jury selection system on the ground of improper racial composition. After months of discovery, I upheld the current operation of the system in an opinion that is attached.

7. WDG v. District of Columbia, 00-5379. This was a property dispute between the District and a prominent developer regarding rights to certain valuable real estate. A lengthy trial ended with an award of over $70 million to the developer.

8. Purdue v. Center City, 02-5459. I granted summary judgment to the defense on subject matter jurisdiction grounds in a case pitting claims of discrimination against free exercise of religion.

Plaintiff’s counsel: Scott Oswald, 888 17th St., NW; Washington, DC 20006, 202-331-3911; Defense counsel: Emmitt Flood and Lisa Duggan, 725 12th St., NW; Washington, DC 20005; 202-434-5000.

Plaintiff’s counsel: Michael Hannon, 1901 18th St., NW; Washington, DC 20009, 202-232-1907; Defense counsel, Vincent Mark Policy, 1620 L St., NW; Washington, DC 20036, 202-452-1400.

10. Wilson v. WMATA, 02-4638. In this negligence action, a jury awarded the plaintiff $70,000 for injuries suffered while falling off a Metrobus. I subsequently granted the defendant’s motion for judgment as a matter of law, finding no causation, and vacating the verdict.

Plaintiff’s counsel: Tony Shaw, deceased; Defendant’s counsel: Frederic Schuster, 600 5th St., NW; Washington, DC 20001, 202-962-1093.

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

2. Purdue v. Center City Consortium Schools, Inc., 2003 D.C. Super. LEXIS 30 (July 29, 2003). Counsel were Scott Oswald (Plaintiff’s counsel), 888 17th St., NW; Washington, DC 20006, 202-331-3911, and Emmitt Flood and Lisa Duggan (Defense counsel), 725 12th St., NW; Washington, DC 20005; 202-434-5000.

5. United States v. Donovan Braxton, 2005 CTF 4611, AAG Duane M. Kokesch, 441 Fourth Street, NW; Room #450-N; Washington, DC 20001, 202-727-3401; Defense Counsel: Effie Forde, 1717 K St., NW; Suite 600; Washington, DC 20036, 202-508-1843.

10. District of Columbia v. CVS Corp., 03-4431, Plaintiff’s counsel: Don Resnikoff, AAG, 441 Fourth St., NW; Washington, DC 20001; 202-727-3401; Defense counsel: Deana Cairo, 500 8th St., NW; Washington, DC 20004; 202-799-4523.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

I am not aware of any case in which certiorari was either requested or granted.

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

Doe v. Metropolitan Police Department, 948 A.2d 1210 (D.C. 2008) (reversal of grant of summary judgment on FOIA request).

Vailzer v. United States, 906 A.2d 284 (D.C. 2006) (reversed and remanded for defendant to have opportunity to prove entitlement to withdraw plea).

g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

Every decision I have issued (with the exception of the two listed in subsection (b)) has been unpublished. I have electronic copies of most of these. In addition, the Superior Court’s electronic database has electronic copies of all orders and opinions issued since 2005. Before the Court implemented an electronic database in late 2005, paper copies of orders were maintained in files, which should be in off-site storage.
b. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

I handle constitutional issues – specifically, 4th and 5th Amendment suppression claims – on a regular basis in my criminal cases. I routinely hold evidentiary hearings and issue oral rulings from the bench. I have not written any opinions in these cases. My two published opinions also concern constitutional issues.

Pardue v. Center City Consortium Schools, Inc., 2003 D.C. Super. LEXIS 30 (July 29, 2003), deals with the Free Exercise Clause of the First Amendment. The D.C. Court of Appeals affirmed my ruling at 875 A.2d 669 (D.C. 2003). United States v. Powell, 2008 D.C. Super. LEXIS 2 (June 17, 2008), addresses the jury-selection system in the Superior Court. If the case has been appealed, no ruling from the Court of Appeals has yet issued.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

I have not sat by designation on a federal court of appeals.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (if your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

    a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

    b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

    c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

    d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

The only two cases that I can recall are Cafritz v. Sibley Memorial Hosp., 01-006294, a medical malpractice action brought by Peggy Cooper Cafritz, and the case of Kreuger v. George Washington University, 03-3645. In the former, I recused myself because I knew Ms. Cafritz socially. In the latter, the plaintiff moved that I recuse myself because I had taught at George Washington Law School, and the university was the defendant. I denied the motion on the grounds that my association with the university had all but ended at the time the suit was filed, the motion was filed over a year after the plaintiff had been informed of my association, and the motion was legally deficient by failing to include the necessary certificate of good faith. The District of Columbia Court of Appeals affirmed my decision not to recuse in a published opinion at 896 A.2d 238, 249-50 (D.C. 2006).

There is no court electronic database for cases prior to 2006, which is the time period when I was on a civil calendar. I have checked the electronic database for recusals from 2006 to the present, and none appear.

In all cases I have attempted to abide by the District of Columbia Code of Judicial Conduct, which requires recusal where a judge’s impartiality might reasonably be questioned.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

   a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

   I was appointed to be an Assistant United States Attorney for the District of Columbia from December 6, 1996, to August 14, 2002. I was initially appointed by then-United States Attorney Eric Holder.

   I have not had any unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

   b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, year and title and responsibilities.

       None.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

   a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

      i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;
I served as clerk to Circuit Judge Dorothy W. Nelson of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit from 1990 to 1991.

ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I have not practiced law alone.

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have not served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings.
b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

   In private practice, I was a litigator working on a variety of complex business and some white-collar defense matters. As an Assistant United States Attorney, I prosecuted criminal matters.

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

   In private practice, I specialized in First Amendment defamation law and worked on cases for clients such as NBC and The Recorder, a legal newspaper. I also represented other corporate entities, such as insurance companies and banks, in business litigation. As a prosecutor, I specialized in homicide cases.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

   As a lawyer, I have always practiced 100% of my time in litigation and have never done any transactional work. In private practice, I appeared in court occasionally; as a prosecutor, I appeared in court almost every day.

   i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
      1. federal courts: 20%
      2. state courts of record: 80%
      3. other courts:
      4. administrative agencies:

   ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
      1. civil proceedings: 40%
      2. criminal proceedings: 60%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

   I have tried approximately 40-45 cases to jury verdict. In 90% of the cases I was the lead or sole trial counsel, and in 10% I was associate counsel. I have also tried approximately 25-30 bench trials to verdict. Again, in about 90% of the cases I was the lead or sole trial counsel, and in 10% I was associate counsel.

i. What percentage of these trials were:

1. jury: 60%
2. non-jury: 40%

c. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

a. the date of representation;

b. the name of the court and the name of the judge before whom the case was litigated; and

c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

Each of the following cases was a homicide jury trial that went to verdict in 2000-2002 in D.C. Superior Court. I was the sole prosecutor in each trial unless a co-counsel is listed. All cases resulted in guilty verdicts.

The defendant was a freshman at Gallaudet University, the nation’s premier college for the deaf, when he murdered a classmate by beating him to death with a chair. Five months later, he killed another classmate by stabbing him multiple times. Both of these murders occurred in dormitories and led to a state of great anxiety on campus. After the defendant was ultimately caught, his prosecution involved a number of complicated legal issues, including the assertion of the marital privilege by his girlfriend, deaf-interpreter questions surrounding his confession, DNA evidence, and the prior arrest of another suspect. At trial, the defendant ultimately asserted an insanity defense, and several experts testified to... his mental state at the time of the crime. In addition, the defendant himself testified and threatened to kill me during my cross-examination of him. After a trial lasting several weeks, he was convicted of both murders and sentenced to life without parole.

Defendant Weldon and Lewis hatched a plan to rob an elderly man who was paying them for sex in his house. When the robbery went awry, the two men killed the victim by stabbing him with an array of sharp instruments. The victim lived with his sister, who responded to the commotion by coming downstairs, only to end up being killed as well by near decapitation. Both killers were apprehended and gave statements blaming each other. This required severance of the trials because the statement of each could not be used against the other. Since there were no surviving eyewitnesses, the first trial of Lewis proceeded on circumstantial evidence and his admission of having been present at the scene. After he was convicted by a jury, he was convinced to admit his involvement and testify in Weldon’s trial, which he did. Weldon, too, was convicted, and both received substantial prison sentences.

4. United States v. Evans, F-7638-00 (Judge Robert Richter). Defense counsel: Nathan Silver, 6300 Orchid Drive; Bethesda, MD 20817, 301-229-0189.

The defendant, jealous over his wife’s friendship with another woman, entered her house and shot both women. While the friend died, the wife miraculously survived a gunshot wound to the head and testified at trial. At trial the significant legal issue involved the admissibility of other crimes evidence – namely, other incidents of violence by the defendant against his wife. In addition, there were cell-site records and other physical evidence tying the defendant to the murder. After his conviction, he was sentenced to a substantial prison term.

The defendant in this case was charged with the rape and murder of two women, to whom he had offered crack cocaine and then strangled during sex. The trial was one of the first in the District of Columbia Superior Court to rely primarily on DNA evidence. There were no eyewitnesses to either crime since the defendant had lured homeless women to secluded areas for sex. As a result, the case included various forms of forensic evidence, including DNA, hair and fibers, and medical testimony regarding injuries and cause of death. In addition, another woman whom the defendant had attempted to rape and strangle testified about the defendant’s modus operandi. The jury convicted the defendant of both murders, and he ultimately decided to forgo an appeal.

The defendant, who was an off-duty police sergeant, was driving her car late one night when she struck and killed a homeless man crossing the street. The sergeant was legally intoxicated at the time and was ultimately convicted of involuntary manslaughter. The trial involved an accident-reconstruction expert, as well as testimony regarding the effects of alcohol on a driver’s vision and reactions. After conviction, the estranged family of the victim worked with me to craft an appropriate sentence, which the judge ultimately imposed. It required no jail time, but the sergeant lost her job and had to undergo treatment and perform significant alcohol-related community service.

This case involved the retrial of a case that another assistant had previously tried to a hung jury. The defendant, while wearing a mask, had invaded the home of a rival and shot him to death after dragging him from the bed in which he, his wife, and infant were lying. The case involved significant identification issues, which the jury had been unable to resolve in the first trial. In addition, in the retrial, a government witness, falsely attempted to inculpate himself to assist his friend, the defendant. Nonetheless, the jury ultimately convicted the defendant, who then faced the death penalty in Virginia for other murders he had committed there.

This case also involved the retrial of a case previously tried by another assistant. This time, however, the Court of Appeals had reversed the defendant’s conviction because of an error the trial court had made regarding severance. The defendant and a co-defendant, whose conviction had been affirmed, shot a man to death in a dispute between two rival neighborhoods. This case involved a number of hostile witnesses who claimed a lack of memory and were impeached with prior testimony, as well as the cooperation of the co-defendant. In the middle of the trial, the defendant, who was not being held, fled the jurisdiction. The jury convicted him in absentia, and he was ultimately found several months later and sentenced to a long prison term.

9. United States v. Donelson, F-1518-00 (Judge Pat Wynn); Defense counsel: Daniel McGuan, deceased.

The defendant here killed another man from the same neighborhood after a trivial dispute. Because the murder occurred in a public housing project, many of the witnesses knew both men and were reluctant to testify or get involved. The case featured important photographic evidence of the scene and other physical evidence that helped to tie the defendant to the murder. He was convicted and, after an unsuccessful motion for a new trial, sentenced to a lengthy term of incarceration.

10. United States v. Tyler, F-1499-00 (Judge Patricia Broderick); Defense counsel: Anna Rodrigues, 633 Indiana Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20004; 202-628-1200.

The police who responded to this case initially thought that the victim had died accidentally during a house fire. They later realized that she had been strangled and that the fire had been intentionally set during a dispute about money and crack cocaine. The case was a sort of closed-house mystery in that 6-7 people (all related or close friends) had all been in the house at the time, no one else had entered or exited, and one or more of the group had to be guilty. Witnesses who had at first sought to protect the defendant, who was the patriarch, subsequently divulged his role, and he was convicted at trial. The case not only featured a closed set of witnesses whom both sides called, but also arson expert testimony. The defendant received a 20-year sentence.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s).

(See: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

I represented the Government in numerous criminal matters that ended in plea dispositions. The most significant was the case of United States v. Jones, in which the defendant ultimately pleaded guilty to having shot several other teenagers in front of the National Zoo on Easter Monday. The case, which I prosecuted with another assistant, received substantial publicity because of the mid-afternoon shooting of students on Connecticut Avenue during a school holiday. The defendant was under 18 at the time, and plea negotiations were sensitive because of the publicity, the number of victims, and the substantial time the Government was seeking. He finally accepted the plea and was sentenced to 25 years’ imprisonment.
I have never performed any lobbying activities.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

In the 2003 spring semester, I co-taught a seminar at George Washington University Law School entitled “Anatomy of a Homicide: Advanced Problems in Criminal Procedure” with Jennifer M. Collins, now a law professor at Wake Forest. She can be reached at Wake Forest School of Law, 1834 Wake Forest Road, Winston-Salem, NC 27109, 336-758-3852. We designed the course and taught it together. The course looked at homicide prosecutions in the District of Columbia. A draft syllabus is attached. I believe the final one had some alterations, but neither I nor my co-teacher can locate the final one.

In the 1989 spring semester, while attending Yale Law School, I taught a seminar at Yale College called “Law and Literature.” The class read novels and discussed their depictions of lawyers and courts. I have not retained a syllabus.

In the academic year 1986-1987, I taught 8th and 9th grade at the Horace Mann School in New York. I taught Ancient and Medieval History to the 8th graders and Modern European History to the 9th graders. No syllabus for this course existed.

20. Deferred Income/Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I currently coach three youth basketball teams (unpaid). I hope to continue this. In addition, at some point, and consistent with the Code of Judicial Ethics, I may consider teaching as a visiting lecturer at a local law school.
22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest

   a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest, when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflicts if it were to arise.

   My father, Emanuel Boasberg, III, was for many years the chairman of the D.C. Historic Preservation Review Board. If any matters concerning the Board on which he worked came before me, I would recuse myself. If my former law firm, Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans, appeared before me, I would inform the parties and recuse myself if any party so requested.

   b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

   I will follow the federal Judicial Code of Conduct in all potential conflicts of interest.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

While working in private practice, I represented a number of clients pro bono.

For example, I acted as an amicus for an indigent man named Christopher Small, who had been convicted in California of a felony. I appeared in the trial court in California in an unsuccessful effort to obtain a new trial. Then, after I moved back to Washington, I acted as an amicus on his appeal and returned to California to argue in front of the California Court of Appeals, which resulted in the conviction being overturned. I also represented pro bono the San Francisco Black Firefighters Association, which was being investigated for fraud, and I was able to get the District Attorney's Office to dismiss the case. In addition, I represented pro bono an indigent man accused of property crimes, ultimately obtaining a dismissal of those charges as well.

I co-founded, and have for over 15 years chaired a committee that annually awards, the Class of 1981 Bishop John T. Walker Fellowship. The Fellowship was created to honor Bishop Walker, Washington's first black bishop and a classmate's father. Each year, we award a grant of $2000-5000 to students for social service in a lesser developed area of the world or in the United States. Past winners have worked, e.g., at an AIDS clinic in Africa, an orphanage in India, schools in Haiti and Nicaragua, and an Indian reservation.

As an AUSA I never technically represented any individual because my client was always the United States. Yet, particularly when prosecuting homicides and other violent crimes, I interacted every day with the disadvantaged: family members whose loved ones had been brutally murdered, victims who had been attacked and severely injured themselves, and witnesses who had seen heinous acts, yet who were now terrified of assisting the government lest they themselves be killed. My role was to seek justice on their behalf and to do what I could to assist them in extremely difficult times.

26. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

D.C. Delegate Eleanor Holmes Norton established a 17-person D.C. Judicial Nominations Commission ("JNC") to screen applicants for federal judgeships in the District of Columbia. The JNC invited interested applicants to fill out a lengthy application in the Spring of 2009. I submitted my application in May 2009 and was interviewed by the JNC in June. The JNC then forwarded nine names to Del. Norton, who interviewed those finalists. My interview with her took place on October 13.

I was informed in late November by an official in the Department of Justice's Office of Legal Policy that I was under consideration, and he forwarded me several forms to begin filling out. Since that time I have remained in contact with other pre-nomination officials at OLP. On January 28, 2010, I interviewed at the Department of Justice with OLP officials and a member of the White House Counsel’s Office. The President submitted my nomination to the Senate on June 17, 2010.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

(NOTARY)

My Commission expires January 31, 2015
STATEMENT OF AMY BERMAN JACKSON, NOMINATED TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF CO- LUMBIA

Ms. JACKSON. Thank you, Senator. I would first like to thank you and the Committee for considering my nomination and for scheduling this hearing. I would like to thank President Obama for nominating me. It’s an extraordinary honor and I will certainly dedicated myself, if confirmed, to living up to the confidence he has placed in me.

I would like to also thank Congresswoman Norton not only for recommending me to the President, but for establishing a commission and a process that enabled anyone to fill out an application and be considered.

I would like to introduce to you family members who are here and mention some who can’t be here. It is very humbling to be in this room and realize that it was my grandparents who came here on a boat, all four of them, to this country, with nothing, to escape oppression. They valued education more than anything else and it is through their hard work and their dreams that I sit here today.

They certainly paved the road for me and it—really carpeted, to tell you the truth—and it was their lifelong commitment to service and learning and family that has been instilled in me.

My grandmother, Lena Sauber, who can’t be here, is represented by the necklace that I’m wearing. I may be your first nominee to ever introduce her jewelry. But I wear that to remember the woman who came here, learned the language, became a citizen, was a suffragette, raised three daughters, and ran a business, and I know that she is connected to me and watching here today.

With me here today is my mother, Mildred Berman. She is here today and I would say she’s always been there. She was the welcoming presence every day when I came home from school to greet me and have the perfect snack and in her house, I grew up blissfully unaware that there was anything that I couldn’t do when I grew up as long as I got off the phone and did my homework.

I would like to introduce other members of my family who are here to support me. My cousin, Helen Schlossberg-Cohen, and my father’s sister, Rose Abelson.

I am also supported here today by my husband, Darryl Jackson. We met in the U.S. attorney’s office many years ago and we’ve always both been committed to returning to public service. He was able to do it when President Bush nominated him to an assistant secretary’s position, and I’m very thankful that he has agreed that it’s my turn, and that he has supported me every step of the way.

I, unfortunately, am not joined today by my two handsome and brilliant sons, David and Matthew. They have recently been delivered to college and so they’re unable to be here. But I hope that they’re watching the Webcast and if not, I am sure it is because they are studying very hard.

I have been blessed as a lawyer to have the good fortune to only work at places with people I loved and people I admired and respected. My colleagues—many of my colleagues from Trout Cacheris are here. And it’s such a small firm, I think I can say that Trout Cacheris is here.
I am so honored by the fact that Plato Cacheris and my other partners have all come. But I would like to especially mention Bob Trout and John Richards, who gave me the gift of a lifetime when they asked me to join their small firm. And my partner and friend, Gloria Solomon, who was the first person I told that I planned to fill out the application for Congresswoman Norton and who did not laugh and who has been thrilled and supporting me every step of the way, along with so many of the women that I count among my close friends who are here today, Jennifer Levy, Ruth Kassinger, Maureen Asterbody (ph), Susan Morrow, Melanie Ferrara, and my many friends who I hope have been able to watch.

To conclude, I really want to talk the most about the two people who can’t be here today; my late brother, Gordon Berman, and my father, Barnett Berman. I’ve always been touched by the line in the Memorial Prayer that says you honor your loves ones, your lost relatives, by standing up and pursuing the ideals that they stood for.

My brother stood for using your law degree to pursue justice. And my father was not a lawyer. He was a doctor, but he was one of those old-fashioned kind of physicians who believed that you treat the patient who has the disease and not the disease who has the patient.

He wrote me a letter on my last day of law school and he said to me that it was expected that I would use my law degree and the gifts that he thought I had for something larger than just private concerns. He said, “Of you, more is expected.”

I have that letter with me today. I know he is here with me today and I trust that he would say that this is what he had in mind.

Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much.

Judge Shadid.

   Department of Justice Special Achievement Awards (1985 & 1986)
   Harvard College Dean’s List (1973 – 1976)

9. Bar Associations: List all bar associations or legal or judicial-related committees, selection panels or conferences of which you are or have been a member, and give the titles and dates of any offices which you have held in such groups.

   American Bar Association (ABA)
   ABA Criminal Justice Section, White Collar Crime Committee
   Co-chair, Department of Justice Liaison Subcommittee (2009 – present)

   ABA Section of Litigation
   Co-Director, Division IV: Procedural (1991 – 1992)
   Co-Chair, Training the Advocate Committee (1989 – 1991)
   Member, Task Force on Training the Advocate (1987 – 1989)
   Representative to ABA Steering Committee on Post-Conviction Representation Member, Complex Crimes Committee

   District of Columbia Bar
   Chair (1992 – 1994)
Elected Delegate to the ABA House of Delegates (1986 – 1989)
District of Columbia Women’s Bar Association Federal Bar Association
Washington Bar Association
Bar Association of the District of Columbia

10. Bar and Court Admission:

a. List the date(s) you were admitted to the bar of any state and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership.

District of Columbia, 1979
Virginia, 1986

There have been no lapses in either membership.

b. List all courts in which you have been admitted to practice, including dates of admission and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership. Give the same information for administrative bodies that require special admission to practice.

Supreme Court of the United States, 1992
United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, 1983
United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit, 1980
United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, 1993
United States District Court for the District of Maryland, 1980
United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, 1986

These are all currently active with the exception of the Fifth Circuit, where I sought admission in connection with a single appeal. There have been no lapses in membership.

11. Memberships:

a. List all professional, business, fraternal, scholarly, civic, charitable, or other organizations, other than those listed in response to Questions 9 or 10 to which you belong, or to which you have belonged, since graduation from law school. Provide dates of membership or participation, and indicate any office you held. Include clubs, working groups, advisory or editorial boards, panels, committees, conferences, or publications.

D.C. Rape Crisis Center Board of Directors (1986 – 1989)
Interdisciplinary Council for Developmental and Learning Disorders Parents’ Steering Committee (1996 – 2001)
Special Olympics Northern Virginia Area 26 Council (1987 – 1989, approximate)

In addition, I have made occasional financial contributions over the years to various charitable organizations. Some of those organizations may have called me a “member” solely by virtue of my financial contribution.

b. The American Bar Association’s Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

To my knowledge, none of the organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion, or national origin.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

To respond to the parts of Question 12 set out below, I searched my electronic calendar, the electronic and physical records I have retained of speeches and presentations (including videotape recordings and paper files), copies of applications completed in prior years listing panel presentations, and my memory.

a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

I searched my memory, my records, and the Internet to provide a list of publications that is as complete as possible, though there may be others I have been unable to identify:

b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

I have searched my memory, my records, and the Internet and have not identified any reports, memoranda, or policy statements that I prepared or to which I contributed. I have no recollection of particular reports from the various task forces and committees on which I have served. To prepare this answer, I consulted with the staff of the ABA Section on Litigation, which did not identify any such reports in the Section’s files. To the best of my knowledge, any reports—if they did exist—would have been issued by the Task Force on the Jury, which considered such matters as the need for clear and comprehensible jury instructions, and the Task Force on Children, which focused on the need for legal services for children in the juvenile justice and foster care systems.

c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

I have not testified or issued an official statement on a matter of public policy or legal interpretation to a public body other than through the submission of legal pleadings in judicial proceedings on behalf of my clients.

Minutes of monthly meetings of the Washington, D.C. Spring Valley Restoration Advisory Board, on which I served as a member, can be found at: http://www.nab.usace.army.mil/projects/WashingtonDC/springvalley/RAB/minutes.htm (last visited June 15, 2010).

d. Supply four (4) copies, transcripts or recordings of all speeches or talks delivered by you, including commencement speeches, remarks, lectures, panel discussions, 715 conferences, political speeches, and question-and-answer sessions. Include the date and place where they were delivered, and readily available press reports about the speech or talk. If you do not have a copy of the speech or a transcript or recording of your remarks, give the name and address of the group before whom the speech was given, the date of the speech, and a summary of its subject matter.

If you did not speak from a prepared text, furnish a copy of any outline or notes from which you spoke.

I have not delivered any political or commencement speeches. I appeared on panels at the conferences listed below:

03/06: Ethics and Corporate Criminal Investigations—ABA Section of Public

4/22/05: The Boeing Company, Litigation Department. Notes supplied.

1998-2001: I moderated several panels sponsored by the Parents’ Steering Committee of the Interdisciplinary Council for Developmental and Learning Disorders at the annual ICDS conference on autism. Video recording of the 1999 panel supplied. I have no other notes, transcript, or recording.

1998: I spoke at the investiture of the Honorable Nathalia Combs Greene as a judge on the Superior Court of the District of Columbia. I have no notes, transcript, or recording.

1997: Scientific Fraud—ABA Criminal Justice Section National Institute on 1997: Tort Reform—D.C. Judicial Conference. I have no notes, transcript, or recording.

1996: Closing Arguments in a Products Liability Case—ABA Annual Meeting. I have no notes, transcript, or recording.

Late 1990s (I do not recall the specific year): Presentation to Johns Hopkins Medical School students on scientific research fraud as part of the class, “The Physician and Society.” Notes supplied.

1994: Parallel Criminal, Administrative, and Civil Proceedings—ABA Litigation Section Annual Meeting. Notes supplied.

1994: Scientific Fraud Investigations—ABA Litigation Section Complex Crimes Committee Federal Enforcement Seminar. My notes for the talk were incorporated into the set of notes for Scientific Fraud: ABA Criminal Justice Section National Institute on White Collar Crime, Fraud: 1997, a copy of which is supplied.
1993: The Jury’s Perspective on Women in the Courtroom—ABA Section of Litigation/Prentice Hall Conference on the Woman Advocate. Video recording supplied.

1993: Responding to a Criminal Investigation, Maryland CPA Association. Notes supplied.

1992: Responding to a Criminal Investigation, National Association of Minority Contractors. I have no notes, transcript, or recording.

1990: Trying an Employment Case—National Employment Law Institute. I have no notes, transcript, or recording.

1990: Cross Examination Workshop—ABA Section of Litigation, ABA Annual Meeting. I have no notes, transcript, or recording.

1988: Training the Advocate—ABA Section of Litigation, ABA Annual Meeting. I have no notes, transcript, or recording.

Although I searched my memory, my files, and the Internet to prepare as complete a list as possible, I may have given other speeches that I have been unable to identify.

e. List all interviews you have given to newspapers, magazines or other publications, or radio or television stations, providing the dates of these interviews and four (4) copies of the clips or transcripts of these interviews where they are available to you.

I searched my memory, my files, and the Internet to prepare as complete a list as possible, though I may have given other interviews that I have been unable to identify. Copies of clips from the following interviews are supplied:

11/14/09: Vanguard (Lagos), “Ex-US Congressman Bags 13 Years Jail Term”

12/24/07: Baton Rouge Advocate, “Boy Scouts Watch Trial”

6/30/01: Milwaukee Journal Sentinel, “Browner’s Computer Wiped Clean by EPA—Same Day Court Had Issued Order”

6/29/01: Associated Press, “Ex-EPA Head Browner Asked for Computer Files to be Deleted”

3/18/89: Richmond Times Dispatch, “Arlington Man Charged in Using Architect’s Seals”

Between 1995 and 2000, I appeared as an expert legal commentator on television on multiple occasions, explaining legal developments in such cases as the O.J. Simpson trial, the Unabomber attacks, the Whitewater Special Prosecutor investigation, and the investigation into the death of Chandra Levy. I appeared on CNN, MSNBC, Fox News, and local D.C. stations WUSA, WRC, and WTTG, and served as a panelist on CNN’s “Burden of Proof.” I also appeared on CBN in 1987 discussing date rape. Of those appearances, I have recordings of the following, for which I have supplied copies:

8/28/01: Fox News. Chandra Levy investigation

04/96: Phil Donahue Show: Jury Nullification

2/6/96: WRC-TV (NBC): Discussing O.J. Simpson telephone call to CNN’s “Burden of Proof” the day before

10/3/95: WRC-TV (NBC): Simpson verdict

10/2/95: CNN “Burden of Proof:” Awaiting the Simpson verdict (excerpts)

9/13/95: WRC-TV (NBC): “Should O.J. Simpson take the stand?”

8/17/95: WRC-TV (NBC): “What do you think of the lawyers in the O.J. Simpson case?”

In addition, transcripts of the following appearances on CNN are available and supplied:

9/24/98: CNN “Upfront Tonight,” Judiciary Committee Sets October 8th or 9th As Day On Which To Vote On Whether To Conduct An Impeachment Inquiry
9/9/98: CNN “Burden of Proof,” Sentencing of Amy Grossberg and Brian Peterson

9/9/98: CNN “Worldview,” Circuit Court Rules Promising Leniency for Testimony Illegal

5/10/97: CNN “Saturday Morning News,” Guest Attorneys Review McVeigh Trial For Week Ending May 10, 1997 and Analyze Each Side’s Apparent Trial Strategy

1/21/97: CNN “Burden of Proof,” Attorneys Prepare For Closing Arguments In the O.J. Simpson Civil Trial

12/12/96: CNN “Burden of Proof,” O.J. Simpson Talked To Police; See What He Had To Say

10/18/95: CNN “Burden of Proof,” Death of Selena

10/16/95: CNN “Burden of Proof,” O.J. Simpson criminal trial

On December 5, 1985, when I was an Assistant United States Attorney, I appeared before the cameras after obtaining a conviction in United States v. Paul Jordan. A copy of the recording is supplied.
On June 9, 1978, I was a passenger on an Amtrak train that collided and derailed in Seabrook, Maryland, and I was interviewed by television news reporters when I arrived at Penn Station in Baltimore. No recordings are available.

On June 17, 1976 (approx.), the Harvard Crimson published an article by Nicholas Leonard recounting the college experiences of the four roommates in my freshman suite. I was interviewed in connection with the article. I have been unable to locate a copy of the article, including through searches of the Harvard Crimson website and archives.

Between 1974 and 1976 (approx.), while in college, I worked at WHRB-FM, the Harvard College radio station, and produced a bi-weekly interview show on women’s affairs called “Accent on Women.” No recordings are available, but I was not the subject of the interviews – I was asking the questions.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

I have not held any judicial office.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment? _____

i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

   - jury trials: _____% [total 100%]
   - bench trials: _____% [total 100%]
   - civil proceedings: _____% [total 100%]
   - criminal proceedings: _____% [total 100%]

b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature of the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (if your court employs an “automatic” recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

I have not served as a judge.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.
I have not held public office. I have had no unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

I have never held a paid or unpaid position in a political party or election committee. I was a member of the Lawyers’ Committee for Bill Clinton in 1992, and did a small amount of fundraising in connection with President Barack Obama’s election campaign.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk:

1979 to 1980: After graduating from law school, I served as a law clerk to the Hon. Harrison L. Winter of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I have not practiced alone.

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have not served as a mediator or arbitrator.

b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

My law practice has always involved the courtroom. I have handled both civil and criminal cases, and I have seen the criminal law from the perspective of both the prosecution and the defense. My criminal caseload has involved everything from murder and rape on the prosecution side to government contracts fraud, public corruption, and antitrust violations on the defense side. My civil practice has ranged from commercial and real estate related litigation to representing plaintiffs in multi-district tort litigation and victims of sexual assault.

After my clerkship on the Fourth Circuit ended in 1980, I joined the United States Attorney’s Office for the District of Columbia. There, it was my responsibility to seek justice on behalf of victims of crime, to advocate for the appropriate punishment for offenders, and to work with citizens and law enforcement in an effort to rid the community of drug trafficking and the violence associated with it.

Since leaving the U.S. Attorney’s office in 1986, I have been engaged in the private practice of law. In place of the violent crimes and narcotics offenses I once prosecuted, I have focused on complex white collar matters and civil litigation. As a defense attorney, I have counseled clients when the facts supported a negotiated disposition, and I have also put the government to the test of proving its case in court beyond a reasonable doubt. I have litigated issues involving my clients’ constitutional and procedural rights, and I have dealt with evolving investigative techniques such as subpoenas, search warrants, electronic eavesdropping, and undercover sting operations. My practice has also involved the Federal Sentencing Guidelines and their application in plea negotiations, pre-sentence investigations, and sentencing proceedings.
ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

The United States Attorney for the District of Columbia has unique responsibility for both local and federal offenses, and for most of my time in the Office, I prosecuted local crimes. I tried approximately 50 cases to verdict before juries in D.C. Superior Court, and moved through the Misdemeanor, Appellate, Grand Jury, Chronic Offender, Felony II Trial, and Felony I Trial sections. In the Appellate section, I briefed and argued appeals in both the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit and the District of Columbia Court of Appeals. I spent my last two years as an Assistant United States Attorney (1984-86) in the Felony I Trial section, devoted exclusively to first degree murder, rapes, and sexual assaults on children.

Since 1986, my practice has primarily involved federal litigation. My work at Venable included criminal and civil trials and appeals, with the primary emphasis on white collar criminal investigations. The federal enforcement actions I handled included procurement fraud, antitrust violations, environmental crime, and health care fraud. We represented businesses that were the subjects of grand jury investigations or administrative enforcement actions, and we were called upon to represent individual corporate officers and employees as well. I was involved in the representation of witnesses and targets in the Iran-Contra, Whitewater, and HUD Special Prosecutor investigations. Notable criminal matters included representing an individual charged in the Ill Wind government contracts fraud investigation and the jury trial of an electrical contractor charged with lying to the grand jury during the course of a nationwide bid rigging investigation. I briefed and argued cases in several federal circuits, and served as trial counsel for two military courts martial.

On the civil side, we represented plaintiffs in several cases arising out of airline and train crash disasters, and those representations involved multidistrict litigation and federal class actions. Other civil matters included business and real estate disputes and breach of contract actions in both state and federal court, suits on behalf of individual victims of crime, and intellectual property litigation, which entailed seeking temporary restraining orders and injunctions.

My federal litigation practice has continued at Trout Cacheris, where since 2000, I have focused particularly on criminal matters but handled an array of civil cases as well. My cases have involved investigations and charges of bribery, conflict of interest, antitrust, bank fraud, and government contract fraud. In criminal matters, we tend to represent individuals rather than corporations or other entities, but we have handled commercial disputes and employment matters for a number of businesses in D.C., Maryland, and Virginia.
I served as co-counsel in United States v. William J. Jefferson, a public corruption case that was tried to a jury last summer. I have represented individuals involved in the Enron investigation and the Washington Teachers' Union embezzlement matter. Such criminal cases often entail parallel administrative and civil actions growing out of the same sets of facts and circumstances, so my federal practice has also involved Congressional hearings, SEC enforcement actions, bankruptcy proceedings, hearings before other administrative bodies, and civil lawsuits in federal and state court. Other civil litigation matters have included employment discrimination claims, derivative and class action suits alleging securities fraud, breach of contract actions, a products liability case, and legal malpractice, among others. I have continued my representation of victims of crime, and I have been asked to conduct internal investigations by organizations ranging from a law firm to an elementary school. At Trout Cacheris, I have also briefed and argued appeals in the United States Court of Appeals in both criminal and civil cases.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

Ninety percent of my time or more has been devoted to litigation. As an Assistant United States Attorney for the District of Columbia from 1980 to 1986, I appeared in court very frequently. Since then, the frequency has varied, but in the aggregate I have appeared in court occasionally. Full-blown trials are less common in private practice than they were when I was a prosecutor, but I have appeared in court regularly for evidentiary hearings, motions practice, sentencing proceedings, and appellate arguments. Due to the nature of our practice, a significant portion of my work has taken place outside the courtroom: federal enforcement matters involve considerable investigation, negotiation, and advocacy with the goal of avoiding trial altogether.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. federal courts: 85%
2. state courts of record: 5%
3. other courts: 10%
4. administrative agencies:

   2005 to present: federal courts: 85%
   state courts of record: 5%
   other courts: 10%
   administrative agencies:
725

1986 to 2004: federal courts: 60%
  state courts of record: 25%
  other courts: 5%
  administrative agencies: 10%

1980 to 1986: federal courts: 5%
  state courts of record: 95%
  other courts:
  administrative agencies:

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
  1. civil proceedings:
  2. criminal proceedings:

    2005 to present: civil proceedings: 30%
       criminal proceedings: 70%

    1986 – 2004: civil proceedings: 50%
       criminal proceedings: 50%

    1980 – 1986: civil proceedings: 100%
       criminal proceedings:

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

   I have tried more than 60 cases to verdict, judgment, or final decision. I was sole counsel in nearly all of these cases, chief counsel in one, and associate counsel in about five.

   i. What percentage of these trials were:
      1. jury: 90%
      2. non-jury: 10%

e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States.
   Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

   I have filed petitions for certiorari and oppositions to petitions for certiorari. I filed petitions in a death penalty appeal, but I have not yet argued before the Court.
Copies of the following pleadings are supplied:

2/24/09: William J. Jefferson v. United States, No. 08-1059, Petition for writ of Certiorari to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit
4/24/09: William J. Jefferson v. United States, No. 08-1059, Reply to brief in Opposition to Petition for writ of Certiorari
2/19/08: United States v. Rayburn House Office Building, Room 2113, No. 07-816, Brief in Opposition to Petition for writ of Certiorari
12/13/04: Babbitt, et al., v. United States Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit, No. 04-811, Petition for writ of Certiorari to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit
5/29/92: Crandon, et al., v. United States, No. 91-1908, Petition for writ of Certiorari to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit
4/30/92: Bunch v. Thompson, No. 91-1757, Petition for writ of Certiorari to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit
6/11/92: Bunch v. Thompson, No. 91-1757, Petitioner's Reply Brief
7/22/92: Bunch v. Thompson, Petition for Rehearing
1/16/90: Educational Development Network Corp., and Gerald Kress v. United States, No. 89-1110, Petition for writ of Certiorari to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 3rd Circuit

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled; whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

   a. the date of representation;

   b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and

   c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

I represented the former Congressman from Louisiana, who was charged in June 2007 with bribery, fraud that deprived the citizens of his honest services, conspiracy, RICO, money laundering, and violating the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act. We filed more than 20 pre-trial motions addressing significant legal questions raised by the 95 page indictment. The case did not involve any legislation, appropriations, or earmarks, so one issue for which I bore particular responsibility was whether a Member’s use of his access or influence to assist private business ventures abroad could constitute an “official act” of a United States Congressman as that term is defined in the bribery statute. I argued motions to dismiss on those grounds and others. The case presented issues similar to those currently pending before the Supreme Court concerning the scope of the honest services statute, and we filed a motion to suppress arising out of the FBI’s decision to take digital photographs of documents that fell outside the scope of the warrant during the execution of a search. In addition, we challenged the government’s decision to prosecute in the Eastern District of Virginia a defendant who lived and worked in the District of Columbia.

The Jefferson matter was unusual in that it involved three pre-trial appeals. One concerned whether the prosecution could circumvent a Congressman’s invocation of his Fifth Amendment act of production privilege by directing a subpoena for his records to a member of his staff instead. I briefed and argued that appeal. The other two raised novel questions related to the application of the Speech or Debate Clause, the constitutional privilege that protects the legislature against invasion or intimidation by the executive branch. The case involved the first search of a Congressman’s office in the history of the United States, and we filed an emergency motion seeking the return of the seized records, arguing that the manner in which the search was conducted violated the Clause. A bipartisan group of Congressional leaders joined our challenge. The District Court upheld the search, but the D.C. Circuit reversed, agreeing with our contention that the method used to conduct the search violated the Constitution. The Supreme Court allowed that ruling to stand. I was the primary drafter of the District Court pleadings and the brief on appeal. We also sought Supreme Court review of an opinion by the Fourth Circuit concerning the power of the court to hear a challenge to an indictment when evidence of legislative activity that was privileged under the Clause had been presented to the grand jury.

The case was as complicated factually as it was legally. More than a dozen of the government’s witnesses (of whom there were nearly 50 in total) testified under plea or immunity deals, and the investigation involved an undercover sting operation, hundreds of thousands of documents, and hours of secretly recorded telephone conversations and meetings. It took eight weeks to try the case, and the defendant was convicted of 11 counts and acquitted of five. I played a prominent role in the trial, cross examining about a third of the government’s witnesses, including its expert. After sentencing, the court granted our motion for bond pending appeal, finding that the appeal of its rulings on “official acts” raised substantial questions which, if decided in favor of the defense, would result in the reversal of the conviction on every count.

My representation has lasted from 2005 to present. I am counsel of record with co-counsel Robert Trout and Gloria B. Solomon, Trout Cacheris, PLLC, 1350 Connecticut Ave., NW, Suite 300, Washington, D.C. 20036, Tel (202) 464-3300.
Principal counsel for the government are AUSA Mark D. Lytle and AUSA Rebecca Bellows, Justin W. Williams U.S. Attorney’s Building, 2100 Jamieson Ave., Alexandria, VA 22314, Tel (703) 299-1700; and Charles E. Duross, U.S. Department of Justice, Criminal Division/Fraud Section, 10th & Constitution Ave., NW, Bond Building, 4th Floor, Washington, DC 20530, Tel (202) 514-2000.

In re Grand Jury Subpoena: John Doe, No. 05GJ1318, 584 F.3d 175 (4th Cir. 2009) (unsealed 2009)

Since 2002, I have been co-counsel representing a former Managing Director at Merrill Lynch and head of its Energy and Power Group, who had been involved in several transactions with Enron. We also represented his wife, who is the former Vice President for Corporate Communications at Enron.

Our client retained Trout Cacheris shortly after the fall of Enron in connection with an investigation being conducted by the House Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations into Enron’s transactions with a number of investment banks, including Merrill Lynch, and we represented him in the parallel proceedings that ensued: the Department of Justice investigation, the SEC action, a New York Stock exchange investigation, and multiple civil class actions and securities derivative suits filed in federal and state courts.
The Enron related cases raised the question of whether one party to a financial transaction—in this case, the investment bank—could be held responsible for the other party’s failure to account for that transaction properly in its public financial disclosures, and whether the banks owed any duty to Enron’s investors which could have been breached. With respect to the individual bankers, the investigations also turned upon the extent to which they relied upon the advice of the bank’s in-house lawyers and internal vetting processes. There were factual questions to be considered related to the individuals’ level of involvement in the transactions, and whether they had knowledge of the ultimate terms of the deals or how Enron intended to account for them.

My representation has lasted from 2002 to present. I am counsel of record with co-counsel Robert Trout and Gloria B. Solomon, Trout Cacheris, PLLC, 1350 Connecticut Ave., NW, Suite 300, Washington, D.C. 20036, Tel (202) 464-3300. Opposing counsel in the criminal matter was Andrew Weissmann (then head of the Enron Task Force), now of Jenner & Block, 919 Third Ave., New York, NY 10022, Tel (212) 891-1650.

Credit Suisse First Boston (USA), Inc., 482 F.3d 372 (5th Cir. 2007) (The Court of Appeals overturned the trial court’s certification of the class; I worked with counsel for Merrill Lynch in briefing this issue.)

This class action suit brought concerning the Department of Interior's management of the Indian Trust accounts has been pending since 1996, and it has spawned at least 10 appeals. During 2000 and 2001, attorneys for the plaintiffs asked the court to issue orders to show cause why a number of individual government employees should not be held in contempt in connection with the case. The motions raised issues such as the availability of sovereign immunity and whether any of the named individuals, most of whom were career lawyers from either the Department of Interior or the Department of Justice, had ever been the subject of a specific order that could form the predicate for contempt. Over time, more than 50 individuals were named in contempt motions.

I was the lead lawyer for an attorney who was at that time the Deputy Associate Solicitor General of the Department of Interior. As time wore on, the group of lawyers for the individuals became more organized, and I became one of a handful of attorneys leading the group. When we became aware that the court appointed Monitor had conducted hours of ex parte communications with the plaintiffs' attorneys and with the witnesses, and that the court had engaged in over 120 hours of ex parte communications with the Monitor, a group of the named individuals filed a motion seeking the court's recusal from the contempt proceedings. The court denied the motion, see Cobell v. Norton, 237 F. Supp. 2d 71 (D.D.C. 2003), and the Court of Appeals denied the individuals' petition for a writ of mandamus.

At a later time, on its own motion, the Court of Appeals reassigned the matter to another judge for other reasons. I was selected to speak on behalf of all of the named individuals at the first hearing before the new judge to whom the case was assigned. The court denied all of the pending motions for order to show cause on January 16, 2007.

My representation lasted from 2001 to 2007. I was lead counsel of record with co-counsel John Thorpe Richards, Jr., Trout Cachers, PLLC, 1350 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Suite 100, Washington, D.C. 20036, Tel (202) 464-3300; Robert D. Luskin, Patton Boggs, 2530 M Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037, Tel (202) 457-6190; and Dwight Bostwick, Zuckerman Spadaer, 1800 M Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036, Tel (202) 778-3882, represented other individuals named in the contempt motions.

Opposing Counsel was Keith Harper, Kirkpatrick Stockton, Suite 900, 607 14th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005, Tel (202) 508-5844.

(4) Representation of The Boeing Company in Space Technology Development Corp., v. The Boeing Company, No. 1:05cv411 (E.D. Va.) (Leonie M. Brinkema, U.S.D.J.)

Space Technology Development Corp. brought a breach of contract action against Boeing arising out of a letter of intent. We successfully moved to dismiss the matter for failure to state a claim, arguing that the letter was not a contract, but simply an agreement to agree. The trial court’s holding was upheld on appeal, and the motion for rehearing was denied. I was the principal counsel at the District Court and on appeal, and I argued the case in the Fourth Circuit on the day after I argued the first Jefferson appeal: In re Grand Jury Subpoena: John Doe, No. 05GJ1318, 584 F. 3d 175 (4th Cir. 2007).

My representation lasted from 2005 to 2007. I was lead counsel of record with co-counsel John Thorpe Richards, Jr., Trout Cacheris, P.L.C., 1350 Connecticut Ave., NW, Suite 300, Washington, D.C. 20036. Tel (202) 464-3300. In 1989, my partner, William D. Dolan, was appointed by the judges of the Circuit Court for the City of Norfolk to investigate charges that Judge Joseph A. Campbell had altered the traffic court docket to disguise the fact that the Commonwealth’s attorney for Virginia Beach—whose driving record was a political issue—had been charged with a traffic offense. Mr. Dolan asked me to co-try the case with him in light of my experience as a prosecutor. We divided the key direct and cross-examinations, and I gave the closing argument.

The case presented a series of factual problems, as a number of the court clerks, concerned about their own involvement, had given inconsistent statements to investigators, and the court’s own computer recorded the changes to the docket in a sequence different from that recalled by any witness. Legal questions were raised concerning the requisite intent, double jeopardy concerns, and other issues involved in the jury instructions.

After trial by jury, we obtained the first felony conviction of a sitting judge in the history of the Commonwealth.

My representation lasted from 1989 to 1990. I was counsel of record with co-counsel William D. Dolan, Venable, 8010 Towers Crescent Drive, Suite 300, Vienna, Virginia 22182, Tel (703) 760-1680. Principal opposing counsel were Wayne Lustig (now deceased), William P. Robinson, Jr. (now deceased); and Anthony Troy, Troutman Sanders, 1001 Haxall Point, Richmond, VA 23219, Tel (804) 697-1318.

This perjury case grew out of a nationwide grand jury investigation of bid rigging in the electrical contracting industry. While represented by other counsel, Mr. Mahoney testified with immunity before the grand jury, and the Antitrust Division alleged that he did not testify truthfully concerning meetings of industry officials. The case was tried to a jury before Judge Gasch in 1988. I cross-examined several immunized witnesses and gave the closing argument. The defendant was convicted; I wrote the brief on appeal and handled the oral argument. The conviction was affirmed.

My representation lasted from approximately 1986 to 1990. I was counsel of record with co-counsel Gerard F. Treanor, Venable, 575 7th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20004, Tel (202) 344-8115. Opposing Counsel was USA Stuart Berman, United States Attorney’s Office for the District of Maryland, Southern Division, U.S. Courthouse, 6500 Cherrywood Lane, Greenbelt, MD 20770.

United States v. Mahoney, 893 F.2d 400 (D.C. Cir. 1990)

(7) Representation of Petitioner in Bunch v. Thompson, a pro bono death penalty appeal.

Under the leadership of former Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti, Venable volunteered to take on a pro bono death penalty appeal, and I was lead counsel on the matter. We handled the federal habeas petition at the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, the Fourth Circuit, and the Supreme Court of the United States, and, with the support of the victim’s family, prepared a clemency petition for the governor. When clemency was denied, we filed a second habeas petition, moving up through the Circuit Court of Prince William County, the Virginia Supreme Court, and the entire federal system again. We had no claim of innocence to pursue—the petition was based upon a violation of the defendant’s Miranda rights that resulted in a confession. In the Fourth Circuit, we obtained a rare dissent from one member of the panel. Ultimately, the appeal was unsuccessful.

My representation lasted from approximately 1990 to 1992. I was lead counsel of record with co-counsel Maria H. Tilden (then at Venable), Carefirst Blue Cross Blue Shield, 10453 Mill Run Circle, Owings Mills, Maryland 21117, Tel (410) 998 – 6001; and Gerard F. Treanor and Karl A. Racine, Venable, 575 7th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20004, Tel (202) 344-8115. Representing the government was John H. McLees, Jr., Assistant Attorney General, Office of the Attorney General, 900 East Main Street, Richmond, VA 23219, Tel (804) 786 – 2071.

(8) Representation of Defendant in United States v. Thomas — Military court martial, Dover AFB (I have been unable to locate the Case Number, Judge, and opposing counsel)

An Air Force obstetrician, who had only recently completed her medical training, was charged with leaving her post when she left the hospital while a patient—a high ranking officer’s wife—was in labor. Dr. Thomas departed the hospital at the end of her lengthy shift only after she had been informed that the physician relieving her was on his way, but the baby was born in the interim. Although there were no complications with the delivery, the doctor faced not only the end of the career she had just begun, but imprisonment for criminal dereliction of duty. We were able to obtain records from the hospital that reflected other officers’ practices and used them to cross examine the government’s witnesses about the scope of an obstetrician’s duty under the circumstances. Our client was acquitted by the court. I handled several witnesses and made the argument to the court at the close of the government’s case.

My representation lasted from approximately 1986 to 1988. I was counsel of record with co-counsel Gerard F. Treanor, Venable, 575 7th Street, N.W.; Washington, D.C.; 20004, Tel (202) 344-8115.

(D.C. Sup. Ct.) (Hon. Eugene M. Hamilton, J.)

Defendant Jordan was charged with two counts of first degree murder arising out of the deaths of the 3-year-old child of two D.C. police officers and her babysitter. The case raised difficult questions surrounding the admissibility of a confession and presented numerous issues arising out of the presence—or absence—of forensic evidence.

Mr. Jordan, an alcoholic, was questioned by Metropolitan Police officers. Since he was not in custody at the time the interview began, he was generally advised of his right to remain silent and his right to counsel, but the complete set of Miranda warnings was not read. Under questioning, he confessed to killing the babysitter and molesting and killing the child. After he had confessed and provided the officers with considerable detail that only the murderer would know, he was placed under arrest, and a formal Miranda waiver was executed.

As his stay at the police station wore on, Mr. Jordan began to exhibit signs of alcohol withdrawal. After his arrest, he agreed to be questioned again on videotape. By then, the withdrawal symptoms had worsened, and the physical effects of his illness were evident on the tape. Also, Mr. Jordan omitted or confused many of the details in the videotaped version of the interview. Thus, both the lengthy pre-trial hearings and the trial entailed considerable psychiatric testimony and legal argument as the defendant challenged the voluntariness of his confession and also sought to suppress it under Miranda v. Arizona.

The defendant was tied to the scene by several carpet fibers present on his clothing the day he was arrested, three weeks after the murders. However, his fingerprints were not among those found, and his blood, semen, and saliva were not found on the premises or on the victim’s clothing. The trial therefore also involved dueling experts in each of these fields of forensic science.

After the defendant was convicted of two counts of first degree murder, the Washington Post reported: “The jury had deliberated 15 hours over three days in the case that had produced some of the most emotional moments, hard-fought courtroom legal battles, and unusual legal twists in recent memory at D.C. Superior Court.” I was sole counsel on every aspect of the matter, including a mid-trial emergency appeal.

My representation took place in 1985. I was the sole prosecutor assigned to the case. Defense counsel was James McComas (then Chief, Felony Trial Division, D.C. Public Defender Service), P.O. Box 227, Park Falls, WI 54552, Tel (715) 383-2269.

(10) Representation of the United States in United States v. King (I have been unable to locate the Case Number) (D.C. Sup. Ct.) (Joseph M.F. Ryan, J.)

This was a retrial after a hung jury when the case was first tried by another prosecutor. The defendant was charged with second degree murder and assault with intent to kill while armed for an attack on his grandparents that resulted in his grandfather’s death and severe injuries to his grandmother. This time, he was convicted.

My representation took place in 1984. I was the sole prosecutor assigned to the case. Defense counsel was Michele D. Roberts (then at the D.C. Public Defender Service), Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld, PLLP, 1333 New Hampshire Avenue, N.W., Washington, DC 20036, Tel (202) 887-4306.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s).

(Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

I have not engaged in any lobbying activities.

2010: On March 5, the D.C. City Council retained Trout Cacheris to assist in its investigation of alleged irregularities surrounding the award of over 80 million dollars’ worth of contracts to individuals associated with the Mayor. This matter has just begun, but we will be reviewing the results of the Special Committee’s investigation to date, assisting in taking additional testimony, and providing our independent analysis. This is a pro bono representation.

2008: Representation of Defendant Taneja in United States v. Taneja. Mr. Taneja came to Trout Cacheris when his mortgage company was sued civilly by Wells Fargo in April of 2008. The pleadings alleged a complicated mortgage fraud scheme, and we initiated contact with the United States Attorney's Office to negotiate a resolution of the criminal prosecution that we anticipated would ensue. In the meantime, Mr. Taneja filed for bankruptcy. At the time of Mr. Taneja’s plea to a $50 million dollar scheme, the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the Eastern District of Virginia announced that his was the largest bank fraud case in the history of the Office. I was co-counsel on this matter but undertook primary responsibility for preparing Mr. Taneja for and facilitating the multiple de noticing sessions with the Department of Justice, as well as interacting with the large and contentious group of attorneys for the many creditors. The representation involved extensive negotiations over the terms of the plea agreement and the preparation of sentencing memoranda. Mr. Taneja was sentenced to a term of seven years. The extent of the fraud, and the difficulties involved in defending a mortgage fraud case during a time of great public interest in the role of mortgage market in the collapse of the economy made this a significant matter.

2007 – present: Representation of the head of world wide sales and marketing for the cargo division of a Chilean airline in an international criminal antitrust investigation involving fuel surcharges. The investigation is ongoing, and I have had no contact with the prosecutor to date.

2006 – 2008: Representation of an industrial chemical company salesperson who was the target of a bribery investigation into her company’s use of awards for volume purchases. The representation involved many meetings with the client to ascertain the facts, de noticing sessions with the prosecutors, and finally, a presentation in which we successfully urged the government to decline prosecution.

2006: Internal investigation: I had primary responsibility for a sensitive internal investigation at a major law firm looking into an employment dispute with a former partner. I interviewed a number of attorneys at the firm, reviewed emails and other documents, and reported our findings to the firm’s general counsel and other members of the management team.

2005: Representation of Defendant in United States v. Bedawi. Dr. Bedawi, an internationally renowned engineering professor at George Washington University, was alleged to have overcharged the U.S. government more than $700,000 on research contracts with the Department of Transportation. The matter resulted in a guilty plea and period of incarceration as well as a civil settlement of the false claims. I was involved in amassing and understanding the financial data, negotiating the terms of the plea and settlement, and preparing a sentencing memorandum.

2003 – 2004: Representation of the president of an industrial coal company in a criminal antitrust investigation. Our client was initially identified as a target of the criminal investigation, but he eventually testified before the grand jury and his testimony helped persuade the Antitrust Division that the matter did not warrant criminal prosecution.

2002 – 2005: Representation related to the embezzlement of funds from the Washington Teacher’s Union by Barbara Bullock. I represented Ms. Bullock’s sister, who had been a recipient of many of the ill-gotten luxury items, and our engagement began when the FBI executed a search warrant at her home. My client cooperated with the federal investigation, and ultimately, the government did not bring charges against her. I also represented Ms. Bullock’s sister in the parallel civil actions that were joined in American Federation of Teachers v. Bullock, No. 03-CV-79 (D.D.C.)

2001 – 2003: Representation of Plaintiff in Baycol MDL: We represented an individual in an action against Bayer, A.G., the manufacturer of the cholesterol lowering drug Baycol. Baycol was removed from the market in August 2001 due to reports of rhabdomyolysis, a severe and often fatal adverse reaction. Rhabdomyolysis involves muscle cell breakdown, which can lead to renal failure and other organ failure when the contents of the muscle cells enter the bloodstream. Elderly patients, especially those also taking another lipid lowering drug, were most susceptible to fatal rhabdomyolysis reactions. Our client began experiencing muscle weakness shortly after she began taking the medication, and her condition rapidly deteriorated. She reached the point where she could not move her arms and legs, and her muscle weakness compromised her ability to breathe, swallow, and open her eyes. She was close to death when her treating physicians recognized what was causing the problem. Our complaint was joined with others in the Baycol multi-district litigation, and the matter resulted in a negotiated settlement.

2001 – 2003: Representation of Carol Browner, the former Administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency: We represented Ms. Browner in connection with contempt proceedings in Landmark Legal Foundation v. Environmental Protection Agency, 272 F. Supp. 2d 70 (D.D.C. 2003). In 2000, the plaintiffs brought a Freedom of Information Act action seeking agency records concerning certain proposed regulations. On January 19, 2001, the eve of the change in administrations, the plaintiffs sought an order from the court barring the destruction of any responsive records. The court issued the order, but on that same date, Ms. Browner requested that her hard drive be reformatted and wiped clean in anticipation of the transition. Ms. Browner did not have notice of the court’s order at the time, and she did not utilize email during her term as EPA Administrator in any event. Based upon those facts, the court denied the plaintiffs’ motion to hold Ms. Browner in contempt personally although it granted the motion for sanctions against the agency.

1992 – 1994 (approx): Representation of a doctor and his wife who were passengers on US Air flight 447. In March 1992, a plane leaving LaGuardia for Cleveland attempted to take off even though too much time had elapsed after the wings had last undergone de-icing. Our clients survived the crash that plunged the plane into Flushing Bay, but they were badly injured. The wife was one of the most seriously injured passengers not killed in the crash, and she underwent multiple operations to repair the damage to her legs. The husband sustained a shoulder injury. While the passengers were struggling to get out of the frigid waters, the fuel on the surface ignited, and both of our clients also suffered burns which required them to endure excruciating burn treatment. The passengers’ cases were consolidated in the multi-district litigation for proceedings on the availability of punitive damages, but the cases were handled individually for purposes of compensatory damages. Our case raised particularly complicated and interesting valuation issues. The couple was quite wealthy, and the husband was eventually able to return to his radiology practice, but his economic success had come from his entrepreneurial energy and creativity, which were severely dampened by the emotional effects of the crash. The wife did not lose any income, but she had been a dancer and tennis player, and her legs were permanently damaged. The matter was resolved after protracted negotiations.

1988 – 1992: Representation of Dr. Baltimore: I participated in Venable’s representation of a Nobel prize winning biologist in connection with allegations of fraud in scientific research reported in an article which he co-authored. While Dr. Baltimore personally was not alleged to have engaged in any wrongdoing, he became the public face of the case due to his vociferous defense of his colleague, Dr. Imaiishi-Kari. The matter was significant because it involved monitoring parallel Congressional, administrative, and criminal proceedings, as well as managing the many consequences of the publicity surrounding the charges. The Congressional committee investigating the matter brought in document examiners from the U.S. Secret Service, who performed an ink and paper analysis and accused Dr. Imaiishi-Kari of falsifying data. The U.S. Attorney’s office ultimately concluded that the Secret Service’s analysis was flawed and unreliable, and no criminal charges were brought.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I do not expect to derive any income from any deferred income arrangements. I have a pension plan at Trout Cacheris, which I would roll over into an individual IRA if I am confirmed. My capital investment in the firm would be returned to me pursuant to the firm’s Operating Agreement.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I do not have plans to pursue outside employment during my service with the court.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

   a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

   If confirmed, I would recuse myself from any matter in which a party is represented by Trout Cacheris (my current law firm) or Kelley Drye (where my husband is a partner).

   At present, my husband and I own stock in a number of public companies. If confirmed, I will follow the guidance of the Administrative Office of U.S. Courts and of the District Court in undertaking any appropriate reinvestment into diversified funds. If I continue to own any individual stocks, I would recuse myself from any cases in which I have investments.

   b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

   I would handle all matters involving potential conflicts of interest through careful adherence to the Code of Conduct for United States Judges as well as other relevant Canons and statutory provisions, seeking to avoid not only actual conflicts of interest, but the appearance of any conflict. I would seek the advice of the Chief Judge and other more experienced jurists on the court if I was uncertain about what to do, and in close questions, I would err on the side of caution.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

At Trout Cacheris, I have worked on several matters for the non-profit organization, Food & Friends (approximately 25 hours). In 2005, I was retained by a small elementary school to look into allegations of inappropriate conduct by a teacher. The matter required great sensitivity in balancing the needs and sometimes conflicting views and concerns of the school students, their parents, the rest of the faculty, the school, and the teacher involved. This pro bono representation involved more than 30 hours of time. I currently represent a public charter school at a substantially reduced hourly rate (115 hours to date), and I also represented a group of young Bowie State College students in a small pro bono matter (25 hours).

On March 5, 2010, a Special Committee of the D.C. City Council engaged my partner, Robert Trout, and Trout Cacheris on a pro bono basis to assist it in its investigation of alleged irregularities surrounding the award of over 80 million dollars’ worth of contracts to individuals associated with the Mayor. I am assisting in this effort. We have been reviewing the results of the Special Committee’s investigation to date, assisting in taking additional testimony, and providing our independent analysis, and I have expended more than 150 hours on this matter to date. The work is likely to continue to occupy a substantial portion of my time for the next several months.

I also supervised and participated in a number of pro bono matters at Venable. In particular, I served as lead counsel when Venable undertook the pro bono representation of an indigent individual sentenced to death in Virginia. We pursued federal habeas relief at the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, the Fourth Circuit, and the U.S. Supreme Court, and prepared a clemency petition for the governor. When clemency was denied, we filed a second habeas petition, moving through the state system—the Circuit Court of Prince William County and Virginia Supreme Court—and the entire federal system again. Over the course of the representation, I personally spent more than 250 hours on the matter.

Also, I edited and supervised work on an amicus brief that Venable attorneys drafted pro bono for the Women’s Legal Defense Fund, on the question of whether the prior sexual history of the victim of sexual misconduct by a doctor should be admissible in a professional disciplinary proceeding.
From 1996 to 2001, I served as a member of the Parents Steering Committee for the Interdisciplinary Council for Learning and Communication Disorders, creating written materials and panel presentations for parents of children with autism.

Finally, when I left the U.S. Attorney's office in 1986, I volunteered to serve a three-year term as a Board member for the D.C. Rape Crisis Center in an effort to continue my work on behalf of victims of crime. After my term ended, I assisted by training volunteers three times a year and taking many calls at no charge informing RCC counselors and clients about their legal rights and obligations. I devoted at least 200 hours to Rape Crisis Center matters.

26. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

Since March 7, 2010, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. I interviewed with attorneys from the White House Counsel’s Office and the Department of Justice on April 13, 2010. On June 17, 2010, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

AFFIDAVIT

I, AMY BERNHAN JACKSON, do swear that the information provided in this statement is, to the best of my knowledge, true and accurate.

JUNE 16, 2010

Amy Bernhan Jackson

Shayna M. Ellerbe

Notary Public, District of Columbia
My Commission Expires 1/1/2017
Judge SHADID. Thank you, Senator Durbin and Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions and this Committee, for considering my nomination and everybody else’s nomination. And on a personal note, Senator Durbin, thank you very much for the confidence that you placed in me by sending my name on to the President. I appreciate that confidence you have in me and I can assure you that that confidence will be well placed. Thank you very much.

I’m proud to have present with me today my entire family. My wife, Jane; my sons, Jim and Joe; my daughter, Maggie. My parents are present, George and Lorraine Shadid. My niece is present, Lauren Shadid. Lauren is the daughter of my brother who passed from cancer 5 years ago. I’m glad that she was able to come with us today.

My cousin, who lives in the DC area, Tim Unes. And I saw a friend, a family friend, who is attending George Mason Law School; and, how he got wind of this I don’t know, but he appeared. So I’ll introduce him, as well, David Rashid.

Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you, Judge.

Judge Myerscough.

7. Military Service and Draft Status: Identify any service in the U.S. Military, including dates of service, branch of service, rank or rate, serial number (if different from social security number) and type of discharge received, and whether you have registered for selective service.

I have not served in the United States Military. I have not registered for selective service because I was born during a period when I was not required to do so.

8. Honors and Awards: List any scholarships, fellowships, honorary degrees, academic or professional honors, honorary society memberships, military awards, and any other special recognition for outstanding service or achievement.

Sheriff Schofield Community Service Award (2007)
Forty under Forty Award, InterBusiness Issues (1995)
Bradley University Athletic Hall of Fame (1984)
Baseball Scholarship to attend Bradley University (1975 – 1979)

9. Bar Associations: List all bar associations or legal or judicial-related committees, selection panels or conferences of which you are or have been a member, and give the titles and dates of any offices which you have held in such groups.

Abraham Lincoln Inn of the Court
American Bar Association
Illinois State Bar Association
Illinois Trial Lawyers Association
Peoria County Bar Association
Special Supreme Court Committee (Illinois) on Capital Cases (2010)

10. Bar and Court Admission:

   a. List the date(s) you were admitted to the bar of any state and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership.

      Illinois, 1983

      There has been no lapse in membership.

   b. List all courts in which you have been admitted to practice, including dates of admission and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership. Give the same information for administrative bodies that require special admission to practice.

United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, 1984
United States District Court for the Central District of Illinois, 1983
Supreme Court of Illinois, 1983

There has been no lapse in membership.

11. Memberships:

   a. List all professional, business, fraternal, scholarly, civic, charitable, or other organizations, other than those listed in response to Questions 9 or 10 to which you belong, or to which you have belonged, since graduation from law school. Provide dates of membership or participation, and indicate any office you held.

   Include clubs, working groups, advisory or editorial boards, panels, committees, conferences, or publications:

   Peoria Association for Retarded Citizens (1986 – 1989)
   President (1994)
   President (2000 – 2001)
   Old Timers Baseball Association (1985 – present)

   b. The American Bar Association's Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

   None of the organizations listed above discriminate on the basis of race, sex, religion, national origin, ethnicity, or sexual orientation.
12. Published Writings and Public Statements:
   a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

   None that I can recall or have been able to identify.

   b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

   None that I can recall or have been able to identify.

   c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

   None that I can recall or have been able to identify.

   d. Supply four (4) copies, transcripts or recordings of all speeches or talks delivered by you, including commencement speeches, remarks, lectures, panel discussions, conferences, political speeches, and question-and-answer sessions. Include the date and place where they were delivered, and readily available press reports about the speech or talk. If you do not have a copy of the speech or a transcript or recording of your remarks, give the name and address of the group before whom the speech was given, the date of the speech, and a summary of its subject matter. If you did not speak from a prepared text, furnish a copy of any outline or notes from which you spoke.

   As a judge, I have made it my practice to be involved in my community and to speak frequently to civic groups, students, and others, usually about the work of the judiciary. The list below is of all such speeches or talks I have been able to identify from my recollection, my files, and Internet searches, but there may be others that I was unable to find. All of my speeches have taken place in Peoria, Illinois.

August 20, 2009. Speech to Kiwanis Club, Peoria Castle Lodge, on drug awareness. No text.

Fall 2008. Appeared with Judge Mark Drummond and Judge Paul Gillilan at Peoria Notre Dame High School. Judge Drummond presented an Illinois Judges Association sponsored program called “Seven Reasons to Leave the Party.” Judge Gillilan and I did not present but we participated in a question and answer session after Judge Drummond’s presentation. No text.

October 2006. Speech to Easter Seals Dinner honoring my parents for their work with autistic children, Peoria Civic Center. Text supplied.

May 2006. Speech to Woodruff High School. No text.

2006. Speech to Kiwanis Club, Jumers Castle Lodge. No text.

December 2002. Remarks upon being sworn in as a judge. No text.

e. List all interviews you have given to newspapers, magazines or other publications, or radio or television stations, providing the dates of these interviews and four (4) copies of the clips or transcripts of these interviews where they are available to you.

I have given interviews only infrequently, but have not kept records of when I have done so. I have compiled the following list based on my recollection and searches of my files and Internet databases, but there may be others I have been unable to identify. Copies of all clips are supplied.

In 2007, I gave an interview to WCBD Radio about our court reorganization. I have no transcript or recording.

In 2002, I completed a questionnaire for judicial candidates, a copy of which is supplied. I also met with the editorial board of the Peoria Journal Star. I have no material to provide from that meeting.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

I have served as a Circuit Judge for the Tenth Judicial Circuit, State of Illinois, since December 2001. On December 1, 2001, I was appointed by the Illinois Supreme Court to fill a vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Donald Courson. On November 5, 2002, I was elected to a full six-year term as Circuit Judge. On November 4, 2008, I was retained for a second six-year term as Circuit Judge. The 10th Judicial Circuit is made up of Peoria, Tazewell, Stark, Putnam and Marshall Counties. The Circuit encompasses all trial courts in these counties, including felony, civil, family, juvenile, traffic and probate courts. Peoria and Tazewell Counties also have drug courts.

From 1996 to 2001, I served as a Commissioner of the Court of Claims, State of Illinois. I was appointed by Governor Jim Edgar. I presided over cases brought against the State of Illinois and made recommendations to the Court of Claims.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

I have presided over approximately 300 criminal jury and bench trials. I have presided over thousands of additional pleas and sentencings during my time as a judge.

i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

- jury trials: 75%
- bench trials: 25%
- civil proceedings: 10%
- criminal proceedings: 90%

b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

In the Illinois circuit courts, judges do not typically issue opinions. It is routine that findings, or rulings, are made from the bench and announced in open court, on the record, and transcribed by the court reporter or the electronic recording. The list below consists of written opinions I was able to identify from my files.

Civil Cases
- Garze v. Crane Inc., No. 01 L 201

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

1. People v. Bright, No. 05 CF 83. The defendant was charged with the murder of eight females who had been kidnapped and killed, and whose bodies had been burned. Although the State originally sought the death penalty, prosecutors agreed to a negotiated guilty plea on seven counts of first-degree murder and one count of drug-induced homicide. I imposed eight life sentences in prison.

The State's Attorneys were Kevin Lyons and Assistants Nancy Mermelstein and Dave Gast, Office of the State's Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 672-6900. The defense attorney was James Elmore, 808 S. Second St. Springfield, IL 62704, Tel: (217) 523-2340.

2. People v. Sargent, No. 08 CF 200. The defendants were charged with neglecting and starving their five-month-old child. The infant died after being without food and water for seven days. After a bench trial, I found the father guilty and sentenced him to 100 years in prison. Pursuant to a plea agreement, the mother pleaded guilty, and I imposed a sentence of fifty years in prison.

Father's case: The Assistant State's Attorneys were Nancy Mermelstein and Donna Cruz, Office of the State's Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 672-6900. The defense attorney was William Loeffel, Williams, Williams & Loeffer, P.C., 139 E. Washington St., East Peoria, IL 61611, Tel: (309) 694-3196.

Mother's case: The State's Attorney was Kevin Lyons. Office of the State's Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 672-6900. The defense attorney was Thomas J. Penn, Jr., 416 Commerce Bank Bldg, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 674-9332.

3. People v. Miller, No. 09 CF 454. The defendant, who had an extensive criminal history, was charged with trafficking over 140 pounds of cannabis. A jury found him guilty. I sentenced him to twenty-six years in prison.

The Assistant State's Attorneys were Jodi Hoos and Jeff Manderscheid, Office of the State's Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 672-6900. The defense attorneys were Stanley Hill, 651 W. Washington Blvd. Chicago, IL 60661, Tel: (312) 917-8888; and Karen Kamp and Cassandra Justice, 416 Main St. Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 497-3315.
4. People v. Bradley, No. 06 CF 949. The defendant was charged with heinous battery and aggravated domestic battery for torturing his wife over a two week period. A jury found the defendant guilty and I imposed the maximum sentence of fifty-nine years in prison.

The Assistant State’s Attorney was Larry Evans, Office of the State’s Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 672-6900. The defense attorneys were Kevin Sullivan, Janssen Bldg., 3d Floor, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 696-2500 and Collette Bailey, Office of the Public Defender, 416 Commerce Bank Bldg., Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 674-9332.

5. People v. Wright, No. 06 CF 20. The defendant was charged with murder. During a drug deal, he stole money and shot and killed the buyer. His co-defendant testified against him and he was found guilty by a jury verdict. I sentenced him to sixty years in prison.

The Assistant State’s Attorney was Nancy Mermelstein, Office of the State’s Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 672-6900. The defense attorney was Collette Bailey, Office of the Public Defender, 416 Commerce Bank Bldg., Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 674-9332.

6. People v. Crammick, No. 08 CF 1090. The defendant, a 24 year old soccer coach of a high school girls soccer team, was charged with Aggravated Criminal Sexual Abuse. Specifically, he was charged with committing an act of sexual conduct with a 16-year-old player on his team. The defendant denied the allegations, claiming he was being set up. The student testified as to the consensual nature of the conduct. Even though consensual, the age of the student made this act a felony by statute. A jury found the defendant guilty and I sentenced him to four years imprisonment. The Assistant State’s Attorney was Brian Fitzsimmons, Office of the State’s Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 672-6900. The defense attorney was Joel Brown, 416 Main Street, Suite 1300, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel 309-673-4357.

7. People v. Satterwhite, No. 04 CF 1179. Upon his release from a Michigan prison where he had been incarcerated on a prior conviction, the defendant returned home to Peoria where he beat and sexually assaulted his mother. A jury found him guilty and I sentenced him to thirty years in prison.

The Assistant State’s Attorney was Nancy Mermelstein, Office of the State’s Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 672-6900. The defense attorney was Robert Gauhas (no longer practicing law).

8. People v. McCollr, No. 08 CF 102. The defendant in this case was charged with robbery of a pharmacy. Surveillance video had captured the defendant walking up a set of stairs to the store manager’s office, where he repeatedly assaulted the store manager on the head with a hammer, took money and left. After a bench trial, I found the defendant guilty and sentenced him to thirty years in prison.

The Assistant State’s Attorney was Seth Uphoff, Office of the State’s Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 616102, Tel: (309) 672-6900. The defense attorney was Collette Bailey, Office of the Public Defender, 416 Commerce Bank Bldg., Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 674-9332.

9. People v. Harris (04 CF 897). The defendant was charged with armed robbery in a local bar. He was found guilty by jury verdict and sentenced to twenty-four years in prison. The defendant appealed his conviction over an issue of admissibility of prior juvenile adjudications. The Appellate Court of Illinois, Third District, and the Supreme Court of Illinois affirmed my rulings. 901 N.E.2d 367 (Ill. 2008).

The Assistant State’s Attorney was Jodi Hoos, Office of the State’s Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 616102, Tel: (309) 672-6900. The defense attorney was Gary Morris, 411 Hamilton Blvd. Peoria, IL 61602-3100, Tel: (309) 676-1594.

10. People v. Williams, No. 07 CF 111. Under the pretense of a drug deal, the defendant, along with three other individuals, planned to rob the occupants of a residence. The principal defendant and three accomplices entered the building, encountered the victim cooking dinner, and killed the victim when he approached the door. I imposed a life sentence on the principal defendant.

The Assistant State’s Attorney was Jodi Hoos, Office of the State’s Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 616102, Tel: (309) 672-6900. The defense attorney was William Loeffel, Williams, Williams & Loeffel, P.C., 139 E. Washington St., East Peoria, IL 61611, Tel: (309) 694-3196.

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

I am not aware of any case I decided in which certiorari was requested or granted by the Supreme Court of the United States.
f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

As a trial judge, I have sought to apply the law to the facts in each case before me and have not tracked appeals and reversals. To prepare my answer to this question, I supplemented the cases I recalled by requesting from the Appellate Court of Illinois (Third District) a report of appeals of cases over which I presided.

I recall the following reversals in detail:

People v. Alexander, 05 CF 80 and No. 3-08-0373. The Appellate Court found that I had erred in sentencing a defendant to 24 years imprisonment for discharge of a firearm and unlawful use of a weapon by treating the occurrence of the crime in a school (where the defendant shot five times at the victim while chasing him through school hallways where other teachers and students were present) as an aggravating factor. On remand, I imposed the same sentence based on the number of shots fired and the circumstances of the offense. The Appellate Court reduced the sentence to six years.

People v. Newborn, 379 Ill. App. 3d 240 (Ill. App. Ct 2008). The Appellate Court remanded for a new trial on armed robbery charges, finding that I had improperly refused to allow impeachment of a witness with the witness’ juvenile felony adjudications.

People v. Holley, 879 N.E.2d 530 (Ill. App. Ct. 2007). The Appellate Court remanded for hearing on an ineffective assistance of counsel claim, which was based on defendant’s assertion that he had told his attorney he wanted a bench trial rather than a jury trial on charges of aggravated criminal sexual assault, and for resentencing in light of a citation to an incorrect code subsection.
Although there may be others I have been unable to identify, I generated the following list of other reversals from the Appellate Court report of appeals from my cases and from my notes:

People v. Thompson, No. 3-05-0205 (reverse/remand)
People v. Woosten, No. 3-05-0239 (remand for hearing post-conviction)
People v. Jackson, Nos. 3-05-0301 & 3-05-0338 (remand for hearing post-conviction)
People v. Lilly, No. 3-05-0433 (remand ineffective assistance of counsel) People v. Woods, No. 3-06-0120 (remand for hearing post-conviction)
People v. Pruitt, No. 3-06-0765 (remand for hearing post-conviction)
People v. Younger, No. 3-07-014 (reversed – remand new trial)
People v. Young, No. 3-07-0331 (remand ineffective assistance of counsel) People v. Alexander, No. 3-08-0373 (affirmed judgment, reduced sentence) People v. Brown, No. 3-09-0225 (remand 604(d) certificate)
People v. McDonald (remand 604(d) certificate)

1. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpunished opinion and the manner in which those unpunished opinions are filed and/or stored.

As is typical in Illinois circuit courts, I make most rulings and decisions from the bench, in open court, on the record for transcription by the court reporter or recording by electronic device. My rulings and decisions are almost always accompanied by my reasoning. All of my written opinions have been unpunished.

2. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to applicable court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

None.

3. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

I have not sat by designation on a federal court of appeals.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (if your court employs an “automatic” recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party, or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

Our court does not employ an automatic recusal system. Recusal is governed by the procedures and guidelines in Rule 63 of the Illinois Code of Judicial Conduct, and as provided by statute. I also undertake my own analysis about any potential conflict or appearance of conflict based on the facts and circumstances of each case.

The Code of Conduct, Rule 63c, sets a time frame for recusal as it pertains to prior representation of a party or a witness. In these instances, strict compliance with the Rule resolves any appearance that impartiality might reasonably be questioned.

In other instances of prior representation, outside of the time frame requiring recusal, I have in each case made full disclosure on the record and in open court. In some cases, I have made the full disclosure in open court and then allowed the parties to make a determination as set forth in our Code of Conduct. In other cases, I have recused myself in the first instance.

Illinois Supreme Court Rule 402 allows the court to become involved in plea discussions in criminal cases where the defendant requests and the State consents to such involvement. After a record is made, and if the 402 conference occurs, there is a procedure for recusal if the court has given conditional concurrence to a negotiated plea and later withdraws that conditional concurrence.

Illinois also has a statute that allows a party an automatic substitution of judge if done within 10 days of the case being placed on the judge’s call.

Although I have not kept records of cases in which I recused myself or in which my recusal was requested, I recall three specific cases:

People v. Hinkle, Nos. 08 CF 52; 08 CF 187; 08 CF 256. I recused myself sua sponte. Hinkle was charged with several counts of aggravated sexual assault and the case was assigned to my courtroom. During the pretrial portion, the case became an issue in the contested State’s Attorney’s race. The defense filed motions for change of venue and requests for certain information. In particular, the defense stated an intent to subpoena Darin LaHood (the challenger) as a witness for these hearings. Given that I know both Mr. LaHood and Mr. Kevin Lyons (the incumbent), I recused myself from the case.

People v. Herndon, No. 09 CF 1046. The defendant moved for substitution of judge pursuant to 725 ILCS 5/114-5, which, upon motion of a party, provides for an automatic substitution of judge within 10 days of a matter being placed on the judges trial call. The statute does require the defendant to state a reason if the motion is timely filed.

Ruch v. Ruch, No. 04 D 225. Defendant Ruch was a lawyer in Kankakee, Illinois, involved in this contentious divorce proceeding with his wife. The Kankakee County courts looked for a judge from out of the area to handle the case. When I took the case, Mr. Ruch moved to recuse me. I do not know why. To avoid having the matter delayed, another judge from our circuit took over the case.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

   a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

      I have not held public office other than judicial office. In 1990, I was unsuccessfully a candidate for Circuit Judge of the Tenth Judicial Circuit, State of Illinois. I have had no other unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

   b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

      Volunteer, Edward Kennedy for President, Peoria, Illinois, 1980. I distributed literature, put up signs and spoke at campaign events throughout central Illinois

      Volunteer, Neil Hartigan for Attorney General of the State of Illinois, Chicago, Volunteer, George Shadid for Peoria County Sheriff, Peoria, Illinois, 1976-1978-1982-1986 and 1990. I distributed literature, put up signs and spoke at campaign events.

      Volunteer, George Shadid for Illinois State Senate 46th District, Peoria, Tazewell Candidate, James E. Shadid for Circuit Judge, Peoria, Illinois, 1990 (lost).

I was a member of the Young Democrats in the mid 1980s and early 1990s. I attended various local political functions.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

   I did not serve as clerk to a judge.

ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

   I was a sole practitioner from 1983 to 2001 at the following addresses:

   627 Commerce Bank, Peoria, Il 61602 (1990-1994)

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

Law Partner

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I did not serve as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings.

b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

I set up my law practice immediately upon my admission to the Illinois bar in 1983. I rented an office from Mr. Harry Sonnemaker, Jr. Initially, my practice consisted of family law and traffic cases. Mr. Sonnemaker was a lawyer for the Peoria Credit Union and he allowed me to handle much of his collection work to help my practice start growing.

In the mid 1980s, my work grew into a more general practice of law. I worked in many areas, including contracts, simple wills and estates, small personal injury cases, workmen’s compensation, traffic, misdemeanor and felony cases. By the end of the 1980s I was being retained in a number of criminal cases in the misdemeanor and felony courts.

In 1990, I partnered with Raymond C. Rose for approximately one year. During my partnership with Mr. Rose, I handled personal injury and medical malpractice cases.

Beginning about 1990, I started receiving some high profile cases. Although I handled some serious personal injury cases in the civil courts, I spent most of my time in the criminal courts, at both the state and federal level.
During the course of the next 10 years, I tried approximately 12 murder trials to jury verdict in the Peoria county circuit courts. Two of these were death penalty eligible. In the state courts, I tried cases of home invasion, armed robbery, delivery of controlled substances, and burglary, among others. In the federal courts I tried gambling and tax evasion, conspiracy to deliver controlled substances, and welfare fraud. I handled cases such as mail fraud, RICO actions, cocaine distribution and illegal transportation of wildlife in interstate commerce.

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

My typical clients were individuals in need of contracts, simple will and estate work, or representation in injury, workmen's compensation, traffic, misdemeanor and felony cases. During my partnership with Mr. Rose I also handled medical malpractice cases.

After 1990, criminal law was my specialty.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

Much of my practice was in litigation requiring frequent court appearances from 1984 to 2001.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. federal courts: 10%
   2. state courts of record: 88%
   3. other courts:
   4. administrative agencies: 2%

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. civil proceedings 25%
   2. criminal proceedings 75%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I have tried hundreds of cases to jury verdict, almost all as sole counsel.

i. What percentage of these trials were:
   1. jury: 80%
   2. non-jury: 20%
e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I unsuccessfully filed a petition for certiorari in Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) v. Hiram Walker & Sons Inc., a matter in which I represented 39 female employees of the defendant company as intervenors in a settlement between the EEOC and the defendant company. 768 F2d 884 (7th Cir. 1985), cert denied, 478 U.S. 1004 (1986). I have not retained copies of the petition. I recall no other practice before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented, describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

a. the date of representation;

b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and

c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

1. EEOC v. Hiram Walker, No. 83-CV-1024 (C.D. Ill.), 768 F2d 884 (7th Cir. 1985), cert denied, 478 U.S. 1004 (1986). Hiram Walker had been a major employer in Peoria since 1934. In 1983, the EEOC and Hiram Walker reached a settlement on claims by women workers that, during the 1960s and 1970s, they had suffered segregated job classifications, been promoted less frequently, and been paid lower salaries with smaller pensions than their male co-workers. I represented 39 women employees who challenged this settlement as intervenors on appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. The question on appeal was whether the district court abused its discretion in approving the consent decree, which granted limited relief to the class of employees as a whole and virtually no relief to those employees, many of them charging parties, who allegedly endured the most discrimination. Although we were unsuccessful, I believe this was among the most significant representations I took on as a practicing attorney. My co-counsel was Kevin Lyons, Office of the State's Attorney, Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel: (309) 672-6900.

2. United States v. Long, No. 98-cr-10664 (C.D. Ill. 1998). My client, the defendant, was charged with a number of others in a RICO action, cocaine distribution and transportation of stolen vehicles. The defendant reached a plea agreement and was sentenced to the Federal Bureau of Prisons. The Hon. Michael M. Mihm presided.

Assistant United States Attorney was K. Tate Chambers, Peoria Office, 211 Fulton, Suite 400, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel (309) 671-7050.

3. United States v. Reimer, No. 97-cr-10050 (C.D. Ill. 1997). Reimer was charged with illegal transportation of wildlife in interstate commerce. He hired a lawyer from Arizona and I acted as local counsel. The case was dismissed at the motion stage, with the court finding that the prosecution was barred by a previous plea agreement the defendant had entered into in Missouri. Magistrate Kauffman presided over the case. The Assistant United States Attorney was Brad Murphy, Peoria Office, 211 Fulton, Suite 400, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel (309) 671-7050.

4. United States v. Smith, No. 94-cr-30014 (C.D. Ill. 1994). My client, Smith, and six others were charged with conspiracy to conduct a gambling operation. Smith was found guilty by jury verdict. The verdict was set aside by Judge Richard Mills in post-trial motions and Smith ultimately plead guilty to a misdemeanor. The Assistant United States Attorney was Pat Cheele, United States Courthouse, Rm 362, 600 E. Monroe, Springfield, IL 62701, Tel (217) 492-4450.

5. People v. Miles, No. 91 CF 575 (Ill. Cir. Ct. Peoria County 1991). My client, Miles, was charged with the murder of an individual in a drug house in Peoria's Warner Homes housing complex. Miles was found not guilty. Judge John Barra presided. The Assistant State’s Attorneys were Al Purham and Joe Nock, 324 Main St., Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel (309) 672-6900.

6. People v. Behm, No. 97 CF 891 (Ill. Cir. Ct. Peoria County 1997). Behm was charged with the murder of a patron at a local bar. The deceased had assaulted Behm's niece some years before. Behm was entertaining when the deceased walked in and sat down. The two exchanged words and Behm shot him six times. Behm was found guilty by jury verdict and sentenced to forty-five years in prison. Judge Donald Courson presided. The Assistant State’s Attorney was Frank Jerelli, 324 Main St., Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel (309) 672-6900.

7. People v. Childs, No. 99 CF 810 (Ill. Cir. Ct. Peoria County 1999). My client, Childs, was charged with murder. He and a friend planned to rob someone they knew. Childs was instructed to go to the rear of the house and fire into the back of the house, which in turn would cause the people inside to run out the front. His cohort planned to wait out front and rob the residents at gun point when they exited. Childs had a semiautomatic assault weapon. He fired more than thirty rounds into the back of the house, some of which struck and killed his cohort on the front porch. Childs was found guilty by jury verdict and sentenced to fifty years in prison. Judge Michael Brandt presided. The Assistant State’s Attorney was Nancy Merrelstein, 324 Main St., Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel (309) 672-6900.

8. People v. Milestone, No. 93 CF 613 (Ill. Cir. Ct. Peoria County 1993). Milestone was charged with the murder of a fellow worker. Upon Milestone's arrest his mother called me and arranged for my representation. I called the sheriff's department and spoke to the detective in charge. I told him I would be representing Milestone and would like to talk to him on the phone. I was told that Milestone, who was age 23, had not requested an attorney. Milestone did not know that I had called and subsequently confessed. The pre-trial Motion to suppress the confession was denied and Milestone was found guilty by jury verdict. Milestone was sentenced to forty-five years in prison. Judge Robert Manning presided. On appeal the case was reversed and the confession was suppressed. On remand, Milestone pleaded guilty to second degree murder and per the negotiated plea was sentenced to fifteen years in prison. The Assistant State's Attorney was Al Purham, 324 Main St., Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel (309) 672-6900.

9. Yetton v. Henderson, No. 86 L 527 (Ill. Cir. Ct. Peoria County 1986). My client, Yetton, was injured when a semi driven by Henderson switched lanes in front of him. Yetton's vehicle slammed into the rear of the semi. Defendant Henderson's wife had been a passenger in the semi. At trial the plaintiff was not allowed to testify as to the events of the accident because of the Dead Man's Act (Henderson had died subsequent to the accident and prior to trial). At trial, the deceased's wife testified as to the deceased's careful driving habits. I started to cross examine about the accident. The defense objected. I argued the door was open and the Dead Man's Act no longer prohibited examination about the event. Judge Eagleton disagreed, sustaining the defense objection and further instructing the jury to disregard the testimony. The jury verdict was for the defense. I appealed. The Third District Appellate Court reversed on the issue of the Dead Man's Act and remanded for new trial. The case settled before retrial. Judge Richard Eagleton presided. The defense lawyer was Paul Gilfillan, now at Peoria County Courthouse, 215, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel (309) 672-6047.

10. People v. Miller, No. 92 CF 22 (Ill. Cir. Ct. Peoria County 1992). My client, Stanley, was one of three co-defendants charged with aggravated battery and mob action. The three victims were members of the World Wrestling Association. The victims had finished an event at the Peoria Civic Center and were driving to their motel, after having had a few beers. They encountered the defendants in their own vehicle, the occupants of both vehicles exchanged words and then stopped and engaged in a confrontation in which my client and his co-defendants were alleged to have injured the victims with a knife. The defendants were found guilty by jury verdict and sentenced. Judge Donald Counson presided. The Assistant State's Attorney were Dale Thomas and Ed Deters, 324 Main St., Peoria County Courthouse, Peoria, IL 61602, Tel (309) 672-6900.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

Until I became a judge, my practice was primarily in litigation before the courts.
In 2007, I spearheaded the reorganization of the Peoria County courts that handle traffic, DUI, and misdemeanor matters. These courts have approximately 13,000 filings each year. Although Circuit Judges do not routinely preside over traffic or misdemeanor courts, I volunteered for an assignment to those courts for the specific purpose of devising a solution to the large backlog of cases and to devise a docket management procedure so the backlog did not occur again. Another purpose of the reorganization, in addition to reducing backlog, was to reduce the amount of time citizens would spend in court waiting for their case to be called and the number of court appearances those citizens would have to make to process their cases expeditiously.

Another significant legal activity was seeking—and receiving—approval from the American Bar Association to administer a project called “Dialogue on Freedom.” Upon approval, and receipt of information, I contacted local high schools and presented the first program at Bradley University. The Hon. Michael M. Bihm presented with me. The dialogue was with students from a number of high schools. I believe this is significant because the purpose was to explore American civic values and traditions with students.

Another significant legal activity is that I am currently involved in studying the feasibility of starting a law school at Bradley University. Joanne Glasser, President of Bradley, requested that Rex Linder, a partner at a major Peoria law firm, and I, explore this possibility beginning in summer 2009. Mr. Linder and I sought input from a number of academics and law school deans. Based on our recommendations, the Board of Trustees of Bradley University has initiated a formal feasibility study.

I have not performed any lobbying activities and have never been registered as a lobbyist.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

Spring 2002 to 2004: Adjunct professor teaching legal research online at Illinois Central College. The subject matter was legal research. I have not retained the syllabus.

Winter 2003: for one semester, an Adjunct professor teaching Civil Procedure online at Mid State College. The subject matter was civil procedure. I have not retained the syllabus.

Spring 2004 to the present: an Adjunct professor at Bradley University. The course is called the “Legal Environment of Business.” The subject matter covers the framework of the courts, constitutional issues, the civil and criminal trial process, business crimes, torts and product liability, agency and employment discrimination. Syllabus supplied.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.

21 Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

None.

22 Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23 Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24 Potential Conflicts of Interest:

a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

None.

b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

I would resolve any conflicts by strict compliance with the recusal statutes and with Canon 3 of the Code of Conduct for United States Judges, as well as with careful attention to any other applicable guidelines.

I am well aware that our legal system is based on the principle that an independent, fair and competent judiciary is central to the concepts of justice and the rule of law. I am aware, as well, that it is a judge's special responsibility to conduct himself or herself at all times—inside and outside of the courtroom—in a manner that will foster respect for the judiciary and our rule of law.
25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

During the course of my practice I represented many people, free of charge, due to their lack of ability to pay. I am unable to list specific instances but most of these instances would have been in traffic or misdemeanor court or in divorce or forcible detainer cases.

Since becoming a judge, I have continued to seek opportunities to make the legal system available to those who might not otherwise have access. For example, as a judge assigned to family court from 2002 to 2003, I worked with Prairie State Legal Services to set aside a couple of days specifically for Prairie State to assist in resolving a backlog of hundreds of pending dissolution of marriage cases.

26. Selection Process:

a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

In September 2009, Senator Richard Durbin formed a bipartisan screening committee, chaired by Mr. James Potter, to evaluate applications for the position of United States District Judge for the Central District of Illinois. I submitted an application to the Committee.

In mid-December 2009, Mr. Potter contacted me to schedule an interview with the committee. I interviewed with the committee in Peoria on January 6, 2010. The commission recommended my candidacy to Senator Durbin. I interviewed with Senator Durbin, at his Springfield office on January 23, 2010.

Since February 19, 2010, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. I interviewed with attorneys from the White House Counsel’s Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C., on April 1, 2010. On May 27, 2010, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

EMILY ADAMS
NOTARY PUBLIC - STATE OF ILLINOIS
MY COMMISSION EXPIRES 05/06/2014
STATEMENT OF JUDGE SUE E. MYERSCOUGH, NOMINATED TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE CENTRAL DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS

Judge MYERSCOUGH. Thank you, Chairman. Thank you for presiding today and thank you for the recommendation for this position, as well as Senator Burris. I want to thank the Committee members for being here today and for their thorough consideration. I'd also like to thank their staff members, because I know they do quite a bit of work themselves.

I'd especially like to thank the President for the nomination and the faith he's put in me and the faith that you've put in me for so many years.

And at this time, I'd like to introduce my family and some of my friends who are attending. My parents were unable to attend, as was my father-in-law, due to health reasons, unfortunately. They send their regrets.

My husband of 35 years is here, Bob Mueller; my two daughters, Sarah and Lauren; my older brother, Michael Myerscough; a colleague of yours from many years ago, John Keith; and, as well, Tom Lamont, who is the Assistant Secretary of the Army now; and, John Michelich, a long-time Springfield resident who has moved out here; and, Harry Metz.

Thank you.

[The biographical information follows.]

10. Bar and Court Admission:

    a. List the date(s) you were admitted to the bar of any state and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership.

    Illinois, 1980

    There has been no lapse in membership.

    b. List all courts in which you have been admitted to practice, including dates of admission and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse

    5
in membership. Give the same information for administrative bodies that require special admission to practice.

United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, 1999
United States District Court for the Central District of Illinois, 1980
United States District Court for the Southern District of Illinois, 1984

There have been no lapses in membership.

11. Memberships:

   a. List all professional, business, fraternal, scholarly, civic, charitable, or other organizations, other than those listed in response to Questions 9 or 10 to which you belong, or to which you have belonged, since graduation from law school. Provide dates of membership or participation, and indicate any office you held. Include clubs, working groups, advisory or editorial boards, panels, committees, conferences, or publications.

   - Copley First Citizen Panel (1995)
   - Horace Mann Scholarships Committee (1997)
   - Illini Country Club (1982 – present)
   - SIU School of Law Board of Visitors (2001 – present)
   - Springfield Art Association (approximately 1982 – 1988)
   - Springfield Police Chief Executive Review Committee (2003)
   - Women in Management (2000 – 2007)

   During the 1970s, I engaged in occasional fundraising for the American Heart Association and the American Cancer Society. I do not know if these organizations considered me a member. Since 1981, I have been active as a volunteer and as a director (2003 – 2006) of Sojourn Shelter and Services, Inc., although it is not a membership organization.

   Over the years, I have made other charitable contributions to organizations that may have considered me a member solely by virtue of those contributions. In recent years, these have included the American Diabetes Association, Animal Protective League, Benid Adopt-a-Pet, Boy Scouts Local Troop, Catholic Charities, the Children's Miracle Network, Girl Scouts Local Troop, Minnie O'Beirne Crisis Center, the Multiple Sclerosis Society, the Parent Place, Planned Parenthood, Ronald McDonald House, St. John's Breadline, the Salvation Army, Simmons Cancer Institute, the Springfield Ballet Company, Springfield Parks Foundation, United Cerebral Palsy Association, United Way, and the YMCA Christmas Camp.

b. The American Bar Association’s Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to Item above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion, or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

My husband joined Illini Country Club in 1982 and I became a member in my own right when, several years ago, spouses of then-current members were themselves made members. Many years ago, race, sex and religion were bars to membership. Illini Country Club previously had a men’s only grill and on three mornings each week had men’s only tee times. My husband and I voiced our objections repeatedly thereto, and these policies were changed in 2002. My husband is also a member of the Sangamon Club, a dining establishment that I use for court meetings. Many years ago, women were not allowed to be members or to dine on the main floor of the restaurant; however, that Club does not so discriminate today. I am not aware of any other discrimination, past or present, by the organizations I have listed.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum, or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

None that I recall. Some of the court and bar association committees on which I have served have occasionally made court administration rules.

recommendations or suggestions of various levels of formality, but I have been unable to find or remember any written reports of such recommendations made during my time on a committee.

c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

I searched my recollection, my files, and Internet sources to identify the following instances in which I gave testimony to public bodies, though there may be other occasions that I have been unable to identify.

In approximately 2009, I appeared before an Illinois Senate Committee on court security issues. I have no written testimony or other transcript.

I testified before the Illinois State Legislature in Spring of 1997 regarding the need for more money for local probation services in the Juvenile Justice Reform Act. I have no written testimony or other transcript.

In the early 1990s, I testified to the Springfield City Council on a local zoning issue. A neighbor was seeking to rezone land nearby my home for industrial use. I do not have any record of my testimony.

d. Supply four (4) copies, transcripts or recordings of all speeches or talks delivered by you, including commencement speeches, remarks, lectures, panel discussions, conferences, political speeches, and question-and-answer sessions. Include the date and place where they were delivered, and readily available press reports about the speech or talk. If you do not have a copy of the speech or a transcript or recording of your remarks, give the name and address of the group before whom the speech was given, the date of the speech, and a summary of its subject matter. If you did not speak from a prepared text, furnish a copy of any outline or notes from which you spoke.

I have searched my files and databases to locate same. I have also contacted the agencies and bar associations and asked them to search as well. I have located the materials attached as 12d, but there are some which I have not kept of record. I keep very few copies due to storage limitations and have reused many of these speeches on several occasions.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

From July 1987 to December 1990, I served as an Associate Judge on the Seventh Judicial Circuit of Illinois, appointed by the circuit judges of this trial court of general jurisdiction. By authorization of the Chief Judge of the court and as permitted by statute, Associate Judges in our court had the same jurisdiction as Circuit Judges, including over all felony cases.

Since December 1998, I have served as Appellate Court Justice for the Fourth District Appellate Court, an elected position with appellate jurisdiction. Our court hears appeals of right from the circuit court and a number of state agencies, such as the Illinois Commerce Commission. From 2002 to 2003 and again since 2009, I have served as Presiding Justice of the Fourth District Appellate Court of Illinois.

a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

As a trial judge, I presided over thousands of cases that have gone to verdict or judgment. These ranged in length and complexity from simple traffic cases to complex civil litigation and murder trials. In addition, I have authored approximately 1,280 decisions in the appellate court and been a panel member on 3,930 cases.

i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

- jury trials: 20%
- bench trials: 80%
- civil proceedings: 50%
- criminal proceedings: 50%
b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

See attached list of opinions.

c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (4) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

Given the age of my trial court cases, the court files are no longer available. I have reconstructed information for my answers below based upon my best recollection and any appellate rulings (published or unpublished) that I was able to locate.

1. People v. Edgington, Circuit Court of Sangamon County, case No. 90CF328, aff'd in part, rev'd in part, No. 4-91-0897 (1992) (unpublished order supplied), appeal denied, 612 N.E.2d 518 (Ill. 1993). Defendant Edgington and four other men stalked a female college student, blocking her car on a back country road. Defendant pulled the victim from her car when she rolled down her window. She was abducted and found slain in a cornfield days later. In this death-eligible murder trial, the jury found defendant guilty of murder. As the jury began deliberation on the penalty phase, defendant sought to waive the jury. I denied the motion. The jurors found defendant eligible for the death penalty, but they did not impose it. I sentenced defendant to life in prison on the murder count. Following remand from the Appellate Court, I resentenced on a lesser charge that was to be served concurrently but that did not affect the total sentence.

The prosecutor was Don Cadagin, 3924 Stone Bridge Road, Springfield, IL 62711, (217) 787-6587. The defense attorney was Jon Noll, 802 S. Second Street, Springfield, IL 62704, (217) 544-8441.

2. People v. Asbestosproy, Circuit Court of Sangamon County, case No. 90L407, rev'd and rem'd, 616 N.E.2d 652 (Ill. App. Ct. 1993). The State filed suit against two manufacturers of asbestos-containing products used in the construction of a public building. I dismissed the suit as unavuncial. The appellate court reversed, finding (1) the construction statute of repose did not bar the State's cause of action and (2) the State had benefit of a common law exemption from the statute of repose for product liability actions. The appellate court also held that the construction statute's protections could only be invoked by those manufacturers who had a role in the building construction that went beyond simply providing standard products and that defendants in this case were unable to claim such a role.

Attorneys for the State were Assistant Attorney General Marilyn Kueper, 500
South Second Street, Springfield IL (217) 525-1070. Defense attorneys were Howard Emmeman, 161 No. Clark Street, Suite 2600, Chicago IL 60601-3297, (312) 368-4031.

3. American Home v. Golumb, Circuit Court of Sangamon County, case No. 91CH104, aff'd, 259 Ill. App. 3d 37, 606 N.E.2d 793 (1992), appeal denied, 151 Ill. 2d 561, 616 N.E.2d 331. After the client discharged the attorney, the attorney sought to recover his attorney fees under a theory of quantum meruit. I dismissed the complaint because Illinois law prohibits an attorney from recovering fees under a theory of quantum meruit where the original contingent-fee agreement was an illegal contract and against public policy. The appellate court affirmed.

Principal attorneys were William McNutt, 3071 N. Water Street, Decatur IL 62526-2464, (217) 429-1600, and Dave Requa, who no longer practices law.

4. Morris v. City of Springfield, Circuit Court of Sangamon County, case No. 91MR228 (no appeal). This was an appeal from the Springfield City Council's denial of an election recount. The City argued the circuit court lacked jurisdiction to order a recount. I found jurisdiction and ordered an election recount. The candidate had won by one vote, and evidence was presented of questionable voting and registration practices of the election commission. My decision was not appealed.

Principal attorneys were Jim Morphew, 607 E. Adams, Suite 800, Springfield, IL 62701-1623, (217) 544-1144; T. McGarry (deceased); Neil Flynn, 1035 S. Second Street, Springfield, IL 62701, (217) 544-0761; Bob Hall, 200 S. Ninth Street, Springfield, IL 62701, (217) 753-6826; and Jim Zerkle, 500 W. Monroe, Springfield, IL 62704, (217) 528-5627.

5. Illinois Municipal League v. Seibert, Circuit Court of Sangamon County, case No. 90MR238, rev'd, 585 N.E.2d 1130 (Ill. App. Ct. 1992). This was a declaratory judgment suit filed by the municipal insurer against a police officer who had been sued, together with the City, for civil rights violation by a detainee. The insurer submitted that it was not obligated to turn over control of the defense to the defendant police officer. On cross-motions for summary judgment, I found no conflict of interest existed between the insurer defending both the City and the police officer. The appellate court reversed, finding (1) the officer's interests could be prejudiced if he was represented by counsel selected by the association and (2) "a conflict between the parties' interests in the way the constitutional claim and the punitive damages claim might be defended."

Principal attorneys were Stan Morris, 3104 Kensington Drive, Springfield, IL 62702, (217) 793-3075 and Kent Heller, 1101 Broadway Avenue, Charleston, IL 61928-4122, (217) 255-2700.
6. Aircgo Industrial Gas Division v. Illinois Department of Revenue, Circuit Court of Sangamon County, case No. 90MR177, aff'd, 583 N.E.2d 1017 (III. App. Ct. 1991). The Department of Revenue assessed a deficiency under the Retailers' Occupation Tax Act against Aircgo, which sells industrial gases, for facilities fees the company charged. I reversed the Department’s decision. The appellate court affirmed, agreeing that the deficiency should not have been assessed because customers were not required to rent equipment from Aircgo but could instead purchase and use their own.

Principal attorneys were Pat Reilly, 607 E. Adams, Suite 800, Springfield, IL 62701-1623, Attorney General Roland Burris, (217) 782-1090, and Hi. Randolph Williams, (312) 861-8000.

7. Groves v. Department of Professional Regulation, Circuit Court of Sangamon County, case No. 90MR165 aff'd, 583 N.E.2d 93 (III. App. Ct. 1991). The Department of Professional Regulation denied an application for an Illinois engineering license made by an engineer who was already licensed in Texas. I held that the applicant met the requirements of the Professional Engineering Practice Act of 1989. The appellate court affirmed.

Principal attorneys were W. Trapp (deceased), (217) 544-8491 and Attorney General Roland Burris, (217) 782-1090. Jan Hughes, Assistant Attorney General, (312) 814-3000, 100 W. Randolph Street, Chicago, IL 60601.

8. AFSCME v. Netsch, Circuit Court of Sangamon County, case No. 91MR165 aff'd, 575 N.E.2d 945 (III. App. Ct. 1991). State workers brought a suit in mandamus looking to force the release of paychecks that were being held up as a result of the legislature’s delay on an appropriations bill. I dismissed the suit against the comptroller on the basis that no authority for such order existed without an appropriation to pay the salaries of those State workers. The appellate court agreed.

Principal attorneys were Mike O'Hara, 407 E. Adams, Springfield, IL 62701, (217) 544-1771; and Attorney General Roland Burris, (217) 782-1090.

9. Sparks & Wiewel Construction Co. v. Martin, Circuit Court of Sangamon County, No. 91MR26, aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 620 N.E.2d 533 (III. App. Ct. 1993). A trucking company brought suit seeking declaratory and injunctive relief against the Department of Labor for its interpretation and enforcement of the Prevailing Wage Act. The Department had determined that certain employees of the company were entitled to prevailing wages. The Appellate Court affirmed my ruling that drivers employed to haul dirt to a highway construction site were exempt from the Prevailing Wage Act. However, it reversed my determination that the Department engaged in improper rulemaking, stating that the Department did not engage in rulemaking but instead just interpreted the statute. It also reversed my award of fees for the Department’s improper rulemaking.
Principal attorneys were Al Manson, 205 S. Fifth Street, Suite 700, Springfield, IL 62701, (217) 544-8491; Stan Niew, 600 Hunter Dr., Suite 310, Oakbrook, IL 60523, (630) 586-0110, Mike O’Hara, 407 E. Adams, Springfield, IL 62701, (217) 544-1771.

10. Brown v. WPIC, Circuit Court of Sangamon County, case No. 89L384. Plaintiff received an electrical shock while unloading a dump truck at a power station. The electricity arced from a power line to the raised bed and through the truck to the plaintiff who was standing next to his truck. Plaintiff was severely and permanently injured by the volts. The three-week jury trial resulted in a verdict for plaintiff against several electric suppliers, a property owner, and a trucking business. The jury awarded $1.375 million in damages. The case was settled later for approximately $1 million.

Principal attorneys were Pat Reilly, 607 East Adams, Springfield, IL 62701, (217) 544-1144; Brad Blodgett, 400 S. Ninth Street, Springfield, IL 62701, (217) 528-7375; Rick Velde, 1 North Old State Capitol Plaza, Springfield, IL 62701, (217) 522-8822; and Greg Cerulo, 227 N.W. Jefferson Avenue, Peoria, IL 61602, (309) 674-1133.

d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.

2. In re Marriage of Ludwinski, 727 N.E.2d 419 (Ill. App. Ct. 2000), appeal denied. Appellant was represented by Sarah Timney, 411 University, Champaign, IL 61824, 217-351-4040. Appellee was represented by Laurie Maki, 302 N. 1st Street, Champaign, IL 61820.

Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

I am aware of only one of my cases from the trial court where certiorari was sought. Brown's Furniture v. Zehnder, 519 U.S. 866, 117 S. Ct. 175, (1996), cert. denied.

I have also identified the following appellate cases in which certiorari was requested from and denied by the Supreme Court of the United States, although there may be others I have been unable to identify:

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

During my service as a trial judge from 1987 to 1998, I handled thousands of cases. Although my decisions were reversed on some occasions, I did not maintain any record of reversals and I cannot recall specific cases. Many of these rulings were unpublished and not maintained in an electronic database. The list below contains all reversals I have identified, though there may be others that I have been unable to find.

Reported Opinions

2. Bank One, Springfield v. Roscetti. The Appellate Court reversed my findings that guarantees are not credit agreements under the Credit Agreements Act and that Bank One breached its duty of good faith and fair dealing. 723 N.E.2d 755 (Ill. App. Ct. 1999).

3. R. E. Polk and Company v. George H. Ryan. The Appellate Court dismissed the appeal of a preliminary injunction as moot because a permanent injunction had been entered and reversed the issuance of the injunction, finding the Secretary of State had authority to adopt a rule barring the sale of driver’s license, vehicle, and title lists even though not all steps for notification of a new regulation were taken, but those steps taken were found sufficient. 694 N.E.2d 1027 (Ill. App. Ct. 1998).

5. Walker v. Rogers. The Appellate Court reversed my judicial order approving assignment of a portion of lottery winnings to buy a house even though the statute in question stated, “any person pursuant to an appropriate judicial order may be paid the prize to which a winner is entitled.” 650 N.E.2d 272 (Ill. App. Ct. 1995).

6. Craftsmasters, Inc. v. Department of Revenue. The Appellate Court reversed my ruling awarding retailer’s occupation tax exemption on sales of building materials incorporated into real estate within an enterprise zone where the materials were purchased outside the jurisdiction which created the enterprise zone. 647 N.E.2d 607 (Ill. App. Ct. 1995).

7. Mitchell v. Fiat-Allis, Inc. The Supreme Court reversed the Appellate Court, which had affirmed my ruling granting a section 2-1401 motion to set aside my judgment order, which the circuit clerk had failed to send to the parties within the 30 days time to appeal. 632 N.E.2d 1010 (Ill. App. Ct. 1994).

8. Medcat Leasing Co. v. Whitley. The Appellate Court reversed my award of summary judgment. I had held that the computed tomography scanner at issue was not subject to the state use tax and that the Department of Revenue’s regulation regarding the use tax was invalid. However, the Appellate Court found the statute term governing the dispute—“medical equipment”—ambiguous and that the Department’s interpretation of that term and subsequent regulation was reasonable. 652 N.E.2d. 424 (Ill. App. Ct. 1993).

9. Sparks & Weisel Co. v. Martin. The Appellate Court affirmed my ruling that drivers employed to haul dirt to a highway construction site were exempt from the Prevailing Wage Act but reversed my award of fees for the Department’s improper rule making. 620 N.E.2d 533 (Ill. App. Ct. 1993).

10. People v. Asbestospray. I dismissed the State’s suit against two manufacturers of asbestos-containing products as untimely. The appellate court reversed, finding (1) common law exempted the State from the operation of the statute of repose for product liability actions; and (2) the construction statute of repose did not bar the State’s cause of action because (a) the relevant section expressly included the State and waived its common-law exemption and (b) defendants could not claim the statute’s protections because they had no role in the construction of the building. 616 N.E.2d 652 (Ill. App. Ct. 1993).

11. People v. Gibbons. Following affirmance of convictions for home invasion, rape, deviate sexual assault, burglary, and felony theft, 117 Ill. App. 3d 270, 452 N.E.2d 1368, defendant petitioned for postconviction relief. I denied the petition. On appeal, the appellate court held that: (1) defendant could not challenge introduction of hypnotically enhanced testimony on grounds of res judicata; and (2) defendant was entitled to evidentiary hearing on his allegation of ineffectiveness of counsel who failed to subpoena an alibi witness. 612 N.E.2d 1372 (Ill. App. Ct. 1993).
12. Collins v. Reynard. The Appellate Court reversed my refusal to dismiss a legal malpractice action for faulty contract for sale of business because the plaintiff's complaint for lawyer malpractice is cognizable in contract but not in tort. 533 N.E.2d 69 (Ill. App. Ct. 1990). The Supreme Court affirmed. On plaintiff's petition for rehearing, however, the Supreme Court held that a complaint against a lawyer for professional malpractice could be couched in either contract or tort, and recovery could be sought in the alternative. 607 N.E.2d 1185 (Ill. 1992).

13. Running v. State Banking Bd. of Illinois. The Appellate Court reversed my decision, holding that evidence concerning the bank president's authorization of loans to a horse breeding venture in which he held an interest was sufficient to support the determination that the president entered into "unsafe or unsound practice" in conducting the business of the bank, warranting his removal. 603 N.E.2d 1323 (Ill. App. Ct. 1992).

14. Cooper v. Department of Children and Family Services. Following a public hearing, defendant Illinois Department of Children & Family Services concluded the license of plaintiffs Shirley and William Cooper to operate a day-care center should be revoked because they "constantly, steadily, repeatedly, and continually violated the Department's licensing standards." The Coopers appealed that conclusion and the Appellate Court reversed my findings (1) DCFS lost jurisdiction over the Coopers' hearing regarding the revocation of their center's license because it failed to set the hearing within the statutorily prescribed time; (2) DCFS failed to follow its own regulations, thereby denying the Coopers due process; and (3) DCFS's final administrative decision was against the manifest weight of the evidence. The Appellate Court held that: (1) failure to hold a timely revocation hearing was not a jurisdictional defect; (2) licensees were not denied due process; and (3) the evidence supported revocation of the license. 599 N.E.2d 537 (Ill. App. Ct. 1992).

15. States Land Imp. Corp. v. E.P.A. The Appellate Court reversed my grant of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency's motion to dismiss. The Appellate Court held that: (1) a common-law writ of certiorari to challenge the placement of a closed landfill on a State Remedial Action Priorities List (SRAPL) was the appropriate remedy, and (2) IEPA does not have the implied power to enact regulations creating the SRAPL without giving the site owner an opportunity to be heard as to when the site must be removed from the SRAPL. 596 N.E.2d 1164 (Ill. App. Ct. 1992).

16. Stewart v. Ryan. The Appellate Court reversed my order that affirmed the Secretary's denial of reinstatement of full driving privileges but reversed the Secretary's denial of the issuance of an RDP, holding that evidence concerning the motorist's driving record was sufficient to support the Secretary of State's denial of the motorist's request for a restricted driving permit. 595 N.E.2d 234 (Ill. App. Ct. 1992).
17. Gallagher Drilling, Inc. v. Department of Revenue. The Appellate Court reversed my order refunding use tax because the amendment to the Retailers' Occupation Act was found to be retroactive. 592 N.E.2d 590 (Ill. App. Ct. 1992).

19. Illinois Municipal League Risk Management Association v. Siebert. The Appellate Court reversed my ruling the association was not required to pay for outside counsel for police officer because the request for punitive damages which were not covered by the association created a conflict of interest. 585 N.E.2d 1130 (Ill. App. Ct. 1992).

21. People v. Buskirk. The Appellate Court reversed my grant of a petition to rescind a summary driver’s license suspension, finding defendant’s refusal based on his erroneous belief he had right to counsel was forfeited. 559 N.E.2d 271 (Ill. App. Ct. 1990).

Court of Appeals Fourth District of Illinois

I have written thousands of opinions and unpublished Rule 23 orders in my 12 years on the appellate bench. The unpublished opinions do not appear in an electronic database and so it is difficult to research subsequent history. I have identified the following reversals, although there may be others I have been unable to remember or identify.

1. Fisher v. Waldrop, 823 N.E.2d 657 (Ill. App. Ct. 2005). The custodial parent removed a child from the State without leave of court under the Parentage Act. The Supreme Court found “[t]he appellate court was correct to reverse the circuit court’s judgment granting [the custodial mother] leave to remove [the minor] from Illinois, and was also correct that the Parentage Act requires the custodial parent to seek leave of court for removal and to prove that removal would be in the child’s best interest.” The Supreme Court also found that the circuit court’s denial of the injunction was against the manifest weight of the evidence, as held by the appellate court. However, even if the denial were against the manifest weight of the evidence, the appellate court erred in ordering the circuit court to issue a permanent injunction on remand. The case was remanded for the circuit court to rule on the motion for injunction in accordance with the guidelines set forth by the Supreme Court. 849 N.E.2d 334 (Ill. 2006).
2. In re Steven P., 797 N.E.2d 1071 (Ill. App. Ct. 2003). The Supreme Court in a supervisory order directed the appellate court to vacate its judgment in Steven P. and “enter a judgment reversing and vacating the Champaign County Circuit Court order granting the People’s petition for authorization of electroconvulsive therapy and involuntary administration of medication, and remanding for compliance with the statutory requirements of 405 ILCS 5/2-102 (a-5).” 801 N.E.2d 947 (Ill. 2004).

3. People v. Bracey, 800 N.E.2d 1248 (Ill. App. Ct. 2003). The Supreme Court reversed, finding defendant’s “right to a jury trial was violated when the circuit court, relying on a jury waiver executed by defendant in conjunction with his first trial, reined defendant on a charge of aggravated battery without first ascertaining whether, for his new trial, defendant knowingly and voluntarily waived his right to a jury trial.” The appellate court had found the waiver made with defendant’s knowledge and consent because he did not seek to withdraw his earlier written waiver and he “silently acquiesced in the court’s and counsel’s statements regarding the earlier jury waiver made in his presence on the day of trial.” The Supreme Court held the admonishments that defendant received in conjunction with his first trial were no longer effective. Moreover, defendant’s silent acquiescence to a second bench trial was insufficient to support a finding that he knowingly and voluntarily relinquished his right to a jury trial. 821 N.E.2d 233 (Ill. 2004).

4. People v. Roberts, 813 N.E.2d 748 (Ill. App. Ct. 2004). The Supreme Court in a supervisory order directed the appellate court to reconsider its judgment in light of Illinois v. Caballes, 123 S.Ct. 834 (2003) and People v. Caballes, 851 N.E.2d 26 (Ill. 2006). The U.S. Supreme Court reversed the Illinois Supreme Court, holding a canine sniff during a routine traffic stop does not implicate the Fourth Amendment. The Illinois Supreme Court utilized the limited lock-step doctrine and determined the search also did not violate the state constitution. 853 N.E.2d 1230 (Ill. 2006).

g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

Until 2007, our court was limited to 150 published cases so nearly all cases were decided by Rule 23 orders. My publication rate has gone from 6 to 28 opinions per year in the last two years, or from four percent to 16 percent. I anticipate the rate will be significantly higher this year. The Rule 23 orders are maintained by the appellate clerk at our courthouse.

h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

I have not sat by designation on a federal court of appeals.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (if your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system). Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;

c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

The circuit clerk and I have no record or recollection of any cases from my trial court years where a substitution motion was made. Most recusals would have been automatic motions that I did not see. I adhered to all ethical and legal requirements on recusals.

Our appellate court employs an automatic recusal system. My automatic recusal list, which I have provided to our clerk, includes my husband's law firm, my clerk's husband's law firm, and my brother-in-law's law firm. In our court, recusal decisions are confidential to the court. Although there is no Illinois rule or statute governing appellate recusals, we strictly adhere to S.Ct. Rule 63 C, in essence recusing for conflicts such as friendship, relatives, monetary interest, material witness and bias.

The Illinois Code of Judicial Conduct, Rule 63, Canon 3C, governs when a judge must disqualify himself or herself in a proceeding. Although not an exclusive list, the Rule enumerates instances where a judge’s impartiality might be questioned including proceedings where the judge has personal interest, bias or knowledge. The Rule also lists instances where members of the judge’s family might have personal or economic interest in the proceedings. Section 5/114-5 of the Illinois Code of Criminal Procedure and section 5/2-1001 of the Illinois Code of Civil Procedure direct when parties may request a substitution of a circuit judge.

I have recused myself on the Appellate Court where I knew the individuals involved or my husband’s firm or one of my clerks’ husband’s firms were involved. Where any question of my impartiality could arise, I disclose and recuse if requested.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

I have not held public office other than judicial office.

I was nominated to be United States District Judge for the Central District of Illinois on October 11, 1995, and my nomination was returned by the Senate on October 4, 1996. I have had no other unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

I was unsuccessfully a candidate for the Supreme Court of Illinois in 2002. I have had no other unsuccessful candidacies for elective office.

b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

1990 Sue Myerscough Circuit Judge Campaign
1998 Sue Myerscough Appellate Court Justice Campaign
2002 Sue Myerscough Unsuccessful campaign for Supreme Court
I recall, although I cannot be certain, that I joined a Lawyer's Committee or otherwise participated in one or more of Sen. Richard Durbin's early campaigns for Congress, and in particular his 1986 campaign. I have never held a position or role in any other political campaigns.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

From 1980 to 1981, I served as a law clerk to the Honorable Harold A. Baker, United States District Court for the Central District of Illinois.

ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I have not practiced law alone.

iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

As Chief and Presiding Judge of the Circuit Court, I made myself available for settlement conferences on a regular basis in many cases. I do not have records from those cases. On several occasions during the 1980s, I served as an insurance arbitrator in personal injury cases, but I do not recall the details.
b. Describe:

i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

The majority of my practice consisted of insurance defense of doctors, police officers, lawyers, manufacturers, schools, and corporations. I had several plaintiff civil rights actions assigned to me by my firms, as well as pro bono prisoner cases assigned by U.S. District Judge James Ackerman (now deceased).

ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

The majority of my cases were medical malpractice defense, legal malpractice defense, products liability defense, and police officer defenses. Most of my clients were insurance companies and their insureds.

c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

My practice was in litigation with frequent state and federal court appearances.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. federal courts: 18%
   2. state courts of record: 80%
   3. other courts: 2%
   4. administrative agencies: 2%

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
   1. civil proceedings: 99%
   2. criminal proceedings: 1%

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I worked on thousands of cases. I tried approximately 50 cases (as sole counsel except for two as associate counsel).

i. What percentage of these trials were:
   1. jury: 20%
   2. non-jury: 80%
c. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation. Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

a. the date of representation;

b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and

c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

1. Frank v. Friedman, No. 82-3131. From approximately 1982 to 1985, I defended an attorney and his law firm who were sued by a doctor and his pension fund for malpractice and ERISA violations. Ultimately, a life insurance company, an insurance salesman, and an accountant were also added as defendants. The matter was settled after I became a judge. Judge Ackerman of the United States District Court for the Southern District of Illinois presided over the case. Opposing counsel was Steve Kauffman, 400 S. 9th Street, Suite 100, Springfield, IL 62701. 217-526-3674.

2. Duckworth v. Franzen, 780 F. 2d 645 (7th Cir. 1985). I was assigned by my firm to represent plaintiff Woodward in a three-week products liability, negligence, and civil rights jury trial against the State of Illinois. My representation lasted from approximately 1980 to 1985. My client was one of 21 prisoners who were chained together and to the seats in a transport bus that had the escape routes bolted for safety. The bus caught fire, and the guard abandoned the bus, closing the door, and leaving the prisoners in the fire. A substantial verdict was awarded. My former firm handled the case on appeal. The appellate court reversed establishing a new standard for civil rights violations. Fourteen years later, the matter was ultimately decided in favor of defendant by the Court of Claims. Judge Beatty of the United States District Court for the Southern District of Illinois presided over the case. Co-counsel were Rex Reu, 111 W. Front Street, Bloomington, IL 61701, 309-829-2150 and Loren Thomson, 105 N. Center Street, Bloomington, IL 61702, 309-829-7069. Opposing counsel was the Illinois Attorney General, by Jeff Finke, 217-782-1090.
3. Davis v. Johnson, 745 F. 2d 1066 (7th Cir. 1984) I successfully defended a Decatur police officer in a civil rights action. The deceased’s estate sued after Davis escaped from a nursing home, was arrested, and placed in a cell with an accused murderer who then murdered Davis. My client, Dauer, arrested Davis and placed him in the jail cell, as instructed, by the desk clerk who was found liable. My representation lasted from approximately 1981 to 1984. Co-counsel was Paul Bown, 205 S. 5th Street, Suite 700, Springfield, IL 62701, 217-544-8491. Judge Ackerman of the United States District Court for the Southern District of Illinois presided over the case. Opposing counsel was Richard Doyle, 1022 N. Vermilion, Danville, IL 61832, 217-446-3844.

4. Armstrong v. Mudd, No. 86-3277. In approximately 1986, I defended the City of Springfield and its police department. Summary judgment was awarded the City and was affirmed on appeal. In that case, the plaintiff was killed by a fleeing felon. The police had abandoned the chase at the time of the accident. The Court found that, but for the actions of the felon, the accident would not have happened. Judge Mills of the United States District Court for the Southern District of Illinois presided over the case. Opposing counsel was Tom Londrigan, 1227 S. 7th Street, Springfield, IL 62703, 217-544-9823. Co-counsel was Pat Londrigan, 200 So. 9th Street, Springfield, IL 62701, 217-753-6365.

5. Picon v. Hartigan, No. 86-3156. In approximately 1986, I represented the plaintiff on his equal protection and wrongful discharge claim against the Attorney General’s office. Summary judgment was awarded to the defendant on the basis that, at the time of plaintiff’s discharge, the defendant could not have known that discharging the plaintiff for his political affiliation was a violation of his rights. Judge Mills of the United States District Court for the Southern District of Illinois presided over the case. Opposing counsel was the Attorney General 217-782-1090.

6. Knox v. Edgar, No. 83-3375. In approximately 1983, I represented the plaintiff in this civil rights action. My client had been discharged for political reasons as head of a driver’s license facility and had been reinstated by order, then transferred, demoted, and harassed at work. After years of discovery, the matter was settled out of court. Judge Ackerman of the United States District Court for the Southern District of Illinois presided over the case. Opposing counsel was the Attorney General 217-782-1090.

7. Wernsing v. House, (clerk is unable to retrieve file number). In this one-week jury trial in Sangamon County Circuit Court, I represented the defendant who drove a vehicle and hit a pedestrian at a night-time party on a curve in the road. The videotape of the curve was one of the first successful uses of videotape in Sangamon County. My defendant was found responsible for payment of medical bills only, approximately $75,000. My representation lasted from approximately 1983 to 1984. Judge Cadagin presided over the case. Opposing counsel was Charles Grumlich, 2142 Hanleigh, Springfield, IL 62704, 217-670-1641.

8. In Yarger v. Board of Regents, 456 N.E. 2d 39 (Ill. 1983). After extensive research of the legislative history and the legislative archives, I obtained dismissal of the cause of action because the statute regulating sales in university bookstores was unconstitutional.
because the enrolled bills failed to include amendments enacted by the General Assembly. The Supreme Court affirmed. I wrote and argued the briefs at trial and in the Supreme Court. My representation lasted from approximately 1981 to 1983. Judge Friedman of the Circuit Court of Sangamon County presided over the case. Opposing counsel was Fred Moore, 108 W. Monroe Street, Bloomington, IL 61701, 309-827-8551.

9. Rock v. Thompson, 426 N.E. 2d 891 (Ill. 1981). I wrote the Supreme Court briefs which resulted in the Supreme Court issuing a mandamus against Thompson requiring a new vote on the election of Senate President because the vote had been taken without a quorum. Co-counsel was John Keith, 217 E. Monroe, Suite 100, Springfield, IL 62701, 217-528-4240. Opposing counsel was the Attorney General, 217-782-1090. 1981.

10. Bailley v. City of Springfield, 499 N.E. 2d 1373 (Ill. 1986); Ogg v. City of Springfield, 458 N.E. 2d 1331 (Ill. 1984) and Ogg v. Coast Catamaran, 490 N.E. 2d 111 (Ill. 1986). In three separate several week jury trials, I did discovery, briefing, and trial preparation for defendant Coast Catamaran. A sailboat on Lake Springfield came into contact with power lines causing two deaths and other injuries. The Supreme Court found that evidence that the defendant’s notice of other similar accidents was inadmissible, yet harmless error, that punitive damages are not recoverable under the Survival Act, that there is a presumption of loss of society of an adult child, and that when a lawsuit includes claims of comparative negligence and contribution, the jury must be instructed separately and return separate verdicts on the claims. My representation of the defendant lasted from approximately 1981 to 1984. Judge Cadagin presided over the case. Co-counsel was Grady Holley, 440 So. Grand Avenue West, Springfield, IL 62704, 217-544-3368. Opposing counsel was Tom Londrigan, 1227 S. 7th Street, Springfield, IL 62703, 217-544-9823.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organization(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege).

During my tenure as Chief Judge, the Seventh Judicial Circuit piloted use of a Family Violence Prevention Coordinating Council. As the council chair, I brought together educators, law enforcement, social service agencies, health care professionals, clergy, judges, and the legal community to work together to address and develop a coordinated community response to family violence. In addition to personally managing the juvenile court during my term as chief, I worked with Illinois elected leadership to secure funds for a feasibility study and ultimately a $1.74 million grant to support construction of a new Juvenile Detention Center. I helped to design the center and fought for and secured the inclusion of a staff-secure component for the new center. I also worked closely with the Juvenile Probation and Court Services department to secure a grant to implement Law Related Education (LRE) programs for the department. Juvenile offenders went through a twelve week curriculum that allowed them to earn a graduation diploma. The Seventh Judicial Circuit had a 92 percent graduation rate. Also as chief judge, I pioneered the first web-based mapping program to track sexual offenders, thereby allowing parents to know when offenders move and where they live. Together with our court clerk, I spearheaded the digitalization of court records to make them available through the internet. I was also responsible for major court projects to make our court facilities accessible to people with disabilities; to update and modernize the child support payment system; to streamline the jury process so that citizens were not unduly delayed from returning to family and work; and to improve domestic violence court services to protect families. When I learned the court had 44 children in foster care for many years because we had no lawyers to represent them, I approached the County Bar Association and volunteers stepped in and we resolved these cases in one year, placing most for adoption.

On the Appellate Court, I initiated a pilot project to allow the Illinois State’s Attorneys Appellate Office and Office of the State’s Appellate Defender to file electronically. I encouraged our court to increase the number of oral arguments, so that we now hear arguments in most cases. I also began our court’s utilization of legal interns from law schools, paralegal programs, and high schools.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

As an adjunct associate professor at Southern Illinois University School of Medicine since 1994, I have taught a recurring course component in which the class recreates a medical malpractice trial. I do not use a syllabus for this course component.

20. Deferred Income/Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

If confirmed, I hope to continue to teach on an adjunct basis for the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine. I have no other plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during service with the court.
22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:
   a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

   If confirmed, I would recuse from cases involving my husband’s law firm, my clerk’s husband’s law firm, and my brother-in-law’s law firm, as I have [in the previous sentence, insert case details] during my service with the Illinois courts. I know of nothing else that would make me likely to recuse from a particular case, but I would carefully evaluate each case that came before me to determine any conflicts, potential conflicts, or potential appearances of conflict, and I would make disclosures or recuse as required. In each such case, I would make disclosures and recuse myself as required by the rules and canons.

   b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

   If confirmed, I will carefully follow and apply the recusal statutes and Canon 3 of the Code of Conduct for United States Judges. I will seek advice from my colleagues as necessary. Upon review of a case, I would recuse myself in any proceeding in which my impartiality might be questioned.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association’s Code of Professional Responsibility calls for “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.” Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

As a sitting judge since 1987, I have not engaged in the practice of law, including pro bono work. Instead, I have devoted time to law-related education programs for young people and made private charitable contributions to support serving the disadvantaged.
I offered a program to our local schools for courthouse and jailhouse tours and in school or courthouse mock trials. I worked with the Illinois State Bar Association’s Learn Program to establish a means for private tax-deductible donations to the schools to pay for class trips to the courthouse and jail. I regularly visit our grade, junior, and high schools to lecture and review and perform mock trials.

One of my most significant community contributions has been as a member of the Board of Directors and later as an active volunteer for the Sojourn Domestic Violence Shelter. While on the Board, I helped obtain a grant and a lawyer for the clients’ representation. In recent years, I have continued to encourage pro bono representation of Sojourn’s clients and have developed a program of educational seminars at a local library to aid unrepresented persons in family law matters.

26 Selection Process:

   a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

   Senator Richard Durbin formed a bipartisan committee to screen candidates for judicial vacancies in our jurisdiction. I submitted a written application to the Committee in early November 2009. The Committee interviewed me in Springfield on January 9, 2010. Mine was among the names subsequently recommended to Senator Durbin by the Committee.

   Senator Durbin interviewed me on January 23, 2010. I understand that Senator Durbin subsequently forwarded four names to President Obama, including mine. On February 26, 2010, I was contacted by staff from the Department of Justice and have had periodic conversations with them regarding paperwork and process. I interviewed in Washington, D.C., with attorneys from the White House Counsel’s Office and the Department of Justice on April 9, 2010. On June 17, 2010, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

   b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

      No.

OFFICIAL SEAL
JENNIFER L. JONES
NOTARY PUBLIC, STATE OF ILLINOIS
AT COMMISSION EXPIRES 11-13-2011

[Notary Seal]
Senator DURBIN. Thanks very much. Well, thank you all for the introductions of your family and friends who came with you today. I know that none of us come here by ourselves. There are many things that inspire us and those who stand alongside us on life’s journey.

I will ask a few questions of a pretty general nature, because as Senator Sessions mentioned earlier and for the record, you have been investigated inside and out. You have been asked the questions by many and you have faced a lot of briefings and other things that prepare you undoubtedly for this hearing.

Some of the members who were not in attendance may have their own particular questions that they may ask.

Ms. Totenberg, one of the most important things for a judge is to make certain that they focus on the facts in the courtroom and the law and are not influenced by outside sources.

Can you give the assurance to this Committee that when you make your decisions, you will not be affected by anything said on NPR Radio?

[Laughter.]

Ms. TOTENBERG. I am very proud of my sister, who is not in the country right now, and I can assure you that I will not be influenced by her. We have—I have had to operate in the same legal world, in a larger sense, for some time, but I am very used to being extremely independent and I think that that’s the—obviously, I have absolutely complete commitment to implementing the role of a district court judge on an independent basis and hearing the facts and making my own conclusions based on applicable law and without regard to NPR.

Senator DURBIN. Since there are no Republicans present—well, never mind.

[Laughter.]

Senator DURBIN. Now, you had an interesting case that you served on as a mediator involving a group of students who asserted a school district’s prohibition of clothing depicting the Confederate flag violated their First Amendment rights. And I take it that this took place in Georgia, in Atlanta.

Ms. TOTENBERG. In south Georgia.

Senator DURBIN. As the mediator, you had to try to balance the school district’s legitimate educational policy interest against the constitutional interests of the students.

Tell me what you took into consideration in that mediation and how it ended.

Ms. TOTENBERG. Well, of course, at one level, you never know what happens after you think you’ve got the settlement done. But what you had to take into consideration was that the school district has a very strong interest in making all students feel comfortable and be prepared to focus on the central mission of schools, education, and not to feel that they are subject to humiliation because of what somebody else may be wearing on their tee shirt.

And on the other hand, students have a real First Amendment right under Tinker to express their viewpoints. And so the question really was how to accommodate those interests so that it would not be an impossible situation for other students attending the school, for the school district to be in a position where it can say “We care about all students and we want to make all students feel that they are learning and functioning in a nondiscriminatory, welcome educational environment.

And I think the resolution ultimately was some degree of control over what the nature of the tee shirts were that the students found acceptable, where they could express themselves, but that there would be some limits on what would be worn on their tee shirts.

Now, it's some years ago, so there may have been some other aspects of the resolution, as well. But I think that was really what we were trying to do and because it was a mediation as opposed to an arbitration, there was a real opportunity to work with people, to talk about what are these interests and how do you need to address these for the future.

Senator DURBIN. My background here does not say how it ended.

Ms. TOTENBERG. Well, that's pretty much how it ended, was that there was a—I don't know what—there might have been attorney's fees or anything else, but they had this resolution where they were going to agree; as far as I understood, that there would be some policy from the school district that could, to some extent, restrict clothing, which is normally allowed, in fact, in school districts to have clothing policies; but at the same time, some amount of expressions allowed on the clothing, but it cannot be offensive.

And so I think that really was the scope of what was going to be the expression on the tee shirts was the resolution.

Senator DURBIN. Judge Myerscough, you spent a number of years as a trial court judge, handling civil and criminal cases, and then on the appellate court for a number of years, as well, and now seeking to return to the trial level in the Federal courts.

I know you have thought through how that would change your approach on the bench. But I would like to ask you the question that I will ask the others, as well.

I had a gentleman named Scott Lassar, who was a U.S. attorney in Chicago, who was seeking reappointment and he came for an interview before me and Senator Carol Moseley Braun, and I asked him, in the Federal court system, in the criminal process, at what point are the scales balanced. At what point can the criminal defendant really believe that they have as much power as the prosecutor in terms of asserting their constitutional rights and asserting their innocence, which most do?

And he said to me, “When the jury is picked. Until the jury is selected, the government has all the power with grand juries, with investigations, with the things that can be asked of potential criminal defendants and witnesses.” He said, “The tables are not balanced at that point. The scales aren’t balanced until the jury is chosen and at that point, there is balance in the process.”

What is our observation, having been witness to and part of that process for so many years?

Judge MYERSCOUGH. I disagree with him. I believe that the scales are balanced from the moment that party walks into my courtroom.

I’ve been a former teacher. I taught French and English. I was a litigator. I defended police officers and I defended doctors, lawyers, and then I went on the bench and I held every position there is in every docket at the trial court, whether associate judge, criminal, civil. And the last 12 years I've spent observing what happens in the trial court.

And I believe that what I can do in the courtroom is what I have done for the last 23 years, which is give every litigant my full attention, whether it's the government or it's the defendant, and apply the law to the facts and give that defendant—if it's a jury trial he wants, a jury trial. And then if he chooses to plead, which very often happens in Federal court, then I will apply, as instructed by the Supreme Court, the sentencing guidelines, the commentary to the guidelines, and then listen to the government and the defendant in imposing my sentence accordingly and explain the reasons for my sentence.

Senator DURBIN. I think the point he was driving at was before the courtroom, before the case comes to the courtroom, whether there is a balance or fairness in the process or whether there is more power on the government side.

So before the courtroom, before anyone comes before you, what is your impression of the process leading up to that?

Judge MYERSCOUGH. Well, there is substantially more manpower with the U.S. attorney’s office. They’re very talented prosecutors. They have a backup in their investigators that does not exist with the public defender’s office.

But I have to say, at least in the Central District, in Springfield, in the county court and the U.S. attorney’s office and the public defender’s office, we have exceptional representation for defendants.

Senator DURBIN. Judge Boasberg, what is your impression?

Judge BOASBERG. I think that I would agree that the scales are not imbalanced to the extent that there are many practices that enable a defendant to even the scales. The government, of course, has to obtain an indictment through a grand jury process. They can’t simply arrest someone or file a complaint. They actually have to get him indicted.

And as an assistant United States attorney who dealt with grand juries on a regular basis, I believe that many are skeptical, that many are interested, particularly in the District of Columbia, in hearing a great deal about the facts and the law before voting to indict.

After indictment, there’s broad discovery under Rule 16. There are Brady obligations the government must comply with, which, again, I took seriously as a prosecutor and, if confirmed, would enforce as a judge. And then, of course, there are motions to suppress, motions in limine, and other different pleadings that the defense can file.

So that by the time the case is actually queued up for trial, a great deal has occurred and then if the playing field is not balanced at that point, it’s the evidence that imbalances it rather than the procedures.

Senator DURBIN. Judge Shadid, you were a defense attorney before ascending to the bench. What is your impression?

Judge SHADID. My impression, Senator, and thank you for the question, is that you have to always keep in mind that this is a process and that the founding fathers thought of this process and built into the Constitution safeguards for criminal defendants in the Fourth Amendment, the Fifth Amendment, and a number of others.

And those safeguards although maybe don’t stop initially from a grand jury indictment or an arrest, but they are built in so that when a competent lawyer is appointed to represent the defendant, that the rules and the responsibilities of the government are in place to protect that person’s rights and address any wrongs that may have occurred.

Senator Durbin. Ms. Jackson, along that same line, I had an opportunity—we have an interesting tradition that is about 6 or 8 years old now that every 2 years, when a new Senate is elected, we have dinner with the Supreme Court.

I do not know who—I think Senator Daschle actually came up with the original idea. But it is an interesting trek across the street to gather in the hallway of the Supreme Court and to actually sit down with a Supreme Court justice for an informal evening.

I had an opportunity last year to sit with Justice Kennedy and I said to him at that point that I was going to be chair of the Crime Subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which I chaired for a short time before Senator Specter took it over.

I said to him, “What do you think ought to be my priority? What should I look at when it comes to the criminal justice system in America, from your perspective?” And he said, “Look at our system of corrections, incarceration.” He said, “There won’t be a single justice here, I don’t believe, who wouldn’t agree with me that something needs to be done.”

We incarcerate so many people in America under circumstances which many have challenged, and, of course, hope that each one has gone through a just process, reaching that conclusion. But for some reason, America has such a high level of incarceration in our institutions and there are serious questions, in his mind.

Now, I understand that a judge is not going to set the sentencing standards that the Congress is responsible for and is restricted in terms of evidence and the rules of evidence and the like. But what is your thought, as you reflect on your background as a prosecutor and a defense attorney, on those two elements?

Ms. Jackson. I think my background leads me to a place where I see the role of the district court judge as ensuring that both sides get a completely full and fair hearing. I believe strongly in the importance of vigorous law enforcement, but I also believe strongly in the presumption of innocence and the rights of a defendant to be recognized at trial.

And fortunately, the policy question of what should be done about the corrections system was properly placed in your lap and not mine, but I will certainly be attentive to my role to make sure that if anyone is committed to that system, it would be after a scrupulously fair trial.

Senator Durbin. I would like to ask, Ms. Totenberg, you served as a monitor or in a special master capacity on two Federal district courts.

Ms. Totenberg. Right.

Senator Durbin. You were appointed by the DC district court to monitor a consent degree involving the city’s special education system and you were appointed by the district court for the district of Maryland to serve as special master in connection with litigation over the special education system in Baltimore.

How has your experience working in these capacities prepared you or given you some background that would be helpful as a district judge?

Ms. TOtenberg. Thank you very much for the question. The experiences in total have given me a very deep understanding, in fact, of how to move cases, how to manage cases.

The opportunity, as I said in my introduction, of working with both Judge Garbis and Judge Friedman has been extraordinarily educational. We've talked about all aspects of the case. They are complex cases which involve a variety of phases, and I think that that breadth of experience in complex litigation with multiple parties and, frankly, ever-changing proceedings will be extremely helpful in handling some of the more challenging cases that do come into the Federal courts, whether they be in the area of antitrust or in mass tort cases or in class actions.

I think it's really invaluable experience and I feel I have been truly tutored by the best.

Senator DURBIN. Judge Boasberg, my staff had a question prepared here, which said you may or may not remember that I chaired your Senate nomination hearing a few years back, but you have already reminded me that you did and that I gave a book to one of your children at that time, and it is certainly a pleasure to see you here today.

You were confirmed after my hearing by a vote of 98–0, and I wish you the same good luck in this undertaking. But I asked you at that time in 2002, in your nomination hearing before the Committee on Governmental Affairs, about your thoughts on judicial temperament.

Well, here we are 8 years later and I would like to know what you think about what you have seen in a courtroom and how important the temperament issue is when it comes to the administration of justice.

Judge BOASBERG. Thank you, Senator. I do remember it well. In fact, the book that you gave my then 5-year-old son about Abraham Lincoln's top hat is in my briefcase today, although my now 14-year-old son, I think, is almost as tall as Abraham Lincoln without the hat.

It's been something that's obviously been extremely important to me throughout my time. I can say that I've never flown off the handle and held anyone in criminal contempt in the 8-plus years I've been a judge, and I think that judges who are best able to control their courtrooms are ones who don't threaten contempt all the time. And I can say that I haven't threatened it or issued any order of holding someone in criminal contempt in my time.

I think that it's not always easy for any of us, particularly those who have had young children, to be as patient as we would like to be all the time, but I have certainly endeavored to do so and have endeavored to cultivate such a reputation and would hope to continue that, if fortunate enough to be confirmed.

Senator DURBIN. Judge Myerscough, the issue of judicial temperament? You were a practicing attorney before you were on the bench.
Judge MYERSCOUGH. I believe it's very important and I, luckily, walk in a long line of predecessors who have shown extreme judicial temperament. I would like to say I have followed in their footsteps with my own temperament. In the last 23 years, I have not held anyone in contempt.

But I think what's most important in terms of patience is the need to move the case should not outweigh the need to listen to the parties and to listen to the evidence in the case.

We do have a backlog, a terrible backlog, and it will be taken care of. I will work the extra hours to do that, but I will not do that at the expense of shortening the evidence that's to be presented in my courtroom.

Senator DURBIN. Judge Shadid, you faced that, did you not, when you faced the backlog in your own court?

Judge SHADID. I did. But if I may, I'm happy to hear Justice Myerscough offer to work the extra hours.

I did face this. We did have a backlog, it was pointed out earlier, and the matter was resolved by just, I think, paying attention to detail.

But more importantly or as importantly, I think there are a number of qualities that make a fine trial judge and temperament has to be one of them. I believe the trial courts are the gatekeeper for the public's first entry into the justice system or the judicial system and, as a result, they set the tone for the public's confidence in the system, and I think they do that best by even-handed, fair-minded disposition, with a level playing field.

Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. Ms. Jackson, you have been in the courtroom and seen it from both tables in terms of the issue of judicial temperament. What would you say?

Ms. JACKSON. Well, I think, certainly, my trial experience has given me a good reason to understand the importance of judicial temperament. Obviously, I have not served as a judge, but I would hope that what my background investigation has revealed is that of all the many things that can be said about me, that I am a real person and I relate to other people from all walks of life.

And I think that ability to connect and to understand will inform my judging, hopefully, inform my temperament and help me to achieve the goal that I have, which is to rule efficiently, because I think people are waiting for your rulings, and to rule clearly, because I think people need to understand them.

Senator DURBIN. Well, I thank you all for your patience and waiting while we recessed and returned. And I thank all the friends and family who have gathered today on your behalf.

The record is going to remain open for 1 week for additional letters, statements and questions from Committee members and I would ask you, if you receive those questions, to try to respond promptly. The process in the Judiciary Committee will undoubtedly be explained to you about matters coming on the Committee calendar and then most likely held over a week. So the sooner we can complete the record, the better and more likely that if there is a positive vote from the Committee—and I hope for all of you there will be—that we can move it to the floor for consideration before the end of this calendar year.

I thank everyone for being here today. And this Committee will stand adjourned.
[Whereupon, at 4:07 p.m., the hearing was adjourned.]
[Questions and answers and submissions for the record follow.]
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Responses of James E. Beasberg
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia
to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

   Response: No, I do not agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation.

2. Justice William Brennan once said: “Our Constitution was not intended to preserve a preexisting society but to make a new one, to put in place new principles that the prior political community had not sufficiently recognized.” Do you agree with him that constitutional interpretation today must take into account this supposed transformative purpose of the Constitution?

   Response: I believe that district judges must carefully follow constitutional interpretations articulated by the Supreme Court and their particular circuit. When faced with an issue of truly first impression, district judges should begin with the text of the Constitution and then use only those interpretive tools endorsed by the Supreme Court.

3. Do you believe judicial doctrine rightly incorporates the evolving understandings of the Constitution forged through social movements, legislation, and historical practice?

   Response: I believe that district judges must carefully follow constitutional interpretations articulated by the Supreme Court and their particular circuit. When faced with an issue of truly first impression, district judges should begin with the text of the Constitution and then use only those interpretive tools endorsed by the Supreme Court.

4. Do you believe empathy is an essential ingredient for arriving at just decisions and outcomes and should play a role in a judge’s consideration of a case?

   Response: If empathy means sympathizing with one party such that a judge fails to follow the law, then I believe it should not play a role in a judge’s consideration of a case.

5. Is any transaction involving the exchange of money subject to Congress’s Commerce Clause power?

   Response: The Supreme Court has held that the Commerce Clause is very broad; in some recent cases, however, such as United States v. Morrison, 120 S. Ct. 1740 (2000), and United States v. Lopez, 115 S. Ct. 1624 (1995), the Court has made clear that it is not unlimited. I would, if confirmed, apply that jurisprudence in evaluating any challenge brought to Congress’s power under the Commerce Clause.
6. What limitations remain on the individual Second Amendment right now that it has been incorporated against the States?

Response: In McDonald v. City of Chicago, 130 S. Ct. 3020 (2010), the Supreme Court applied the Second Amendment’s protections to the states. In so doing, it reiterated that the holding in District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S. Ct. 2783 (2008), “did not cast doubt on such longstanding regulatory measures as ‘prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons and the mentally ill,’ ‘laws forbidding the carrying of firearms in sensitive places such as schools and government buildings, or laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms.’” Id. at 3047.

a. Is it limited only to possession of a handgun for self-defense in the home, since both Heller and McDonald involved cases of handgun possession for self-defense in the home?

Response: As quoted above, Heller and McDonald recognized a number of limitations on individual gun possession, but they did not settle every question about the legality of possible restrictions on such possession. Those issues are currently being litigated all over the country, and, if confirmed, I would follow applicable precedent in determining the legality of any restrictions challenged before me.

7. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: Justice Kennedy’s analysis is binding precedent, and, if confirmed as a district court judge, I would follow it.

a. Do you agree that the Constitution’s prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment “embodies a principle whose application is appropriately informed by our society’s understanding of cruelty and by what punishments have become unusual?”

Response: If confirmed as a district court judge, I would be required to follow the law as set forth by the Supreme Court. On Eighth Amendment questions, I would be guided by the framework articulated by the Supreme Court in Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), and other cases in which the Court has analyzed what constitutes “cruel and unusual punishment.”

b. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

Response: Making a determination about evolving standards of decency would fall to the Supreme Court. If confirmed and facing the issue, I would be guided by the Supreme Court’s decisions and any framework it has articulated for making such determinations.

c. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?

Response: As the Supreme Court has repeatedly held that the death penalty is constitutional, I do not believe a district judge could find it unconstitutional in all cases.

d. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge’s analysis?

Response: As I do not believe a district judge could find the death penalty unconstitutional in all cases, I would not engage in such analysis.

8. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: It is not proper for a district court judge to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution, except in those very limited circumstances in which the Supreme Court has endorsed such reliance.

a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for “wise solutions” and “good ideas” to legal and constitutional problems?

Response: District courts should only do so in the very limited circumstances where the Supreme Court or their circuit has endorsed such an approach.

b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: If confirmed, I would consider foreign law only in those circumstances in which the Supreme Court has ruled it is appropriate to be considered.

c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

Response: If confirmed, I would consider foreign law only in those circumstances in which the Supreme Court has ruled it is appropriate to be considered.

d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?
Response: If confirmed, I would consider foreign law only in those circumstances in which the Supreme Court has ruled it is appropriate to be considered.

Responses of James E. Boasberg
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia
to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. As a D.C. Superior Court Judge, you have had to make sentencing decisions using the District of Columbia’s Sentencing Guidelines, which are similar to the Federal Sentencing Guidelines, and are also advisory.

   a. How much deference do you afford the D.C. Sentencing Guidelines?

      Response: As a Superior Court judge, I give a great deal of deference to the D.C.
      Sentencing Guidelines. In fact, I have imposed sentences that are within the Guidelines in the vast majority of my felony cases.

   b. If confirmed, do you anticipate affording the Federal Sentencing Guidelines the same level of deference?

      Response: Yes, if confirmed, I expect to afford the Federal Sentencing Guidelines a great deal of deference.

   c. Under what circumstances do you believe it is appropriate for a district court judge to depart downward from the sentencing guidelines?

      Response: When the Federal Sentencing Guidelines were mandatory, the U.S.
      Sentencing Commission enumerated particular circumstances in which judges were permitted to depart upward or downward. Although the Guidelines are no longer mandatory, I would, if confirmed, expect to consult those departure criteria in deciding whether to depart upward or downward.

   d. Given that you served as a federal prosecutor when the guidelines were mandatory, and you have served as a judge under a system where the guidelines are advisory, what is your view regarding whether the current federal scheme, where the Guidelines are advisory, is producing consistent and fair sentencing from one defendant to the next?

      Response: As a judge on the D.C. Superior Court, I have found the D.C.
      Sentencing Guidelines immensely helpful. Instead of starting from scratch in fashioning an appropriate sentence, I can refer to a presumptive sentencing range that has been determined by looking at the heartland of historical sentences. I and other judges on the Superior Court have thus greatly benefited from the Sentencing Guidelines and follow them in the vast majority of our cases, even though they are not mandatory. I would expect similarly consistent and fair sentencing under the Federal Sentencing Guidelines, which are also advisory, not mandatory.
2. When Justice Stevens announced his retirement, the President said that he would select a Supreme Court nominee with “a keen understanding of how the law affects the daily lives of the American people.”

a. Do you believe judges should ever base their decisions on a desired outcome, or solely on the law and facts presented?

Response: Judges should not work from a desired outcome in assessing the law and facts. Instead, they should follow the law and facts to whatever outcome they dictate.

i. Please discuss an example of a case where you have had to set aside your own desired outcome and rule based solely on the law.

Response: I have not presided over cases in which my desired outcome was contrary to the law.

b. Do you believe a judge should consider his or her own values or policy preferences in determining what the law means?

Response: No.

i. If so, under what circumstances?

Response: N/A

ii. Please identify any cases in which you’ve done so.

Response: N/A

iii. If not, please discuss an example of a case where you have had to set aside your own values or policy preferences and rule based solely on the law.

Response: I have not presided over cases in which my preferences were contrary to the law.

c. During her confirmation hearings, Justice Sotomayor rejected President Obama’s so-called “empathy standard” stating, “We apply the law to facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts.” Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?

Response: Yes, I agree with Justice Sotomayor.

3. Do you believe that the Second Amendment is an individual right or a collective right? Please explain your answer.
Response: The Supreme Court in District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S.Ct. 2783 (2008), and McDonald v. City of Chicago, 130 S. Ct. 3020 (2010), held that the Second Amendment besaws an individual right to bear arms. That is the law that I would follow if confirmed.

a. What standard of scrutiny do you believe is appropriate in a Second Amendment challenge against a Federal or State gun law?

Response: In District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S.Ct.2783 (2008), and McDonald v. City of Chicago, Illinois, 130 S. Ct. 3020 (2010), the Supreme Court left open the question of what level of heightened scrutiny should apply to a Second Amendment challenge. When the Supreme Court or the D.C. Circuit determines the level of scrutiny, I will, if confirmed, follow that standard.

4. What is your view of the role of a judge?

Response: A judge should fairly and impartially uphold the law as it is written and apply it to the cases that appear before him or her.

5. Do you believe that the death penalty constitutes cruel and unusual punishment under the Constitution? Please explain your answer.

Response: With a few narrow exceptions, the Supreme Court has held that the death penalty does not constitute cruel and unusual punishment under the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution. I would, if confirmed, follow that determination.

6. Do you believe that the death penalty is an acceptable form of punishment? Please explain your answer.

Response: The Supreme Court has determined that the death penalty is a constitutional and acceptable form of punishment. I would, if confirmed, follow that determination.

7. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received these questions on September 22, 2010, from the Department of Justice’s Office of Legal Policy. I prepared a draft of these answers, which I sent to OLP on September 24. I then discussed this draft with OLP staff that same day and submitted my final draft on September 26 for transmission to the Committee.

8. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.
Responses of Susan L. Carney
Nominee to be United States Circuit Judge for the Second Circuit
to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: The Constitution has a fixed text enumerating powers and establishing principles that do not change. Courts sometimes must apply the Constitution in new contexts, such as those presented as our society develops new technology. But the Constitution itself may be altered only through the formal amendment process.

2. Justice William Brennan once said: “Our Constitution was not intended to preserve a preexisting society but to make a new one, to put in place new principles that the prior political community had not sufficiently recognized.” Do you agree with him that constitutional interpretation today must take into account this supposed transformative purpose of the Constitution?

Response: The process of Constitutional interpretation by the courts is adjudicative rather than transformative. It is the text of the Constitution, as interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States, that lower courts must apply to disputes properly presented to them.

3. Do you believe judicial doctrine rightly incorporates the evolving understandings of the Constitution forged through social movements, legislation, and historical practice?

Response: The Constitution is not changed by social movements, legislation, and historical practice.

4. Do you believe empathy is an essential ingredient for arriving at just decisions and outcomes and should play a role in a judge’s consideration of a case?

Response: I do not believe that empathy should play a role in a judge’s decision-making process, or application of the law to the facts of a case.

5. Is any transaction involving the exchange of money subject to Congress’s Commerce Clause power?

Response: In United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995), and United States v. Morrison, 529 U.S. 598 (2000), the Supreme Court articulated limits on Congress’s power to legislate under the Commerce Clause. Therefore, not all transactions involving the exchange of money are subject to Congress’s Commerce Clause power.

6. What limitations remain on the individual Second Amendment right now that it has been incorporated against the States?
Response: In the recent Heller and McDonald decisions, the Supreme Court has held that the Second Amendment establishes an individual’s right to bear arms throughout the United States. See City of Chicago v. McDonald, 130 S. Ct. 3020 (2010); District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S. Ct. 2783 (2008). Heller allows that laws forbidding possession of firearms by convicted felons and the mentally ill, and laws prohibiting the carrying of firearms in “sensitive places such as schools and government buildings” are constitutionally permissible. Heller, 128 S. Ct. at 2816-17.

a. Is it limited only to possession of a handgun for self-defense in the home, since both Heller and McDonald involved cases of handgun possession for self-defense in the home?

Response: Please see my answer above.

7. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: As a Court of Appeals judge, I would be bound by the Supreme Court’s ruling in Roper v. Simmons. I would not look to “evolving standards of decency” in constitutional interpretation except as instructed to do so by the Supreme Court. My personal opinion would not affect how I carry out my obligation to apply that precedent.

a. Do you agree that the Constitution’s prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment “embodies a principle whose application is appropriately informed by our society’s understanding of cruelty and by what punishments have become unusual?”

Response: If confirmed, I would not look to general societal understanding in interpreting the Eighth Amendment except if and as instructed to do so by the Supreme Court.

b. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

Response: I would follow Supreme Court precedent and reasoning if required to address that question.

c. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?

Response: The law of many states provides that the death penalty may be imposed for certain crimes. The Supreme Court has held the death penalty to be constitutional. It would therefore be improper for any inferior judge to make such a finding.
878

d. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge’s analysis?

Response: Please see my answer to (c), above.

8. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: I do not believe that contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions control the meaning of the United States Constitution.

a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for “wise solutions” and “good ideas” to legal and constitutional problems?

Response: It is not the role of judges to make policy decisions and therefore it is not appropriate for judges to look to foreign countries for “wise solutions” and “good ideas.”

b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: Please see my answer to (a), above.

c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

Response: Our laws should be interpreted with reference to their text and Congressional intent and by using standard tools of statutory construction. Only if Congress had looked to foreign laws in enacting a statute or if the Supreme Court directed that foreign law should play a role (as such extraterritorial law might in certain treaty questions, for example) should those laws play a role in courts’ interpretation of U.S. laws.

d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?

Response: As a Court of Appeals judge, I would not expect to consider foreign law when interpreting the amendments to the Constitution.
Responses of Susan L. Carney
Nominee to be United States Circuit Judge for the Second Circuit
to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. In your current role as Deputy General Counsel at Yale, can you describe generally, without revealing any privileges, any significant litigation that you have handled or for which you have been responsible?

Response: As Acting General Counsel for half of 2008, I oversaw and worked with inside and outside counsel on all of Yale University’s litigation. That docket included real estate-related litigation, employment-related litigation, and a wide variety of other suits. During the rest of my twelve-year tenure at Yale (in nine of which I have served as Deputy General Counsel), I have worked closely with the General Counsel in the management of a number of significant cases. For example, at present I am the primary day-to-day manager working with outside counsel on litigation in federal court involving the contested ownership of an important piece of art for which the monetary value has been estimated to be over one hundred million dollars. In 2008 and 2009, I was the primary internal manager working with outside counsel on proceedings in Connecticut courts concerning the reformation of a testamentary trust that established the University’s rights with regard to certain Connecticut property used annually for a well-known University program. Earlier, I played that role in a significant, longstanding dispute involving the ownership of patents under the Bayh-Dole Act, which led to an appeal to and favorable disposition from the Second Circuit.

2. At your hearing, in response to a question from Senator Durbin, you testified that your work on intellectual property issues, including patent cases, would enhance your perspective as a federal judge on the Circuit Court of Appeals. Given that the Federal Circuit has exclusive jurisdiction over cases arising under the patent laws, of what relevance is your patents background to your qualification to serve on the Second Circuit?

Response: Although the Federal Circuit is charged with exclusive jurisdiction over cases arising under the patent laws, patent law may be involved in complex commercial disputes and in other matters properly before the Second Circuit. For that reason, I mentioned it in passing in my response to Senator Durbin’s question about my familiarity with intellectual property law. For example, the Second Circuit has recently addressed the legality under antitrust law of so-called “reverse exclusionary payments” by patent holders to alleged infringers. See Ark. Carpenters Health & Welfare Fund v. Bayer AG, 604 F.3d 98 (2010); see also In re Tamoxifen Citrate Antitrust Litig., 466 F.3d 187, 190 (2d Cir. 2006)(“This appeal . . . requires us to address issues at the intersection of intellectual property law and antitrust law.”). In another instance, the Second Circuit has recently joined other Circuit Courts of Appeals in applying, in a copyright setting, the test for when a preliminary injunction may issue that was established by the Supreme Court in a patent law case. See Salinger v. Colting, 607 F.3d 68 (2010)(holding that the Second Circuit’s “long-standing standard for preliminary injunctions in copyright cases” was abrogated by the patent decision in eBay, Inc. v. MercExchange, L.L.C., 547 U.S. 388 (2006)).

3. Do you believe that the Second Amendment is an individual right or a collective right? Please explain your answer.

Response: The Supreme Court ruled in District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S. Ct. 2783 (2008), that the Second Amendment establishes an individual right to bear arms. It affirmed and extended that ruling in McDonald v. Chicago, 130 S. Ct. 3020 (2010). If I am confirmed as a Circuit Judge, the Heller and McDonald decisions would control my analysis of the Second Amendment.

   a. What standard of scrutiny do you believe is appropriate in a Second Amendment challenge against a Federal or State gun law?

Response: The Supreme Court stated in Heller, 128 S. Ct. 2783, 2817 n.27, that gun laws shall be evaluated against a standard stricter than rational-basis scrutiny and, if I am confirmed, I would follow that precedent.

4. What is your view of the role of a judge?

Response: A judge’s role is to interpret and apply the law. A court of appeals judge must do so by applying the appropriate standard of review in his or her consideration of decisions that have been appealed, and by closely adhering to Supreme Court precedent and the prior decisions of the relevant Circuit, looking to other Courts of Appeals when useful. A judge is bound to carry out these tasks objectively, impartially, and to the best of his or her ability.

5. Do you think it is ever proper for judges to indulge their own values in determining what the law means? If so, under what circumstances?

Response: No.

6. Do you think it is ever proper for judges to indulge their own policy preferences in determining what the law means? If so, under what circumstances?

Response: No.

7. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I drafted my answers to these questions. I received comments on my draft answers from the U.S. Department of Justice. I prepared my final answers.
8. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

Responses of Amy B. Jackson
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia
to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: No. I do not believe that the Constitution is constantly evolving as society interprets it.

Justice William Brennan once said: “Our Constitution was not intended to preserve a preexisting society but to make a new one, to put in place new principles that the prior political community had not sufficiently recognized.” Do you agree with him that constitutional interpretation today must take into account this supposed transformative purpose of the Constitution?

Response: I am not familiar with the context in which this statement was made or what Justice Brennan has said about how the Constitution’s purpose could or should inform its interpretation. A District Judge should look to the language of the Constitution and to Supreme Court and appellate court precedent interpreting that language in an effort to apply the principles embodied in the Constitution to the circumstances presented in a particular case.

2. Do you believe judicial doctrine rightly incorporates the evolving understandings of the Constitution forged through social movements, legislation, and historical practice?

Response: I believe that it is the role of the legislature, and not the courts, to determine whether and how evolving social views should be incorporated in law.

3. Do you believe empathy is an essential ingredient for arriving at just decisions and outcomes and should play a role in a judge’s consideration of a case?

Response: No.

4. Is any transaction involving the exchange of money subject to Congress’s Commerce Clause power?

Response: The Supreme Court has held that the scope of the Commerce Clause is broad, but not unlimited. If I am confirmed and I am presented with a case involving the application of the Commerce Clause, I would carefully read the statute that is the subject of the lawsuit and apply the relevant Supreme Court and D.C. Circuit precedents, including United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995), and Morrison v. United States, 529 U.S. 598 (2000).
5. What limitations remain on the individual Second Amendment right now that it has been incorporated against the States?

Response: In District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S. Ct. 2783 (2008), the Supreme Court held that the Second Amendment protects an individual right. In McDonald v. City of Chicago, Illinois, 130 S. Ct. 3020, (2010), the Court stated that the Heller decision “did not cast doubt on such longstanding regulatory measures such as ‘prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons and the mentally ill,’ ‘laws forbidding the carrying of firearms in sensitive places such as schools or government buildings, or laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms.’” The Court did not specify what other limitations remain, if any.

a. Is it limited only to possession of a handgun for self-defense in the home, since both Heller and McDonald involved cases of handgun possession for self-defense in the home?

Response: If I am confirmed and I am presented with a case involving the interpretation of the Second Amendment, I would carefully read the statute that is the subject of the lawsuit to understand its terms and its scope, and apply Supreme Court and D.C. Circuit precedents, including Heller, McDonald, and any future cases addressing this issue.

6. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would be bound by the holding and the analysis set forth in the majority opinion in Roper.

a. Do you agree that the Constitution’s prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment “embraces a principle whose application is appropriately informed by our society’s understanding of cruelty and by what punishments have become unusual?”

Response: In Roper, the Supreme Court stated: “we have established the propriety and affirmed the necessity of referring to ‘the evolving standards of decency that mark the progress of a maturing society’ to determine which punishments are so disproportionate as to be cruel and unusual.” 543 U.S. at 560 – 61, quoting Trop v. Dulles, 356 U.S. 86, 100-101 (1958)(plurality opinion). If confirmed as a District Judge, I would be bound to follow these and other Supreme Court precedents and any applicable decisions of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.
b. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

Response: If confirmed as a District Judge, I would follow the directives set forth in Supreme Court precedent as to what factors should be considered in making this determination.

c. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?

Response: The Supreme Court determined that the death penalty is constitutional, and it has reiterated that determination in many subsequent opinions. A District Judge would be bound by those precedents.

d. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge’s analysis?

Response: Any analysis should be conducted by consideration of the factors set forth in Supreme Court and appellate court precedent.

7. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: It would only be proper to rely on foreign or international law in those circumstances in which Supreme Court precedent, D.C. Circuit precedent, or a statute requires the District Court to do so.

a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for “wise solutions” and “good ideas” to legal and constitutional problems?

Response: No.

b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: If confirmed as a District Judge, I would only consider foreign law in those circumstances in which it is required by Supreme Court precedent, D.C. Circuit precedent, or a statute.

c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

Response: I am not aware of any circumstance where that would be the case.
d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?

Response: If confirmed as a District Judge, I would follow Supreme Court precedent to ascertain in what circumstances, if any, foreign law should be taken into consideration in interpreting any Constitutional amendment.
Responses of Amy B. Jackson
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia to the Written Questions of Senator Al Franken

1. In March 2006, you gave a speech to the Federal Practice Institute where you described more aggressive government enforcement of corporate criminal law. In this speech, you implied that the government has crossed a line, that it is asking too much of corporate defendants. Specifically, you said:

What we used to consider cooperation is considered nothing. And what we used to consider putting up a defense is now characterized as obstructing justice. [...] Why? Why can’t federal prosecutors – with the awesome reach of their subpoena and grand jury power – why can’t they do their own jobs anymore? [...] Instead of building cases for trial, [...] [they’re] putting enormous pressure on you to put enormous pressure on your officers and employees to coerce pleas [and] cooperation. I can’t understand why self respecting [sic] prosecutors want to take this route.

Only answer: because they can.

Is the Department of Justice really being too tough on corporations?

Response: No. As a former federal prosecutor, I appreciate the importance of vigorous criminal enforcement and corporate compliance.

The intent behind the comments described above was not to question the need for tough criminal prosecution of corporate crime, but to discuss a policy that was being used at the time to achieve those ends that affected individual employees. In particular, I was addressing a Department of Justice policy that was facing strong criticism at the time not only from the defense bar, but also the ABA, business leaders, the ACLU, and Members of Congress from both parties, including the bipartisan leadership of the Senate Judiciary Committee. In response to these concerns, the policy has since been rescinded.

At that time, Departmental policy governing whether prosecutors should seek criminal charges against the business entities themselves -- as opposed to just the individuals involved -- was set out in a 2003 memorandum issued by the then Deputy Attorney General, Larry D. Thompson, entitled: Principles of Federal Prosecution of Business Organizations. The “Thompson Memorandum,” as it came to be known, listed a series of factors prosecutors should consider when making a charging determination including the company’s “willingness to cooperate in an investigation of its agents.” The Memorandum stated that the factors to be considered in assessing the “adequacy” of that cooperation should include: whether the company waived its attorney-client privilege and attorney work product protection, and whether it was advancing attorneys’ fees for the individuals under investigation or providing them with information under a joint defense agreement.
After I described the Thompson Memorandum, I made the comments based on the notes that are excerpted from page 8 of my outline above. Speaking as a former federal prosecutor, I asked why prosecutors would need to call for attorney work product given the investigative tools and the skill they had at their disposal. The tone of the remarks reflected the serious concerns at that time that were animating many defense attorneys who represented individuals and employees at that time, as well as others. But I did not suggest at any point that corporations should not fully cooperate with criminal investigations, or that culpable individuals should not be punished.

These revisions covered all of the concerns that I raised in my talk in March of 2006.

After everything we have seen in this most recent financial meltdown, would you say these same words today?

Response: No. The revision of the Department’s policies concerning corporate cooperation has alleviated all of the concerns I was expressing at the time.

2. I’m concerned that our courts have become far too cozy with big business. The Roberts Court is an exemplar of this. This is a Court that has made it easier for corporations to discriminate against older Americans. It’s made it easier for corporations to keep their employees out of court through secret, binding arbitrations. And it’s made it harder for investors to recover money from the firms that have defrauded them.

What do you think is the proper relationship between the federal courts and corporations?

Response: The role of the federal courts is to fairly apply all statutory and Constitutional provisions and to adhere to the law, including the law governing corporations as it is set forth by Congress. District Court judges are bound to follow the precedents of the Supreme Court and the Courts of Appeals in performing that function. It is not the role of District Judges to accord special rights not found in law to corporations who appear before them. It is the role of Congress to expand or restrict the rights and obligations of corporations or their employees.
Responses of Amy B. Jackson
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia
to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. During the 2004 presidential election, you co-authored an article entitled, “[Question]: Who’s Better for Lawyers? [Answer]: John Kerry,” published in the Legal Times.

   a. Can you explain what you meant when you said that President Bush had no commitment to the law and that he “view[ed] the legal profession with contempt”?

      Response: In retrospect, the language of the article was too harsh. It was meant to suggest that the courts should play a role in the resolution of issues such as those ultimately addressed in Hamdi v. Rumsfeld, 542 U.S. 567 (2004) and Boumediene v. Bush, 553 U.S. 723 (2008). I think that the tone of the article can be attributed to the fact that it was a political piece, written on the eve of a close election, and also to the fact that it was the product of joint authorship. The piece stands out among my thirty years’ worth of writings and public statements not only because of its tone, but because it was the only political piece that I played any role in writing. When one gets past the rhetoric of the article, I believe that at bottom it expresses the view that a President should appoint judges who will follow the rule of law.

   b. Do you still stand by your statement that “the Bush presidency was secured through the legal process rather than the electoral process”?

      Response: The electoral process and the legal process were both involved in the election of President Bush.

   c. You said of President Bush’s appointment of John Ashcroft as Attorney General:

      “When Bush selected his attorney general, he chose not a distinguished leader of the bar with the stature and experience appropriate to the position, but an undistinguished politician who could not win against a deceased opponent. The choice of John Ashcroft . . . was a stick in the eye of the American electorate . . . .”

      Do you still stand by that statement?

      Response: No. I have a great deal of respect for the manner in which Attorney General Ashcroft sought to perform his duties during a very difficult period for the country.
d. You also wrote that since the terror attacks of September 11th, “the [Bush] administration has most clearly engaged in a brazen disregard of the law . . . [pursuing] policies that condoned the torture of enemy prisoners in violation of international treaties.” You also blamed Bush Administration policies for “Muslim hatred of the United States.” Do you still stand by those statements?

Response: I did not and I do not blame the Bush Administration for the criminal actions of terrorists who target innocent civilians. At the time of the article, I was troubled by reports of torture of prisoners held by the United States, and I was impressed by statements by Sen. John McCain, Sen. Lindsay Graham, and others that such tactics were not consistent with American values and that they could ultimately be ineffective or counter-productive.

e. Do you still believe that the recess appointments of Judges Pickering and Pryor, and the elevation of Judge Bybee, were a “circumvention of the democratic process”?

Response: I have a great deal of respect for the Senate’s role in the advice and consent process, and I acknowledge that recess appointments are fully constitutional.

2. Under the Supreme Court’s decision in United States v. Booker, the federal sentencing guidelines are now advisory, rather than mandatory.

a. If confirmed, how much deference will you afford the Sentencing Guidelines?

Response: If I am confirmed, the Guidelines will assist me in achieving the important goals of uniformity and predictability in sentencing. Under 18 U.S.C. §3553 and Supreme court precedent, including Rita v. United States, 551 U.S. 338 (2007), the Guidelines serve as an important benchmark and the starting point for the sentencing determination. If confirmed, I would look to the Guidelines in accordance with the sentencing statute and the relevant Supreme Court precedents.

b. Do you agree that the sentence a defendant receives for a particular crime should not depend on the judge he or she happens to draw?

Response: Yes.

c. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a district court judge to depart downward from the sentencing guidelines?

Response: A sentence should be based upon a consideration of all of the factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. §3553, including proper consideration of the applicable Guideline range in accordance with the Supreme Court’s directives. As the Supreme Court has held, any variance from the applicable Guideline range must be supported by clearly stated reasons.

3. When Justice Stevens announced his retirement, the President said that he would select a Supreme Court nominee with “a keen understanding of how the law affects the daily lives of the American people.”
   a. Do you believe judges should base their decisions on a desired outcome, or solely on the law and facts presented?
      Response: Judges should base their decisions solely on the law and facts.
   b. Do you believe a judge should consider his or her own values or policy preferences in determining what the law means?
      Response: No.
   c. During her confirmation hearings, Justice Sotomayor rejected President Obama’s so-called “empathy standard” stating, “We apply the law to facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts.” Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?
      Response: Yes.

4. Do you believe that the Second Amendment is an individual right or a collective right? Please explain your answer.
   Response: In District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S. Ct. 2783 (2008), and McDonald v. City of Chicago, Illinois, 130 S. Ct. 3020 (2010), the Supreme Court held that the Second Amendment confers an individual right.
   a. What standard of scrutiny do you believe is appropriate in a Second Amendment challenge against a Federal or State gun law?
      Response: The Supreme Court has indicated that it should be a higher level of scrutiny than rational basis scrutiny. See District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S. Ct. 2783, 2817 n. 27 (2008).

5. What is your view of the role of a judge?
   Response: The role of a District Court judge is to apply the law set forth in the Constitution, statutes, and Supreme Court and appellate court precedent to the particular facts of each case in a fair and impartial fashion. When ruling on the legal questions presented to the court for decision, a judge has the responsibility to decide on a timely basis and to articulate the reasons for the decision with clarity. A District judge presides over trials, ruling on evidentiary questions and instructing the jury as to the law to be applied, and a judge can serve as the finder of facts during motions and bench trials. It is the role of a judge to perform all of these tasks with objectivity, intellectual honesty, appropriate temperament, efficiency, sound judgment, and clear reasoning.

6. Do you believe that the death penalty constitutes cruel and unusual punishment under the Constitution? Please explain your answer.

Response: The Supreme Court has held that the death penalty comports with the Eighth Amendment except in certain specific circumstances.

7. Do you believe that the death penalty is an acceptable form of punishment? Please explain your answer.

Response: Congress has determined that certain federal crimes should be punishable by the death penalty, and the Supreme Court has held that the death penalty comports with the Eighth Amendment. If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would be bound by federal law and Supreme Court precedent.

8. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received the questions from the Department of Justice Office of Legal Policy on Wednesday, September 22, 2010, and carefully drafted answers to them myself. I reviewed those answers with representatives of the Department of Justice and requested that they be submitted to the Committee.

9. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.
1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: No. I do not believe the Constitution is a living document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it.

2. Justice William Brennan once said: “Our Constitution was not intended to preserve a preexisting social order but to make a new one, to put in place new principles that the prior political community had not sufficiently recognized.” Do you agree with him that constitutional interpretation today must take into account this supposed transformative purpose of the Constitution?

Response: I do not know the context in which Justice Brennan said this. Constitutional interpretation should take into account the text of the Constitution, the intent of the framers, and Supreme Court precedent.

3. Do you believe judicial doctrine rightly incorporates the evolving understandings of the Constitution forged through social movements, legislation, and historical practice?

Response: No. The text of the Constitution, the intent of the framers, and binding precedent from the Supreme Court guide judicial decision-making.

4. Do you believe empathy is an essential ingredient for arriving at just decisions and outcomes and should play a role in a judge’s consideration of a case?

Response: No. The court applies the law to the facts.

5. Is any transaction involving the exchange of money subject to Congress’s Commerce Clause power?

Response: The Supreme Court in United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995), set forth the test for determining whether a particular transaction is subject to the Commerce Clause: whether the activity falls within the channels of interstate commerce, instrumentalities of, or persons or things in, interstate commerce, or activities having a substantial relation to interstate commerce. The Supreme Court has consistently held the Commerce Clause power is not unlimited. “But even these modern-era precedents which have expanded congressional power under the Commerce Clause confirm that this power is subject to outer limits.” Lopez, 514 U.S. at 557. More recently, the Supreme Court has imposed additional limits on the Commerce Clause. United States v. Morrison, 529...
U.S. 598 (2000). Should I be confirmed as a district judge, I will follow the Supreme Court’s analysis in these cases.

6. What limitations remain on the individual Second Amendment right now that it has been incorporated against the States?

Response: What limits remain on the Second Amendment remain open but for those limits expressly set forth by the Supreme Court as presumptively lawful regulations in District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S. Ct. 2783 (2008). “[N]othing in our opinion should be taken to cast doubt on the longstanding prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons and the mentally ill, or laws forbidding the carrying of firearms in sensitive places such as schools and government buildings, or laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms.” Heller, 128 S. Ct. at 2816-17.

a. Is it limited only to possession of a handgun for self-defense in the home, since both Heller and McDonald involved cases of handgun possession for self-defense in the home?

Response: Both Heller and McDonald specifically found city ordinances unconstitutional that prohibited handgun possession in the home. The Supreme Court has left open for future evaluations examples of other limits on the Second Amendment. But the Supreme Court made clear that core protections are conferred by the Second Amendment. “In Heller, however, we expressly rejected the argument that the scope of the Second Amendment right should be determined by judicial interest balancing, [citation] and this Court decades ago abandoned ‘the notion that the Fourteenth Amendment applies to the States only a watered-down, subjective version of the individual guarantees of the Bill of Rights.’ [Citation.]” McDonald, 130 S. Ct. at 3047.

7. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: Having been expressed in an opinion by the Supreme Court in Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), if confirmed as a district court judge, I would be bound by precedent.

a. Do you agree that the Constitution’s prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment “embodies a principle whose application is appropriately informed by our society’s understanding of cruelty and by what punishments have become unusual?”

Response: In Roper, the Supreme Court stated that “we have established the propriety and affirmed the necessity of referring to ‘the evolving standards of decency that mark the progress of a maturing society’ to determine which punishments are so disproportionate as to be cruel and unusual." 543 U.S. at 560-61 (quoting Trop v. Dulles, 356 U.S. 86, 100-01 (1958) (plurality opinion)). If confirmed as a district judge, I would be bound by precedent of the Supreme Court.

b. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

Response: First I would determine whether the Supreme Court or the Seventh Circuit had decided whether the punishment in question violated the Eighth Amendment. Such precedent would control. In the absence of such precedent, I would research Supreme Court case law to determine which factors govern the Eighth Amendment analysis and how to implement those factors.

c. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the "evolving standards of decency" dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?

Response: No. The Supreme Court has rejected challenges to the death penalty on many occasions. If confirmed as a district court judge, I would follow that precedent.

d. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge's analysis?

Response: As set forth in Question 7(b), and further the Supreme Court has held the death penalty is not unconstitutional in all cases. Therefore, a district court judge would have no occasion to apply the "evolving standards of decency."

8. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: No. The meaning of a constitutional provision is determined by its text and history and by interpretations handed down by the Supreme Court.

a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for "wise solutions" and "good ideas" to legal and constitutional problems?

Response: No.

b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: Under no circumstances.

c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?
895

Response: Pursuant to Supreme Court precedent, only rarely are courts to consider foreign materials.

d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?

Response: No.
Responses of Sue E. Myerscough Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Central District of Illinois
to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. During your 2002 campaign for the Illinois Supreme Court, you were quoted as saying that, “[t]he [Illinois] Supreme Court is a social service agency, and they have too long ignored that role.” Please explain what you meant by that statement.

Response: My comment was directed solely to the management role of the Supreme Court over adult and juvenile probation services as delegated by the legislature. Probation services monitor criminal offenders and incarcerate juveniles within the community. Funding for court services has been dramatically cut in the last 25 years.

2. When Justice Stevens announced his retirement, the President said that he would select a Supreme Court nominee with “a keen understanding of how the law affects the daily lives of the American people.”

a. Do you believe judges should base their decisions on a desired outcome, or solely on the law and facts presented?

Response: Judges should base their decisions only on the law and facts presented.

   i. Please discuss an example of a case where you have had to set aside your own desired outcome and rule based solely on the law.

Response: I do not have a desired outcome when I enter the courtroom. However, among the more difficult cases are those in which mental health patients must be released even though potentially dangerous because they did not receive their statutory notices. In those cases where the patients did not receive statutory notice, I have followed the law and reversed the commitments.

b. Do you believe a judge should consider his or her own values or policy preferences in determining what the law means?

Response: No.

   i. If so, under what circumstances?

Response: None.

   ii. Please identify any cases in which you have done so.

Response: None.
iii. If not, please discuss an example of a case where you have had to set aside your own values or policy preferences and rule based solely on the law.

Response: The mental health cases referenced in 2(a).

c. During her confirmation hearings, Justice Sotomayor rejected President Obama's so-called "empathy standard" stating, "We apply the law to facts. We don't apply feelings to facts." Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?

Response: Yes.

3. Under the Supreme Court's decision in United States v. Booker, the federal sentencing guidelines are now advisory, rather than mandatory.

   a. If confirmed, how much deference will you afford the Sentencing Guidelines?

   b. Do you agree that the sentence a defendant receives for a particular crime should not depend on the judge he or she happens to draw?

   Response: Yes.

   c. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a district court judge to depart downward from the sentencing guidelines?

   Response: Only rarely where recommended by the U.S. Attorney and that recommendation is supported by the statutory sentencing factors.

4. Do you believe that the Second Amendment is an individual right or a collective right? Please explain your answer.

   a. What standard of scrutiny do you believe is appropriate in a Second Amendment challenge against a Federal or State gun law?
898

Response: In Heller and McDonald, the Supreme Court found a right under the Second Amendment must be treated in the same manner as any fundamental right identified not be treated as a “watered down right” subject to “judicial interest balancing.” See Heller, 128 S. Ct. at 2821; McDonald, 130 S. Ct. at 3047.

5. What is your view of the role of a judge?

   Response: The role of a judge is to apply the law to the facts.

6. Do you believe that the death penalty constitutes cruel and unusual punishment under the Constitution? Please explain your answer.

7. Do you believe that the death penalty is an acceptable form of punishment? Please explain your answer.

   Response: Yes. Should I be confirmed as a district court judge, I would follow the law regarding imposition of the death penalty, both as directed by statute and in binding precedent from the Supreme Court and the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

8. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

   Response: After reviewing the legal issues presented, I prepared my answers after careful consideration of each question. I discussed my answers with representatives of the Department of Justice and requested my answers be forwarded to the Committee.

9. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

   Response: Yes.
Responses of James E. Shadid

to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: No.

2. Justice William Brennan once said: “Our Constitution was not intended to preserve a preexisting society but to make a new one, to put in place new principles that the prior political community had not sufficiently recognized.” Do you agree with him that constitutional interpretation today must take into account this supposed transformative purpose of the Constitution?

Response: I do not know what Justice Brennan meant, or in what context, he made that statement. I believe that when presented with a case that requires application of the Constitution to a specific factual situation, a district court judge is guided by the text of the Constitution and the precedent as established by the United States Supreme Court and the appeals courts.

3. Do you believe judicial doctrine rightly incorporates the evolving understandings of the Constitution forged through social movements, legislation, and historical practice?

Response: I believe a district court judge is guided by the text of the Constitution and the precedent as established by the United States Supreme Court and the appeals courts.

4. Do you believe empathy is an essential ingredient for arriving at just decisions and outcomes and should play a role in a judge’s consideration of a case?

Response: No.

5. Is any transaction involving the exchange of money subject to Congress’s Commerce Clause power?

6. What limitations remain on the individual Second Amendment right now that it has been incorporated against the States?

Response: The Supreme Court has left open what limitations remain except for those expressly identified.

a. Is it limited only to possession of a handgun for self-defense in the home, since both Heller and McDonald involved cases of handgun possession for self-defense in the home?

Response: The Supreme Court has stated there is an individual right to bear arms. However, that right is not unlimited. The Supreme Court has not stated what those other limitations are.

7. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the "evolving standards of decency" to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy's analysis?

Response: I would follow the law regarding imposition of the death penalty as directed by statute and binding precedent from the Supreme Court and Seventh Circuit.

a. Do you agree that the Constitution's prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment "embodies a principle whose application is appropriately informed by our society's understanding of cruelty and by what punishments have become unusual?"

Response: I would follow the law regarding imposition of the death penalty as directed by statute and binding precedent from the Supreme Court and Seventh Circuit.

b. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

Response: I would follow the law regarding imposition of the death penalty as directed by statute and binding precedent from the Supreme Court and Seventh Circuit.

c. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the "evolving standards of decency" dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?

Response: No.

d. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge's analysis?

Response: I would look to the standards as set out by the Supreme Court and the Seventh Circuit.
8. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: No, unless consideration has been directed by statute or precedent from the Supreme Court or Seventh Circuit.

a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for "wise solutions" and "good ideas" to legal and constitutional problems?

Response: No.

b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: I would do so only if consideration has been directed by statute or precedent from the Supreme Court or Seventh Circuit.

c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

Response: No.

d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?

Response: No.
Responses of James E. Shadid
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Central District of Illinois
to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. In your questionnaire for judicial candidates submitted to the Peoria Journal Star in 2002, you explained your judicial philosophy this way:

“If we are going to be trial judges then at the end of our day, or task, some human being is going to be affected and if our rulings will affect people’s lives and people may change their lives because of what we do, we had better use every power of our minds and our hearts and our beings to get those rulings right.”

You then went on to compare your judicial philosophy to Justices O’Connor, Souter and Stevens. Does this statement accurately reflect your judicial philosophy?

Response: My judicial philosophy is to apply the law to the facts in each case, one case at a time, on a level playing field, then clearly articulate those findings of fact and conclusions of law to the parties.

2. When Justice Stevens announced his retirement, the President said that he would select a Supreme Court nominee with “a keen understanding of how the law affects the daily lives of the American people.”

a. Do you believe judges should base their decisions on a desired outcome, or solely on the law and facts presented?

Response: I believe judges should base their decisions solely on the law and facts presented.

i. Please discuss an example of a case where you have had to set aside your own desired outcome and rule based solely on the law.

Response: None.

b. Do you believe a judge should consider his or her own values or policy preferences in determining what the law means?

Response: No.

i. If so, under what circumstances?

Response: None.
ii. Please identify any cases in which you have done so.
   Response: None.

iii. If not, please discuss an example of a case where you have had to set aside your own values or policy preferences and rule based solely on the law.
   Response: None.

c. During her confirmation hearings, Justice Sotomayor rejected President Obama’s so-called “empathy standard” stating, “We apply the law to facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts.” Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?
   Response: Yes.

3. Under the Supreme Court’s decision in United States v. Booker, the federal sentencing guidelines are now advisory, rather than mandatory.

   a. If confirmed, how much deference will you afford the Sentencing Guidelines?
      Response: I will give the Sentencing Guidelines great deference.

   b. Do you agree that the sentence a defendant receives for a particular crime should not depend on the judge he or she happens to draw?
      Response: Yes

   c. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a district court judge to depart downward from the sentencing guidelines?
      Response: The Supreme Court requires that district judges consider the Guidelines as “the starting point and the initial benchmark” in every sentencing, Gall v United States, 552 U.S. 38, 49 (2007), in order to achieve Congress’s "basic goal in passing the Sentencing Act . . . in the direction of increased uniformity,” Booker v United States, 543 U.S. 220, 253 (2005).

      I would review a defendant's request for departure after a determination of the appropriate guideline range and consideration of relevant Supreme Court and Seventh Circuit cases that might indicate special circumstances warranting departure.

4. Do you believe that the Second Amendment is an individual right or a collective right? Please explain your answer.
Response: I believe the Second Amendment is an individual right. The Supreme Court has stated the Second Amendment is an individual right in District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S. Ct. 2783 (2008). See also McDonald v. Chicago, 130 S. Ct. 3020, 3048 (2010) (describing “the individual right that Heller recognized”).

a. What standard of scrutiny do you believe is appropriate in a Second Amendment challenge against a Federal or State gun law?

Response: The Supreme Court in District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S. Ct. 2783 (2008) stated that a heightened standard of scrutiny should be applied to challenges against gun laws.

5. What is your view of the role of a judge?

Response: My view of the role of a judge is to first remember that the case is not about the judge. It is about the parties appearing before the judge. I believe the judge sets the tone for the public’s confidence in the judicial system and by treating all litigants fairly, on a level playing field, and making rulings based on the facts and the law of the particular case, the public’s confidence in the system is maintained.

6. Do you believe that the death penalty constitutes cruel and unusual punishment under the Constitution? Please explain your answer.

Response: No. The United States Supreme Court has ruled that as a general matter the death penalty does not constitute cruel and unusual punishment.

7. Do you believe that the death penalty is an acceptable form of punishment? Please explain your answer.

Response: Yes. The United States Supreme Court has ruled that the death penalty is constitutional and acceptable except in those limited instances in which the Supreme Court has ruled otherwise.

8. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received the Questions for the Record from the Department of Justice on September 22, 2010. I drafted answers to the questions and then consulted with members from the Department of Justice. Thereafter, I provided a final version for transmittal to the Committee.

9. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes
Responses of Amy Totenberg Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Northern District of Georgia
to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

1. Some people refer to the Constitution as a "living" document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: No. The text of the Constitution is fixed, absent amendment through the Article V amendment process. The Constitution establishes a structure of enduring principles of governance as well as rights identified in the Bill of Rights and other Amendments to the Constitution. The Framers intended the Constitution's principles to be applied to changing circumstances over the course of American history, even though they naturally could not envision or predict these circumstances.

2. Justice William Brennan once said: "Our Constitution was not intended to preserve a preexisting society but to make a new one, to put in place new principles that the prior political community had not sufficiently recognized." Do you agree with him that constitutional interpretation today must take into account this supposed transformative purpose of the Constitution?

Response: My understanding of this passage from Justice Brennan's speech is that he was suggesting that the Supreme Court's judicial interpretation should be guided by the enduring principles established by the Constitution and its Amendments. Specifically, Justice Brennan was referring in this paragraph to the intent of the Civil War Amendments (Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments) to abolish slavery, guarantee equal protection of law, and establish the right of citizens to vote without regard to race, color, or previous condition of servitude. If confirmed, in my limited role as a District Court judge I would consider a case involving a constitutional question by reviewing the text of the constitutional provisions at issue and the legal analysis required by applicable binding precedent of the Supreme Court and the Eleventh Circuit.

3. Do you believe judicial doctrine rightly incorporates the evolving understandings of the Constitution forged through social movements, legislation, and historical practice?

Response: In applying the Constitution to the specific facts of a particular case, a district court judge should be solely guided by the text of the Constitution, binding precedent of the Supreme Court and appellate court, and if necessary and appropriate, the record reflecting the intent of the constitutional or legislative provisions at issue. In certain limited constitutional case contexts, binding Supreme Court precedent has considered legislative norms in the United States or relevant historical practices, as evident in the Court’s decisions in District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 U.S. 2783 (2008) and Atkins v. Virginia, 536 U.S. 304 (2002).
4. Do you believe empathy is an essential ingredient for arriving at just decisions and outcomes and should play a role in a judge’s consideration of a case?

Response: When reaching a decision, a judge must put aside whatever sympathy the judge may feel for the position of a specific litigant. To the extent that empathy is defined as the capacity to understand the position and circumstances of witnesses and parties, this quality could contribute to the judge’s performance of the responsibility to listen to and understand evidence presented in a given case. However, empathy should not play a role in the judge’s application of the law to the facts presented.

5. Is any transaction involving the exchange of money subject to Congress’s Commerce Clause power?

Response: The Supreme Court’s decisions in United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995) and United States v. Morrison, 529 U.S. 598 (2000), identify the three categories of activity covered by the Commerce Clause: activity involving the channels of interstate commerce; instrumentalities of, or persons or things, in interstate commerce; and, activities having a substantial relation to interstate commerce. An exchange of money may therefore not fall under the coverage of the Commerce Clause for a variety of reasons. Specifically, the exchange may involve purely localized transactions between individuals or entities that are solely within one state, community, or family and bear no substantial relation to interstate commerce or involve neither the channels nor instrumentalities of commerce.

6. What limitations remain on the individual Second Amendment right now that it has been incorporated against the States?

Response: The Supreme Court has left open the question of what limitations on the Second Amendment right, if any, would pass constitutional muster beyond those prohibitions the Court expressly identified as presumptively lawful regulatory methods. These methods include “longstanding prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons and the mentally ill or laws forbidding the carrying of arms in sensitive places such as schools and government buildings or laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the sale of arms.” District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S.Ct. 2783, 2816-2817 (2008).

- Is it limited only to possession of a handgun for self-defense in the home, since both Heller and McDonald involved cases of handgun possession for self-defense in the home?

Response: The Court’s decisions in these cases specifically held unconstitutional City ordinances that prohibited handgun possession in the home. While the Court left open for future evaluation other applications of the Second Amendment, it made clear that the core protection conferred by the Second Amendment must be recognized and not “watered-down” by any form of “interest-balancing.”

7. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would be bound by and follow the Supreme Court’s holding and analysis in Roper in combination with other applicable Supreme Court and Eleventh Circuit precedent.

a. Do you agree that the Constitution’s prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment “embodies a principle whose application is appropriately informed by our society’s understanding of cruelty and by what punishments have become unusual?”

Response: The Court observed in Roper that because the death penalty is the most severe punishment, “it must be limited to those offenders who commit ‘a narrow category of the most serious crimes’ and whose extreme culpability makes them ‘the most deserving of execution.’” 543 U.S. at 568, quoting Atkins v. Virginia, 536 U.S. 304, 319 (2002). The Supreme Court’s analysis of what offenders meet this standard of culpability draws on “history, tradition, and precedent” as well as “the evolving standards of decency that mark the progress of a maturing society” which are referred to so as “to determine which punishments are so disproportionate as to be cruel and unusual.” 543 U.S. at 560-61, quoting Trop v. Dulles, 356 U.S. 86, 100-101 (1958)(plurality opinion). If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would be bound to follow the holding of Roper and other relevant binding precedent of the Supreme Court and the Eleventh Circuit.

b. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

Response: If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would apply established statutory law and Supreme Court and Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals precedent regarding imposition of the death penalty.

c. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?

Response: The Supreme Court has sustained the constitutionality of the death penalty as a form of punishment as a general matter in a variety of contexts. If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would be bound by and apply these precedents.
d. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge’s analysis?

Response: If confirmed as a District Court judge, I would strictly follow precedent of the Supreme Court and the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals and the factors set forth in such precedent.

8. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on contemporary foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: No, it would not be proper for a judge to do so except to the extent that precedent of the Supreme Court and the applicable Court of Appeals required otherwise.

   a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for “wise solutions” and “good ideas” to legal and constitutional problems?

Response: No, a federal judge should not engage in such an examination, except if directed to do so by applicable Supreme Court or Court of Appeals precedent.

   b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: If confirmed as a District Court Judge, I would not consider foreign law unless explicitly required to do so by binding Supreme Court and Eleventh Circuit precedent.

   c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

Response: I am not aware of any such circumstances. A federal judge has a duty to apply and implement the law of the United States.

   d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?

Response: No, I would not do so except to the extent that binding precedent of the Supreme Court and the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals required otherwise.

to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. Under the Supreme Court’s decision in United States v. Booker, the federal sentencing guidelines are now advisory, rather than mandatory.
   a. If confirmed, how much deference will you afford the Sentencing Guidelines?

      Response: I believe that the Sentencing Guidelines are entitled to significant deference in any sentencing decision and should be considered presumptively applicable.

   b. Do you agree that the sentence a defendant receives for a particular crime should not depend on the judge he or she happens to draw?

      Response: Yes.

   c. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a district court judge to depart downward from the sentencing guidelines?

      Response: If confirmed as a District Judge, I would review a defendant’s request to depart from the guidelines first with the understanding that the guidelines should be presumptively applicable. I would consider relevant Supreme Court and Eleventh Circuit precedent in determining whether an individual case presented special circumstances that warranted departure. See, e.g., Kimbrough v. United States, 552 U.S. 85 (2007); Gall v. United States, 552 U.S. 38 (2007); United States v. Clay, 483 F.3d 739 (11th Cir. 2007). I would then determine how these circumstances compared to other downward sentencing departure district court decisions reviewed by the Eleventh Circuit.

2. When Justice Stevens announced his retirement, the President said that he would select a Supreme Court nominee with “a keen understanding of how the law affects the daily lives of the American people.”

   a. Do you believe judges should base their decisions on a desired outcome, or solely on the law and facts presented?

      Response: Judges should base their decisions solely on the law and facts as presented.

   b. Do you believe a judge should consider his or her own values or policy preferences in determining what the law means?

      Response: No.
c. During her confirmation hearings, Justice Sotomayor rejected President Obama's so-called "empathy standard" stating, "We apply the law to facts. We don't apply feelings to facts." Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?

Response: Yes.

3. Do you believe that the Second Amendment is an individual right or a collective right? Please explain your answer.

   a. What standard of scrutiny do you believe is appropriate in a Second Amendment challenge against a Federal or State gun law?

   Response: The Supreme Court's decisions in District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S.Ct. 2783 (2008) and McDonald v. City of Chicago, 130 S.Ct. 3020 (2010) indicate that a right under the Second Amendment should be treated in the same manner as any other right explicitly identified under the Bill of Rights. Under this precedent, the core protection conferred by the Second Amendment should not be treated as a "watered-down" right or one subject to judicial "interest-balancing." McDonald v City of Chicago, 130 S.Ct. at 3048-3050; District of Columbia v. Heller, 128 S.Ct. at 2821.

4. What is your view of the role of a judge?

Response: The role of a District Court judge is to apply applicable statutory law and binding precedent of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals to the facts of each specific case before him or her in an impartial and thorough manner and to render decisions in a reasonable time frame, consistent with the requirements of law.

5. Do you believe that the death penalty constitutes cruel and unusual punishment under the Constitution? Please explain your answer.

Response: Based on established Supreme Court precedent, my view is that the death penalty does not constitute cruel and unusual punishment under the Constitution except under narrow circumstances, such as those addressed in Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005) (for defendants who committed crimes before the age of 18) and Atkins v. Virginia, 536 U.S. 304 (2002) (for defendants determined to be mentally retarded).

6. Do you believe that the death penalty is an acceptable form of punishment? Please explain your answer.

Response: Consistent with my response to Question #5 above, my view is that the death penalty is a legally acceptable form of punishment except in those particular cases circumstances exempted from the death penalty by binding precedent of the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals or where the death penalty is not authorized by applicable statutes.

7. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received these questions from the Department of Justice on September 22, 2010 and proceeded to draft my responses with careful attention devoted to each question. I subsequently discussed the questions with Department of Justice staff. I thereafter finalized my responses and forwarded those to the Justice Department for transmission to the Committee.

8. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

The Honorable Patrick Leahy
433 Russell Building
United States Senate
Washington, DC 20510-4502

Dear Senator Leahy:

I am pleased to inform you that the Federal Judiciary Committee of the Connecticut Bar Association (CBA) has voted to rate Susan L. Carney, the President’s nominee for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, as “qualified” by a unanimous vote.

The 12 members of the CBA’s Federal Judiciary Committee are charged with the responsibility of evaluating and reporting on the suitability of Connecticut candidates for service on the Federal Bench. The committee rates all such federal judicial nominees as either “qualified” or “not qualified.”

The committee reviewed and discussed the nominee’s background and qualifications and interviewed Attorney Carney on June 25, 2010. Once the committee determined that no further information or interviews were required, it voted on Attorney Carney’s qualifications.

The CBA appreciates the opportunity to comment and participate in the judicial nominee review process. The CBA looks forward to Attorney Carney’s successful confirmation and to her service to the public and legal community as a judge on the Second Circuit Court of Appeals.

Very truly yours,

Francis J. Brady
President, Connecticut Bar Association Statement of

The Honorable Patrick Leahy

United States Senator

Vermont

September 15, 2010

Today we welcome to the Committee six of President Obama's highly qualified nominees to fill some of the growing number of vacancies on the federal bench. I thank Senator Durbin for chairing this important hearing today which includes two nominees from his home state of Illinois. I also thank our Ranking Member, Senator Sessions, for his cooperation and that of his staff in working with us to continue to make progress with the confirmation hearing today and with additional hearings later this month.

Each of the nominees before us today has strong support. Senator Dodd and Senator Lieberman support the nomination of Susan Carney of Connecticut to the Second Circuit. Amy Totenberg, nominated to the Northern District of Georgia, has the support of her home state Senators, both Republicans, Senator Chambliss and Senator Isakson. Of course Senator Durbin, along with Senator Burriss, strongly support the two nominees to the Central District of Illinois, Justice Sue Myerscough and Judge James Shaddix, who are appearing before the Committee today. I note that Justice Myerscough is finally getting a hearing before the Committee, 15 years after she was first nominated to the Federal bench. Congressman Aaron Schock, the Republican Congressman who represents the home district of both nominees, has also come over from the House to introduce the nominees today.

We also welcome to the Committee today Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes Norton of the District of Columbia, who is here to introduce the two nominees to the D.C. circuit court James Boasberg and Amy Jackson. We have two more nominations to fill vacancies on that court pending on the Committee's agenda this week. I hope we can report those nominations favorably tomorrow.

These nominations demonstrate how President Obama continues to work with Senators from both sides of the aisle to identify qualified nominees to fill vacancies on the Federal bench. In light of the broad bipartisan support we have seen for most of judicial nominations it is surprising and extremely disappointing that Republican obstruction in the Senate has led to so few confirmations and to the growing judicial vacancy crisis in this country.
I hope that in light of the skyrocketing vacancies on the Federal courts, we can proceed without delay to consider the nominees before us today as well as the many still pending on the Senate's Executive Calendar. The cooperation of Senator Sessions has led us to make consistent progress in Committee holding confirmation hearings and reporting nominees promptly to the Senate floor. Regrettably, we have not seen similar cooperation by the Senate's Republican leadership which instead has insisted on months of delay before agreeing to vote on judicial nominations that are confirmed unanimously and refused to consider many others. This serves no good purpose. This obstruction is wrong. I have called for it to end, but the Republican Senate leadership persists in their practice.

One recent example is the nomination of Jane Stranch of Tennessee to the Sixth Circuit. Last year, Senator Sessions and I worked to have the nomination reported by the Committee in a prompt manner. Ms. Stranch had the support of her home state Senators, both Republicans, and was reported by this Committee with strong bipartisan support. Yet it still took nearly 10 months before her nomination came to a vote because of obstruction by the Senate Republican leadership. Early this week, we were finally able to consider her nomination and it was confirmed again with broad bipartisan support. There is no excuse for the Senate not to now be allowed to turn to the many other judicial nominations that remain stalled on the Executive Calendar, nearly all of whom were reported unanimously by this Committee.

Several recent newspaper articles have discussed the judicial vacancy crisis that has been created by the Republican strategy of slow-walking the Senate's consideration of noncontroversial nominations. These include many nominees who, when they finally get a vote after waiting months and months and months, get an unanimous vote. These include nominees who have the strong support of Republican home state Senators, yet still have required cloture votes to proceed. These include district court nominations, which are traditionally considered without delays, and they have never been targeted for obstruction by Democrats or Republicans when they have been supported by their home State Senators. Yet, last year, the Senate was allowed to confirm only 12 Federal circuit and district court judges all year. That was the lowest total in more than 50 years. So far this year, we have confirmed only 29 more and achieved what one recent news story noted is the lowest number of confirmations in more than 40 years.

As I noted earlier this week during the Senate's consideration of the Stranch nomination, Justice Anthony Kennedy—a Justice nominated by a Republican President—spoke last month at the Ninth Circuit conference about the cost of skyrocketing judicial vacancies not only in California but throughout the country. He said, "It's important for the public to understand that the excellence of the federal judiciary is at risk." He further noted that, "If judicial excellence is cast upon a sea of congressional indifference, the rule of law is imperiled." I hope all Senators will heed Justice Kennedy's serious warning because he is absolutely correct. We should not let partisan calculations stand in the way of doing our job for the American people.

We have fallen well off the pace we set for nominations in 2001 and 2002. By this date in 2002, a Democratic Majority in the Senate had confirmed 77 of the circuit and district court nominations of President Bush, a Republican President. The Democrats had been in charge for only 13 months and we already confirmed 77. In stark contrast, to date we have confirmed only 41 of President Obama's circuit and district court nominations. I had hoped to make progress before the recess, but Republicans permitted us to confirm only four noncontroversial nominations as the Senate wrapped up, objecting to an even greater number of nominations favorably reported by this Committee—five—and sending them back to the President. As a result, 16 judicial nominations remain stalled on the Executive Calendar today, all of which could easily be considered and confirmed.

The Senate has taken more than five times as long to consider President Obama's circuit court nominations reported by the Committee than we did to consider President Bush's during his first 2 years in office and it has taken three times as long to consider his district court nominations, nominations that are almost never controversial. It is not fair to the bipartisan work of this Committee for the Senate Republican Leadership to continually obstruct and delay nominations. It is not fair to the nominees. They can't go forward with their lives while this is pending. They have a law practice. Everything is on hold for month after month after month. But most of all, it is not fair to the American people who rely on the federal courts to provide Justice and are harmed by the backlogs created by having one in eight federal judgeships vacant.

I hope that we do better with the highly qualified judicial nominees before us today.

Susan Carney of Connecticut has been nominated to fill one of three vacancies on the Second Circuit. After working for 17 years in private practice, she served as Associate General Counsel of the Peace Corps and is currently the Deputy General Counsel of Yale University. Ms. Carney graduated cum laude from Harvard College and earned her J.D. magna cum laude from Harvard Law School.

President Obama nominated Amy Totenberg to sit on the Northern District Court of Georgia. Ms. Totenberg is currently in private practice in Atlanta and also serves as a Special Master for the U.S. District Court for the District of Maryland and as a Court Monitor, and has served as a Court-Appointed Mediator for the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. Previously, Ms. Totenberg was general counsel to the Atlanta Board of Education, a part-time municipal court judge, and a partner at The Law Project. She graduated magna cum laude from Harvard College and earned her J.D. from Harvard Law School. If confirmed by the Senate, she would fill one of four vacancies on the district court in the Northern District of Georgia.

Justice Sue Myerscough has been nominated to the Central District of Illinois. She currently serves on the Fourth District Appellate Court of Illinois and previously served on the Seventh Judicial Circuit of Illinois. She is also an adjunct associate professor in the Department of Medical Humanities at the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine. Prior to becoming a judge, she worked in private practice for six years. Justice Myerscough earned her undergraduate degree, with honors, and her law degree from Southern Illinois University.

Judge James Shadid has also been nominated to the Central District of Illinois. He is a judge on the Tenth Judicial Circuit of Illinois and was previously a sole practitioner, a part-time commissioner on the Illinois Court of Claims, and a part-time Assistant Public Defender in the Peoria County Public Defender's Office. Judge Shadid was briefly a law partner in private practice and early in his career he also worked part-time at the Office of the Attorney General of Illinois. When he was appointed to serve as a state judge, Judge Shadid became the first Arab-American judge in Illinois. If confirmed, he will be the only federal Arab-American judge in the state, and one of only a handful of Arab-American federal judges in the country. Judge Shadid graduated from Bradley University and John Marshall Law School.

Amy Berman Jackson has been nominated for a seat on the District Court for the District of Columbia. She is a partner in private practice and previously served six years as an Assistant U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia, in the district to which she has now been nominated to the bench. Ms. Jackson graduated, cum laude, from Harvard College and cum laude from Harvard Law School.

Judge James E. "Jeb" Boasberg is nominated to the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. He was appointed to his current seat as a judge on the District of Columbia Superior Court by President George W. Bush in 2002. Judge Boasberg has also worked as a Federal prosecutor and in private practice. He graduated, magna cum laude, from Yale College, earned a graduate degree from Oxford University and received his law degree from Yale Law School.

I welcome the nominees and their families to the Committee today.

Ranking Member
Committee on the Judiciary
Statement of Senator Joseph Lieberman Regarding the Nomination of Susan L. Carney to the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit

September 15, 2010

Thank you, Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions, for allowing me to offer this statement in support of Susan L. Carney’s nomination to serve on the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

I commend President Obama’s decision to nominate Ms. Carney to serve on the Second Circuit. With over three decades of legal experience, Susan Carney has ably served our country, the state of Connecticut, and the organizations she has worked for with honor and distinction.

Susan Carney’s legal acumen and long career of devoted public service should make her a valuable addition to the Second Circuit. For the past twelve years, Susan Carney has served in Yale University’s Office of the Vice President and General Counsel, most recently as Acting General Counsel and Deputy General Counsel. In this capacity, Ms. Carney is the second-ranking legal officer of a leading educational and research institution with an annual budget of more than $2 billion. Her portfolio includes a variety of complex areas covered by federal law, including scientific research, intellectual property, and health care. Ms. Carney has also managed the legal aspects of Yale’s international affiliations and transactions in dozens of countries worldwide.
Prior to her work for Yale, Ms. Carney served as Associate General Counsel of the Peace Corps where she was twice honored for her outstanding service and contributions to the organization.

Ms. Carney has an impressive record of legal training and experience. She graduated from Harvard University with a Bachelors of Arts degree and went on to earn a law degree from Harvard, graduating magna cum laude. She served as a Law Clerk to Judge Levin Hicks Campbell on the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit before working in private practice with two law firms as an associate, partner, and founding partner. Ms. Carney has been admitted to practice in seven courts, including the U.S. Supreme Court, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit, and the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit and is a member of the Massachusetts, District of Columbia, and Connecticut bars. Ms. Carney also serves on the Board of Directors of the National Association of College & University Attorneys.

I am pleased that Susan Carney’s nomination is proceeding through the confirmation process, and I look forward to working with you and the rest of our Senate colleagues to consider Susan Carney’s nomination to the Second Circuit Court of Appeals.
Remarks by Congressman Aaron Schock to the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee in Support of the Nomination of Judge James Shadid for U.S. District Judge

Thank you Senator Durbin and Members of the Committee for allowing me to share with you my reasons for enthusiastically supporting President Obama’s nomination of state Circuit Court Judge James Shadid as a federal District Court Judge.

Jim Shadid is from my hometown of Peoria, Illinois, but that is not why I am here in support of his nomination. I want to make clear that my support is not perfunctory support for someone from my district.

I am here because state Circuit Court Judge James Shadid has been an outstanding Circuit Court Judge by every measure. In fact, he is a role model for what it takes to clear backlogged cases and efficiently running the courts. More importantly, he is also a role model for fairness, justice and protecting the public.

James Shadid has the perfect temperament to serve the public as a Judge. He comes to trials with no preconceived notions and is abundantly fair, has deep insights into the law, and has always ensured criminal defendants a fair trial. If and when those defendants have been found guilty, Judge Shadid’s sentencing for violent criminals has been consistent—he is a tough, no nonsense, clear-headed judge who has handed down thoughtful, but tough sentences.

In a well known case in the Peoria area, a defendant was on trial for shooting a gun into a crowd at one of Peoria’s high schools. The defendant was found guilty. Judge Shadid sentenced him to 24 years in prison. The sentence was appealed and the Appellate Court found that Judge Shadid “placed an undue emphasis on the fact that the shooting took place in a school,” reversed the sentence and remanded the case back to Judge Shadid for re-sentencing. The appearance of the Appellate Court pressing Judge Shadid to go easier on the defendant’s sentence was plain for all to see.

Judge Shadid carefully considered the Appellate Court’s ruling, clarified the legal basis on the sentence and once again came down with a sentence of 24 years in prison for the defendant.

Our Circuit Court Misdemeanor Court was notoriously backlogged with cases for a very long time. The average turn-around time was eight months. Though he was in a position to focus on other, sometimes more interesting types of cases, Judge Shadid volunteered to step up and take on the mess. He swiftly eliminated the backlog and put in place a more efficient process that has radically improved the functioning of the Misdemeanor Court.

Judge Shadid goes above and beyond the call of duty by holding mock trials in partnership with local high schools. This has given students invaluable insight into the criminal justice system.

and I personally know of many young people whose lives have been turned around by Judge Shadid’s admirable efforts to help at-risk youth.

All in all, I do not believe it is possible to find a better person to serve as a federal Court Judge. I commend Senator Durbin for his recommendation of Judge Shadid and President Obama for nominating James Shadid to serve the public as a federal District Court Judge in Illinois.

I thank the Committee for your consideration.
